Nervous people are always on tender hooks. A slight noise smites the drums of their ears like the clash of cymbals. The most trivial unexpected sound drives them to the verge of distraction. But invigorated and built up with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, their supersensitiveness speedily disappears. Dyspepsia, malaria, kidney troubles, billiousness and rheumatism are cured by the Bitters.

CHAPTER 1—S. F. NO. 635.

An Act proposing an amendment to section thirty-three (33) of article four (4) of the constitution of the State of Minnesota, prohibiting special legislation.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. The following amendment to section thirty-three (33) of article four (4) of the constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed to the people of said state for their approval or rejection, which said section when so approved shall read as follows:

"Section 33. In all cases when a general law can be made applicable no special law shall be enacted; and whether a general law could have been made applicable in any case, is hereby declared a judicial question, and as such shall be judicially determined without regard to any legislative assertion on that subject. The legislature shall pass no local or special law, regulating the affairs of, or incorporating, erecting or changing the lines of any county, city, village, township, ward or school district, or creating the offices, or prescribing the powers and duties of the officers of, or fixing or relating to the compensation, salary or fees of the same or the mode of election or appointment thereto; authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, vacating or maintaining roads, highways, streets or alleys; remitting fines, penalties, forfeiture; regulating the powers, duties and practice of justices of the peace, magistrates and constables; changing the names of persons, places, lakes or rivers; for opening and conducting of elections, or fixing or changing the places of voting; authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children; changing the law of descent or succession; conferring rights upon minors; declaring any named person of age; giving effect to informal or invalid wills or deeds, or affecting the estates of minors or persons under disability; locating or changing county seats; regulating the management of public schools, the building or repairing of school houses, and the raising of money for such purposes; exempting property from taxation, or regulating the rate of interest on money; creating corporations or amending, renewing, extending or explaining the charters thereof; granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever, or authorizing public taxation for a private purpose. Provided, however, that the inhibitions of local or special laws in this section shall not be construed to prevent the passage of general laws on any of the subjects enumerated.

The legislature may repeal any existing special or local law, but shall not amend, extend or modify any of the same.

SEC. 2. This proposed amendment shall be submitted to the people of this state for their approval or rejection at the next general election held therein, and each of the legal voters at said election may vote by ballot for or against said proposed amendment, and the returns thereof shall be made and certified and such votes canvassed, and the result thereof declared in the manner provided by law for returning, certifying and canvassing votes at general elections for state officers and declaring the result thereof; and if it shall appear therefrom that a majority of the voters present and voting at said election upon said amendment have voted in favor of the same, then immediately after the result shall have been ascertained, the governor shall make proclamation thereof, and said amendment shall therefrom take effect and be in full force as part of the constitution of the State of Minnesota.

SEC. 3. The ballots used at said election on said amendment shall have printed thereon, "Amendment to article four (4) of the constitution to prohibit special legislation, yes—no;" and each elector voting on said amendment shall, unless otherwise provided by general law, mark across, erase or scratch out one (1) of said words, "yes" or "no," on said ballot, and leave the other on the same when deposited in the ballot box, and no ballot shall be counted except those having one (1) only of said words "yes" or "no" thereon, and any ballot having unmarked, not erased or not scratched the word "yes" thereon shall be counted in favor of said amendment, and any ballot having unmarked, not erased or not scratched the word "no" thereon shall be counted against said amendment.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 15, 1891.

CHAPTER 2—S. F. NO. 124.

An Act proposing an amendment to section three (3) of article nine (9) of the constitution of the State of Minnesota, authorizing the taxation of the gross earnings in this state of railroads, sleeping, drawing room and parlor car companies, telegraph and telephone companies, express companies and insurance companies, or, in lieu of such tax, authorizing a license fee or tax on either or any of such companies, and authorizing a specific tax on mining property.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. The following amendment to section three (3) of article nine (9) of the constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed to the people of said state for their approval or rejection; that is to say, to add at the end of said section the following words:

"And there may be levied and collected annually a tax upon the gross earnings in this state of all railroads, sleeping, parlor and drawing room car companies, or owners, whose cars run in or into this state; on all telegraph and telephone companies, or owners, whose lines are in or extend into this state; on all express companies, or owners, doing business in this state; on all foreign insurance companies doing business in this state; on all domestic insurance companies of this state, or on either or any of such companies. Or in lieu of such tax on the gross earnings of such companies, or either or any of them, an annual license fee or tax imposed on them, or either or any of them; but no tax upon the gross earnings of any corporation shall be construed to prevent the taxation, by law, of any real estate owned by said corporation not used in the business of the same. And there may be levied and collected in lieu of other taxation on mining property a specific tax upon the product of all mines in this state, but no such tax shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate belonging to the owners of such mine not used in the business of mining or in connection therewith."

SEC. 2. This proposed amendment shall be submitted to the people of said state for their approval or rejection at the next general election for the year eighteen hundred and ninety-two, and each of the legal voters of said state may, at said election, vote by ballot for or against said amendment, and the returns thereof shall be made and certified, and such votes and the result thereof declared, in the manner provided by law for returning, certifying and canvassing votes at general elections for state officers and declaring the result thereof; and if it shall appear therefrom that a majority of the voters present and voting at said election upon said amendment "yes" or "no," have voted in favor of the same, then within ten days after the result shall have been ascertained the governor shall make proclamation thereof, and said amendment shall thereupon take effect and be in full force as part of the constitution of the State of Minnesota.

SEC. 3. The ballots used at said election on said amendment shall have printed thereon: "Amendment to section three (3) of article nine (9) of the constitution, providing for the taxation of sleeping car companies and other companies, yes—no;" and each elector voting on said amendment shall erase, mark across or scratch out one (1) of said words, "yes" or "no," on said ballot box, and no ballots shall be counted except those having one (1) only of said words "yes" or "no" thereon.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 3—S. F. NO. 854.

An Act to divide the State of Minnesota into seven congressional districts.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. The State of Minnesota is hereby divided into seven congressional districts, each of which is entitled to elect one representative to the congress of the United States.

SEC. 2. The counties of Houston, Fillmore, Mower, Freeborn, Waseca, Steele, Dodge, Olmsted, Winona and Wabasha shall constitute the First congressional district.

SEC. 3. The counties of Faribault, Martin, Jackson, Noble, Rock, Pipestone, Murray, Watonwan, Blue Earth, Nicollet, Brown, Redwood, Lyon, Lincoln, Yellow Medicine, Lac qui Parle, Chippewa and Cottonwood shall constitute the Second congressional district.

SEC. 4. The counties of Goodhue, Dakota, Rice, Scott, Le Sueur, Sibley, Carver, McLeod, Renville and Meeker shall constitute the third congressional district.

SEC. 5. The counties of Ramsey, Washington, Chisago, Isanti and Kanabec shall constitute the Fourth congressional district.

SEC. 6. The county of Hennepin shall constitute the Fifth congressional district.

SEC. 7. The counties of Cook, Lake, St. Louis, Itasca, Carlton, Aitkin, Crow Wing, Pine, Mille Lacs, Anoka, Sherburne, Wright, Stearns, Benton, Morrison, Todd, Cass, Wadena, Hubbard and Beltrami shall constitute the Sixth congressional district.

SEC. 8. The counties of Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Norman, Clay, Wilkin, Traverse, Big Stone, Swift, Kandiyohi, Stevens, Pope, Douglas, Grant, Otter Tail and Becker shall constitute the Seventh congressional district.

SEC. 9. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 17, 1891.

CHAPTER 4—H. F. NO. 129.

An Act to regulate elections.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. On the first (1st) Tuesday after the first (1st) Monday in November of each even-numbered year, an election shall be held in the several election districts of the state, which shall be known as the general election; and the several state and county officers, judges of the supreme and district courts members of the legislature and representatives in congress of the United States shall be elected at the general election next preceding the expiration of the term of each of the said officers, respectively, and on a year when the president and vice president of the United States are to be chosen, a number of electors of president and vice president of the United States equal to the number of senators and representatives to which this state is entitled in the congress of the United States shall be elected at said election.

ELECTION DISTRICTS.

SEC. 2. Every organized township, every incorporated village which is now a separate election district, and every ward of each incorporated city shall form at least one election district, but no election district in any incorporated city or village shall contain more than four hundred (400) voters, and whenever any such election district is found by the number of votes there cast at any election to contain more than four hundred (400) voters, it shall be the duty of the supervisors of the town, or the common council, village, borough, or municipal corporation of the city or village, to cause such district, at least six (6) weeks before the next ensuing general, town or city election, to be divided into two (2) or more districts, each containing, as nearly as may be, an equal number of voters. When any ward shall be divided into two or more districts in an incorporated city, the common council, village, borough or municipal corporation shall publish the same by making a map or description of such division, defining it by known boundaries, and keeping such map or description open for public inspection in the office of the clerk of such city, and also by posting up copies of each map or description in at least ten (10) of the most public places in every district of such ward; and the common council, village, borough or municipal corporation shall also, prior to the next election, furnish copies of such map or description to the judges of election in each district of such ward.

SEC. 3. Whenever any number of voters not less than eight (8), residing in an unorganized or partially organized county, shall, at least eight (8) weeks before any general and six (6) weeks before any special election, petition the governor to establish a new election district, designating the boundaries of the same, which shall not be within five (5) miles of the polling place of any existing district, it shall be the duty of the governor, and he is hereby authorized, to cause to be established such district, and shall select from the names of the petitioners or others three (3) persons who shall be judges of election therein; provided, that not more than two of the judges so appointed shall belong to the same political party: such districts to be established at such place or places as the petitioners may require. The governor shall within at least six (6) weeks before a general election, and within four (4) weeks before a special election, publish in some newspaper published in the state a list of all election districts by him so established, and the place where the elections are to be held, and the names of the judges of election.

JUDGES OF ELECTION.

SEC. 4. The township supervisors of each township are the judges of election, and the town clerk of each township shall act as one (1) of the clerks of election in their respective election districts, and the judges of election shall appoint an additional clerk of election, who shall be of an opposite political party (if practicable) to the town clerk. The city council of all incorporated cities, and the municipal council of all incorporated villages which constitute one or more separate election districts, shall, at least twenty-five, (25) days before any election, appoint three (3), qualified electors of each election district of said city or village, who shall be judges of election in their election districts respectively, and who shall appoint two (2) qualified electors of their election districts as clerks of election. The election shall be held in such election district at the place where the last preceding election was held except as hereinafter provided: but, if in any town a vote is taken to hold it elsewhere, the next ensuing election shall be held at the place designated by such vote. The city council of every incorporated city shall, by ordinance or resolution, appoint the place of holding the election in each election district in said city; and when in any township having over four hundred (400) electors the supervisors divide the same into two (2) or more election districts, they shall designate the boundaries thereof, and thereafter there shall be elected, at the annual town meeting of such township, three (3) judges of election and two (2) clerks of election in each district, and the place of holding said election in each district shall be designated by said town meeting, or, in default of such designation, shall be appointed by the judges of election thereof, in which case they shall make such designation at least twenty (20) days before election, and give notice thereof by posting proper notices in three (3) public places in the township. In case the supervisors divide the township into districts, as herein provided, and no town meeting is thereafter held prior to the election, then the supervisors shall, twenty-five (25) days before election, appoint the judges and clerks for that election and shall not themselves act. No more than two (2) judges and one (1) clerk of election, except where town supervisors and town clerks so act, shall belong to the same political party. No person shall be eligible as judge or clerk of election unless he be a qualified voter within the election district in which he sits, nor unless he can read, write and speak the English language understandingly.

SEC. 5. At least thirty days before any election, the local, city or village committees of the several parties participating at the last preceding election may furnish to the city council or other appointing authorities, a list of qualified electors for the various election districts to act as judges of election, which lists shall be certified to by the several secretaries of such committees. Said judges of election shall be selected from the lists so submitted in the following manner:

One for each election district from each of said lists so recommended by the said different parties; the first to be selected from the list submitted by the party polling the largest number of votes in said city or village at the last preceding general election; the second from the list submitted by the party polling the second largest number of votes at the last preceding general election; the third from the list submitted by the party polling the third largest number of votes at the last preceding general election: and in case there are not three lists submitted to such council, or other appointing authorities, then said council, or other appointing authorities, shall select one from each list submitted as above provided, and said council or other appointing authorities shall themselves select the remaining judge or judges, but in no case shall more than two of such judges belong to the same political party.

SEC. 6. The secretary of state shall, between the first days of July and September in each year, direct and cause to be delivered to the auditor of each county a notice specifying all the officers in said county whose term of office will expire on the first Monday of January, next succeeding, and specifying, also, the several officers to be chosen in such county at the next general election. The auditor to whom such notice is delivered shall, upon the receipt thereof, cause a like notice to be sent to each town, city and village clerk in his county. Every township, city and village clerk, at least fifteen (15) days before the holding of any general election, and twenty (20) days before the holding of any special election, shall give public notice of the time and place of holding such election by posting in three public places in every election district three (3) notices containing a list of the officers to be elected at such election, one (1) of which notices shall be posted up at the place of holding the election. Said notices shall contain, also, the hours during which the polls will be open; provided, that no failure of clerk to give such notice aforesaid shall invalidate an election.

SEC. 7. If either of the judges of election of any election district in the state shall fail to attend at the time and place appointed for correcting the list of registers, or holding an election, or if either of said judges be a candidate at such election, or refuse to act as judge, the qualified electors of such election district present shall elect viva voce some qualified elector of said election district, of the same political party as the judge so absent, to act as judge instead of such judge so absent, disqualified or refusing to act, and if any clerk of election be absent, disqualified or refuse to act, the judges of election shall appoint some qualified elector of the same political party as the clerk so absent, disqualified or refusing to act, in place of such clerk; and before any judge or clerk of election enters upon the discharge of the duties imposed upon him by this chapter, he shall take and subscribe to the following oath, to wit:

"I, A. B., (judge or clerk of election, as the case may be) do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will perform the duties of judge (or clerk) of the election (as the case may be) according to law and the best of my ability, and will studiously endeavor to prevent fraud, deceit and abuse in conducting this election, so help me God:" which said oath, so taken, subscribed and certified, shall be affixed to the said list or register provided for in sections eight (8) and eleven (11) of this act. If there be no person present authorized to administer oaths, then the judges of election may administer to each other, and to clerks, the oath provided.

REGISTRATION IN TOWNS AND VILLAGES, AND IN CITIES CONTAINING LESS THAN 12,000 INHABITANTS.

SEC. 8. The judges of election in each election district throughout the state (except in cities having over twelve thousand (12,000) inhabitants), at least twenty (20) days before any election, shall make a list or register of the names of all persons who are entitled to vote in their respective districts at such election, which list shall contain the surnames of such persons in their alphabetical order and their places of residence. Three copies of said list shall, at least ten (10) days before such election, be posted in each election district, together with a notice of the time and place when and where the judges of election will be present for the purpose of making corrections in said list. The judges of election on the Tuesday next preceding election, from the hour of nine (9) in the morning until the hour of four (4) in the afternoon of said day, and in cities containing a population of over two thousand (2,000) inhabitants and upwards on Tuesday two weeks preceding the election, and on the Tuesday next preceding such election, from nine (9) o'clock in the forenoon until nine (9) o'clock in the evening of said days, shall be present at the place appointed for the holding of such election in their respective election districts for the purpose of making such corrections in said list or register; in making such corrections said judges of election shall enter upon such lists the additional names of all persons properly shown to be entitled to vote in that election district at such election, and erase from said list or register the names of all persons properly shown not to be entitled to vote in that district at such election. The said judges, on first making out said list, shall consult the poll lists used at the last preceding general election in their election district, and shall place in said list or register the names of persons whom they know, or can with reasonable diligence ascertain, to be entitled to vote at such election in their respective election districts. The register shall be corrected, certified to and filed at the close of registry day, as provided for in sections thirteen (13), fourteen (14) and fifteen (15) of this act, and in cities the judges may require the oath specified in section thirteen (13), but otherwise the provisions of such sections shall not apply. At such election no person shall vote whose name is not upon said list or register at the time of opening the polls; provided, that if any person offering to vote, whose name is not upon said list or register, can produce evidence which satisfies a majority of the judges that he has the qualifications of an elector in said district, and is entitled to vote at such election, but whose name has been omitted from said list or register, then the name of such person shall be added to the lists or registers, and he shall be allowed to vote; and shall not, unless the judges require it, be obliged to make the oath or produce the evidence provided by section sixty (60) of this act. But if required by the judges he shall do so; nor shall the vote of any person be rejected whose name is upon said list at the time of opening the polls; provided, that if evidence satisfying a majority of the judges be produced showing that the name was registered by mistake, and that the person so offering to vote has not the qualifications of an elector in said district, and is not entitled to vote at said election, there [then] the name of such person shall be stricken from said list and he shall not be allowed to vote; but in all such cases an entry shall be made opposite to each name added to or stricken from said lists or registers after the opening of the polls, and the judges of election shall make, or cause to be made, a duplicate of such lists or registers, so that there shall be two (2) registers or lists at every election. The population of the various grades of cities shall be determined by the last officially promulgated state or national census.

SEC. 9. The judges of election in all election districts throughout the state in determining the residence of any person for the purpose of ascertaining who are qualified electors shall be governed by the following rules so far as they are applicable:

First—The place shall be considered and held to be the residence of a person in which his habitation is fixed, without any present intention of removing therefrom, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning.

Second—A person shall not be considered to have lost his residence who leaves his home to go into another state, or county in this state for temporary purposes merely, and with the intention of returning.

Third—A person shall not be considered to have gained a residence in any county into which he comes for temporary purposes merely, without the intention of making such county his home.

Fourth—If a person go into another state with the intention of making it his residence he loses his residence in this state.

Fifth—If any person remove to another state with the intention of remaining there for an indefinite time as a place of residence he loses his residence in this state, notwithstanding he entertains the idea of returning at some future time.

Sixth—The place where a man's family resides shall be held to be his place of residence; but if it be a place of temporary establishment for his family, or for transient purposes, it shall be otherwise.

Seventh—If a man have a family fixed in one place, and he do business in another, the former shall be considered his place of residence; but any man having a family, who has taken up his abode with the intention of remaining, and whose family refuses to reside with him, shall be regarded as a citizen and voter where he has taken up his abode.

Eighth—The mere intention to acquire a new residence, without the fact of removal, shall avail nothing, neither shall the fact of removal without the intention. And no person employed temporarily in the construction or repair of any railroad, canal, municipal or other work of public nature, shall acquire a residence in any election precinct into which he came for that purpose, so as to entitle him to vote therein: but this provision shall not be held to extend to station agents and section men who permanently reside in such election district. In any question that may arise as to the right of any person in the employment of any railroad corporation or employed upon public work as aforesaid, to be registered, or to vote, in any election precinct, it must first satisfactorily appear to all the judges of such election that the said party is an actual bona fide resident of said election district, and not there for temporary purposes merely; and the mere affidavit of such person shall not be received as conclusive as to any fact necessary to entitle him to vote.

Ninth—That any person being a permanent inmate of any soldiers' home in this state shall, for the purpose of this act, have a legal residence thereat.

SEC. 10. The polls in the several election districts in towns, villages and cities of less than four thousand (4,000) inhabitants shall be opened at nine (9) o'clock in the morning and kept open until five (5) o'clock in the afternoon; but in cities of four thousand (4,000) or more and less than twelve thousand (12,000) inhabitants, the polls shall be opened at seven (7) o'clock in the morning and shall be kept open until six (6) o'clock in the evening; in cities of twelve thousand (12,000) inhabitants and over the polls shall be opened at six (6) o'clock in the morning and closed at seven (7) o'clock in the evening. No adjournment or intermission whatever shall take place until the same be closed and until all the votes cast at such poll have been counted and the result publicly announced.

REGISTRATION IN CITIES CONTAINING OVER 12,000 INHABITANTS.

SEC. 11. In all incorporated cities of over twelve thousand (12,000) inhabitants the person authorized by, or appointed pursuant to law, to act as judges and clerks of election in any such city, or in any ward or other election district in such city in this state, shall constitute a board of registry for their respective cities, wards or election districts, and shall meet on Tuesday three (3) weeks preceding any general, state or city election, and fourteen (14) days before any special election. Said board shall meet at nine (9) o'clock in the morning at a place where the last election was held, or such other place that may be lawfully designated for the polling place in the election district in which such board are judges and clerks, and shall continue in session until nine (9) o'clock in the afternoon; they shall proceed to make a registration as hereinafter prescribed of all persons entitled to vote at the ensuing election in such election districts; such registration, when completed, shall constitute and be known as the register of electors of such election district. Two (2) such registers shall be made by said board. Such board shall have and exercise the same right to preserve order at their meetings as is given to judges of election to preserve order on election day, and vacancies in said board shall be filled in the same manner as such vacancies are filled at election.

SEC. 12. Said register shall be in form substantially as follows:

Names.	Voted.	Residence. Number.	Residence. Street or Avenue.	Place of Nativity.	Color.	Length of Residence. U. S. Years.	Length of Residence. State. Years.	Length of Residence. State. Months.	Length of Residence. District. Years.	Length of Residence. District. Months.	Length of Residence. District. Days.	Naturalized or Declared Intention.	Date of Papers.	Court or Place. Said board shall enter all names in said registers, alphabetically by surnames; they shall enter therein the name of all persons residing in their election district whose names appear in the poll list in said district at the last preceding election as having voted thereat, except such as are known to the board to have since died, removed from the district or become disqualified; and so far as known to any of said board, the proper entries shall be made opposite each name in the different columns of said registry. In case the boundaries of the district have been changed since the preceding election at which such poll list was made, then the judges shall place on the registers only the names of persons appearing by such poll list to be residents within the new district in which they are sitting. In addition to the names on said poll list, the board shall enter in said registers the names of all persons who shall personally appear before them for registration, and also the name of any person who shall make and have presented to the board at any time while sitting to make or correct the registry lists as provided in this act, an affidavit in the form following, and also, if it appears by such affidavit that the affiant has removed from another election district or is registered elsewhere in the city a certificate of removal from such other district, as provided in section sixteen (16) of this act.

REGISTRY OATHS OF ABSENT PERSON.

I, ———, being first duly sworn, on oath say that I am twenty-one years of age, and a duly and legally qualified voter in the State of Minnesota. That I am (or am not) a native, have (or have not) been naturalized. (Date of naturalization papers. Court before which granted). That I am a resident, and for ten days have been a resident of the city of ——— and reside and for ten day have resided at number ———, in said city. That I cannot be present in person to register in the proper election district for the reasons that ———. That by occupation I am a ———. That I voted at the last preceding election held in said city, and that at that time resided at number ———, and believe that I am now registered in that election district, or ——— (that I did not vote at the last preceding election in said city, and believe that I am not registered in said city). That I make this affidavit that I may be registered in the proper election district where I now reside.

COUNTY OF ——— } ss

On this ——— day of ——— 18——, before me, the subscriber, a ——— in and for said county, personally appeared ——— to me personally known, and being by me first duly sworn, subscribed and swore to the foregoing statement.

Such affidavit shall be subscribed and sworn to before some person qualified to administer oaths, who shall attach his official certificate thereto, according to the above form. Provided, that in all cities of forty thousand (40,000) inhabitants and upward, there shall be no name of any person registered unless he shall appear personally before said judges or register by affidavit of absent person as provided by this section, of this act, and that no copy shall be made of any names on the poll lists, of any previous election; and that sections sixteen (16) and seventeen (17) of this act shall not apply to cities of forty thousand (40,000) inhabitants and upwards.

SEC. 13. One of the judges of election shall administer to all persons appearing personally before him for registration the following oath or affirmation: "You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will fully and truly answer such questions as shall be put to you, touching your place of residence, place of birth, and your qualifications as an elector, and your right to register and vote under the laws of this state." One of the judges shall then ask each of the said persons appearing before them the questions necessary to properly fill out the spaces opposite the names of such persons in the various columns of the register. The clerk or other members of the board shall enter the names of such persons in the registers, and the answers to the questions in the appropriate columns therein. In the column headed residence there shall be the name and the number of the street or other location of the dwelling, if there be a definite number; if not, such clear and definite description of the place of such dwelling as shall enable it to be readily ascertained. If more than one family be residing in a house, there shall be entered the floor on which the applicant resides, and the room or rooms occupied by him. The register shall be ruled and one name shall be written on each line, but no name shall be written between the lines, and if the name of any person be so written, such person shall not be entitled or allowed to vote, unless his name shall also appear properly on a line in said register. At the end of each day's register the board shall carefully compare the registers and make them to correspond and agree, and the judges of election shall sign their names at the end of the list on every page of such registry, so that no new name can be added without discovery, and shall also sign and attach to such register a certificate in substance as follows: "We, the undersigned, judges of election in the ——— district of the ——— ward, of the city of ——— in the State of Minnesota, do jointly and severally certify that at the general registration of electors in said election district, on the ——— day of ——— 18—, there were registered by us in said election precinct the names which in this book are inserted, and that the number of registered and qualified voters was and is the number of ———" (number to be written in figures and words). Such registers shall, before ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of the next day, be deposited by one of said board in the office of the city clerk or recorder, whose duty it shall be to safely keep the same.

SEC. 14. On Tuesday, two (2) weeks preceding any general election and on the thirteenth (13th) day preceding any special election, said board of registration shall again meet at the same place as before, and remain in public session from nine (9) o'clock in the forenoon until nine (9) o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of registering all qualified voters whose names are not yet registered. They shall obtain from the city clerk or recorder, and use the same registers as on the first day. The same form shall be observed in regard to registration as were required upon the first day of registration. At the end of such day's registration the registers shall be compared and made to agree, and shall be signed as at the first day's registration, and similar certificates attached thereto. It shall be the duty of the clerks of election composing said board, during the session of that day and before the board adjourns, to make a copy of all the names upon such registers, together with the addresses as indicated in such registers. Immediately after its completion said copy shall be conspicuously posted up outside the place of registration, with a notice of the time when such board of registration will meet for a completion and final correction of its registers, and shall be accessible to any elector who may desire to examine or copy the same. The registers shall be returned by one (1) of said board to the office of the city clerk, or recorder before ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of the day succeeding the day of registration.

SEC. 15. On the last Tuesday preceding the day of any general election and on the day one (1) week preceding any special election, said board of registration shall again meet at the same place for the completion and final correction of said registers. They shall again obtain the same registers before used from the city clerk or recorder's office, and shall be in session from twelve (12) o'clock noon until nine (9) o'clock in the afternoon. Any qualified elector not already registered may apply to said board to have his name inserted in said register; the same rule for registration required on previous days shall be observed by the board. It shall be the duty of said board to erase from the registers the name of any person inserted therein who shall be proven by the oath of two (2) qualified electors of such district, to the satisfaction of the board, to be in any way disqualified to vote in such district at the ensuing election. At the end of the session the registers shall be again compared, and be made to agree and correspond, and shall be signed and certified by the board as before, and deposited in the city clerk or recorder's office; before the said board adjourn or separate they shall prepare a copy of all the names and their respective addresses, appearing upon such registers, and post the same conspicuously forthwith outside the place of registration. Provided, that in all cities of forty thousand (40,000) inhabitants and upwards, there shall be no session of said board of registration on the last Tuesday preceding the day of any general election, but in lieu thereof there shall be a session of said board of registration on the second Saturday preceding the day of any general election, and another session on the last Wednesday preceding the day of any general election, and all provisions of this section, including hours and place of meeting, shall apply and be of full force and effect as to each of said sessions of said board of registration, save as to the day for holding the same above excepted.

SEC. 16. When it shall appear by the answer or affidavit of the applicant for registration, or shall be known to the board of registry that the applicant has or is registered in another election district in the same city than the one at which he makes his application, the board shall not enter his name in said register until a certificate of removal is procured from the board of such other district, which may be in the following form: "This is to certify that the name of ——— heretofore residing at ——— in this election district, has been by us, the board of registry of this district, striken from the registration of this precinct at his request, upon his affidavit of removal. The following entries appear upon the register of this election district concerning him (add entries in various columns of register)." Signed by the board of registry of former place of registration. Except as hereinafter provided, the above certificate shall be granted by such board upon and only upon the applicant for registry making and subscribing the following affidavit, which shall be sworn to before such board, or before the board in the district to which the removal is to be made, and if made before the latter board, upon being presented to the former, such affidavit shall warrant such former board in issuing the above certificate to the bearer. "I, ———, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I now reside at (street and number) in ward number —, in the city of ———. That I am duly entered as a qualified voter in the registers of the ——— district, in the ——— ward of said city, residing at number ——— (street or avenue): that I have removed from the last mentioned residence, and do hereby request the proper entry and record to be made, and that my name be erased from the registers of the last mentioned district, and a certificate of removal furnished me." If a person remove from one place in a district to another place in the same district, his vote shall not be received at any election unless the registers are changed as herein provided. Provided, that whenever a "registry oath of an absent person," specified in section twelve (12) is presented to the board in the district where such affidavit shows such person to have formerly resided and such affidavit further shows the person subscribing the same to be a resident of and voter in another election district, then if affiant's name appears upon the registers, the board shall erase it therefrom and give the person presenting the affidavit a certificate of removal for the person mentioned in the affidavit, making upon the registers the following entry: "Removed to ——— district, ——— ward, by affidavit presented by ———."

SEC. 17. The judges in the district from which the removal in the case specified in the proviso to the last section is made shall not retain the affidavit so presented to them, but it, together with the certificate of removal, shall be deposited with the judges of election in the district to which the removal is made.

SEC. 18. The vote of no person whose name does not appear in said register as a qualified voter shall be received by the judges at any election, except the vote of a person whose name was registered and erased, as provided in section fifteen (15), and who takes the oath, as required by section sixty (60) of this act.

SEC. 19. Sections eleven (11), twelve (12), sixteen (16), seventeen (17) and eighteen (18) of this act, relating to registry, shall have no application except in cities containing over twelve thousand (12,000) inhabitants, and sections thirteen (13), fourteen (14) and fifteen (15) only such as is specified in section seven (7) of this act.

GENERAL PROVISIONS APPLYING TO ALL ELECTION DISTICTS IN THE STATE.

SEC. 20. Opening Polls—On the day preceding any election the judges of election shall procure the registers provided for in this act from the office of the official with whom they are required to be deposited, one being procured by a judge representing one of the two leading political parties, and the other by a judge representing another leading political party; the ballot boxes and the ballots shall be delivered by the officer in whose custody they are to the judges of election in the respective districts, also the keys of such boxes and the poll books and all stationery and material necessary to such election. Such judges and clerks shall be held responsible for the safe keeping of said registers and ballots unaltered, as provided in section one hundred and eight (108) of this act, and shall have all of said ballots, boxes, registers, poll books, printed instruction and materials at the polling places in which they are the judges and clerks at the hour of the opening on the day of elections.

SEC. 21. The judges of election, or one of them, immediately before the proclamation is made of the opening of the polls, shall open the ballot boxes in the presence of the people there assembled, and turn them upside down, so as to empty them of anything that is in them, and then lock them; and the key thereof shall be delivered to one of the judges, and the said boxes shall not be reopened until for the purpose of counting the ballots therein at the close of the polls; and the judges forthwith shall proclaim that the polls are open. Written notice of the hour of closing the polls shall be conspicuously posted up outside the polling place.

SEC. 22. The judges of election may appoint one (1) or more special constables to attend each place of election. It shall be the duty of the sheriff, constable or special constable to keep the surroundings of the polls quiet and orderly, and during voting hours to allow no person to approach within six (6) feet of the ballot boxes, or to pass behind the railing, or within six (6) feet of the booth or ballot compartments hereinafter provided for, except electors engaged in receiving, preparing or depositing their ballots, without permission of the judges of election.

If any of the above named officers neglect to perform that duty, then the judges of election shall swear in enough private citizens to enforce order, who shall have power as constables or conservators of the peace to make arrests for breach of the peace. And any police officer or constable attending the election may call to his aid a sufficient number of citizens to arrest any disorderly person or suppress any riot or disorder during the election. Whoever conducts himself in a riotous or disorderly manner at any election, and persists in such conduct after being warned to desist, may be arrested without warrant. Provided, that no police officer shall remain within the voting room unless he shall be ordered to do so by the judges of election, and shall in no manner interfere with or seek to influence any voter under the penalty hereafter provided.

SEC. 23. No elector shall vote except in the district in which he actually resides.

SEC. 24. The only method of voting at any election shall be by ballot, and all ballots hereafter voted at any election in the State of Minnesota shall be printed as hereafter provided.

SEC. 25. Ballots—There shall be one plain white ballot, upon which shall be printed the names of all the candidates for office who are to be voted for throughout the entire state; all amendments to the constitution, and all other questions or propositions that are to be submitted to the electors throughout the state. If the names of the candidates for presidential electors make a ballot too long for convenience, they may be printed upon a separate white ballot.

SEC. 26. There shall be one ballot tinted red, upon which shall be printed the names of all candidates for office which are to be voted for in any city or municipality at a city or municipal election for city or municipal offices; and also all questions and all propositions that are to be submitted to the electors of such city or municipality, and pertain to the same only.

SEC. 27. There shall be one ballot tinted blue, upon which shall be printed the names of all candidates for office other than those specified in the two preceding sections; and also all questions or propositions to be submitted to the electors which are not properly to be placed upon the ballots specified in the two preceding sections.

SEC. 28. Printing of Ballots—The plain white ballots shall be printed by the secretary of state, and bound in blocks of one hundred (100) ballots to the block, the expense whereof shall be defrayed from the state treasury, and shall by the secretary of state be distributed to the auditors of the different counties in such quantities as shall be necessary to enable the city, village or township clerks to fully comply with the provisions of section thirty-one (31) of this act, such ballots to be furnished the county auditors at least eighteen (18) days before election, and a receipt, stating the number of ballots and the date on which they were received, shall be taken therefor. On the twenty-seventh (27th) day before election a sample ballot shall be printed and placed on file for examination.

SEC. 29. The ballots tinted blue shall be printed by the county auditor of each county, and bound in blocks of one hundred (100) ballots to the block, the expense whereof shall be defrayed from the county treasury, and shall be distributed by the county auditor, together with the ballots received from the state auditor, to city, village and township clerks within his county in such quantities as shall be necessary to enable such clerks to fully comply with the provisions of section thirty-one (31) of this act; such ballots to be furnished such clerks at least eight (8) days before the election, and receipts, stating the number and color of ballots and the date on which they were received, shall be taken therefor. On the tenth (10th) day before election a sample ballot shall be printed and placed on file for examination.

SEC. 30. The ballots tinted red shall be printed by the city clerk or recorder and bound in blocks of one hundred (100) ballots to the block, the expense whereof shall be defrayed from the city treasury, and shall, together with the white and blue ballots, and printed instructions hereinafter provided for, be distributed by the city clerk to the judges of election for each polling place, and receipt, stating the number and color of ballots and the date on which they were received, shall be taken therefor. On the seventh (7th) day before election a sample ballot shall be printed and placed on file for examination.

SEC. 31. Each city, village and township clerk shall provide for each polling place or election district in his city, village or township, seventy-five (75) ballots of each kind to be voted in the district for every fifty or fraction of fifty electors registered at the last preceding election in the district.

SEC. 32. It shall be the duty of the clerks of election to whom said blocks of ballots are given, to have them, together with the printed instructions, at the polling place in the district in which they are the judges, at the opening of the polls on the day of election.

SEC. 33. Form of Ballot—The form of the ballots shall be both in size and style substantially as printed in Exhibit "A," hereto annexed and made part of this bill, with such headings as shall be appropriate. The name of the candidate for each office shall follow the name of the office in capital letters, in the order in which they are handed in. Before each candidate's name shall be repeated the name of the office for which he is running, and after his name his politics shall be designated. Opposite to each candidate's name in the margin to the right shall be left a vacant space, in which the elector shall designate his vote by a cross (X) mark. The lines separating the names shall be three-eighths (⅜) of an inch apart, and the space at the right half (½) an inch wide. There shall be left at the left end of the list of names of candidates for each office a blank space of the same dimensions as the other spaces, in which the voter may place the name of any other person for whom he desires to vote, whose name is not printed on the ballot.

SEC. 34. Whenever a constitutional amendment or other proposition is submitted to be voted on by the people, the substance of such amendment or proposition shall be clearly indicated upon the proper ballot, and two spaces shall be left upon the margin, one for votes favoring the amendment or proposition, to be designated by the word "yes," and one for votes opposing the amendment or proposition, to be designated by the word "no." The elector shall designate his vote by a cross mark, thus. (X).

Proposed amendment to the Constitution giving judges a life tenure of office and making them appointive.	Yes.
	No.

When a president and vice president of the United States are to be elected, the presidential electors of each political party shall be grouped together and placed on the ballots in the order of priority in which the several political conventions nominating the said electors were held, and the name of each of such president electors shall be followed as in other cases with the name of the party he represents, and also with the surname of the presidential candidate he represents printed in bold type, and the groups of electors shall be separated from each other by a space of at least an inch in width and the words "vote for one only" omitted at the right.

In other cases, where several persons are to be voted for the same office, as judges of the supreme court, etc., the names shall be grouped and the ballots arranged substantially as above.

SEC. 35. Nominations—Any assembly or convention of delegates, held for the purpose of making nominations to public office, and also electors to the number hereinafter specified, may nominate candidates for public office to be filled by election within the state.

Said nomination shall be made by delivering to and leaving with the officer charged in this act with printing the ballots upon which the name is to be placed, within the time prescribed by section thirty-eight (38) of this act, a certificate of nomination for each candidate. The certificate of nomination, which may consist of one or more writings, shall contain, first, the name of the person nominated; second, the office for which he is nominated; third, the party or political principle he represents (expressed in not more than three (3) words); fourth, his place of residence, with street and number thereon, if any. In case of electors of president and vice president of the United States, the names of the candidates for president and vice president may be added to the party or political appellation.

SEC. 36. The certificate of nomination of a candidate for office selected by any convention of delegates, as hereinbefore defined, shall be signed and certified by the presiding officer and secretary of said convention, who shall also take and subscribe an oath before some proper officer that the facts stated in the certificates are true, and the secretary shall immediately deliver such certificates of nomination to the officer charged with the printing of the ballots, upon which the name is to be placed, and in case he shall neglect to do so he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

An assembly or convention of delegates within the meaning of this act is an organized assemblage of delegates representing a political party, which at the last election before the holding of such convention or assembly held at least one (1) per cent of the entire vote cast in the state, county or other division or district for which the nomination is made.

SEC. 37. The certificate of nomination of a candidate selected otherwise than by a convention of delegates, shall be signed by electors resident within the district or political division from which the candidate is presented to a number equal to one (1) per cent of the entire vote cast at the last preceding election in the state, county, or other political division or district from which the nomination is made. Provided, however, that the number of signatures required in the case of any state officer shall not exceed two thousand (2,000).

No certificate of nomination shall contain the name of more than one (1) candidate. No person shall join by certificate signed by voters in nominating more than one (1) nominee for the same office. That the name of any person nominated by more than one certificate for the same office shall be placed only once on the ballot, and opposite to the name of said person shall be placed the names of the several political parties or principles represented by him, and the vote for any one party he represents shall be designated a vote for such candidate.

Following the facts required to be stated in each certificate of nomination to be signed by electors shall be written or printed an oath in the following form: "I solemnly swear (or affirm) that I know the contents and purpose of this certificate, and assign the same of my free will." Each signer at the time of signing shall be sworn by some proper officer.

SEC. 38. Names must be handed to, and filed with, the secretary of state to be placed upon the white ballots, in accordance with the provisions of this act, at least twenty-eight (28) days before the day of election. Names must be handed to and filed with the county auditor, to be placed upon the ballot tinted blue at least twelve (12) days before the day of election. Names must be handed to and filed with the city clerk, to be placed upon the ballot tinted red at least ten (10) days before election. In all cases provided for in this section the secretary of state, county auditor, city clerk shall immediately give or send the person handing in any name or names to be placed upon the ticket an acknowledgment thereof upon the same day which it is received, and shall file and preserve such certificates, and they shall be subject to inspection like other records.

SEC. 39. In case of members of congress, judges of the district courts and all other candidates voted for in any district or division smaller than the entire state, but larger than an entire county, whenever such candidate is nominated by any convention of delegates, as specified in section thirty-five (35) of this act, it shall be the duty of the president and secretary of such convention to file a certificate as therein specified with the county auditor of each county in the congressional, judicial or other district for which the nomination is made. Whenever any such nomination in any such district is made by a certificate of nomination, as specified in section thirty-five (35), such original certificate containing the original signatures shall be filed with the county auditor in the county where the candidate resides, and the said auditor shall certify to as many correct copies of the same, if presented to him, as there are other counties in the district, and one of said certified copies shall be filed, within the proper time, with the county auditor of each said county in the district, and shall be authority for such auditors to place the name upon the blue ballot.

SEC. 40. The state and county auditors and city clerks shall respectively place upon the several ballots printed by them the name of each candidate for office, who shall have been nominated as hereinbefore provided, and whose certificate of nomination has been presented within the time specified, and on payment of the fee prescribed by law, which shall be as follows: For each name tendered to be placed on the white ballot, fifty (50) dollars, to be paid into the state treasury; for each name tendered to be placed upon the red ballot, five (5) dollars, to be paid into the city treasury; for each name tendered to be placed upon the blue ballot, ten (10) dollars, to be paid into the county treasury. Provided, that where the person whose name is to be placed upon the blue ballot is to be voted for in more than one county, as in case of members of congress, judges of district courts, etc., then the fee shall be twenty (20) dollars, and shall be divided among the several counties as nearly equal as may be, and the portion due each paid at the time and in the manner as provided for single counties.

SEC. 41. Each officer shall place upon the ballot by him to be printed only the names of candidates who are nominated for offices, properly to be placed upon such ballot by him to be printed under the provisions of this act. No ballot shall be furnished to any judges of election which contains the name of any candidate who is not properly to be voted for in the election district where such judges are to sit on the day of election.

The arrangement of names of candidates by their political principles shall correspond with the arrangement of the party principles at the head of the ballot. On the day succeeding the last day for the filing of nominations for candidates to be placed on the various ballots, the officer charged with the duty of preparing such ballots shall, in the presence of the representatives of the various political parties running candidates, proceed to draw lots for the position at the head of the ballot, and the political party the name of which is first drawn shall have the first place at the head of the ballot; the second name drawn, the second place, and so on until all the names or slips shall have been drawn.

SEC. 42. In case a vacancy occurs from any cause after nominations have been made, as heretofore specified, such vacancy may be filled at any time before the ballots are printed by filing with the proper officer a certificate of nomination in form and substance as heretofore provided, containing the name of the person substituted to fill the vacancy; such substitutional certificate to be executed by the chairman and secretary of the proper committee of the party making the nomination, the vacancy of which is to be filled, under such directions and regulations as the convention shall have specified, or in case none have been specified, then under the direction of the proper state, county, district or city committee, as the case may be.

SEC. 43. Whenever it shall appear by affidavit presented to any judge of the supreme or district courts of the state that an error or omission has occurred in the printing of the name or description of any candidate on official ballots, or any other error has been committed in printing the ballots, or that the president or secretary of any caucus or convention have failed to properly make or file any certificate of nomination, or the name of any person has been wrongfully placed upon said ballots as a candidate, such judge shall, immediately, by order, require the officer or person charged with the error or neglect, to forthwith correct the error, or perform his duty, or to show cause forthwith why such error should not be corrected or such duty performed.

Failing to obey the order of such judge shall be contempt.

SEC. 44. Arrangement at Polling Places—At the polling places the following arrangement shall be observed: There shall be provided boxes for voting, as many in number as the kind of ballots voted, one ballot box painted white, one painted red, and one painted blue. There shall also be a separate box for each polling place where women are entitled to vote, in which shall be placed all ballots cast by women.

There shall be provided in the room in which the inspectors of election sit, or immediately adjoining thereto, not less than two (2) booths or compartments for every hundred electors registered, according to the diagram below, so constructed that the voter can therein retire from observation, and there shall be placed in each of said compartments an indelible pencil to enable the voter to mark the ballot. Each compartment shall either be provided with a door or curtain, so that the voter while preparing his ballot may be shielded from observation, and shall be lighted.

SEC. 45. In case the compartments shall be in the same room in which the judges of election sit to receive the ballots the place where they sit and the portion of the room where the compartments are constructed shall be separated from the rest of the room by a railing so constructed as to leave a space of at least six (6) feet in front of the compartments and ballot boxes.

SEC. 46. No person or persons shall be allowed in the room containing the ballot boxes, or in case the ballot boxes and compartments are in the same room, no person or persons shall be allowed to go or remain inside the railing mentioned in the preceding section, except members of the board, officers of the peace, one (1) representative for each of the parties represented on the ticket and electors who are about to vote, except as provided in section fifty-seven (57).

The judges of election and ballot boxes shall at all times be in public view. The number of electors about to vote who shall be admitted at one time shall in no case exceed the number of compartments by more than three (3).

SEC. 47. The judges of election may make such arrangements for entrance to and exit from the room or place where the ballot boxes and compartments are situated as to them may seem the most advantageous and convenient, providing they disregard none of the foregoing requirements. They may also make such regulations as they deem proper, limiting the time in which an elector may remain in the polling room or place while receiving, preparing and voting his ballot; and such limitation, however, shall not be less than three (3) nor more than ten minutes, unless the delay be occasioned by the elector's vote being challenged, or is the fault of the judges.

SEC. 48. The judges of election shall allow one (1) eligible voter of each political party casting one (1) per cent of the entire vote at the preceding election in that district, to be chosen by each of said parties respectively, to be in the room where the election is held, to act as challengers of voters at the election, and such challengers may remain with the board until the votes are all canvassed and the result declared.

SEC. 49. All electors shall be allowed to go unmolested to the polling room for the purpose of voting, and to return therefrom in the same manner, but neither voters nor others shall be allowed to congregate in any numbers within one hundred (100) feet of the polling room in any election district.

SEC. 50. One of the judges of election shall have charge of and hand to, and receive the ballot or ballots from each elector voting. The other two judges shall use and handle the two registers delivered to the judges, as before specified, each using one, and shall make the use of them as hereinafter specified.

SEC. 51. Two (2) judges of opposite political parties shall, before the voting begins, or as soon thereafter as possible, place their initials on the backs of all the ballots they have, in some uniform place and in a uniform manner, and shall not otherwise mark the same.

SEC. 52. Method of Voting—When an elector presents himself, for the purpose of voting, he shall give his name and residence, with street and number, if any, and it shall be first ascertained that his name is on both the registers, and not erased; that the residence given by the elector corresponds with the residence of such register, and if challenged, as provided in section fifty-eight (58), that he is entitled to vote. Then the judge having charge of the ballots shall tear from the blocks a ballot of each kind that is to be voted, having the proper initials thereon, and hand the same to the voter, who shall retire alone to one of the booths or compartments above mentioned, and there prepare the ballot or ballots by placing a cross (X) mark opposite the name of each candidate for whom he wishes to vote in the blank space at the right hand margin provided for that purpose.

He shall then fold the ballots so that the face of the ballot will be concealed, but so that the proper initials may be seen upon the back, and coming from the compartment shall hand the same to the judge having charge of the ballots, who shall, without opening the same or permitting the same to be opened or examined, deposit the same in the proper boxes indicated by the color thereof, and shall announce the name and residence of the elector in an audible voice. The judges having charge of the registers shall then, in a column prepared thereon, in the same line with the voter's name, mark "voted" or the letter "V."

The electors shall then retire from the voting room.

SEC. 53. If any elector, after having marked his ballot, shows it to any one, except as hereinafter provided, the judge of election shall refuse to receive or place in the ballot box such ticket.

SEC. 54. If the elector place a cross (x) mark opposite the names of two or more persons running for the same office, said ballot shall not be counted for those officers, but shall be as those officers null and void. If any elector inadvertently spoils a ballot, he may obtain another from the board by returning the spoiled ballot to the board, and the board shall preserve said ballot for return to the county auditor, clerk or recorder, as the character of the ballot may indicate.

SEC. 55. The judge having charge of the ballots in the voting room shall not tear them off from the block upon which they are bound, except as they are required by the electors for voting, and the judges shall preserve the unused ballots, together with the ballots that have been spoiled, and return the white and blue ballots to the county auditor, and the red ballots to the city clerk or recorder, with a statement of the number of ballots used, and the county auditor and city clerk or recorder shall respectively give the judges of election receipts therefor.

SEC. 56. No official ballot shall be distributed except in the voting room to electors about to vote, and no ballot which has not the initials of two (2) judges of election, in said judges' own handwriting, on the back thereof, shall be placed in the box. If any person, during the day of election and until the closing of the polls, remove from the polling room any of the ballots printed for that election, said person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred ($100) dollars, imprisonment not exceeding six (6) months, or both. Voters may be allowed to carry with them to the booths sample ballots for use in assisting them in marking the official ballots, but the same shall not be printed on red, white or blue paper, and it shall be a misdemeanor to print or distribute sample ballots printed upon such paper. Provided, however, that sample ballots may be printed in newspapers as matter of news.

SEC. 57. Whenever any elector shall make oath that he cannot read English, or that because of physical disability he cannot mark his ballot, he shall have the right to call to his aid one or more of the judges of election, or qualified elector, who may read the ballot to and mark the ballot for such voter, in the presence of two (2) of the judges of election of opposite political party: provided, that no one person shall so mark the ballot of more than three (3) such electors in any one election district at one election; and provided further, that such person shall mark the ballot of such voter as directed by such voter and not otherwise.

SEC. 58. Challenge of Voters—At any time before any registered person presenting himself to vote receives the ballots from the judge of election, as hereinbefore provided, each judge of election shall and any other person in the voting room may challenge the person about to vote at the election, whom he knows or suspects to be not duly qualified as an elector.

If any such person so offering to vote at any election shall be challenged as to his right to vote at the election, by judge or other person, one of the judges shall tender him the following vote: "Do you solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will fully and truly answer all such questions as shall be put to you touching your place of residence, and qualifications as an elector at this election."

The judges, or one of them, shall then proceed to question the person challenged regarding his name, his age, then place of residence, how long he has resided in the town, ward or election district, where the vote is offered; where was his last place of residence, before he came to the town or ward; as to his citizenship, whether a native or naturalized citizen, and if the latter, when, where and what court, and before what officer he was naturalized; whether he came into the town or ward for the purpose of voting at that election, and how long he contemplates residing in the town or ward, and such other questions as tend to test his qualifications as a resident in the town or ward, and his right to vote at the polls.

SEC. 59. If the person so challenged refuse to answer the questions that are put to him, as aforesaid, the judges shall refuse to insert his name in the poll lists, and he shall not be allowed to vote.

SEC. 60. If the challenge is not withdrawn after the person so offering to vote has answered the questions put to him as aforesaid, one of the judges of election shall tender him the following oath: "You do swear (or affirm) that you are a citizen of the United States, or that you have declared your intention to become such citizen conformably to the laws of the United States on the subject of naturalization; that you are twenty-one (21) years of age, and have been a resident of the United States for one year and an inhabitant of this state for four (4) months immediately preceding this election, and a natural resident of this election district for ten (10) days immediately preceding this election; that you have not voted at this election; and are a qualified voter in this election district."

Upon taking such oath such person shall be allowed to vote; provided, that if it appear that the name of the person offering to vote has been registered and erased as in this act before specified, he shall not be allowed to vote, unless in addition to the above oaths he produces a person known to a majority of the judges, who makes and subscribes an oath before one of them, in their presence, as to the identity of the person so offering to vote, and as to his place of residence. Having done so he shall be allowed to vote.

SEC. 61. If any person refuse to take any of the oaths so tendered, or in the case so provided shall refuse to produce the person to swear to his identity and residence, then his name shall not be inserted in the poll list, and he shall not be allowed to vote.

SEC. 62. Poll Lists—Each clerk of the polls shall make a poll list which shall contain one (1) column headed "Number," one (1) column headed "Residence," one (1) column headed "Names of Voters," and as many additional columns as there are boxes kept at the election. The heading of each additional column shall correspond with the name of one of the boxes so kept, viz.: White, blue and red.

SEC. 63. The name of each elector voting shall be entered by each clerk in the column of his poll list headed "Names of Voters," the place of residence of each voter so voting in the column headed "Residence," and when there shall be more than one box kept, opposite such name shall be written the figure one (1) in every remaining column of such poll list corresponding in heading with the name of each box in which a vote of the elector shall be deposited. In the column headed "Number" the clerk shall write consecutively the number of each person voting, the first vote being numbered one (1). Said clerk shall enter in a column opposite the name of each person not registered the words "not registered," and if any vote is sworn in such fact shall be noted.

SEC. 64. Every elector, at the time of offering his vote, shall truly state the name of the street in which he resides, and if the house, lodging or tenement where he resides is numbered, the number thereof. In case of his refusal to make the statement aforesaid the vote of the elector shall not be received.

SEC. 65. After the canvass of the votes one (1) of said poll lists and registers so kept and checked as aforesaid shall be attached together, and on the following day shall be filed in the office of the city, town or village clerk; the other of said poll lists and registers and poll books so kept and checked shall be returned to the office of the county auditor in said district at the time the returns of the election are made. The registers shall at all times be open to public inspection at the office of the authorities in which they shall be deposited, without charge.

SEC. 66. Printed Instructions—Uniform printed instructions to voters; printed in large type upon cards shall be furnished by the secretary of the state to the county auditor of each county, containing any information that will enable the voters to quickly make and correctly designate their choice; also containing any proposed amendment to the constitution or other question to be submitted to the electors, and the county auditor shall furnish such cards to the city, village or township clerks in the county.

Such clerks shall furnish such cards to each polling place, one of which shall be hung each compartment, two (2) in the polling room and two (2) on the outside of the building in which the voting takes place. Whenever the county auditor of any county notifies the secretary of state that the printed instructions are also needed in a foreign language or languages, and such foreign language is stated, then it shall be the duty of the secretary of state to furnish such printed instructions in such foreign language or languages.

SEC. 67. Closing Polls, Counting, Etc.—As soon as the polls are finally closed, of which closing proclamation shall be made by one of the judges thirty (30) minutes previous thereto, the judges shall proceed to canvass the votes taken at such election, and the said canvass shall be public and continued without intermission until completed, and the result declared. Now the canvass shall commence by taking out of each box the ballots unopened (except so far as to ascertain whether every ballot is single), and counting the same to ascertain whether the number of ballots correspond to the number appearing on the poll list to have been cast in such box; if two or more ballots be found to be so folded together as to present the appearance of a single ballot they shall be laid aside until the counting of ballots is completed; then if, on comparison of the said ballots with the number of ballots appearing to have been cast in such box, it appears that the two ballots so found folded together were cast by one (1) elector, they shall be preserved and laid to one side. If the ballots in any box are found to exceed in number the number of votes cast in such box, they shall be first examined to ascertain if they are all properly marked with the initials of the judges having charge of the ballots, and, in case they are found not so marked, they shall be preserved and laid to one side. If there is still an excess of ballots above the registry of voters, they shall be replaced in the box, and one of the judges, without looking, shall draw from the box a number of ballots equal to such excess, and the same shall be laid aside. The number of ballots agreeing or being thus made to agree with the number of votes appearing in the columns of the poll list, corresponding to the respective boxes, the list shall be signed by the judges and attested by the clerks, and the number of names thereon checked as aforesaid shall be stated in words and figures at the foot of said list and over the signatures of the judges and the attestation of the clerk in the manner hereinafter provided in the form of said lists. The ballots so laid aside as aforesaid shall be attached to a certificate made by the judges, stating the reason why the ballots were so laid aside, and the certificate and the ballots attached shall be sealed up in a separate envelope and, except the red ballots, returned to the county auditor with the other returns, and the red ballots returned to the city clerk or recorder.

SEC. 68. The lists of electors provided for herein shall be substantially in the following form, to-wit:

"List of qualified electors in the election district composed of the —— (township, ward or town, as the case may be) of ——, in the county of ——, state of Minnesota, for an election to be held in said election district on the —— day of ——, eighteen hundred and ——." (The names to be inserted in alphabetical order.)

The whole number of the abovenamed persons who were present and voting at the abovenamed election was (the number to be written in words and figures), signed by the judges of election, attested by the clerks of election.

SEC. 69. After the said lists are thus signed the judges shall proceed to count and ascertain the number of votes cast for each person voted for by counting each ballot separately, the ballots to be numbered consecutively as counted and duplicate numbers entered on counting lists kept by the clerk, and the result shall then be distinctly read, and as soon as read and canvassed the tickets shall be strung by one of the judges upon a stout string and replaced in the proper ballot box, and then, in the presence of all the judges, each box shall be locked and sealed by pasting firm paper across the lid and body of each box in such a manner, that the box cannot be opened without breaking the seal; and each judge shall write his name upon said paper in such place that the box cannot be opened without tearing the name. Each box, as soon as practicable, after the same is sealed, shall be deposited in the office of the town, city or village clerk, and carefully preserved therein with unbroken seals until the next general election, unless sooner opened by the proper authority for a recount or for examination, and the clerk of election shall set down on a paper, to be known as the returns of election, the name of each person voted for written out at length, the office for which such person received any votes, and the number of votes he received, the number being written out in words and also in figures. The said returns shall be as nearly as possible in the following form, to-wit:

At an held at —— in the (number, if any) election district, composed of —— (township, ward or town, as the case may be) in the county of ——, in the State of Minnesota, on the —— day of ——, eighteen hundred ——, the following named persons received the number of votes opposite their respective names for the following described offices, to-wit: For (specifying the office). A received (the number to be written in figures and also at length) votes (and likewise for every person voted for any office), to be signed by the judges of election and attested by the clerks of election. Votes rejected by the judges and not counted for any person shall be disposed of as hereinbefore provided. Tally sheets with names of candidates printed to be provided for the clerks.

SEC. 70. No ballot appearing to be properly and regularly voted found in the box other than the one in which it properly should be, shall be rejected, but shall be counted in the same manner as if found in the proper box; provided, that the counting of such ballot or ballots shall not produce an excess of votes above the number of votes designated on the poll lists. The boxes used at such election shall be opened and the votes therein canvassed in the same manner above provided, but as nearly as may be in the following order: First—The box containing the white ballots. Second—The box containing the ballots tinted blue. Third—The box containing the ballots tinted red. The ballots in the box provided for women shall also be canvassed for such offices as they are entitled to vote for.

SEC. 71. After the canvass is thus completed the judges of election, before they are dispersed, shall inclose the said returns in an envelope, seal the same and endorse thereon the following words: "Election returns of the election district of (naming the name of the town or ward or city), in the county of ——," and direct the same to the county auditor of that county, and, in the case of a city election, to the city clerk or recorder; and the said returns shall forthwith be carried by one of said judges, to be chosen by lot, if not otherwise agreed upon, and delivered to the said county auditor at his office; and in case of city elections to the city clerk or recorder at his office; provided, that the said returns of election in unorganized counties shall be made to the auditor of the county to which they are attached for election purposes; and the votes shall be canvassed and certificates of election issued to the persons elected in the same manner provided in this chapter for canvassing the votes and issuing certificates of election in organized counties. Provided further, that in all cities of over twelve thousand inhabitants the ballots in the ballot boxes, and all documents heretofore provided for, shall be forthwith carried by all of the judges and clerks to the office of the city clerk or recorder, and by them delivered to such officer. Said judges and clerks shall not stop at any place, or leave their ballots and returns at any place or with any person, before such delivery to such officer. Said city clerk or recorder, as the case may be, shall remain in his office to receive such returns or ballot boxes and ballots until all of the same from all of the election districts within his said city have been so returned to him. Said city clerk or recorder shall keep a book in which he shall enter in the presence of said judges and clerks the names of said judges and the hour at which they returned and delivered to him said returns and ballot boxes and ballots, which book shall be preserved by said officer as a public document for the same length of time as he is required to preserve the ballots cast at such election.

Provided further, That the judges of all election districts situate within fifty (50) miles of the county seat shall file their election returns within twenty-four (24) hours after the time of closing the polls; and in all other cases the returns shall be filed within seventy-two (72) hours after the closing of the polls; and all judges failing to file returns as herein provided shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

And further provided, That if any committees of the political parties represented on the ticket voted at such election, shall, on or before the day of election, apply to the legal custodian of the ballot box or ballot boxes for permission to affix additional seals and securities to the ballot boxes within the control of such custodian, said custodian shall give such permission, and immediately notify the party so applying of the time when the same shall be done, which time shall not be later than two (2) days after election, and that such custodian shall forthwith, after receipt of such application, notify all parties represented upon such election ticket of the fact of such application, and the time when such seals will be affixed, and that at such time so designated at the office of said custodian, in the presence of such custodian and of the representatives of the political parties upon said ticket, the party so applying shall have the right to affix additional seals and securities, and in any manner secure and mark the same, and that any of the other parties then present shall have the same right and privileges as the party so applying, and

Further provided, That none of said parties shall in any manner injure and impair any of the seals on said box hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 72. A true copy of the returns made by the judges shall also be made and certified by them, and forthwith filed by them in the office of the town, city or village clerk within the time specified in the preceding section.

SEC. 73. No election returns shall be refused by any auditor for the reason that the same are returned or delivered to him in any other than the manner directed herein, except that they must be sealed, nor shall the canvassing board of any county refuse to include any returns in their estimated votes on account of any informality in holding any election or making returns thereof, but all returns shall be received and the votes canvassed by such canvassing board and included in its statements, provided there is a substantial compliance with the provisions of this chapter.

SEC. 74. County Canvassing Board—The county auditor, the chairman of the board of county commissioners, and two (2) justices of the peace of the same county, of opposite political parties, if possible, to be selected by the auditor, shall constitute the county canvassing board, and on or before the tenth (10th) day after the election; said board shall proceed, after taking the usual oath of office, to openly and publicly canvass the returns made to the auditor's office. They shall make a separate statement containing the whole number of votes given in such county for the office of governor and lieutenant governor, chief and associate justices of the supreme court, secretary of state, auditor of state, treasurer of state, clerk of the supreme court, judges of the district court, and all other officers of the state, the names of the persons for whom such votes were given and the number of votes given for each. They shall make another statement for all county officers voted for and the names of the persons for whom such votes were given. Another statement of the votes for presidential electors and the names of the persons for whom such votes were given. Another statement of the votes given for representative in congress in each district, or any or either of them, and the names of the persons for whom such votes were given; another statement of the votes upon any proposed change of county line or county seat, and another of the votes given for and against proposed amendments to the constitution. Such statements shall be signed and certified by the county canvassing board, and deposited in the said auditor's office, and two (2) copies thereof shall be certified under the official seal of the auditor, one (1) of which shall be enclosed and directed to the secretary of state and be forwarded to the seat of government by mail, and the other list shall be enclosed and forwarded to the secretary of state in like manner as the first copy, but by different mail, and within five (5) days after such first copy shall have been so transmitted. In the event that neither of said copies so transmitted shall be received by the secretary of state within twenty (20) days after the election, the county auditor shall transmit, by a messenger to be deputed by him, upon notification from the secretary of state, another copy of such statement. If within twenty (20) days after such election no such copy shall have been received by the secretary of state from each county in the state, it shall be his duty to immediately notify the auditor of each county from which such returns have not been received, of such fact. The county auditor shall endorse on the envelope inclosing each of, such statements or copies, the names of the auditor and his official residence and the words "election returns."

SEC. 75. Any three (3) of said county canvassing board shall constitute a quorum, and are authorized to make the canvass provided for in the last section.

SEC. 76. At the close of the canvass, as provided in section seventy-four (74), the board of canvassers shall declare the person having the highest number of votes for any county office duly elected, subject to an appeal to the district court of the proper county; and, in case said county contains a senatorial or representative district, then the persons having the highest number for senator or representative, shall be declared by said board duly elected. In case of an appeal notice thereof shall be entered with the clerk of said court within twenty (20) days after the day of election.

SEC. 77. The county auditor shall make out for every county officer elected, and also for each of the senators and representatives elected, to the legislature, if such county constitutes a senatorial or representative district, a certificate of such election, and shall deliver the same to the person entitled thereto, upon demand, without fee; and he shall also make out for any candidate or elector of his county a statement of votes as provided in sections seventy-four (74), seventy-five (75) and seventy-six (76), upon being paid therefor one (1) dollar.

SEC. 78. The county auditor of each county which does not constitute a senatorial or representative district shall make out from the returns of his office a statement of the votes for members of the senate and house of representatives, which he shall seal and direct to the county auditor of the senior county in each senatorial or representative district respectively, and if there be two (2) or more counties in such district, then the returns shall be directed to the auditor of the county polling the greatest number of votes at the last preceding general election; and said auditor shall forward such statement to the proper auditor within fifteen (15) days after the election.

SEC. 79. When two (2) or more counties are comprised in one (1) senatorial district, the auditor of the senior county, or of the county to which the returns are to be made, shall, on the twentieth (20th) day after election, with such other county auditor of the district as he chooses to attend at his office, call to his assistance two (2) justices and a chairman of the board of county commissioners of his county, and then and there open the returns of the votes given in the several counties, or portion of counties, comprising such senatorial districts; said auditor of the county to which the returns are made shall immediately make out certificates of election for the persons having the highest number of votes in such senatorial district for the members of the legislature, which certificates shall be delivered to the persons entitled thereto.

SEC. 80. If on proceeding to canvass the votes it shall appear to said board of canvassers, or a majority thereof, that in any statement produced certain matters are omitted in such statement that should have been inserted, or that any mistakes that are clerical merely exist, they shall cause the said statement to be sent by one of their number, or by messenger whom they shall depute for that purpose, to the county or district canvassers of the county, town or district from which such statements were received, to have the same corrected: and the persons so deputed shall immediately proceed and give notice to the said county, town or district canvassers, whose duty it shall be forthwith to assemble together and make such corrections as the facts of the case may require; but such county, town or district canvassers shall not, at such meeting, change or alter any decision before made by them, but shall only cause their canvass to be correctly stated; and such board of canvassers are authorized to adjourn from day to day for the purpose of revising such statements, such adjournment not to exceed ten (10) days.

SEC. 81. State Canvassing Board—The secretary of state shall call to his assistance two (2) or more judges of the supreme court, and two (2) disinterested judges of the district court of the state, who shall constitute the state canvassing board; the secretary of state shall appoint a meeting of the state canvassing board to be held at his office on the third (3d) Tuesday of December after each general election, and within thirty (30) days after a special election. If a majority of said board shall be unable, or shall fail to attend on the day appointed, he shall select from the disinterested judges of the supreme court, and notify to attend, as many as may be necessary to constitute a required number. Upon being notified, said judges shall attend without delay, and with the officers attending shall form the board.

SEC. 82. The board, when formed, shall, upon the certified copies of the statements made by the county canvassing boards, proceed to make a statement of the whole number of votes given at such election for the various state officers, which statement shall contain the names of the persons to whom such votes have been given for any state office, and the whole number of votes given to each, distinguishing the several counties in which they are given. Said board shall certify such statement to be correct, and shall subscribe to the same with their proper names.

SEC. 83. At the same time said canvassing board shall open the returns made to the secretary of state for members of congress, and for electors of president and vice president of the United States, and shall forthwith proceed to make a statement of the number of votes given for the different persons voted for for the said offices, and the person or persons having the highest number of votes for each office shall be considered duly elected; but if it appears that more than the number of persons to be elected as electors of president and vice president have the highest and an equal number of votes, the secretary of state, in the presence of the officers present, shall decide by lot which of the persons shall be elected as such electors, and to each person duly elected the governor shall give a certificate of election signed by him, sealed by the great seal and countersigned by the secretary of state, and shall transmit the said certificate to each person so elected, and shall cause the election of electors to be published in the newspapers printed at the seat of government, immediately after the said canvass is completed. If there shall be a tie in the number of votes received by candidates for representatives in congress who receive the highest number of votes, a special election shall be called, as hereinafter provided, for the election of a representative or representatives in congress, in the district or districts in which said tie vote occurred.

SEC. 84. The electors chosen as aforesaid shall, at twelve (12) o'clock on the day directed by the congress of the United States, meet at the seat of government of this state, and then and there perform the duties enjoined on them by the constitution and laws of the United States.

SEC. 85. Every elector of president and vice president of the United States shall, before the hour of twelve (12) on the day next preceding the day fixed by law for congress to elect a president and vice president, give notice to the governor that he is at the seat of government and is ready at the proper time to fulfill the duties of an elector; and the governor shall forthwith deliver to the electors present a certificate of all the names of the electors, and if any electors named therein fail to appear before nine (9) o'clock on the morning of the day of the election of president and vice president of the United States, the electors then present shall immediately proceed to elect by ballot, in the presence of the governor, persons to fill such vacancies.

SEC. 86. If more than the number of persons required to fill such vacancies as aforesaid have the highest and an equal number of votes, the governor, in the presence of the electors attending, shall decide by lot which of said persons shall be elected; otherwise, they, to the number required, having the greatest number of votes shall be considered elected to fill such vacancies.

SEC. 87. Immediately after such choice is made, the names of the persons so chosen shall be certified to the governor by the electors making such choice, and the governor shall immediately cause notice to be given in writing to the electors so chosen, and to fill such vacancy, and the persons so chosen shall be electors and shall meet the other electors at the same time and place, and then and there discharge all and singular the duties enjoined on them as electors aforesaid by the constitution and laws of the United States and of this state.

SPECIAL ELECTIONS.

SEC. 88. Whenever there is no election of any state or county officers, or of the required number of members of the house of representatives or senate, or of representatives in congress by reason of any two or more persons having an equal and the highest number of votes for any such office, or whenever any vacancy occurs in any of the said offices, which said vacancy is not otherwise provided for, the governor, within ten (10) days after he is informed of such vacancy or failure to elect, shall issue a proclamation directing that a special election be held in the proper election district or districts, at a time to be specified in the proclamation, not more than twenty (20) days from the date thereof, to fill such office, and said election shall be called in the manner heretofore provided for calling elections, and the same shall be held and conducted, and the returns thereof made and canvassed in the same manner as general elections are held, conducted and the returns thereof made and canvassed; provided, that if the vacancy occur in the office of representative in congress, or state senator, or member of the house of representatives, and there be no session of the legislature or congress between the happening of such vacancy and the next general election occurring twenty-eight (28) or more days thereafter, such vacancy shall be filled at the general election.

SEC. 89. In elections to fill any vacancy specified in the preceding section, the auditor shall, within fifteen (15) days after such election, transmit statements of the votes given to the office of secretary of state, and take his receipt therefor under the penalty of five hundred (500) dollars fine, to be recovered from him in a civil action in the name of the county, and the county treasurer, for the time being, shall sue for and recover the penalty for the use of the county.

SEC. 90. If a vacancy occur in the senate or house of representatives for any cause, and if the county composing the district in which that vacancy occurs has been divided after the election of a member whose seat is vacant, such election shall be ordered in every county, or part of any county, of which such district was originally composed; but no person shall be permitted to vote at such election who does not at that time reside within the limits of the original county or district in which the vacancy occurred.

SEC. 91. Contesting Election—Any candidate or elector of the proper county, senatorial, judicial or election district, wishing to contest the validity of the election, or the right of any elector declared duly elected to the senate or house of representatives in this state, or to contest his right to a seat therein, shall give notice thereof in writing to the person whose election or right to a seat he intends to contest, or leave a written notice thereof where such person last resided, within twenty (20) days after the votes have been canvassed by the county canvassing board, specifying the points on which the election will be contested, and naming two (2) justices of the peace of the county in which he resides who will officiate at the taking of the deposition, and when and where they will attend to take the same; all notices shall be served at least ten (10) days before the day designated therein for the taking of such depositions, but the time fixed for the taking of the same shall not exceed forty-five (45) days from the day of the election.

SEC. 92. That said justices, or either of them, shall issue subpoenas to all persons whose testimony is required by either of the parties; and said two (2) justices shall take, under oath, all testimony relating to such contested election, and certify the same under seal to the presiding officer in that branch of the legislature where the person whose seat is contested is returned to serve at the next session.

SEC. 93. If a person whose election is contested desires to offer testimony upon points not specified in the notice of the contestant, he shall within ten (10) days after the contestant's notice is served upon him as aforesaid, serve upon said contestant in the manner provided in section ninety-one (91) of this act, a notice specifying such additional points and specifying a place and day (which shall not be more than ten (10) days later than the time fixed by the contestant in his notice for taking depositions) at which time testimony therein will be taken before two (2) justices of the same county, which notice shall be served at least ten (10) days previous to the time of taking such testimony. No testimony shall be taken by the justices which does not relate to some point specified in said notice, copies of which shall be delivered to the justices taking testimony and by them transmitted to the presiding officer of that branch of the legislature where the contest is decided, with the other documents provided for by section ninety-two (92).

SEC. 94. In conducting any contested election in the house of representatives, the following rules shall be observed:

First—On the day and at the hour appointed for that purpose, the house, with proper officers, shall assemble at the usual place of meeting. The speaker of the house of representatives shall preside, but when he is a contestee a speaker pro tem. shall be elected.

Second—The parties to the contest shall then be called by the clerk, and, if they answer, their appearance shall be recorded.

Third—The contestant shall then first introduce his testimony, and, after the testimony is closed on both sides, the contestant, by himself or by his counsel, may open the contest, and the officer-elect may then proceed, by himself or counsel, to make his defense, and the contestant be heard in reply. After the argument of both parties is concluded, any member of the house may offer the reasons for the vote he intends to give.

Fifth—In deciding the contest the members shall vote viva voce, and the majority of the votes given shall decide; but no party to the contest shall vote, either upon the final decision, or upon any preliminary question that has reference thereto.

Sixth—If the contest is in the senate it shall proceed as nearly as may be according to the rules above prescribed.

SEC. 95. Any candidate or elector of the proper city or county may contest the election of any person declared elected to any city or county office. He shall give notice thereof in the manner provided in section ninety-two (92) for service of such notice. If the person whose election is contested desires to offer testimony upon points not specified in the notice of the contestant, he shall, in the manner provided in section ninety-one (91) serve notice on the contestant specifying such additional point; upon such notices, which are not to be taken as true until proved, and which may be amended if the court, under all the circumstances, deem it just, all testimony shall be taken as in civil actions, and all matters relating to said contest shall be heard and tried by the district court of the proper county in the manner that civil actions are tried by the court. Said contest shall be brought on for hearing and the cost therein taxed by said district court in the manner that civil actions are conducted. Said district court at the next general or special term, after the expiration of thirty (30) days after the votes are canvassed, shall hear and determine the contest; and the judge of said court, in case no general or special term occur within ninety (90) days after the canvass of the votes, shall appoint a special term of said court, to convene within ten (10) days after notice of such contest shall be given to him. When the judgment or decision of the district court shall be removed to the supreme court, the party removing the same shall file in the district court a bond to the opposite party, in such sum not less than five hundred (500) dollars, and with such sureties as shall be approved by the judge, conditioned for the payment of all costs incurred by the respondent in case the appellant fail on his appeal. The return on said appeal shall be made, settled, certified and filed in the supreme court within fifteen (15) days after the date of service of notice of appeal, and upon perfecting said appeal the same may be brought on for hearing and determination before said supreme court at any time when the same shall be in session, and upon ten (10) days' notice from either party; and the same shall be heard and determined in a summary manner. Such notice of hearing may be served during the term or in vacation. This act shall not apply to any case now pending.

SEC. 96. After a contest has been instituted, either party to the contest shall have the right to have the ballots referred to inspected for the purpose of enabling him to prepare his contest for trial; and, upon application by such party to the district court, upon a verified petition stating that he cannot prepare his case for trial without an examination and inspection of the ballots cast at the preceding election, the judges of said court shall appoint three (3) persons, one (1) to be selected by each of the parties to the contest, and these to select a third, to whom the inspection and examination of said ballots shall be referred; provided, that said inspection and examination shall be had and conducted in the presence of the proper custodian of the ballots; and provided further, that the party making such application shall file with the clerk of the district court a bond in the sum of two hundred and fifty (250) dollars, with two (2) sureties, to be approved by the judge of said court, conditioned that he will pay the cost and expense of such examination and inspection, in the event that he shall fail to maintain his contest. Should either party to the contest neglect or refuse to name the persons to whom said inspection shall be referred on his part, such person shall be selected and appointed by the judges of the district court to whom the application is made. On the trial of any contested election for any of the offices in the eighty-sixth (86th), ninety-first (91st) or ninety-fifth (95th) sections of this chapter named, the parties to the contest may introduce written or oral testimony, but no depositions shall be read at such trial, unless the other party has reasonable notice of the time and place of taking the same.

SEC. 97. In any county in which there is a vote for the removal of the county seat, or changing the county line of said county, or upon any other subjects which by law may be submitted to the vote of the people, any elector therein may contest the validity of such election as to the right of the place declared to be selected for the county seat to be such; or as to the result when the proposition to remove a county seat is declared defeated, or as to any county line declared established by said vote; or as to the result of any vote upon any subject submitted as aforesaid. Such elector shall give notice in writing of such contest to the county commissioners or one (1) of them, in the county in which said vote was taken, by serving copies of said notices personally upon said commissioners within thirty (30) days after the result of said vote is declared or proclaimed. Such notice shall specify the points on which said election will be contested, and a copy thereof shall be filed with the clerk of the district court of the proper county within ten (10) days after the service thereof upon a county commissioner; and the district court at its first general or special term shall hear and determine on such contest upon the oral and written evidence of the parties; and depositions may be taken by any of the parties to the proceedings in the same manner as in civil actions, but no appeal to said district court shall be necessary in any such case. Such commissioners, or upon their failure, any elector of the proper county may appear and defend in such contest, and introduce evidence as in other actions.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 98. The regular term of office of all state and county officers shall commence on the first Monday of January next succeeding their election unless otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 99. Any state, county or district officer elected or appointed to fill a vacancy shall qualify and enter upon the duties of his office immediately thereafter; and, when elected hold the same during the unexpired term for which he is elected and until his successor is appointed and qualified, but if appointed he shall hold his office until the next general election, when his successor for the remainder of the unexpired term shall be chosen, and until his successor is elected and qualified.

SEC. 100. During any day on which any general, special, town or charter election is held, no civil process shall be served upon any elector entitled to vote at any election.

SEC. 101. The secretary of state shall provide uniform blanks for making lists or registers, required by law, and affidavits and all other blanks necessary to be used in the several election districts at any election; he shall also provide copies of this law and transmit the same to the auditor of each county at least thirty (30) days before any election, and the auditor shall forthwith deliver the clerk of every town and city in his county the necessary copies of each of said blanks, and one (1) copy of the said law for each election district in his town or city.

SEC. 102. Fees—Every auditor, chairman of the board of county commissioners and justice of the peace shall receive for services performed under this chapter the following fees: For making the statements for every one hundred (100) words, 8 cents; for every certificate, with seal attached to statements, 30 cents, which fees shall be allowed by the board of county commissioners of the proper county and paid by the county treasurer upon the warrant of the county auditor.

SEC. 103. There shall be paid out of the county treasury of each county to the person carrying the returns of election to the county auditor the sum of ten cents for every mile necessarily traveled in going to and returning from the office of the county auditor for the purpose of carrying such returns. This provision to extend to unorganized counties, and to be paid out of the treasury of the county to which they are attached. All fees for carrying election returns shall be audited and allowed by the board of county commissioners of the proper county in the same manner as other claims are allowed, and may be paid upon the warrant of the county auditor.

SEC. 104. Each presidential elector attending at the seat of government, as provided in this act, shall receive three (3) dollars for every day's attendance, and three (3) dollars for every twenty (20) miles traveled in going to and returning from the seat of government, estimated from his place of residence, by the most usual route. Such sums shall be allowed by the auditor upon the certificate of the governor and paid by the state treasurer out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 105. At all elections to be held under this chapter the judges and clerks of election shall receive as compensation for their services, the sum of (3) dollars each per day, and all special constables the sum of two (2) dollars each per day, and such fees and the expenses of providing ballot boxes and polling places shall be borne by the several townships, cities and villages where the election is conducted, but the said judges and clerks shall not be allowed any pay except for actual services on registration and election days.

SEC. 106. Regulations, Prohibitions, Penalties—No election shall be held, nor shall any election be appointed to be held, in any saloon or bar room, or in any room contiguous with or adjoining thereto. Should any place be designated or appointed for holding an election in violation hereof, or become subject to such objection after having been so designated, the judges of election shall have power, and it shall be their duty, on or before the day of such election, and before the opening of the polls on such day, to procure a suitable place, as near thereto as may be, not subject to like objection. Said judges of election shall meet at the place first designated at the time for opening the polls, and after any vacancies in their number shall have been filled adjourn to the place chosen by them, and the time of such adjournment give public notice by proclamation to the electors present of such change, and post in a conspicuous manner notice of the place where such election shall be held, and all expense attending such change shall be certified by such judges to the proper authorities, and shall be allowed and paid accordingly.

SEC. 107. Any person or persons introducing in any way upon election day into a place where an election is being held any spirituous liquors, and any judge or clerk of election drinking any such liquors in such place, or being intoxicated therein upon election day, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding sixty (60) days, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. No spirituous, malt or intoxicating liquor shall be sold or given away, nor shall any store, saloon or bar room where such liquor is sold or given away be open on any general or special election day from the hour of five (5) o'clock in the forenoon to the hour of eight (8) o'clock in the afternoon. Whoever violates the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than one hundred (100) dollars nor more than three (3) hundred dollars for each offense. It shall be the duty of the mayor, sheriff, constable and other officers and magistrates to see that the provisions of this section are enforced, and it shall be the duty of the mayor on the day next preceding any election to issue a proclamation that the provisions of this section will be strictly enforced. In case the mayor fail to perform the duties herein described, he shall be subject to a fine of one thousand (1,000) dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for sixty (60) days, or both, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 108. If any judge or clerk of election, or any other officer, or any other person required by this chapter to keep safely and produce the ballots intrusted to him on the day of election, or to perform any act or thing whatever, shall willfully fail or refuse to perform such act or thing, or shall be guilty of any fraud, corruption, partiality or misbehavior in canvassing or making any returns of votes, or shall wrongfully refuse to make or deliver any certificate of election, or shall willfully perform any act or thing falsely or corruptly in any manner, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than six (6) months nor more than one (1) year, or by a fine of not less than five hundred (500) dollars nor more than two thousand (2,000) dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court. The provisions of this section to apply in all cases coming within the provisions of this chapter where other punishment is not specially provided for.

SEC. 109. Any judge of election, person marking the vote of an elector, or any other person who disclosed to any person the name of any candidate for whom such elector has voted, or shall mark the vote of an elector in any other manner than directed by such elector, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not less than thirty (30) dollars nor more than two hundred (200) dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than ten (10) nor more than ninety (90) days or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 110. No person shall, during the election, remove or destroy any of the supplies or other conveniences placed in the booths or compartments aforesaid for the purpose of enabling the voter to prepare his ballot. No person shall, during an election, remove, tear down or deface the cards printed for the instruction of voters. Any person willfully violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 111. Whoever shall willfully take or carry away from the place where has been deposited, or shall deface or mutilate, damage or add to any poll book, ballot, list or register, or any name or figure therein, shall on conviction thereof be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand (1,000) dollars, or be imprisoned in the state prison not longer than one (1) year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 112. Any person who shall take or deface any list of names posted by any board of registration as heretofore provided for, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof be punished by a fine of fifty (50) dollars or be imprisoned in the county jail for a term of sixty (60) days, or both, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 113. Whoever aids, assists, counsels or advises another to vote, knowing that such person is not duly qualified to vote at the place where and at the time when the vote is to be given, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be subject to a fine of not more than five hundred (500) dollars nor less than one hundred (100) dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not less than one (1) month nor more than six (6) months.

SEC. 114. It shall be unlawful for the judges of election or any of them, or any person in the polling rooms or compartments therewith connected, to persuade or to endeavor to persuade any person to vote for any particular candidate. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor for each and every person so approached, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred (100) dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding ninety (90) days.

SEC. 115. Whosoever, after proclamation is made of the opening of the polls and at any time before the vote is fully canvassed, shall willfully offer or deliver to a judge of election to be placed in a box or boxes more than one (1) ballot of the same kind and color, or shall fraudulently put a ballot into any box or boxes, is guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than six (6) months nor more than one (1) year.

SEC. 116. Any person who shall cause his name to be registered in more than one (1) election district, or who shall cause his name to be registered knowing that he is not a qualified elector in the district where such registry is made, or who shall falsely personate any registered voter, and any person causing, aiding or abetting any person to do either of said acts, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than one (1) year. All intentional false swearing before a board of registration shall be deemed willful and corrupt perjury, and, on conviction thereof, punished as such.

SEC. 117. If any person challenged as unqualified to vote be guilty of false or corrupt swearing or affirmation in taking oath or affirmation prescribed by this chapter, he shall be deemed to have committed willful and corrupt perjury, and upon conviction thereof shall suffer the punishment attached by the laws of this state to the crime of perjury.

SEC. 118. Whoever willfully votes in any election district in which he does not actually reside, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, be imprisoned in the county jail for a term of not less than one (1) month nor more than six (6) months.

SEC. 119. Whoever votes more than once at the same election shall be guilty of felony, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term of not less than one (1) year nor more than five (5) years.

SEC. 120. Any resident of another state who votes in this state is guilty of felony, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than one (1) month nor more than one (1) year.

SEC. 121. Whoever, not being a qualified voter, votes at any election with criminal intent is guilty of felony; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison not less than one (1) month nor more than one (1) year.

SEC. 122. Whoever procures, aids, assists, counsels or advises another to go or come into any county, town or election district for the purpose of giving his vote therein, knowing that the person is not duly qualified to vote therein, is guilty of felony, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than six (6) months nor more than one (1) year.

SEC. 123. Whoever, by threat or bribery, attempts to influence any elector in giving his vote for any person or measure, or by such means attempts to deter him from voting for any person or measure, is guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred (100) dollars nor more than one thousand (1,000) dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail not less than one (1) month nor more than six (6) months.

SEC. 124. It shall be the duty of the county attorney in each county in this state to prosecute any person violating any of the provisions of this chapter, and to sue for and collect all penalties incurred for a violation of this chapter, or any part thereof, upon his own motion, or upon the complaint of any [illegible] by the requisite proof [illegible] of offenses.

All fines, incurred or collected under this chapter shall be paid into the county treasury where the offense is committed for the use of the common schools of such county.

SEC. 125. The punishment of any of the offenses in this act declared to be misdemeanors, not herein specifically provided for, shall be a fine not exceeding two thousand (2,000) dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding two (2) years, or both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 126. This act shall apply to all general and special elections in the state of Minnesota, except township and village elections, and shall be known as the General Election Law of the State.

SEC. 127. The forenoon of each day on which a general election in this state is held shall be a compulsory half-holiday, and all employes of every kind whatever shall be allowed such half day for the purpose of voting.

SEC. 128. Chapter four (4) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, chapter three (3) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, and all other acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 129. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after June 1, 1891.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 5—H. F. NO. 934.

An Act to provide for the levy of taxes for state purposes for the fiscal year ending July thirty-first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two (1892), and July thirty-first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893).

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. For the purpose of defraying the expenses of the state for the fiscal year ending July thirty-first (31st) one thousand eight hundred and ninety two (1892) a tax of one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($1,250,000,) or as near that amount as practicable shall be levied on all the taxable property in the state; provided that the tax hereby levied shall not exceed a rate of two and two-tenths mills (.0022) on each dollar of taxable property.

SEC. 2. CHAPTER 6—S. F. NO. 281.

An Act to authorize the refunding to purchasers at tax sales amounts paid by them on state school, indemnity school, agricultural college, state university or internal improvement lands, under certain circumstances, and to repeal chapter one hundred and eighty-seven (187) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889).

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. When any state or indemnity school, agricultural college, state university or internal improvement lands which have been sold by the state since the first day of January, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and seventy (1870), and for which certificates of purchase have been issued, have been, thereafter sold for delinquent taxes thereon, and no redemption being made from said tax sale, but, by reason of the non-payment of principal or interest due on said land to the state, the state auditor has declared said certificate of purchase to be forfeited and void of purchase, the purchaser at said delinquent tax sale, or his assigns, may upon surrender of his certificate of tax purchase to the county auditor of the county in which said lands are situated, together with a certificate from the state auditor showing that the lands sold to said purchaser at tax sale have been forfeited to the state by the purchaser, receive from the county auditor of said county an order on the county treasurer for the amount paid at said delinquent tax sale, together with the amount of all taxes paid on said land by said purchaser or his assigns subsequent to the purchase of such tax sale certificate; provided, however, that no interest shall be allowed or paid on the amounts so refunded; provided, further, that the provisions of this act shall apply to sales of lands heretofore made.

SEC. 2. The provisions of this act shall not apply to any purchaser, or his assignee, of any tax sale certificate who has allowed the land therein described to be again sold for taxes to any subsequent purchaser because of his failure to keep said taxes paid.

(187) of the General Laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-nine (1889) is hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 7—S. F. NO. 274.

An Act to authorize the abatement of taxes in certain cases.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. In all cases where railroad lands situated and being in the counties of Martin, Jackson, Cottonwood and Murray have been purchased by an actual bona fide purchaser prior to January 1st, 1891, from any railroad company, has been assessed and taxed for taxes for years prior to the date of such purchase, and such taxes remain unpaid, the state auditor is hereby authorized, and he shall, upon the application of the owner of said land, duly countersigned by the auditor of the county in which such land is situated, abate the same, and direct that all such taxes be stricken from the tax books of such county, and the land be discharged from the lien thereof; provided, however, that such application shall be made under oath, and shall contain the date of the purchase of such land, the amount of such taxes and the year or years for which the same were assessed and extended against such land; and provided further, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to any purchaser of any such land who, at the date thereof, was in any manner connected with the company owning such land, either as an officer, stockholder or director thereof.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the date of its passage.

Approved April 14, 1891.

CHAPTER 8—H. F. NO. 172.

An Act to provide for the assessment, taxation and collection of taxes of telegraph and telephone lines within the State of Minnesota.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That all telegraph and telephone lines heretofore or hereafter built and operated within this state shall be subject to taxation as hereinafter required.

SEC. 2. That it shall be the duty of the president, vice president, manager or superintendent of every corporation, association, partnership or person owning or operating any telegraph or telephone line within this state, the rate and manner of taxation of which for any purpose has not been fixed and prescribed by special charter granting such franchise or by laws providing for taxation on gross earnings of railroads, to furnish the state auditor, on or before the first Monday in July, eighteen hundred and ninety-one (1891), and each year thereafter, on or before the first Monday in July, a statement under oath and in such form as the auditor may prescribe, showing the following facts:

First—The total number of miles owned, operated or leased within the state, with a separate showing of the number leased.

Second—The total number of telegraph and telephone stations on each separate line, and the total number of telegraphic and telephonic instruments in use therein, together with the total number of stations mentioned.

Third—The total number of miles in each separate line or division thereof, together with the number of separate wires thereon, and stating the counties through which the same are carried.

Fourth—The average number of telegraph and telephone poles per mile used in the construction and maintenance of said lines.

SEC. 3. That upon the receipt of said statement from the several companies, the auditor of state shall lay the same before the state board of equalization at its annual meeting, which board shall proceed to assess said telegraph and telephone lines at the true cash value thereof.

SEC. 4.—That the said state board shall also at said meeting determine the rate of tax to be levied and collected upon said assessments, which shall not exceed the average rate of taxes, general, municipal and local, levied throughout the state, which tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes, state and local, and shall be payable into the state treasury.

SEC. 5. The taxes levied as provided by this chapter shall become due and payable at the state treasury on the first (1st) day of January following the levy thereof, and if such taxes are not paid as herein provided it shall be the duty of the treasurer of state to collect the same by distress and sale of any property belonging to said company in the same manner as required of county treasurers in like cases by the General Statutes relating to collection of taxes on personal property, and the record of the state board in such cases shall be sufficient warrant therefor.

SEC. 6. If the officers of any such company fail to make and file the report required in section two (2) of this act, such neglect shall not release its line from taxation, but the state board shall proceed to assess the line notwithstanding, adding thereto thirty (30) per centum on the assessable value thereof as penalty.

SEC. 7. That chapter sixty-eight (68) of the General Laws of the extra session of eighteen hundred and eighty-one (1881), chapter one hundred and thirty-eight (138) of the General Laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-seven (1887), chapter one hundred and thirty-nine (139) of the General Laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-seven (1887), and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith, be and the same are herewith repealed.

SEC. 8. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 11, 1891.

CHAPTER 9—H. F. NO. 960.

An Act for the preservation, propagation and protection of the game and fish of the state.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. There is hereby created a board to be known by the name of The Board of Game and Fish Commissioners of the State of Minnesota, which board shall be composed of five (5) members, who shall be appointed by the governor for the term of six (6) years each, in the manner hereinafter set forth, and who shall serve without compensation, either direct or indirect, and shall constitute the first board under the provisions of this act, one of whom shall hold his office as a member of said board until the first day of April, eighteen hundred and ninety-three (1893), two of whom shall hold until the first day of April, eighteen hundred and ninety-five (1895), and the remaining two of whom shall hold until the first day of April, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven (1897); and the said persons shall, immediately after this act goes into effect, assemble at the state capitol, and by lot decide between themselves as to their respective terms of office.

SEC. 2. The governor shall, on or before April first, eighteen hundred and ninety-three (1893), appoint a member of said board, and on or before the first day of April in each odd-numbered year thereafter, he shall make similar appointments of members of said board, in place of the members whose terms shall expire; and, in case of any vacancy in the office of any member of said board, said vacancy shall be filled by appointment by the governor for the unexpired term.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the said board of game and fish commissioners to propagate and distribute food fishes and to keep up the supply thereof in the various waters of the state, and to secure through and by their agents and subordinates the enforcement of all the laws of this state for the preservation, propagation and protection of the game and fish of the state. They shall appoint some person, a resident of the state, as game warden, who shall act as secretary and business agent of said board, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until his successor shall have been appointed, and said board shall have power to appoint deputy game wardens, who shall be residents of the state, in number not exceeding four (4), and who shall hold their office for the like term of two (2) years, or until their successors shall have been appointed, and said board may at any time remove any of said wardens and appoint another in his place for the unexpired term. The compensation of said warden and deputy wardens shall be fixed by said board, and said board shall further have the power to appoint at any time a special game warden for any county in this state, for such period of time as they may in their discretion determine.

SEC. 4. It shall be the duty of said board to collect, classify and preserve all such statistics, data and information as they may think will tend to promote the objects of this act, to conduct all the necessary correspondence, to take charge of and keep all reports, books, papers, documents or specimens which they may collect in the discharge of their duties under this act, and to prepare an annual report to the governor on or before the first Monday in December of each year, showing what has been done by them during the current year, the manner in which their duties have been performed, the amount expended by them, and the objects for which such expenditures were made, with such recommendations for legislative action, if any, as the said board may deem calculated to better promote the preservation and increase the more useful food fishes within the state, and to lessen the cost of the same. The governor shall lay the reports of said board before the legislature on the assembling thereof.

SEC. 5. It shall be the further duty of said board to select suitable locations within the state whereon to establish and maintain fish-breeding establishments, for the propagation and cultivation of such kinds of food fishes as they may direct, for the purpose of stocking with such fish such of the inland and bordering waters of the state as they may know or have reason to believe are suitable for the kinds of fish so selected by them, and replenishing the supply of the same; to make application for and receive from the United States commissioner or commissioners of fisheries, such quota of stock, spawn or fry as may be allotted from time to time to this state, and to purchase or procure from the fish commissioners of other states, or from other persons or sources, the eggs or fry of such species or varieties of food fishes as the said board may deem desirable, and to hatch such spawn or fry, and to plant the same in such of the waters of this state as shall, in their judgment, afford the best opportunity for the propagation of such food fishes; and to make all such investigations on the subject of, and such experiments in fish culture as shall, in their judgment, be calculated to promote the objects of this act within this state; and to institute and prosecute actions and proceedings on behalf the state against any person or persons to recover any claim or claims due said board and arising on contract or otherwise, or to protect the property of the state employed or in any manner connected with the work of said board, and all actions or proceedings instituted by them shall be entitled in the name of the board of game and fish commissioners of the State of Minnesota, as plaintiff.

Such board shall employ a competent person as superintendent of fisheries, whose duty it shall be to devote his entire time to the work of fish propagation and distribution under the direction of the board, and such other assistants as the exigencies of the work may require, all such employes to be governed by the regulations adopted by the board. The salary of the superintendent of fisheries shall not exceed the sum of two thousand (2,000) dollars per annum. All property owned or leased by the said board shall be exempt from taxation so long as held and used for the purposes herein specified.

SEC. 6. No person shall at any time acquire any property in any game or fish within the State of Minnesota, or subject any of the same to his own dominion or control, save only by killing the same within the periods and by the means permitted by the laws of the state, and, except as permitted by such laws, the game and fish within the state be and remain the property of the state.

SEC. 7. No person shall kill or pursue with intent to kill, any of the animals or birds hereinafter mentioned, within the period hereinafter limited:

Woodcock, between the thirty-first (31st) day of October and the fourth (4th) day of July following.

Prairie chickens, or white-breasted or sharp-tailed grouse, between the first (1st) day of November and the first (1st) day of September following.

Quail, partridge, ruffled grouse, or pheasant, between the first (1st) day of November and the first (1st) day of September following.

Wild duck of any variety, or wild goose or brant of any variety, or snipe of any variety, or any aquatic fowl whatever, between the twenty-fifth (25th) day of April and the twentieth (20th) day of August following; provided, the possession of any one of such birds or animals, except alive, by any person, during the time the killing thereof is prohibited, shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that such person killed the same contrary to the provisions of this section. Whoever shall offend against any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars, nor more than twenty-five (25) dollars, for each and every bird or animal so killed, and the costs of prosecution, and, in default of the payment of any one such fine, shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten (10) days, nor more than thirty (30) days, for each and every bird or animal killed.

Provided, That no moose, caribou or reindeer shall be killed or sold or offered for sale in this state for five (5) years next after the passage of this act.

Any person offending under this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 8. No person shall at any time catch or kill any of the birds or animals aforesaid in any other manner than by shooting them with a gun, held to the shoulder by the person discharging the same. And no person shall at any time set, lay or prepare any trap, snare, net, bird lime, swivel gun or other contrivance or device whatever, with the intent to catch or kill any of the birds or animals aforesaid, whether the same are caught or not. And no person or persons shall at any time, in hunting any aquatic fowl, make use of any artificial light battery, or any deception whatever, whereby such wild fowl will be attracted or deceived (except that decoys may be used in hunting ducks, wild geese and brant). And whoever shall offend against any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars nor more than twenty-five (25) dollars, and costs of prosecution; or, in default of the payment of such fine, shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten (10) days nor more than thirty (30) days.

SEC. 9. No persons shall hunt with hounds or dogs any elk, moose, deer, antelope, buck, doe or fawn at any time; and no person shall by any means, contrivance or device whatever kill or take by any means, or pursue with intent to kill or take or worry any elk, moose, deer, antelope, buck, doe or fawn at any time between the thirtieth (30th) day of November and the first (1st) day of November following. Whoever shall offend against any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty (50) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars and costs of prosecution for each animal so destroyed or pursued, and in default of the payment of each such fine shall be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of not less than thirty (30) days nor more than sixty (60) days.

The possession by any one of the carcass, or any part thereof, of any such animal between the fifteenth (15th) day of December in any year and the first (1st) day of November following shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that such person killed the same contrary to the provisions of this section.

SEC. 10. No person shall at any time catch or kill any of the animals aforesaid, in any other manner than by shooting them with a gun held to the shoulder by the person discharging the same, and no person shall at any time set, lay or prepare any trap, snare or other contrivance or device whatever, with the intent to kill or catch any of the animals aforesaid. And whoever shall offend against any of the provisions of this section, whether any such animal is taken or killed or not, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not less than fifty (50) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars and costs of prosecution, or in default of the payment of any such fine be imprisoned in the county jail not less than thirty (30) days nor more than sixty (60) days.

SEC. 11. Any person or persons, firm, corporation or company who shall purchase, sell, ship or otherwise dispose of, or have in his, her or their possession for his or their own use or for any other purpose, any of the birds or animals mentioned in this act (except alive) during the time that the killing thereof is hereby prohibited by this act, except during the first fifteen (15) days of the close season as to the animals mentioned in section ten (10) of this act, and except during the first three (3) days of the close season as to the other animals and birds mentioned in this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars, nor more than one hundred (100) dollars and costs of prosecution for each bird or animal purchased, sold, shipped or otherwise disposed of contrary to this act, and in default of the payment of such fine shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten (10) days nor more than sixty (60) days. The purchase, sale or shipment or possession of any of such birds or animals contrary to the provisions of this section shall be prima facie evidence that such persons purchased, possessed, sold, shipped or disposed of such birds or animals unlawfully and contrary to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 12. Any express company, railway company, common carrier or any other company, corporation or person carrying on business in this state, or any servant or agent or employe of any such company, receiving or having in its, his or their possession, or that shall carry, ship or transport for compensation or otherwise any birds or animals mentioned in this act (except alive), whether for transportation or otherwise, and killed within this state during the time that the killing of any such bird or animal is prohibited by this act (except during the first three (3) days of such close season or time, and except as to animals as otherwise provided in this act), shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty (20) dollars, nor more than two hundred (200) dollars, and costs of prosecution, for each bird or animal so received, possessed, held, carried or transported, and may be prosecuted before any justice of the peace, police magistrate or district or municipal court in any county where such birds or animals are found so unlawfully possessed, transported or disposed of; possession of any such bird or animal by any such company, corporation, servant, agent or employe shall be prima facie evidence that such bird or animal was killed, held or possessed contrary to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 13. No person shall at any time enter into any growing or standing grain not his own, with sporting implements about his person; nor to permit his dog or dogs to enter into any such growing or standing grain, without permission of the owner or occupant thereof; and no person shall at any time hunt or shoot upon any lands of another after being notified not to hunt or shoot thereon, and any person who shall, without the right so to do, hunt or shoot upon any land of another after having been notified not to hunt or shoot thereon, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars, nor more than fifty (50) dollars, and costs of prosecution for each and every offense, to be recovered by action before any justice of the peace of the county where the offense is committed, or of the county where the defendant may reside, to be brought by and in the name of the owner or occupant of the land; or in the default of the payment of such fine shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten (10) days nor more than thirty (30) days, but nothing in this contained shall be so construed as to limit or in any way affect the remedy of the owner or occupant of any such grain or inclosed land or uninclosed land, or of the person injured, at common law, for trespass. Any owner or proprietor of land may give the notice provided for in this section by maintaining the sign-boards at least one foot square containing such notice, upon at least every forty (40) acres of the premises sought to be protected, on or near the borders thereof, or upon or near the shores of any waters thereon, in at least two (2) conspicuous places, or by giving personal written or verbal notice.

SEC. 14. It shall be lawful for any person to shoot or kill any dog while such dog is in actual pursuit of any elk, moose, deer antelope, buck, doe or fawn, in violation of the provisions of this act; and any complaint or objection made by the owner of such dog or any other person against such killing shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that such complaining party encouraged such dog in such pursuit.

SEC. 15. It shall be lawful for any game warden or any other person to burn or otherwise destroy any fish house erected or maintained upon the ice or in the waters or on the shore of any lake or stream for the purpose of fishing, or any net, set-line, trap or other contrivance placed or maintained in or upon any of the waters of this state at any time when the taking of fish from such waters is forbidden by the law of this state; and any complaint or objection made by any person to the destruction of any of the said articles shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that the person so objecting was then and there engaged in violating the provisions of this act.

SEC. 16. Whoever intentionally in any manner whatever kills or takes any mink, muskrat, otter or beaver during either of the months of May, June, July, August, September or October in any year, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in the sum of five (5) dollars for each such offense; provided, that this act shall not be construed as to prevent the destruction of any such animals when found destroying private property. All prosecutions under this act shall be commenced within sixty (60) days from the time the offense was committed, and shall be by complaint upon oath before any justice of the peace or municipal court in the county where such offense was committed, or of the county where the defendant may reside, and all fines imposed and collected under this act shall be paid as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 17. No person shall catch, kill or take by any means, contrivance or device whatever, or expose for sale in the State of Minnesota, any speckled, river or brook trout, save only during the months of April, May, June, July, August and September in any year; and any person or persons offending against any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than five (5) dollars nor more than fifty (50) dollars, and by the forfeiture of all fishing tackle, baskets and other sporting implements found in his or their possession, together with the costs of prosecution.

SEC. 18. No person shall catch, kill or take by any means, contrivance or device whatever, any fish from any of the lakes, ponds, rivers or streams in any of the counties of the State of Minnesota in which the taking of fish is now regulated by law, save only during the periods within which and by such means as the taking of such fish is now allowed by law. No person shall catch, kill or take by any means, contrivance or device whatever, any fish from any of the lakes, ponds, rivers or streams in any of the counties of the State of Minnesota not included within the preceding part of this section, save only between the first day of May and the first day of March, and then only by taking the same by hook and line or spear. Any person or persons offending against the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than five (5) dollars nor more than fifty (50) dollars for each fish so taken, and by the forfeiture of all fishing tackle and other sporting implements found in his or their possession, together with the costs of prosecution.

SEC. 19. No person shall at any time catch or kill any speckled, river or brook trout in any other manner than by angling for them with a hook and line. No person, except United States and state fish commissioners, shall at any time take, catch or kill any fish of any kind, except whitefish, from any of the waters in the State of Minnesota, excepting Lake Superior, in any other manner than angling for them with a hook and line or spear. No person shall at any time put into any waters within the State of Minnesota any fish berries, dynamite or any deleterious substance whatever, or explode any dynamite therein, with intent to kill or take fish. Any person or persons offending against any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty (50) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars, and by the forfeiture of any device, implement or substance used in the commission of the offense, together with the costs of the prosecution.

SEC. 20. No person shall break up or destroy, take away or in any manner interfere with any nest, or the eggs therein, or any woodcock, snipe, quail, partridge, ruffled grouse, prairie chicken, pheasant, plover, or any species of wild duck, wild goose or brant, nor sell or expose for sale any of such eggs, nor have any of the same in his possession for any purpose. Any company or corporation, and every employe or agent of the same, shall be deemed persons offending against any provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars, and by the forfeiture of such eggs in his or their possession, together with the costs of prosecution.

SEC. 21. No person shall kill, cage or trap any whip-poor-will, night-hawk, blue-bird, finch, thrush, lark, linnet, wren, martin, swallow, bobolink, robin, turtle-dove, cat-bird, or any other harmless bird not elsewhere mentioned in this act, excepting black-birds, sparrows and wild pigeons. Any person or persons offending against the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars nor more than fifty (50) dollars, or the forfeiture of any gun or guns, cage, trap, net or other device or sporting implement in his or their possession, together with the cost of prosecution.

SEC. 22. No person shall sell any game or fish which has been taken or captured in the State of Minnesota at any of the times or during any of the periods when the taking or capturing of such game or fish is prohibited by the provisions of this law or any of any of the laws of this state. No keeper of a hotel, restaurant, or boarding house shall serve to any of his guests any such game or fish during any of the said periods when the taking of the same is prohibited by the laws of this state.

Any person offending against the provisions of this section shall upon conviction thereof be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars nor more than fifty (50) dollars and the costs of prosecution for each and every offense.

SEC. 23. Whenever any game or fish, during the period of time when the taking of the same is prohibited by the laws of this state, is received or comes into the possession of any person or persons, or corporation, for or on account of, or to be held subject to the order of any other person, persons or corporation, the person or corporation so having the same in custody or possession shall at once report the same to a game warden, or to a sheriff, constable or police officer immediately, and such sheriff, constable or police officer shall report to game warden or deputies; and any person or corporation failing to make such report immediately upon receipt of such game or fish shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) dollars nor more than fifty (50) dollars and costs of prosecution for each and every offense.

SEC. 24. Any game warden or other officer of the law may at any time seize and take into his custody any game or fish or any carcass thereof, or any portion of same which he may find at any time in the possession of any person or corporation during the period when the capture of such game or fish is not permitted by the laws of this state; provided, that this section shall not apply to any stuffed carcass, or stuffed heads or skins of animals, which was taken or captured during the season allowed therefor.

SEC. 25. The wanton destruction or the wasting of the game and fish of this state during any period of time when the taking or capture of such game or fish is permitted, is hereby prohibited and declared a misdemeanor; and any person who shall at any time take, capture or destroy any game or fish in excess of the number or quantity thereof which he can immediately use for food purposes shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten (10) nor more than fifty (50) dollars and costs of prosecution for each and every animal, bird or fish which he may take or destroy contrary to the provisions of this section; provided, that not more than twenty-five (25) birds shall be killed by any one gun in one day.

SEC. 26. In any prosecution or judicial proceeding under the provisions of this law or any other law of this state for the protection and preservation of the game and fish thereof, any participant in any violation of such law shall be allowed to testify as a witness therein against any other person without criminating himself.

SEC. 27. All fishways heretofore or hereafter erected in any dam or dams across any of the streams for this state shall be at all times under the supervision and control of the board of game and fish commissioners.

SEC. 28. Every artificial, obstruction built upon and across any river, stream or water-course in this state in which, before the building of such obstruction, fish were in the habit of passing between the waters below and the waters above the location of such obstruction, shall be provided by the owner or occupant of such obstruction with a durable and suitable fishway for the passage of fish of such form and capacity and in such location as may be determined by the board of game and fish commissioners, who, when they shall have determined upon the form, capacity and location of any such fishway, shall give written notice thereof to one of the owners or occupants of the obstruction over which such fishway is to be built, and require the same to be built within a time to be therein specified.

SEC. 29. After the completion of any fishway to the satisfaction of the board of game and fish commissioners, the owners or occupants thereof shall change, alter or repair the same whenever so required by said board, and shall keep the same open and free from obstructions to the passage of fish, in such manner and during such period as the said board may require; and if no period shall be specified by such board, every such fishway shall be kept open and free from the first (1st) day of April to the first (1st) day of October in each year. Every person who shall fail or neglect to comply with any of the provisions of this or the preceding sections, or with any lawful requirement of the board of game and fish commissioners in the premises, or shall neglect to build and complete to the satisfaction of said board, within the time specified by him, any fishway which may be required by said board, shall be fined not less than five (5) nor more than twenty-five (25) dollars for each day of such neglect.

SEC. 30. Every person who shall at any time take or capture any fish from any stream or water within four hundred (400) feet of any fishway, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than twenty-five (25) or more than one hundred (100) dollars, together with the costs of prosecution.

SEC. 31. All fines collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid into the state treasury, and be placed to the credit of the board of game and fish commissioners, to be expended by them in the discharge of their duties and the enforcement of the provisions of this act.

SEC. 32. The board of game and fish commissioners shall have the right at any and all seasons to buy, in any place or from any person, any animals, birds, fish or spawn or eggs that may, in their judgment, be required for the purpose of stocking any of the fields or waters of this state, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. 33. The sum of ten thousand (10,000) dollars annually is hereby appropriated for the purpose of the maintenance and enforcement by the board of game and fish commissioners of the provisions of this act, to be paid for such purpose out of the moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 34. Sections one hundred and three (103), one hundred and four (104), one hundred and five (105), and one hundred and six (106) of chapter six (6) of the General Statutes of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight (1878), and chapter twenty (20) of the General Statutes of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight (1878), and chapters two hundred and five (205), two hundred and six (206) and two hundred and seven (207) of the General laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-nine (1889) are hereby repealed.

SEC. 35. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 10—H. F. NO. 804.

An Act to prohibit pools and trusts in the State of Minnesota.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. If any corporation organized under the laws of this state or any other state or country for transacting or conducting any kind of business in this state, or any partnership or individual shall create, enter into, become a member of or a party to any pool, trust, agreement, combination or confederation with any other corporation, partnership or individual to regulate or fix the price of oil, lumber, coal, grain, flour, provisions or any other commodity or article whatever, or shall create, enter into, become a member of a party to any pool, agreement, combination or confederation, to fix or limit the amount or quantity of any commodity or article to be manufactured, mined, produced or sold in this state, shall be deemed guilty of a conspiracy to defraud, and be subject to indictment and punishment, as provided in the next section.

SEC. 2. Any person or corporation found guilty of a violation of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred (100) dollars, nor to exceed five thousand (5,000) dollars, and stand committed until such fine is paid.

SEC. 3. Upon the trial of an indictment against a corporation or copartnership for a violation of the first section of this act, all officers and agents of such corporation or copartnership shall be competent witnesses against the defendant on trial, and such officers and agents may be compelled to testify against such defendant and produce all books and papers in his custody or under his control, pertinent to the issue in such trial, and shall not be excused from answering any such question, or from producing any books and papers because the same might tend to criminate such witness; but nothing which such witness shall testify to, and no books or papers produced by him shall in any manner be used against him in any suit, civil or criminal, to which he is a party.

SEC. 4. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 11—S. F. NO. 467.

An Act relating to the sale of imitation butter.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. Whoever, by himself or his agent, shall sell, expose for sale, or have in his possession with intent to sell, any article or compound made in imitation of butter or as a substitute for butter, and not wholly made from milk or cream, and that is of any other color than bright pink, shall be subject to the payment of a penalty of fifty (50) dollars, and for a second and each subsequent offense, a penalty of one hundred (100) dollars, to be recovered with costs in any court in this state of competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 2. Samples or specimens of any articles in imitation of butter, suspected of being of a spurious character, shall be analyzed or otherwise satisfactorily tested as to color and compounds; and a certificate of the analysis, sworn to by the analyzer, shall be admissible as evidence in all prosecutions under this act.

SEC. 3. The having in possession by any person or firm of any articles or substance prohibited by this act shall be considered prima facie evidence that the same is kept by such person or firm in violation of the provisions of this act, and the state dairy and food commissioner shall be authorized to seize upon and take possession of such article or substance, and upon the order of any court which has jurisdiction under this act, he shall sell the same for any purpose other than to be used for food; the proceeds derived from fines and the sale of imitation butter shall be paid into the state treasury to be placed to the credit of the state dairy and food commissioner's fund.

SEC. 4. For the purpose of this act the term butter shall be understood to mean the product usually known by that name, and which is manufactured exclusively from milk or cream or both.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 12—H. F. NO. 1237.

An Act in relation to the manufacture and sale of lard and of lard compounds and substitutes, and of food prepared therefrom; to prevent fraud and to preserve the public health.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. No person shall within this state manufacture for sale, have in his possession with intent to sell, offer or expose for sale, or sell, as lard, any substance not the legitimate and exclusive product of the fat of the hog.

SEC. 2. Every person who manufactures for sale within this state, has in his possession with intent to sell, offers or exposes for sale, or sells, as lard, or as a substitute for lard, or an imitation of lard, any mixture or compound which is designed to take the place of lard and which is made from animal or vegetable oils or fats, or any mixture or compound consisting in part of lard in mixture or combination with animal or vegetable oils or fats, unless the same shall be branded or labeled as hereinafter required and directed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall upon conviction be subject to the penalties hereinafter provided in this act.

SEC. 3. Every person who manufactures for sale, has in his possession with intent to sell, offers or exposes for sale or sells, any substance made in the semblance of lard, or as an imitation of lard, or a substitute for lard, and which is designed to take the place of lard, and which consists of any mixture or compound of animal or vegetable oils or fats other than hog fat in the form of lard, shall cause the tierce, barrel, tub, pail, or package containing the same to be distinctly and legibly branded or labeled in letters not less than one (1) inch in length with the name of the person or firm making the same together with the location of the manufactory, and the words "Lard Substitute," and immediately following the same in letters not less than one-half (½) inch in length, with the names and approximate proportions of the several constituents which are contained in the mixture or compound.

SEC. 4. Every person who manufactures for sale, has in his possession with intent to sell, offers or exposes for sale or sells any substance made in the semblance of lard, or as an imitation of lard, or as a substitute for lard and which is designed to take the place of lard and which consists of any mixture or compound of lard with animal or vegetable oils or fats, shall cause the tierce, barrel, tub, pail or package containing the same to be distinctly and legibly branded or labeled in letters not less than one (1) inch in length, with the name of the person or firm making the same, together with the location of the manufactory, and the words, "Adulterated Lard" and immediately following the same in letters not less than one-half (½) inch in length with the names and approximate proportions of the several constituents which are contained in the mixture or compound.

SEC. 5. Every dealer or trader who, by himself or his agent, or as the servant or agent of another person, offers or exposes for sale or sells any form of lard substitute or adulterated lard as hereinbefore defined, shall securely affix or cause to be affixed to the package wherein the same is contained, offered for sale or sold, a label, upon the outside and face of which is distinctly and legibly printed in letters not less than one-half (½) inch in length the words "Lard Substitute" or "Adulterated Lard," and immediately following the same, in letters not smaller than long primer, the name and approximate proportions of the several constituents which are contained in the mixture or compound, and shall furnish to the purchaser at the time of sale a card upon which is distinctly and legibly printed the name of the article as hereinbefore defined, and a list of the several components of the mixture.

SEC. 6. Every person who manufactures for sale, or who offers or exposes for sale or sells, or who serves to guests as keeper of hotel, restaurant, dining room, or in any other capacity, articles of food which have been prepared, either wholly or in part, with lard substitutes, or adulterated lard as hereinbefore defined, shall at the time of sale furnish to the purchaser a card upon which is distinctly and legibly printed the words, "This food is prepared, with lard substitute (or adulterated lard);" or in case no bill of fare is provided, there shall be kept constantly posted upon each of the sides of the dining room in a conspicuous position cards, upon the face of which is distinctly and legibly printed in the English language, and in letters of sufficient size to be visible from all parts of the room the words "Lard substitute (or adulterated lard) is used in the preparation of the food served here."

SEC. 7. The having in possession of any lard substitute or adulterated lard as hereinbefore defined, which is not branded or labeled as hereinbefore required and directed, upon the part of any dealer or trader, keeper of hotel, restaurant, bakery, or any person engaged in the public sale of such articles or of food prepared therefrom, shall for the purpose of this act be deemed prima face evidence of intent to sell the same or to use the same in an illegal manner.

SEC. 8. The district and municipal courts and justices of the peace of this state shall have jurisdiction of all cases arising under this act, and their jurisdiction is hereby extended so as to enable them to enforce the penalties imposed by this act.

SEC. 9. It shall be the duty of the state dairy and food commissioner and his assistants, experts, chemists and agents by him appointed to enforce the provisions of this act. The said commissioner is hereby authorized and empowered to employ such experts and chemists as may be deemed by him necessary for the proper enforcement of the law, their compensation to be fixed by the commissioner. All charges, accounts and expenses authorized by this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon a warrant drawn by the state auditor.

SEC. 10. The said commissioner and assistant commissioners, experts, chemists and others by him appointed, shall have access, ingress and egress to all places of business, factories and buildings where the same is manufactured or kept for sale. They shall also have power and authority to open any package, car or vessel containing such articles which may be manufactured, sold or exposed for sale in violation of the provisions of this act, and may inspect the contents therein, and take samples therefrom for analysis. All clerks, bookkeepers, express agents, railroad officials, employes or common carriers shall render to them all the assistance in their power, when so requested, in tracing, finding or discovering the presence of any prohibited article, named in this act. Any refusal or neglect on the part of such clerk, bookkeeper, express agent railroad officials, employes or common carriers to render such friendly aid, shall be deemed a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five (25) dollars or more than fifty (50) dollars for each and every offense.

SEC. 11. In all prosecutions under this act, the costs thereof shall be paid in the manner now provided by law, and such fine shall be paid into the state treasury and placed to the credit of the state dairy and food commissioner's fund.

SEC. 12. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five (25) dollars, or more than one hundred (100) dollars and costs for each offense, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty (30) days or more than ninety (90) days.

SEC. 13. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 14. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, A. D. 1891.

CHAPTER 13—S. F. NO. 453.

An Act authorizing the formation of farmers' mutual fire insurance companies.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That it shall be lawful for any number of persons, not less than twenty-five (25), residing in this state, who shall collectively own property of not less than twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars to form themselves into a company or corporation for mutual insurance against loss or damage by fire or lightning, which corporation shall have perpetual succession, may sue and be sued, contract and be contracted with, plead or be impleaded in any court in this state, and possess the usual powers and duties of corporations; provided, however that nothing herein contained shall be construed as amending, repealing, or in anywise affecting the existing statutes for the incorporation or operation of county or township farmer fire insurance companies.

SEC. 2. They shall organize by adopting and signing articles of incorporation, which shall contain:

First, The name of the corporation, which shall not be the same as that previously assumed by any other corporation in the state.

Second, The general nature of its business, and the place of its principal office or headquarters.

Third, The names and residence and the value of the real estate owned by the persons, respectively, so associating to form such corporation.

Fourth, The time of commencement and the period of duration of such corporation.

Fifth, The number, names and places of residence of the directors, and of the president, secretary and treasurer of such corporation for the first year of its existence, and the time and place of the election of their successors.

SEC. 3. Such articles shall be acknowledged by the persons signing the same in the manner by law provided for the acknowledgment of deeds, and shall be filed for record in the office of the secretary of state.

SEC. 4. The secretary of state shall, before recording such articles, submit the same to the attorney general, who shall examine said articles, and if he find the same to have been executed in conformity to law he shall endorse the word "Approved" thereon, and date, sign and return the same to the secretary of state, who shall thereupon record the same in the records in his office, and shall issue under his hand and official seal and deliver to the said corporation his certificate to the effect that such corporation has been duly incorporated under the provisions of this act, and is authorized to transact business from and after the date thereof. Such certificate shall be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county wherein such corporation shall have its principal office, and said certificate and records and any certified copy of such records shall be received in all courts of this state as prima facie evidence that such corporation has been duly organized and created under the laws of the State of Minnesota.

SEC. 5. Upon the issuance of such certificate the persons therein named shall be and become a corporation and authorized to transact the business of mutual insurance against loss or damage to property by fire or lightning in such manner and upon such terms as in and by its by laws may be provided.

SEC. 6. The general management of the business of said corporation shall be vested in directors, each of whom shall during his term of office be a policy holder in said corporation. Such directors shall be elected annually, and shall hold their office for one year and until their successors are elected and qualified. The directors shall choose from their own number a president, secretary and treasurer, whose respective terms of office shall be one year, and whose duties and compensation shall be such as may be in the by-laws of the corporation provided.

SEC. 7. Such corporation before commencing its business shall prepare and adopt by-laws which shall describe the duties of its officers, the manner, place and time of electing them, the directors, the scheme and manner of transacting its business, and such other rules and regulations as may be deemed essential for the government of the corporation and the management of its affairs. Such by-laws shall not be amended, changed, suspended or repealed except in the manner therein set forth, and a copy of the same and of any subsequent amendments thereto, or changes therein shall be by the secretary forthwith filed with the commission of insurance, who shall safely keep the same in his office.

SEC. 8. Such corporation is authorized to issue policies of insurance, signed by its president and secretary, agreeing to pay the person assured thereby all loss and damage to the property insured, which he may sustain by fire or lightning for a period of not more than five (5) years and not exceeding in amount the sum specified in such policy.

SEC. 9. Every holder of a policy of such insurance shall be a member of the corporation. He shall have the right to participate in the election of directors, and shall be eligible to election to any office in such corporation; he shall be liable to the corporation for his pro rata share of all losses and damages by fire or lightning sustained by any other member, and also for his pro rata share of the expenses of the management of the business of such corporation, and shall also be bound and subject to the by-laws thereof.

SEC. 10. The corporation shall, in and by its by-laws, provide for the manner in which such insurance shall be effected, and the terms and conditions thereof; the time and manner in which losses by it sustained under its policies of insurance shall be determined, proved, adjusted and paid; the time and manner and place in which, and the person to whom such assessments shall be paid. It shall also, in and by its by-laws, provide such other regulations, terms and conditions, as it may be necessary for effectively and fully carrying out its scheme of insurance, and the said by-laws in force at the time of the date of any policy of insurance, issued by the corporation, shall have the force and effect of law in the determination of all questions and claims arising under such policy between the holder thereof and the said corporation.

SEC. 11. The said corporation shall also, in and by its by-laws, provide the manner, terms and conditions upon which any member thereof may withdraw or be suspended or expelled therefrom.

SEC. 12. The secretary of the corporation shall prepare and submit to the members thereof, at each annual meeting, a detailed statement of the condition of such corporation and its transactions for the preceding year, showing the number of policies and to whom issued and the amounts insured thereby, the number of assessments made during the year, and the amount paid in upon each assessment; the losses sustained during the year, and whether the same have been paid or adjusted or remain unpaid or unadjusted, or are disputed; the number of members of the corporation; the number of new members received during the year and an itemized statement of the expenses of such corporation during the year and of the amount and condition of its funds, and such other matters as may be of interest to the members. A copy of such annual statement shall, within thirty (30) days after such meeting, be filed with and preserved by the insurance commissioner.

SEC. 13. No corporation formed under this act shall continue for a longer period than thirty (30) years.

SEC. 14. No corporations formed under this act shall insure any property outside the State of Minnesota, nor any property other than detached dwellings and farm buildings and their contents, and live stock while on the premises or running at large, and hay, grain and other farm products while in the stack, bin, crib or granary, and all farm machinery and utensils, including wagons and carriages, upon such premises; nor shall it insure any property whatever in any incorporated city, or village, unless entirely detached and used for farm purposes only.

SEC. 15. All the books, papers and files of such corporation shall at all times be open to the examination of any member thereof, or his agent or attorney; and any such member, agent or attorney shall at all times have the right to make such copies of such books, papers and files as he may wish to have.

SEC. 16. The articles of association may be amended in any respect which might have been lawfully made a part of such original articles, at any annual meeting of the members of the corporation, upon a vote of two-thirds of the members present at such meeting.

SEC. 17. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 22, 1891.

CHAPTER 14—S. F. NO. 159.

An Act to allow town insurance companies to enlarge territory and their operations, and to legalize amendments to their articles of incorporation extending their territory.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. Any town insurance company heretofore or hereafter organized may, at any regular annual meeting of its members, by a majority vote of those present, amend its articles of association so as to include in its organization adjacent and adjoining towns without regard to the county in which such towns are situated, and not exceeding six towns in any county other than that in which such company has its place of business.

SEC. 2. Any town insurance company which has heretofore attempted to amend its articles of incorporation by adding towns in a county other than that in which such company's place of business is situated shall be deemed and considered to have added such territory under the terms of this act to all intents and purposes as fully as though such action has been taken subsequent to the passage of this act; and such attempted enlargement of territory is hereby in all things legalized, and such company is authorized to do business in such additional towns.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in full force from and after the date of its passage.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 15—H. F. NO. 610.

An Act to authorize live stock insurance companies organized under the laws of other states to do business in Minnesota, and defining the terms and conditions thereof.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. Corporations organized under the laws of other states of the United States for the purpose of insuring live stock against death by accident, disease or otherwise, may be permitted to transact such business in the State of Minnesota upon compliance with the provisions herein contained and not otherwise.

SEC. 2. Such corporations shall have a capital stock of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), actually paid up in cash, which they may invest in such securities as fire insurance companies may be permitted to hold, including mortgages upon real estate in the state where the said corporations are organized, or in the State of Minnesota, which real estate shall be worth at least twice the amount of the sum secured by mortgage thereon. Such corporations shall also comply with the act of the legislature of the State of Minnesota entitled "An act requiring the payment of fees into the state treasury by corporations upon filing articles of association or increase of capital stock," approved April twenty-four (24), one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889).

SEC. 3. Such insurance companies shall also file with the insurance department of this state a certificate from the insurance department of the state where the company is organized, certifying that it has fully complied with the laws of such state and is authorized to engage in the business of live stock insurance therein.

SEC. 4. Such insurance companies shall also file with the insurance department of this state a certificate of the insurance department of the state where said company is organized and doing business, certifying that it has a paid-up capital stock of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), and stating how the same is invested, and attaching a schedule of the securities in which it is invested.

SEC. 5. Such insurance companies shall also file with the insurance department of this state a certified copy of the last annual report filed by it with the insurance department of the state in which it is organized, and such insurance companies shall thereafter annually on or before the first day of March in each year, file with the insurance commissioner of this state, a certified copy of the annual report filed by it in the insurance department of the state where said corporation is organized for the last preceding year; and the said insurance commissioner of this state is authorized to require such other statements in such form and at such times, as he may prescribe; and he may examine or authorize some person to examine such company, if not satisfied of the correctness of the reports and statements hereinbefore referred to.

SEC. 6. Such company shall also file a written stipulation, duly authenticated by the company, stipulating and agreeing that any legal process affecting such company, served on the insurance commissioner, shall have the same effect as if personally served on the company or its authorized agent.

SEC. 7. Upon compliance with the foregoing provisions, the insurance commissioner of this state shall issue to such insurance company a license permitting it to do business in the State of Minnesota, subject to the provisions of this statute, and to such other provisions as have been or may be hereafter enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota for the government and regulation of such insurance companies; and the said insurance commissioner shall also issue a certificate to such person or persons as may be designated as agents of said company, and he shall charge and receive such fees for such licenses and certificates of authority to agents as he is now entitled to receive under existing laws from fire insurance companies organized under laws of other states and permitted to do business in this state.

SEC. 8. In case the insurance commissioner shall at any time find the capital stock of any such insurance company impaired to the extent of ten (10) per cent, he shall immediately give notice to such company to make good its whole capital stock within sixty (60) days; and if this is not done, he shall require the company to cease to do new business within the state, and shall immediately revoke the license permitting it to do business within the state.

SEC. 9. No person shall act as agent in this state for any live stock insurance company not incorporated under the laws of this state in any manner relating to risks, until the company for which he is acting as such agent shall have complied with the provisions of this act; and until he has received from the insurance commissioner a certificate of authority, as provided for in section 7 of this act, stating that the requirements of this act have been complied with, a record of which certificate shall be kept in the office of the commissioner, and which certificate can be at any time revoked by the commissioner. A renewal of certificate must be procured and filed within sixty (60) days from the first day of January in each year. Any such person or agent doing or attempting to do business in any way relating to insurance in this state, without such certificate of authority, in violation of this section, or after said certificate shall have been revoked, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be subject to a fine, on conviction, of not less than twenty-five (25) or more than one hundred (100) dollars for each offense, to be paid into the treasury of the county where the offense was committed. In case of the non-payment of any such fine the court shall have power to punish the offending party by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding three (3) months. It shall be the duty of the insurance commissioner to notify the county attorney of the proper county, in writing, of any offense under this section which may come to his knowledge; and it shall thereupon become the duty of such county attorney to at once cause proceedings to be instituted for the punishment thereof.

SEC. 10. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 16—H. F. NO 14.

An Act regulating the employment of persons serving in the capacity of peace officers.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. On and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful, for any state or municipal officers to swear in, appoint or allow any person to act as policeman, special policeman, constable, or special constable, patrolman, militiaman, or any person to act as such, or as a peace officer for the purpose of bearing arms or maintaining the peace, who is not a legal voter, or militiaman of the state, and has been a continual resident of the state for the four months next preceding such swearing in, or appointing.

SEC. 2. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be found guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined in the sum of not less than fifty dollars ($50) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500); and not less than three (3) months nor more than twelve (12) months' imprisonment in the county jail.

SEC. 3. That it shall also be unlawful to institute or keep any private detective office for the purpose of keeping or letting out any armed force for hire. And it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, company or corporation to keep or let any armed force for hire; but all armed forces shall be subject to the police authorities created by law, and under the control of the state or municipality. No person shall be appointed as a detective, spy or secret agent by any municipal authority, until he has become a legal voter of the State of Minnesota and been a continuous resident of the state for four (4) months next preceding such appointment.

But nothing herein contained shall prevent the employment of any detective, resident or non-resident, by any person or corporation, municipal or otherwise, to obtain information as to the commission of any crime, and to report upon the same, but without any authority to make arrests or bear arms.

SEC. 4. That any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be held liable, and punished as provided in section two (2).

SEC. 5. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 6. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 22, 1891.

CHAPTER 17—H. F. NO. 685.

An Act to regulate the labor of railway employes.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. No company operating a railroad over thirty miles in length in whole or in part within this state shall permit or require any conductor or brakeman, engineer or fireman, or any trainman, who has worked in his respective capacity for twenty consecutive hours or twenty hours within any period of twenty-four consecutive hours, except in case of casualty, to again go on duty or perform any work until he has had at least eight hours' rest. On all lines of railroad operated in this state ten hours shall constitute a day's work, or any less number of hours which shall be agreed upon by such companies and persons, and every hour in excess of said ten hours' work that any conductor, engineer, fireman, brakeman or any trainman in employ of the company, who works under the direction of a superior, or at the request of the company, shall be required or permitted to work, he shall be paid pro rata for such service in addition to his per diem wages.

Provided, nothing in this act shall be construed to hinder or limit a right of contract for services to be rendered on a compensation to be fixed by agreement based upon the number of miles run by such employes as constituting a day's work.

SEC. 2. Any company which violates or permits to be violated any of the provisions of the preceding section, or any officer, director, president, or foreman, agent or employe who violates or permits to be violated any of the provisions of the preceding section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 3. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. This act shall be in force upon and after its passage.

Approved April 22, 1891.

CHAPTER 18—S. F. NO. 122.

An Act providing for the extension of the time of making payments for seed grain purchased under the provisions of chapter four (4) of the General Laws of 1889, in certain cases.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That any person having purchased seed grain under the provisions of chapter four (4) of the General Laws of 1889, entitled "An act to furnish seed grain for distribution in certain counties afflicted by frost or blight, or hail, during the season of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight (1888), to provide for the repayment thereof, and to authorize the boards of county commissioners of such counties to issue bonds for the payment thereof," and who may from any cause have suffered from destruction or a failure of crops during the seasons of 1889 and 1890, may have the time for the payments of said seed grain extended for a term of two years from the time such payments should have been made.

SEC. 2. The county commissioners of any county named in said act shall be empowered to grant such relief upon satisfactory evidence, shown by affidavits of two or more persons, that the person applying for such relief has suffered a failure of crops during the seasons of 1889 and 1890.

SEC. 3. When such relief is granted by the county commissioners of any of said counties, they shall notify the county auditor of their county of the fact, whereupon he shall extend the time of payment of said seed grain for two (2) years from the time such payment should have been made:

Provided, however, that whenever any person shall acquire relief under the provisions of this act, the State of Minnesota shall have and acquire by virtue thereof a just and valid lien upon the crops of grain of such person raised by him during the years for which the time of payment is extended to the full amount of the indebtedness of said person on account of all furnished under the provisions of said chapter four.

Provided that nothing in this act contained shall in any manner affect the liability of any county upon its bonds heretofore issued under the provisions of chapter four (4) of the General Laws of 1889.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 30, 1891.

CHAPTER 19—S. F. NO. 117.

An Act authorizing the board of county commissioners of a county to appropriate moneys to aid in the construction or repair of roads and bridges in any town of such county, and providing that such appropriation shall be expended under the direction of the town supervisors.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That whenever any board of county commissioners of any county shall determine to expend any portion of the county "Road and Bridge Fund," not exceeding the sum of three hundred (300) dollars, to aid in the construction or repair of roads and bridges in any town of such county, the same shall be appropriated and expended as hereinafter provided, and not otherwise.

SEC. 2. Whenever any board of county commissioners shall make any appropriation, not exceeding the sum of three hundred (300) dollars, out of the "Road and Bridge" fund of such county, to aid in the construction or repair of roads and bridges, or either, in any town of such county, the board of county commissioners making such appropriation shall direct the county auditor of such county to draw a warrant on the treasurer of such county for the amount of such appropriation, making the same payable to the town treasurer of the town for which such appropriation is made.

SEC. 3. Before any town treasurer shall be entitled to receive from the county treasurer any moneys so provided to be paid by section two (2) of this act, he shall execute to the board of county commissioners of such county a good and sufficient bond in a sum equal to double the amount of the appropriation so to be received by him, with at least two sureties, to be approved by the county auditor, conditioned that he will not pay said moneys out for any purpose other than that for which the same shall have been appropriated by the board of county commissioners, and then only upon the order of the supervisors of such town.

SEC. 4. All appropriations hereafter made by any board of county commissioners, not exceeding the sum of three hundred (300) dollars, to aid in the construction or repair of roads or bridges, or either, in any town of such county, shall be expended under the supervision and direction of the supervisors of the town receiving such appropriation;

Provided, That no part of such appropriation shall be expended in the payment of supervisors' fees or per diem in letting any contract or superintending any work for which such appropriation shall have been made.

SEC. 5. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 6. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 16, 1891.

CHAPTER 20—H. F. NO. 432.

An Act relating to roads and bridges and the repair of same.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. Whenever the proper authorities of any town or county shall order a new bridge or culvert or the repair of any old bridge or culvert on any public highway in this state, such bridge or culvert and the approaches thereto shall be made at least fourteen (14) feet wide; and whenever such bridge in the construction or repair thereof shall be raised three (3) feet or more above the level of the bank on either side of any river, stream, gully or ravine, then such bridge and the approaches thereto shall be made at least sixteen (16) feet wide.

SEC. 2. Any officer of any town or county whose duty it is to order or superintend the improvements mentioned in section one hereof, and who shall wilfully neglect to comply with the provisions of said section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 9, 1891.

CHAPTER 21—S. F. NO. 702.

An Act to prevent the establishment of highways on the right of way of railroads by user, in the State of Minnesota.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. The continued use of any road or way heretofore traveled or which shall hereafter be traveled by the public upon and parallel to the right of way of any railroad company in this state, shall not be deemed to have constituted such road or way a legal highway, or a charge upon the town in which the same is situated, and no rights or benefits shall inure to the public or any individual by the use thereof.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 22—S. F. NO. 137.

An Act to authorize the common councils of cities to vacate roads, streets and alleys in certain cases.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That in all cases where any boulevard shall have been laid out by the board of park commissioners of any city in this state, around the shores of any lake, wholly, or partly embraced within the limits of any public park, the common council of such city shall have power and authority, upon the petition of any person interested in the reversion of the streets, roads and alleys to be vacated, or any portion thereof, and upon the recommendation of the board of park commissioners of such city (to be evidenced by a resolution of such board to that effect, a certified copy whereof shall accompany such petition), to vacate any street, road or alley lying within the limits of such boulevard, or within a distance of one hundred and fifty (150) feet therefrom, without any compensation being paid into the city treasury therefor, or any other land dedicated in lieu thereof. Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect individual rights to compensation.

SEC. 2. Save as herein provided such petition shall be made under and in accordance with existing laws governing vacations of streets, roads and public grounds, so far as applicable.

SEC. 3. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 31, 1891.

CHAPTER 23—S. F. NO. 156.

An Act vacating state and territorial roads through public parks in certain cases.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That in all cases where territorial or state roads have been heretofore laid out or traveled through or across land which has since been duly and legally embraced within the limits of any public park in any city in this state, which park contains walks and drives through the same, so much of said state and territorial roads as is embraced within the limits of any such public park is hereby vacated. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall apply to any portion of any road or street which has been designated as a park way by any board of park commissioners.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 31, 1891.

CHAPTER 24—H. F. NO. 888.

An Act to provide for the establishment of roads in more than one county in this state where such counties are not in the same judicial district.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. Whenever a petition praying that a road be laid through two or more adjoining counties in this state, or along the county lines dividing said counties, or partly along said county line and partly in one of said counties, signed by twenty legal voters resident in one of said counties, shall be presented to the judge the district court of the judicial district in which one or more of said counties is located, the said judge is hereby authorized to appoint three commissioners, whose duty it shall be to meet at such times and places as may be necessary, and to immediately proceed to lay out a road as directed by said district judge in accordance with the prayer of the petitioners; provided, that no road shall be ordered by any such district judge to extend more than six miles outside the judicial district in which the application is made, and such road shall be extended beyond the district only for the purpose of commencing or ending at some village or public road; and provided further, that this limitation shall not be construed to apply to that portion of such road extending along the line of the county located in such judicial district. The same notice shall be given of the presenting of such petition as is now required for the presenting of a petition for a road in more than one county by section 77 of chapter 13 of the General Statutes of the State of Minnesota, and all proceedings had hereunder shall conform as near as may be to sections 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83 and 84 of said chapter 13 of the General Statutes of the State of Minnesota, and the commissioners hereby provided for shall have the same powers, rights, duties and obligations as are provided for in said sections; and in addition to the reports now required by said sections to be filed by the commissioners therein referred to, it shall be the duty of said commissioners to file duplicate reports in each of the counties through which said road may pass, or in which the same may be partially located.

SEC. 2. The damages sustained by any person by reason of said road, and the apportionment of the same between the counties through or along which said road may be located, shall be ascertained and paid in the same manner as is now provided for in said sections above referred to, except that the apportionment of the same between said counties shall be made by the unanimous decision of a district judge from each of the judicial districts along or through which said road may pass.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 25—H. F. No. 302.

An Act relative to plats of towns and cities in this state and of additions to and subdivisions thereof, and the correction and legalization of the same.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That in all cases where the plats or what purport to be plats of any towns or cities in this state or of additions to or subdivisions thereof, or copies thereof fail to identify or show correctly, upon their face, the tract of land covered or intended to be covered thereby, the surveyors, or one of them, who laid out or surveyed the same, and, in case said surveyor or surveyors shall have died, or left the state, or [illegible] be unknown, or he or they be unable or refuse to make or execute such certificate, one or more of the original proprietors may, within one year from the passage of this act, make and file in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which said lands are situated, a certificate, duly executed and acknowledged by him or them as deeds are to be executed or acknowledged, wherein shall be set forth a full description of the lands actually covered and intended to be covered by said plat. If such certificate be made by a proprietor or proprietors of such town, city, addition or subdivision the same shall also be sworn to by him or them as being correct in all respects. And such certificate, so executed, acknowledged and verified, shall be recorded at length by said register of deeds in a book by him provided for that purpose, entitled, "Book of Plat Certificates," and said register of deeds shall, thereupon, note upon such plat and the copy thereof, filed in his office as aforesaid, and referred to in such certificate and affidavit, the fact of filing such certificate, and the book and page where recorded; and he shall receive from the person offering said certificate for record, the fees provided by law for similar services. And such certificate or the record thereof shall, together with such plat, be prima facie evidence, in all cases, as to lands covered by said plat.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved, April 1, 1891.

CHAPTER 26—S. F. NO. 409.

An Act to provide for the organization of school districts.

Be it enacted by Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. Whenever it may be desired by residents and taxpayers of two or more school districts in this state to organize a new school district, they shall petition the board of county commissioners therefor, and such petition shall contain the following facts, to wit:

1. A correct description of the territory desired to be embraced in the proposed district.
2. The number of persons residing in the proposed district.
3. The number of children of school age residing therein.
4. The school districts affected by the organization of the proposed district, the number of children of school age residing in each district so affected, and the number of such children which such organization would take from such districts respectively.
5. Such petition shall be signed in writing by a majority of the [illegible] residing in the portion proposed to be [illegible] of the several districts so affected by such organization, who are [illegible] to vote at school meetings in their respective school districts, and each [illegible] such petition shall [illegible] his or her signature [illegible] person authorized by law to take acknowledgment.

SEC. 2. Upon the presentation of the petition provided in section one of this act, the county commissioners shall appoint a time and place [illegible] the provisions of this section; and thereafter shall keep said certificate conspicuously posted in the office of said association. Such certificate shall be in force for one (1) year, and for one (1) year only, and a new certificate shall be obtained from year to year, and for each such certificate such building association shall pay into the treasury of the State of Minnesota a license fee of ten dollars ($10) before receiving the same.

In making application for and as a basis for such certificate the secretary and a majority of the directors of such association shall make out and report under oath to the public examiner a statement showing:

First—The full corporate articles of such association and a full copy of its by-laws then in force.

Second—The name and address of each officer and the salary or fees received by each officer for the twelve (12) months next preceding its last annual meeting.

Third—A copy of its last report.

Within thirty (30) days after receiving the aforesaid statement the public examiner shall issue the yearly certificate above named; provided, that, if it appears from such verified statement that the association applying for such certificate is not complying with the law applicable thereto and such rules as said examiner may adopt for said societies, the public examiner shall refuse to issue such certificate. Said certificate may be recorded in the office of the register of deeds in the county where said society has its regular place of business.

SEC. 3. No corporation doing or claiming to do the business of a mutual building society shall have authority to engage in the business of buying and selling or dealing in real estate; provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be taken as prohibiting any such association from securing the obligations due it and the repayment of its loans by taking mortgages on real estate, as provided by the laws and the statutes of this state; or from purchasing, as provided by law, at any sheriff's, judicial or other sale, public or private, any real estate upon which such association may have or hold any mortgage or judgment or lien or other incumbrance, or in which such association may have an interest, or from selling, conveying, holding, leasing, mortgaging at pleasure any real estate so purchased or acquired; provided, also, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit any such association from obtaining or acquiring title by deed or otherwise to real estate on which it may hold any lien or security in whole or in part satisfaction thereof.

SEC. 4. All mutual building associations organized or to be organized under the laws of this state are hereby prohibited from hereafter creating or issuing any preferred or non-contributing stock, except in payment of matured contributing stock, and no stockholder in any such association shall have more than one vote. But this section shall not limit the power of such associations to create and issue different series of stock.

SEC. 5. Whenever any mutual building association shall declare any of its stock forfeited for non-compliance of the owner with any of its rules, by-laws or regulations the said stock shall be sold at a regular monthly meeting of said association to the highest bidder; and it is made the duty of the officers of said association at any such sale to bid in the stock so offered at not less than its then withdrawal value, and thereupon the said stock shall be cancelled; but if a higher bid is received the person making the highest bid shall have said stock issued or assigned to him, and no fines or penalties shall be charged against any stock for more than twelve (12) months.

SEC. 6. Any shareholder in any such association whose share or shares are not in arrears and not pledged, may withdraw said share or shares from his association at any time after it is six (6) months old, by giving at least sixty (60) days' notice in writing to the secretary of his intention so to do; and, upon the receipt of such notice by the secretary, the membership represented by the share or shares mentioned in such notice shall cease; provided, not exceeding one-half (½) of the subsequent monthly receipts of such association shall be used to pay withdrawn stock, unless the directors shall otherwise provide.

SEC. 7. Every corporation hereafter doing business in this state which by its corporate articles or by its by-laws, or printed literature, claims to do, or seeks to do the business of a mutual building association or a mutual building society, shall be held to come under the benefits, provisions and restrictions of this act; provided, however, that nothing in this act shall be taken or construed as, in any way, changing or affecting chapter two hundred and thirty-six (236) of the General Laws of this state for the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889) entitled "An act relating to building, loan and savings associations doing a general business."

SEC. 8. For the services required under this act the public examiner shall receive annually a sum equal to the aggregate amount paid into the treasury of this state under this act, said sum is paid to be in addition to such other compensation as he may be entitled to receive under any law or laws of this state, the same to be paid by the state treasurer in the same manner as other salaries of state officers are paid.

SEC. 9. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 28—S. F. No. 306.

An Act to provide for lien for livery and boarding stable keepers and the enforcement thereof.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. Every farmer, or any other person or keeper of a livery or boarding stable for horses, mules, cattle or stock, who, at the request of the owner or person having lawful possession thereof, shall keep, support or care for any horses, mules, cattle, stock, vehicles or other property used in connection with such [illegible] special duty shall be to care for said armory, the repairs and facilities of the same and the [illegible] and fixtures; and in armories heated by steam, may appoint an engineer to have charge of the heating apparatus. Such persons so appointed shall receive compensation not to exceed two (2) dollars per day for the time actually and necessarily employed in their duties. Such compensation as certified to by the commanding officer appointing such persons, under the provisions of this section, shall be paid monthly and shall be a charge upon the city, town or village, in which said armory is situated, and shall be provided, levied, collected and paid in the same manner other city, town or village charges are audited, levied, collected and paid.

Sec. 5. The commander-in-chief may, from time to time, make such orders, rules and regulations, as he deems proper for the observance of all officers and persons having charge of any arsenal or armory.

Sec. 6. Any person who shall wilfully injure any arsenal, armory or its fixtures, or any military stores or equipments, or any other property [illegible] shall be deemed guilty of [illegible] and any person who shall introduce [illegible] spirituous or malt liquor into any state arsenal or armory shall, upon conviction, be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by a fine of not less than fifty (50) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail or prison for not less than thirty (30) days nor more than one hundred (100) days. But nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent the [illegible] when prescribed for medical purposes by a medical officer of the national guard.

Sec. 7. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 55—H. F. NO. 270.

An Act to provide for the location of the encampment of the national guard of the state of Minnesota at Camp Lakeview, in the city of Lake City, Wabasha County, Minnesota.

Whereas, The city of Lake City has donated to the state of Minnesota [illegible] for the national guard of the state [illegible] real property lying and situate in the city of Lake City, in the county of Wabasha, state of Minnesota, described as follows, to wit:

All those tracts and parcels of land lying and being in the city of Lake City in the county of Wabasha and state of Minnesota, described as follows, to wit:

the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company, and now used by its railroad track. The land hereby conveyed was formerly the property of William [illegible] and lately of Henry Ray.

Also lot number fifteen (15), in section number ten (10), in township number one hundred and eleven (111) north of range number twelve (12) west, according to [illegible] Baldwin's survey thereof, a plat of which is on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county of Wabasha.

Also beginning on the shore of Lake Pepin at the northeast corner of land sold and conveyed by Stephen Terry and Mary C. Terry, his wife, to Horace Warner on the twelfth (12th) day of May, A. D. 1866, thence by said land south [illegible] west sixty-three (63) rods to the middle of the Territorial road [illegible]; thence along said road north [illegible]

Upon condition that the same shall be for [illegible] years used for the purpose of such encampment by the proper authorities of the state; be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. There shall be annually held for the next thirty (30) years by the national guard of the state upon the premises hereinbefore described, at such times and for such period in each year as the proper authorities may prescribe, an encampment for the instruction and practice of the members of said national guard.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 31, 1891.

CHAPTER 56—S. F. NO. 461.

An Act to establish and create a public park to be known and designated as the Itasca state park and authorizing the condemnation of lands for park purposes.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section six (6), township one hundred and forty-two (142), range thirty-five (35); sections six (6), seven (7), eighteen (18), nineteen (19), thirty (30) and thirty-one (31), township one hundred and forty-three (143), range thirty-five (35); sections one (1), two (2), three (3), four (4), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), fifteen (15), sixteen (16), twenty-one (21), twenty-two (22), twenty-three (23), twenty-four (24), twenty-five (25), twenty-six (26), twenty-seven (27), twenty-eight (28), thirty-three (33), thirty-four (34), thirty-five (35) and thirty-six (36), township one hundred and forty-three (143), range thirty-six (36); and sections one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4), township one hundred and forty-two (142), range thirty-six (36), or so much thereof as the state now owns or may hereafter become seized, shall be set apart and perpetually used as a public park.

Sec. 2. The name of said park shall be the Itasca State Park and the same is by this act dedicated to the people of this state under the proper restrictions hereinafter provided, or which may be hereafter provided for by law.

Sec. 3. The general care and supervision of the Itasca State Park, until otherwise provided for, shall be vested in the state auditor acting as state land commissioner.

Sec. 4. Any person who shall wilfully cut, destroy or mutilate or who shall wilfully cause to be cut, destroyed or mutilated any tree, timber or evergreen in said park, or who shall kill or cause to be killed any moose, bear, deer, fox, otter or other wild animal in said park, or who shall in any other manner than with a hook and line take any fish from the waters of said park, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined for the first offense fifty (50) dollars, for the second offense two hundred (200) dollars, and for the third or further offense he shall be fined and imprisoned not less than ninety (90) days nor more than one (1) year, in the discretion of the judge presiding at the trial of the cause. All offenses charged for misdemeanors as hereinbefore provided shall be tried and determined under the general laws of this state applicable to the trial of criminal actions in like cases.

Sec. 5. The state auditor shall take proper proceedings, under existing laws relative to the appraisal and sale of school lands, to cause the transfer of the school lands in said park for park purposes and at the sale thereof the same shall be bid in by the state for such park purposes.

Sec. 6. The governor shall appoint a qualified resident of this state a commissioner, who shall file with the state auditor his oath to support the constitution of this state and to conscientiously perform the duties of his office.

It shall be the duty of the commissioner to take all reasonable steps to procure for the state from landed property holders, railroad companies, corporations or individuals owning lands within the limits of said park, concessions to the state for park purposes by contract or deed, subject to the approval of the governor. In case any tract or parcel or parcels of land within the limits of said park cannot be satisfactorily secured, the governor may direct the said commissioner to institute, for and on behalf of the state, proceedings in condemnation, as now provided by law for condemning and converting private property within this state to public use. In case of any proceedings in condemnation the said commissioner, under the direction of the attorney general, may appear for the state in prosecuting to a final determination all causes and actions thereunder.

Whenever any proceedings in condemnation are had and taken for the condemnation and conversion of any of said lands, all of the provisions of an act approved March 9, 1875, entitled "An act to provide for obtaining title to lands by the State of Minnesota for the use of the state," and all amendments thereto shall be applicable in all proceedings for the condemnation herein provided for.

Sec. 7. The commissioner herein provided for shall receive a compensation of five (5) dollars per day for the time he is actually employed and his reasonable traveling expenses necessarily incurred, a schedule of which time and expense he shall make under oath and file with the state auditor. Provided that the number of days for which compensation shall be allowed shall not exceed sixty (60).

Sec. 8. The commissioner shall prepare a detailed chart of said park and shall make and file a report to the governor of all action taken by him which shall be transmitted to the next session of the legislature.

Sec. 9. The said commissioner shall have power to administer oaths and take acknowledgments and to serve all necessary notices in the performance of his duties as a commissioner, and he shall examine the records in the office of the register of deeds for the counties of Becker, Hubbard, Cass and Beltrami in perfecting the title to the state for said lands, and the register of deeds of said counties are hereby required to permit of the examination of titles to any of said lands without charge to the state.

Sec. 10. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 57—H. F. NO. 410.

An Act to accept the grants of money made by the act of the congress of the United States, approved August 30, 1890, entitled "An act to apply a portion of the proceeds of the public lands to the more complete endowment and support of the colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts established under the provisions of an act of congress, approved July second (2nd), eighteen hundred and sixty-two (1862)," and assenting to the purpose of such grants.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. The State of Minnesota hereby accepts the grants of money made to it by an act of the congress of the United States, approved August thirtieth (30th), eighteen hundred and ninety, (1890), entitled "An act to apply a portion of the proceeds of the public lands to the more complete endowment and support of the colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts established under the provisions of an act of congress, approved July second (2nd), eighteen hundred and sixty-two (1862)," and assents to "the purpose of said grants as in said act set forth."

Every agreement for extending the time of payment for manual labor performed or to be performed in cutting, hauling, banking or driving logs beyond the date of the completion of such labor shall be void unless such agreement be in writing, subscribed by the party to be charged therewith and expressing the true consideration therefor, and unless at the time of the completion of such labor or the making of such contract the person, partnership or corporation for whom such labor shall be performed shall execute and deliver to the person performing the same his or its negotiable promissory note for the compensation therefor, with interest, due at such time as may be agreed upon. Provided, That it shall not be competent for any such laborer to waive any of the provisions of this act; nor shall the right of such laborer to a lien upon any property to secure the payment for such labor be waived by the acceptance of such note, but such right of lien shall pass with the note and vest in and be enforceable by the holder thereof.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

CHAPTER 77—S. F. NO. 598.

An Act to amend section five (5), title one (1) of chapter sixty-four (64) of the General Statutes of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight (1878), and to require the judges of the various district courts of this state to hold terms of court and discharge the duties of judges in any district in this state whenever thereunto requested by the governor of this state.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section five (5), title one (1) of chapter sixty-four (64) of the General Statutes of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight (1878) be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 5. Judge of one district to act in any district when requested by the governor—Whenever a judge of any district court is interested as counsel or otherwise in the event of any suit or matter pending before said court in any county of his district, or whenever the judge or judges of any district court of this state, either on account of sickness or on account of the accumulation of business in any district court in any county of this state are unable to transact said business and to hear and determine the causes and suits pending therein without unreasonable delay, the governor of the state shall have power, and it is hereby made his duty, to assign one or more judges of the district court of some other district whose duties as such judge do not require him to appropriate all of his time to the discharge of his duties in the district where he resides, and in which he has been elected as judge to duty in the district where on account of sickness or the accumulation of business, the judge or judges are unable to transact the business of the court or to hear and determine the causes and suits pending therein without unreasonable delay; and the judge of any district so requested by the governor to discharge the duties of the judge or judges of any other district shall proceed, at the time designated, to hold the court and discharge the duties of the judge of any other district, at the place and for the time and in the manner specified in the request of the governor; and whenever a district judge is a party, or otherwise interested in any cause, any other district judge in this state shall have jurisdiction and it shall be his duty to transact such business, hear and determine all motions, grant orders and enter judgments in all such cases brought before him, either in the district where such action originated or in any other district, when such cases are brought before him by consent of all parties to the action, and the acts and judgments of such judge and courts, so done and rendered, shall have the same force and effect as if done by a judge of the district court in which such actions are pending and in the district where they are pending.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 78—S. F. NO. 835.

An Act amending section 199 of chapter 66 of the General Statutes 1878.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Section 199 of Chapter 66 of the General Statutes of Minnesota, 1878, is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Writs of injunction, attested and sealed as other process of the court, may issue, upon order of the court, or a judge thereof, as hereinafter set forth; but the period during which performance of an act is stayed by injunction forms no part of the time for performance of such act.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 79—H. F. No. 306.

An Act to amend sections 60 and 61 of chapter 66 of the General Statutes of 1878, relating to service on foreign corporations.

Section 1. That sections 60 and 61 of chapter 66 of the General Statutes of Minnesota for the year of 1878, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 60. That the summons or any process in any civil action or proceeding wherein a foreign corporation or association is defendant, which has property within this state or the cause of action arose therein, may be served by delivering a copy of such summons or process to the president, secretary or any other officer, or to any agent of such corporation or association; and such service shall be of the same force, effect and validity as like service upon domestic corporations; provided, if any such corporation or association has, by an appointment in writing filed with the secretary of this state, appointed or designated some person or resident of this state upon whom summons or process can be served, such summons or process shall be served upon such person so designated; and provided further, that any such action or proceeding may be commenced and tried in any county in which the cause of action arose, subject to be removed for cause as in other cases.

Section 61. This act shall have full force and effect notwithstanding any provisions of the General Statutes or other law of the state inconsistent herewith.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 1, 1891.

CHAPTER 80—H. F. NO. 143.

An Act to amend section two hundred fifty-three (253) of chapter sixty-six (66) of the General Statutes of one thousand eight hundred seventy-eight (1878), relating to new trials.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That said section be, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section Two Hundred Fifty-three (253)—A verdict, report or decision may be vacated and a new trial granted, on the application of the party aggrieved, for any of the following causes materially affecting the substantial rights of such party:

First—Irregularity in the proceedings of the court, jury, referee or prevailing party, or any order of the court or referee, or abuse of discretion, by which the moving party was prevented from having a fair trial.

Second—Misconduct of the jury or prevailing party.

Third—Accident or surprise which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against.

Fourth—Excessive or inadequate and insufficient damages, appearing to have been given under the influence of passion or prejudice.

Fifth—That the verdict, report or decision is not justified by the evidence, or is contrary to law.

Sixth—Newly discovered evidence, material for the party making the application, which he could not, with reasonable diligence, have discovered and produced at the trial.

Seventh—Error in law occurring at the trial and excepted to by the party making the application.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 24, 1891.

CHAPTER 81—S. F. NO. 28.

An Act to amend section one (1) of chapter sixty-eight (68) of the General Statutes of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight (1878), relating to homestead exemption.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section one (1) of chapter sixty-eight (68) of the General Statutes of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight (1878) be and the same is hereby amended by inserting after the word "lot," in the sixth line thereof, the following words: "Of the original plat or any rearrangement or subdivision of such plat or of any part thereof, as the same shall exist at the date of the commencement of the action or proceeding, in which the execution or other process hereinafter mentioned shall issue, or of the death under which the homestead is claimed, or, in case the buildings occupy parts of two or more lots as legally platted at the time the exemption is claimed, a quantity of land not exceeding in area one of the original lots in the same block."

An Act to amend the penal code of the State of Minnesota by adding to title nine (IX) of said penal code, chapter nine (IX) relating to slander of females.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That title nine (IX) of the penal code of the State of Minnesota be, and the same hereby is, amended by adding to said title nine (IX) another and further chapter to be known as chapter nine (IX) of said title nine (IX) and to read as follows:

Chapter IX.

Slander of Females.

Section 221 (a) Slander of Females Defined—A person who, in the presence and hearing of another, other than the female slandered, whether such female be present or not, maliciously speaks of, or concerning any female of the age of twelve (12) years or upwards, not a public prostitute, any false or defamatory words or language, which injures or impairs the character of such female for virtue or chastity and which exposes such female to hatred, contempt or ridicule, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Section 221 (b) Any slander mentioned in the preceding section is to be deemed malicious if no justification therefor is shown; and is justified when the language, charged as slanderous, false or defamatory, is true and was spoken for good motives and for justifiable ends.

Section 221 (c) No conviction can be had, under any of the provisions of this chapter, upon the testimony of the female slandered, unsupported by other evidence, but must be proven by the evidence of at least two (2) persons, other than such female, who heard and understood the language charged as slanderous, or by the admissions of the defendant.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

Section 1. That section sixteen (16) of chapter one hundred and forty-five (145) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five (1885), relating to the incorporation of villages in the State of Minnesota, be and the same is hereby amended so as to permit the people of the village of Annandale, in the county of Wright, to hold their annual village elections on the third Monday of March in each year.

Sec. 2. That the provisions of this act shall apply to said village of Annandale, in said county of Wright, only.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 3, 1891.

CHAPTER 104—S. F. 250.

An Act to amend chapter one hundred and forty-seven of the General Laws of 1885, entitled "An act to regulate the practice of pharmacy, the licensing of persons to carry on such practice, and the sale of poisons in the State of Minnesota," and to repeal chapter twenty-nine of the General Laws of 1887, amendatory thereof.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section one (1) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 1. That except as in this act provided, it shall hereafter be unlawful for any person to retail, compound or dispense drugs, medicines or poisons, or to institute or conduct any pharmacy, store or shop for retailing, compounding or dispensing drugs, medicines or poisons, unless such person shall be a registered pharmacist, or shall employ, place and keep in active charge and control of said pharmacy, store or shop, a registered pharmacist, within the full meaning of this act."

Sec. 2. That section two (2) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 2. To be entitled to registration as a pharmacist within the full meaning of this act, the applicant must be a graduate in pharmacy, or a graduate in medicine, within the requirements of this act, or he must be not less than twenty-one (21) years of age, and have had four (4) years' practical experience in drug stores where prescriptions of medical practitioners have been usually compounded, and have sustained a satisfactory examination before the board of pharmacy of the State of Minnesota, or he must be at the time of the passage of this act a registered assistant.

Nothing in this section contained shall impair the validity of any registration heretofore granted by said board. But notwithstanding anything in this section hereinbefore contained, any person who was on the 5th day of March, 1885, entitled to registration as a registered pharmacist, and who is at the time of the passage of this act engaged in the business of a dispensing pharmacist in the State of Minnesota, and who shall within thirty (30) days after the passage of this act file with the secretary of said board an application for registration, accompanied with his affidavit that he was on the 5th day of March aforesaid, as well as at the time of the passage of this act, so engaged, shall be granted a certificate of registration without examination.

Sec. 3. That section three (3) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 3. A graduate in pharmacy or in medicine must in order to be so registered have had four (4) years' practical experience in drug stores where prescriptions of medical practitioners have been usually compounded, and have a diploma from a college or school of pharmacy or medicine, satisfactory to said board of pharmacy, as sufficient guarantee of his attainments and proficiency, or he shall be legally entitled to practice medicine in the State of Minnesota.

Sec. 4. That section four (4) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 4. That said board of pharmacy may at their discretion grant registration and a certificate thereof to any pharmacist licensed or registered by the board of pharmacy of any other state, either after or without further examination. It shall be the duty of said board to grant an assistant's certificate to any person not less than eighteen (18) years of age who shall have had two (2) years' practical experience in drug stores where prescriptions of medical practitioners have been usually compounded, and who shall have passed a satisfactory examination before said board of pharmacy of Minnesota; which certificate shall entitle such person to act only as an assistant to a registered pharmacist personally conducting his own business as such, and shall not entitle such assistant to engage in business on his own account, or as manager, to conduct a drug store, or to transact a pharmacy business for another party.

Sec. 5. That section nine (9) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 9. Every person claiming registration as a registered pharmacist under this act shall, before a certificate is granted, pay to the secretary of the board of pharmacy the sum of two (2) dollars; and every applicant for registration upon examination, whether as a pharmacist or as an assistant, shall pay to the said secretary the sum of five (5) dollars before such examination shall be attempted; provided, that in case the applicant fails to sustain a satisfactory examination by the said board, the said five (5) dollars shall be refunded to him. Every certificate hereafter issued under this act shall have plainly written, printed or stamped upon the face thereof the words "Revocable for the causes specified by law."

Sec. 6. That section ten (10) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 10. Every registered pharmacist and every registered assistant who desires to continue the practice of his profession, shall annually during the time he shall continue such practice, on such date as the board of pharmacy may prescribe, pay to said secretary a registration renewal fee, the amount of which shall be fixed by said board, and shall in no case exceed two (2) dollars for a pharmacist and one (1) dollar for an assistant; in return for which payment he shall receive a renewal of his registration.

Sec. 7. That section eleven (11) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended by inserting after the word "fees," in the ninth line thereof, the word "fines."

Sec. 8. That section twelve (12) of said chapter one hundred forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 12. Any person not being, or not having in his employ a registered pharmacist within the full meaning of this act, who shall, after this act shall take effect, retail, compound or dispense drugs, medicines, or poisons, or who shall take, use or exhibit the title of a registered pharmacist, shall for each and every such offense be liable to a penalty of fifty (50) dollars. Any registered pharmacist or other person who shall permit the compounding or dispensing of prescriptions, or the vending of drugs, medicines or poisons in his store or place of business, except under the supervision of a registered pharmacist or by a registered assistant, and any pharmacist or registered assistant, who, while continuing in business, shall fail or neglect to procure annual registration, and any person who shall willfully make any false representation to procure registration for himself or any other person, or who shall violate any other provision of this act, shall, except as otherwise provided, for each and every such offense be liable to a penalty of fifty (50) dollars.

Except as in this section hereafter provided, drugs, medicines and poisons shall, for all purposes of this act, be construed to include all substances, animal, vegetable or mineral, commonly kept in stock in drug stores or apothecary shops, and used in compounding medicines or sold for medicinal purposes.

It is provided, however, that nothing in this act shall in any manner interfere with the regular practice of any physician as such or prevent him as a physician from supplying to his patients such articles as may seem to him proper, or shall interfere with the making or vending of proprietary medicines, or with the sale by general retail dealers of any of the following articles, that is to say:

Alum,
Blue Vitriol,
Borax,
Carbonate of Ammonia,
Carbonate of Soda,
Castor Oil,
Copperas,
Epsom Salts,
Glauber Salts,
Glycerine,
Gum Arabic,
Gum Camphor,
Licorice,
Logwood.
Rolled Sulphur,
Saltpetre,
Senna Leaves,
Sublimant Sulphur,
Water of Ammonia,

or with the sale by such retail dealers of Paris green kept in stock in sealed packages and so sold, distinctly labeled "Paris Green, Poison," or shall prevent a shopkeeper whose place of business is more than one mile from a drug store or apothecary shop, from dealing in and selling the commonly used medicines and poisons, if put up for such sale by a registered pharmacist; or interfere with the exclusively wholesale business of any dealers, except as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 9. That section thirteen (13) of said chapter one hundred and forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended by changing the word "penalty" to the word "fine" in the eighteenth (18th) line thereof, and by adding to said section thirteen (13) the further words, "and any person so convicted may also, at the discretion of the court before which such conviction occurs, be further adjudged and sentenced to forfeit his registration and the certificate thereof.

Sec. 10. That section fourteen (14) of said chapter one hundred forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended by striking out the last sentence thereof, and by substituting in lieu thereof the following:

"Every person omitting to comply with any requirement of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction thereof pay a fine not less than five (5) dollars for each such omission."

Sec. 11. That section fifteen (15) of said chapter one hundred forty-seven (147) be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 15. All suits for the recovery of the several penalties prescribed in this act shall be prosecuted in the name of the State of Minnesota, in any court having jurisdiction; and it shall be the duty of the county attorney of the county wherein such offense is committed, to prosecute all persons violating the provisions of this act, upon proper complaint being made.

If in any such case the county attorney omit or refuse to act, the board may employ some other attorney for such purpose.

Costs and disbursements shall be adjudged in favor of the state whenever it recovers judgment in such suit. All fines and penalties paid or collected under the provisions of this act shall inure one-half to the board of pharmacy, and the remainder to the school fund of the county in which the conviction was had or the judgment obtained. If any person adjudged liable to any penalty or penalties imposed by this act shall not pay the judgment therefor within sixty (60) days after the rendition thereof, or, in case of appeal, within thirty (30) days after the affirmation of such judgment, his registration and certificate thereof may be by the board of pharmacy summarily revoked and canceled, and such person shall not be entitled to registration within one year thence next to ensue, or without paying such judgment in full.

Sec. 12. That said chapter one hundred forty-seven (147) be and is amended by adding thereto the following, as sections eighteen (18), nineteen (19), and twenty (20), respectively:

Sec. 18. Every person receiving a certificate under this act shall keep the same conspicuously exposed in his place of business. Every registered pharmacist or registered assistant shall, within ten (10) days after changing his place of business or employment, notify the secretary of the board of his new place of business; he shall thereupon be entitled to receive from the secretary a notice in writing that his address has been changed on the book of registration. Without such notice from said secretary, such pharmacist or assistant shall not act as such longer than ten (10) days after his aforesaid notice of change.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of ten (10) dollars, and the costs of prosecution.

Sec. 19. Any registration obtained by false representation shall be void, and the board of pharmacy may, after hearing complaint and evidence, revoke any certificate which it may determine to have been so obtained.

Sec. 20. The board may hereafter appoint a secretary who is not a member of the board.

Sec. 13. That section eighteen (18) of said chapter one hundred forty-seven (147) be and the same is hereby changed to, and shall hereafter be section twenty-one (21) thereof.

Sec. 14. That chapter twenty-nine (29) of the General Laws of 1887 amendatory to section two (2) of said chapter one hundred forty-seven (147) be and is hereby repealed.

Sec. 15. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after November 1st, A. D. 1891.

Approved April 17, 1891.

CHAPTER 105—H. F. NO. 813.

An Act to amend chapter 190 of the General Laws of 1885, entitled, "An act requiring railroad companies to provide suitable passenger waiting rooms at cities, towns and villages."

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section one (1) of chapter 190, General Laws of 1885, be, and the same is hereby, amended by adding to said section at the end thereof the words following, to wit:

Such railroad corporations or companies shall, at all depots or stations where trains stop regularly to receive and discharge passengers, for at least one-half hour before the arrival, and one-half hour after the arrival of any passenger train, cause their respective depots, or waiting rooms, to be open for the reception of passengers; said depots to be kept well lighted and warmed for the space of time aforesaid.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 1, 1891.

CHAPTER 106—S. F. NO. 699.

An Act to amend chapter ten (10), General Laws 1887, entitled "An act to regulate common carriers, and creating the railroad and warehouse commission of the State of Minnesota, and defining the duties of such commission in relation to common carriers."

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section eight (8) of chapter ten (10) of the General Laws of 1887 be amended by striking out subdivisions (c), (f) and (e) and substituting therefor the following, to wit:

(c) That upon complaint, duly verified, of any person, firm, corporation or association, or any mercantile, agricultural or manufacturing society, or any body politic or municipal organization, that any part of the tariff of rates, fares, charges or classifications so filed and published, as hereinbefore provided, are in any respect unequal or unreasonable, the commission shall forward a copy of such complaint to the common carrier complained of, who shall be called upon to satisfy the complaint, or to answer the same, in writing, within a reasonable time, to be specified by the commission, and to serve a copy of such answer on the complainant.

If the common carrier shall change the tariff of rates, fares, charges or classifications, as demanded by the complainant, within the time specified by the commission, proceedings shall be dropped.

If the common carrier shall refuse or neglect to make such changes, the commission shall set a time and place for a hearing in the matter, of which at least ten (10) days' notice shall be given to the complainant and the common carrier complained of; such notice shall be served either by mailing a copy thereof to some general officer of such common carrier, or personally by some person directed to do so by the commission.

For the purpose of such investigation the commission shall have the power to require the attendance of witnesses and the production of all books, papers, contracts, agreements and documents that relate to the matter under investigation, and to that end may invoke the aid of any court in this state requiring the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers and documents under the provisions of this section.

Witnesses may be introduced and evidence given by either party at all hearings before the commission.

After due consideration by the commission of all the evidence produced at such hearing or hearings, the commission shall make its report in writing to the complainant and to the common carrier complained of. If the tariff of rates, fares, charges or classifications so complained of shall be found by the evidence to be unequal or unreasonable, the commission shall state wherein they are unequal or unreasonable, and shall make a tariff of rates, fares, charges and classifications which shall be substituted for the tariff complained of.

Such tariff of rates, fares, charges or classifications, so made by the commission, shall be deemed and taken in all courts of this state as prima facie evidence that the tariff of rates, fares, charges or classifications so made is equal and reasonable, and such tariff so made shall be in full force and effect during the pendency of any appeal that may be taken in the matter to the courts.

(f) In case such common carrier shall neglect or refuse after the time for appeal as hereinafter provided has expired, to adopt such tariff of rates, fares, charges and classifications, so made by the commission, it shall be the duty of the commission to publish such tariff of rates, fares, charges and classifications as they have declared to be equal and reasonable, in such manner as the commission shall deem expedient, and that thereafter it shall be unlawful for such common carrier to charge or maintain a higher or lower rate, fare, charge or classification than that so fixed by said commission, unless and until a court of competent jurisdiction shall have otherwise ordered and decreed.

Sec. 2. That section thirteen (13) of said chapter ten (10) of General Laws of 1887, be amended by striking out subdivision (b) and substituting therefor the following, to wit:

(b) Whereupon a statement of the charges so made shall be forwarded by the commission to such common carrier, who shall be called upon to satisfy the complaint or to answer the same in writing within a reasonable time to be specified by the commission, and to serve a copy of such answer upon the complainant. If such common carrier, within the time specified, shall make reparation for the injury alleged to have been done, said carrier shall be relieved of liability to the complainant only for the particular violation of law thus complained of. If such common carrier shall not satisfy the complaint within the time specified, and if it shall appear to the commission that there is reasonable ground for investigating the matter set out in said complaint, the commission shall name a time and place when and where a hearing will be had before the commission in the matter complained of.

Notice of all hearings before the commission, not only under this section, but under all other sections of this act, where hearings are contemplated, shall be given, by the commission or by the secretary of said commission, by causing to be mailed to the complainant in the case a copy of the notice of such hearing at his reputed place of residence, postage prepaid, at least ten (10) days before the day named as the day of hearing in said notice, and also by causing a copy of such notice of hearing to be mailed, at least ten (10) days before the day named as the day of hearing in said notice, properly directed, postage prepaid, to any division superintendent, general or assistant superintendent, general manager, president, vice president or secretary of the common carrier complained of, at the place in the State of Minnesota where the main business of such common carrier is transacted.

Provided, That whenever the complainant or common carrier has appeared by an attorney, thereafter such service may be made upon such attorney. Such service shall be taken and held in all cases to be a legal service; appearance in any case shall be taken and deemed a waiver of any defect in the notice of such hearing, or any irregularities of the service thereof.

No complaint shall at any time be dismissed because of the absence of direct damages to the complainant, and for the purpose of this act the commission shall have power to require the attendance of witnesses and the production of all books, papers, contracts, agreements and documents relating to any matter under investigation, and to that end may invoke the aid of any court of this state in requiring the attendance of witnesses and the production of all books, papers, contracts, agreements and documents relating to any matter under investigation, under the provisions of this act.

Sec. 3. That subdivision (d) of section fifteen (15), chapter ten (10) of the General Laws of 1887, be stricken out, and the following be, and the same is hereby substituted, to-wit:

(d) Any railroad company or common carrier affected by any order of the commission except administrative orders made pursuant to section ten (10) of chapter ten (10) of the General Laws of 1887, may at any time within the period of thirty days after the service of it upon him or it of such order, appeal therefrom to the district court of any judicial district through or into which this or its route may run, by the service of a written notice of such appeal on some member, or the secretary of such commission.

And upon the taking of such appeal, and the filing of the notice thereof, with the proof of service, in the office of the clerk district court, there shall then be pending in such district court a civil action of the character, and for the purposes mentioned in section eight (8), eleven (11) and fifteen (15) of chapter ten (10) of the General Laws of 1887, as amended by this act. Upon such appeal, and upon the hearing of any application by the commission, or by the attorney general, for the enforcement of any such order made by the commission the district court shall have jurisdiction to, and it shall, examine the whole matter in controversy, including matters of fact as well as questions of law, and to affirm, modify or reverse such order in whole or in part, as justice may require; and in case of any order being modified, as aforesaid, such modified order shall, for all the purposes contemplated by this act, stand in place of the original order so modified, and have the same force and effect throughout the state as the orders of said commission.

No appeal as aforesaid shall stay or supersede the order appealed from unless the court hearing and deciding such case upon application and notice to the other party shall so direct.

The remedies herein provided for shall be in addition to all existing legal and equitable remedies.

Sec. 4. That chapter ten (10) of the General Laws of 1887 be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto the following section, to wit:

Sec. 22. That whenever any common carrier, as defined in, and subject to the provisions of this act, shall violate, or refuse or neglect to obey or perform any lawful order or requirement of the commission made under the provisions of this act not founded upon a controversy requiring a trial by jury, as provided by the Seventh amendment to the Constitution of the United States, or as provided by section four (4) of the constitution of this state, it shall be lawful for the commission, or for any company or person interested in such order or requirement to apply in a summary way, by petition to any district court in any county in this state in which the carrier complained of has its principal office, or in any county through or into which its line of road extends, alleging such violation or disobedience, as the case may be; and the said court shall have power to hear and determine the matter, on such short notice to the common carrier complained of as the court shall deem reasonable, and such notice may be served on such common carrier, his or its officers, agents or servants in such manner as the court shall direct; and said court shall proceed to hear and determine the matter speedily and without the formal pleadings and proceedings applicable to ordinary suits further than is necessary in the judgment of the court to clearly define the issues between the parties, and in such manner as to do justice in the premises; to this end the court shall have power, if it think fit, to direct and prosecute in such mode, and by such persons as it may appoint, all such inquiries as the court may think needful to form a just judgment in the matter of such petition; and on such hearing the findings of fact in the report of said commission shall be prima facie evidence of the matters therein stated; and if it be made to appear to such court, on such hearing, or on the report of any person or persons, that the lawful order or requirement of said commission drawn in question has been violated or disobeyed, it shall be lawful for such court to issue a writ of injunction or other process, mandatory or otherwise, to restrain such common carrier from further continuing such violation or disobedience of such order or requirement of said commission, and enjoining obedience to the same; and in case of any disobedience of any such writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, it shall be lawful for such courts to issue writs of attachment, or any other process of said court incident or applicable to writs of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, against such common carrier, and if a corporation, against one or more of the directors, officers or agents of the same, or against any owner, lessee, trustee, receiver or other person failing to obey such writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, and said court may, if it shall think fit, make an order directing such common carrier or other person so disobeying such writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to pay such sum of money, not exceeding for each carrier or person in default the sum of five hundred (500) dollars for every day, after a day named in the order that such person or carrier shall fail to obey such injunction or other process, mandatory or otherwise, and such money shall be payable as the court shall direct, either to the party complaining or into court, to abide the ultimate decision of the court, or into the state treasury; and payment thereof may, without prejudice to any other mode of recovering the same, be enforced by an attachment or order in the nature of a writ of execution, in like manner as if the same had been recovered by a final judgment or decree in personam in such court.

Either party to any appeal, trial or other proceeding had in the district court pursuant to the provisions of this act shall have the right of appeal to the supreme court of the state from any order or judgment of the district court under the same regulations now provided by law in relation to appeals to said supreme court from orders or judgments of the district court; except that on such appeals security shall not be required when the same is taken by said commission, and except that the return of the district court provided for by section four (4), chapter eighty-six (86) General Statutes of 1878, may be filed in the supreme court at any time before or during the next succeeding term of said court after the making of the order or entering the judgment appealed from, and such appeal shall be entered upon the calendar and heard by said supreme court, upon such short notice to the respective parties as the court may deem reasonable, with a view to a speedy determination of the same. No appeal to the supreme court shall operate to stay or supersede an order in force at the time the appeal is taken, unless the supreme court shall, upon application duly made and upon such terms as it may deem just, suspend the operation of the order pending the appeal hereinbefore provided for.

If the matters involved in such order or requirement of said commission are founded upon a controversy which at common law would entitle the party to a trial by jury as provided by the seventh amendment to the constitution of the United States or by section four (4), article one (1) of the constitution of this state, and any such common carrier shall violate or refuse or neglect to obey or perform the same, after notice given by said commission, as provided in subdivision (b) (as amended hereby) of section thirteen (13) of this act, it shall be lawful for any company or person interested in such order or requirement to apply in a summary way by petition to the district court of any judicial district in this state in which the carrier complained of has its principal office or in which the violation or disobedience of such order or requirement shall happen, alleging such violation or disobedience, as the case may be, and such court shall by its order then fix a time and place for the trial of said cause, which shall not be less than twenty (20) nor more than forty (40) days from the time of said order fixing said time of trial; and it shall be the duty of the sheriff of the county in which such proceeding is pending to forthwith serve a copy of said petition and of said order upon the common carrier complained of, and it shall be the duty of such person or common carrier to file his or its answer to said petition within ten (10) days after the service thereof, as aforesaid. Upon the trial of said cause the findings of fact of said commission as set forth in its report shall be prima facie evidence of the matters therein stated, and if either party, being entitled to a trial by jury, as in this act provided, shall demand a jury, or shall omit to waive a jury, the court shall by its order direct the sheriff to select, in the presence of the parties or their attorneys, from the number of persons qualified to serve as jurors in the county, thirty (30) such persons as he shall deem most indifferent between the parties, and the complainant or petitioner shall first strike off one of the names so selected, and the opposite party shall strike off one until each shall have struck off eight; the sheriff shall then make a copy of the names of the remaining fifteen (15) persons and deliver the same to the clerk of said court, who shall thereupon issue and deliver to such sheriff a venire facias with the names in said list contained, annexed thereto, and such sheriff shall summon the persons named, according to the demand of such writ; and upon the trial of the cause the jury so selected shall be called as they stand upon their panel, and the first twelve (12) of them who shall appear and are not challenged for cause, or set aside by the court, shall be the jury, and shall be sworn to try the issues joined in said cause or proceedings; provided, that if a sufficient number do not appear for the trial of said cause the court shall cause talesmen to be called as in other cases. If the judgment of a district court shall be in favor of the party complaining he or they shall be entitled to recover a reasonable counsel or attorney's fees, which shall be collected as part of the costs in the case.

For the purpose of this act, excepting its penal provisions, the district courts of this state shall be deemed to be always in session.

Sec. 5. That chapter ten (10), General Laws of 1887, be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto the following section, to wit:

Sec. 23. Any of the district courts of this state shall have jurisdiction upon the relation of any person or persons, firm or corporation, alleging such violation by such common carrier of any of the provisions of this act, and all acts amendatory thereof, as prevents the relator from having traffic moved by said common carrier at the same rates as are charged, or upon terms and conditions as favorable as those given by said common carrier for like traffic under similar conditions to any other shipper, to issue a writ of mandamus against said common carrier demanding such common carrier to move or transport the traffic, or to furnish cars or other facilities for transportation for the party applying for the writ; provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed as repealing or modifying subdivision B of section 7 of chapter 10 of the General Laws of 1887.

Provided, That if any question of fact as to the proper compensation to the common carrier for the service to be enforced by the writ is raised by the pleadings the writ of peremptory mandamus may issue notwithstanding such question of fact is undetermined, upon such terms as to security, payment of the money into court, or otherwise, as the court may think proper pending the determination of the question of fact.

Provided, That the remedy hereby given by writ of mandamus shall be cumulative, and shall not be held to exclude or interfere with other remedies provided by this act, or of any act amendatory thereof.

Sec. 6. That section twenty-two (22) of chapter ten (10) of General Laws of 1887 be and the same is hereby made section twenty-four (24) of said chapter.

Sec. 7. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 8. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 15, 1891.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section two (2) of said act of 1889, being chapter 167 of the General Laws of the year 1889, be amended as follows: By striking out the word "body" where it occurs in the seventh line of said section and inserting in lieu thereof the words "free from disease." Also by striking out the word "body" where it occurs in the ninth line of section sixteen (16) of said act of 1889 and inserting in lieu thereof the words "free from disease."

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 18, 1891.

CHAPTER 125—S. F. NO. 873.

An Act to amend section one (1) of chapter one hundred and seventy-two (172) of the General Laws of 1889.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section one (1) of chapter one hundred and seventy-two (172) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889) be amended so as to read as follows:

The board of county commissioners shall meet at the county seat of their respective counties for the purpose of transacting such business as may devolve upon or be brought before them on the first (1st) Tuesday after the first (1st) Monday of January, and on the second (2nd) Monday of July in each year, and may hold such extra sessions as they deem necessary for the interests of the county. Such extra sessions shall be called by a majority of the board, and the clerk shall give at least ten (10) days' notice thereof to the commissioners; but no regular session shall continue longer than six (6) days, and no extra session longer than three (3) days, provided that the limitation of the number of days of the regular or extra sessions shall not apply to Carver county.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 126—S. F. NO. 68.

An Act to amend chapter two hundred and ten (210) of the General Laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-nine (1889), relating to the selling of poison.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Chapter two hundred and ten (210) of the General Laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-nine (1889) is hereby amended by striking out of the first section thereof the words "whose signature is attached to the order," found in the sixteenth (16th) and seventeenth (17th) lines of such section, and by adding to section two (2) of said chapter two hundred and ten (210) the following words:

Provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply when the sale is made upon the written prescription or order of some practicing physician.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in full force from and after the date of its passage.

Approved March 25, 1891.

CHAPTER 127—S. F. NO. 203.

An Act to amend chapter two hundred and twenty-five (225) of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year eighteen hundred and eighty-nine (1889), being an act requiring the payment of fees into the state treasury by corporations upon filing articles of association.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That chapter two hundred and twenty-five (225) of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year eighteen hundred and eighty-nine (1889), entitled "An act requiring the payment of fees into the state treasury by corporations upon the filing of articles of association, or upon increase of capital stock," is hereby amended by adding the following provision to section three (3) of said chapter.

"Provided, None of the provisions of this act shall apply to any manufacturing corporation or association whose articles provide that its functions shall be limited to the business of manufacturing and to business essential thereto.

"Provided further, That none of the provisions shall apply to or in any manner affect corporations which may be organized for the purpose of raising and improving live stock, cultivating and improving farm, garden or horticultural lands, growing sugar beets, or any corporation formed or created for the purpose of canning fruits or vegetables or the local telephone companies connecting towns or villages of less than two thousand (2,000) inhabitants each.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 25, 1891.

Section 1. Section two (2) of chapter two hundred and forty-five (245) of the General Laws of 1889 is hereby amended as follows: By inserting after the words "per annum" in the second line of said section two, the words "which said sum is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated."

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 129—H. F. NO. 1241.

An Act to amend chapter two hundred and fifty-eight (258) of General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889), entitled "An act relating to the state reform school," approved February twenty-eighth (28th), one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889).

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Chapter two hundred and fifty-eight (258) of General Laws of Minnesota for one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889), entitled "An act relating to the state reform school," is hereby amended by adding thereto the following sections, numbered respectively as follows, to wit:

Section 42. If the board of managers of the Minnesota State Reform school are at any time unable, or deem it inexpedient, to sell any part of the lands described in section 1 (1) of the act hereby amended, in the manner provided in said act, or are unable, or for any reason deem it inexpedient to effect the loans provided for in sections 29 to 35 inclusive, of said act, they may, and are hereby authorized to negotiate and make a loan or loans for the purpose of completing the erection and equipment of the buildings for the use of said school upon the permanent site therefor in the county of Goodhue, in form and manner as follows, to wit:

First—The said board shall, by resolution, declare that in their judgment it is necessary to make a loan, specifying the amount thereof, for the purpose of putting in condition for occupancy the reform school buildings. Such resolution shall also designate such lots, blocks and tracts of the present site of said reform school, in St. Paul, and now known as "D. W. Ingersoll's addition to St. Paul, Minn.," as may then be unsold; and shall set aside and reserve the same, and all proceeds thereafter derived from the sale thereof, to the state of Minnesota, for the payment of the principal and interest of said loans and the reimbursement to said state of any and all moneys by it paid or advanced on account thereof.

Second—A copy of such resolutions embraced in a certificate, signed by the president and secretary of said board, reciting the fact and date of adoption of such resolution, shall be delivered to and filed with the commissioner of the land office of the state.

Third—The said commissioner shall thereupon issue and deliver to the state treasurer certificates under his hand and official seal, which shall recite the fact that the said board are by this act authorized to negotiate and make a loan of the aggregate amount in said resolution stated, and that they have set aside and designated the lots, blocks and tracts of land in said resolution described, and all proceeds to be derived from the sale thereof to the state as security for the prompt and full payment of said loan, and that in consideration of such designation and setting aside of said lands and proceeds, the state of Minnesota guarantees the payment of said loan.

Said certificate shall also state that under and by virtue of this act the said board of managers are authorized to borrow upon said certificate the amount of money to be therein specified with interest thereon, not exceeding the rate of six (6) per cent, payable semi-annually; and that such principal and interest are so payable upon presentation of said certificate to the state treasurer, out of the proceeds derived from the sale of said lands if the same be sufficient therefor, and, if not, then the deficiency shall be so paid out of any other moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Fourth—The said board of managers shall indorse upon such certificates of said commissioner their certificate signed by them, or a majority of them, as such board, to the effect that they have caused to be borrowed therefrom for the use of said school the amount therein stated; that the same is payable, and becomes due at the times specified and bears interest at the rate therein to be specified, and is so payable to the person therein to be named, or his order, at the office of the state treasurer.

Fifth—The certificates of said commissioner and of the board of managers may be in substance as follows, to wit:

COMMISSIONER'S CERTIFICATE.

To all men to whom these presents shall come—Greeting: I, A. B., commissioner of the land office of the State of Minnesota, do hereby certify that the board of managers of the Minnesota State Reform school, are by an act of the legislature of said state, approved ———, entitled, "An act to amend chapter two hundred and fifty-eight (258) of the General Laws of Minnesota for one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889)," authorized to negotiate and make a loan of the aggregate amount of $———; and that they have duly set aside and designated the following described lots, blocks and tracts of land, situate in the county of Ramsey, in the state of Minnesota, to wit: (Here describe the designated lands), and all proceeds to be derived from the sale thereof to the State of Minnesota as security for the prompt and full payment of said loan; and that in consideration of such designation and setting aside of said lands and proceeds as aforesaid, the state of Minnesota does hereby guarantee the payment of said loan and interest thereon.

I do further certify that under and by virtue of the act aforesaid, the said board of managers of the Minnesota State Reform school are hereby authorized to borrow upon this certificate and as a part of the said loan the sum of $——— with interest thereon at the rate not exceeding six (6) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually; and that such interest and principal are so payable upon presentation of this certificate to the state treasurer out of the proceeds derived from the sale of said lands, if the same be then sufficient therefor, and if not, then the deficiency shall be so paid out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of my office at the city of St. Paul, Minnesota, this ——— day of ———, 189—.

CERTIFICATE OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS.

We, the board of managers of the Minnesota State Reform school, do hereby certify that we have caused to be borrowed upon this certificate for the use of said school the sum of $———; that the same is payable on the first day of ———, A. D. 189—, and bears interest at the rate of ——— per cent per annum, from the date, payable semi-annually, on the first day of July and January in each year; and that said amount and interest is so payable as aforesaid to ———, or his order, on presentation of this certificate to the state treasurer of the State of Minnesota at his office at the city of St. Paul, Minnesota.

Issued and dated this........day of........
A. D. 189—.

Countersigned and Registered, ...
State Treasurer.

Sec. 43. The said loan and loans herein provided for shall not in the aggregate exceed the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000).

They shall be so adjusted that not more than fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) thereof shall become payable in any one year, nor shall any part of the principal thereof become payable within one year nor after ten years from the passage of this act, or bear interest at any rate exceeding six (6) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. Subject to these limitations the said board of managers are hereby authorized to negotiate and make such loans, upon such time, terms and in such amounts as they may deem expedient.

Sec. 44. Upon payment to the state treasury by the person from whom any such loan is obtained, of the amount in such certificate stated, the state treasurer shall insert in the certificate of said board the date thereof, and the name of the person to whom the same shall be payable, and shall number and countersign the same, and deliver such certificate to such person.

Said treasurer shall make and keep in books by him to be provided for that purpose, a register of said certificates, and of any assignments thereof. Such certificate, when so countersigned and issued by said treasurer, shall for all purposes be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of law relative to the issuing of the same have been fully complied with, and that the owner thereof is lawfully entitled to receive the amount and interest therein specified from the state, in accordance with the terms and contents of such certificate.

Sec. 45. The moneys obtained upon such loans shall by the state treasurer be paid to the credit of the reform school fund, and is thereby set aside and appropriated for the purpose of the erection and completion of the necessary buildings for said school and the equipment of the same, and the suitable preparation of the permanent site for said school in the county of Goodhue, for the uses and purposes thereof. The state auditor, whenever so requested by the board of managers, shall draw and deliver to them his warrants upon the treasurer therefor, and said treasurer shall pay such warrants out of said funds derived from said loans.

Sec. 46. Upon the issuance of the certificates aforesaid, the said lands in said resolutions described shall be thereby set aside as security, and shall be disposed of for the payment of the said loans so made. And all the proceeds hereafter arising from the sale of any of said lands shall be paid into the State treasury, and shall therein be held and used for the payment of the principal and interest of said loans, and also to reimburse the state for any moneys it may have at any time paid or advanced on account of said loans or interest thereon; provided, however, that whenever the whole amount of such proceeds of such sales shall be more than sufficient to fully pay said loans and interest and all advances thereon made by the state, the excess of such proceeds shall, by the treasurer, be set aside and credited to the reform school fund, and shall be drawn, paid out and used in the same manner and for the same purposes as is provided in section forty-five (45) of this act; and provided further, that the words "proceeds of such sales," as used in this section, shall be construed to mean and embrace the actual cash payments received at the time of such sales, and also the unpaid part of such purchase price of the land so sold.

Sec. 47. The state treasurer shall pay said certificates and the semi-annually accruing interest thereon, according to the terms thereof, upon presentation of the same, out of any moneys at that time in the treasury derived from the sale of said lands as aforesaid, and if at any time such moneys are insufficient for that purpose, he shall advance and pay the deficiency out of any other moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, and an amount sufficient to meet such deficiency, if any such exist, is hereby appropriated for that purpose, such appropriation to be an annually continuing appropriation until such loans are fully paid.

Sec. 48. The board of managers, whenever they deem it expedient, may offer for sale and sell any or all of the said lands, in said resolution and certificate described in manner as provided for in sections seventeen (17), eighteen (18) and twenty (20) of the act hereby amended; and the said board shall once in each year hereafter offer for sale, as in said section seventeen (17) provided, all of the aforesaid lands, except such parts thereof as may have been by them reserved for the temporary uses of said school, as in section four (4) of said act is provided.

Sec. 49. Section twenty-seven (27) of said chapter two hundred and fifty-eight (258) of General Laws for one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889) is hereby amended by striking out the proviso to said section and inserting in place thereof the words following, to wit: Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to authorize the said board to make or incur in or about the erection and completion of said buildings any indebtedness or cost in excess of the aggregate amount ultimately derived from the sale of all of said lands as aforesaid.

Sec. 50. Nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to in any manner prevent or restrain the said board of managers from selling any of the lands in section 1 of the act hereby amended described, or of disposing of the proceeds thereof, as in said act provided, at any time before the loans herein provided for are made, nor to prevent or restrain the said board from so selling and disposing of the proceeds of any of said lands, which may remain unsold after the said loans have been fully paid. Said board of managers are hereby authorized and directed to pay into the treasury of the city of St. Paul from time to time, as same becomes due, all charges and assessments heretofore or hereafter made by the city of St. Paul for local assessments, and also for water tax against any part of said Ingersoll's addition owned by the State of Minnesota, or said managers as such.

Sec. 51. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed so far as they affect the provisions thereof.

Sec. 32. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 17, 1891.

CHAPTER 130—S. F. NO. 213.

An Act to amend section two of title "K" of chapter 271 of General Laws of 1889, relating to the disbursements of the appropriation mentioned therein.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That section two (2) of title "K" of chapter 271 of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, entitled "An act to appropriate money to aid in building bridges and draining lands in certain counties in the state," be and the same is amended as follows:

Sec. 2. That J. E. Webster, John C. Fifield and E. J. Rice are hereby designated as a committee on the part of the state, whose duty it shall be to audit all the bills and expenditures and make a report to the state auditor of the same, showing the character of said bridge, the material used in its construction and the cost thereof, and upon receipt of the said report the auditor shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer in favor of the county treasurer of Olmsted county, Minnesota, for the amount herein appropriated, and the said money shall be disbursed by the said county treasurer on the warrant of the county auditor to the said committee toward paying the expenses of constructing said bridge. Provided, that no money shall be paid out of the treasury therefor until the said bridge is fully completed and open for travel.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 16, 1891.

CHAPTER 131—S. F. NO. 885.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act relating to building, loan and savings associations doing a general business," the same being chapter two hundred and thirty-six (236) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889).

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the state of Minnesota:

Section 1. That chapter two hundred and thirty-six (236) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889), be, and is hereby amended to read as follows:

Whenever any number of persons, not less than ten (10), desire to be incorporated as a building and loan association, for the purpose of accumulating the savings and funds of its members and loaning them only the funds so accumulated, they shall make and execute a written declaration to that effect in the form now provided by statute for the execution of deeds of real estate, to entitle the same to record. Said declaration shall state the name of such association, its principal place of business, which shall be within this state, the limit of capital to be accumulated, the time of its duration, the names and places of residence of such persons, and that it is organized under this act for the purposes herein expressed. When so executed, said declaration shall be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, whereupon such officer shall issue a copy of such declaration under his certificate, in proper form, setting forth the time and place of filing and recording thereof in his office, which declaration and certificate shall be thereupon recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which said association is located, and published once in a daily or weekly newspaper printed and published and of general circulation in said county. Upon complying with the foregoing requirements, and upon filing an affidavit of proof of such publication in the office of the secretary of state, the persons executing such declaration, their associates and successors, shall be a body corporate.

Sec. 2. The name shall not be the same as, nor too closely resemble, that in use by any existing corporation established under the laws of this state. The words "building and loan association," or "savings and loan association," shall form a part of the name, and no corporation not organized under this act shall be entitled to use a name embodying either said combination of words, providing that associations now existing may continue their present names.

Sec. 3. The directors of such association shall adopt by-laws for its government and regulation of the manner in which its business shall be transacted, which by-laws shall be conformable to the provisions of this act and the laws of this state, and at all times be open to the inspection of all members of the association at its home office, and a copy thereof and of any amendments thereto, duly certified by the president and secretary of the association, immediately upon its adoption, be filed in the office of the public examiner. The directors may amend said by-laws from time to time in such manner as they see fit, so long as such amendments are not in conflict with the provisions of this act or the laws of the state.

Every such association, which has not already done so, shall, before its next annual election after the passage of this act, divide its board of directors by resolution thereof, into three classes, consisting of an equal number in each class, as nearly as may be; the term of office of the first class shall expire at the end of one year from and after the next annual election, of the second class at the end of two years, and of the third class at the end of three years; and at each succeeding annual election after the one at which the first board is elected there shall be elected a number of directors equal to those whose terms of office expire at that time, and the directors so elected shall hold their office for the term of three (3) years, and until their successors are elected and qualified.

Sec. 4. For every loan made a note, obligation, or bond, secured by first mortgage on real estate shall be given, which security shall be in double the value of the loan and satisfactory to the directors, and shall be accompanied by a transfer and pledge of the shares of the borrower to the association. The shares so pledged shall be held by the corporation as collateral security for the performance of the conditions of said note or bond and mortgage; provided that the shares, without other security, may, in the discretion of the directors, be accepted as security for the loans for an amount not exceeding their withdrawal values provided by this act. Stockholders who have borrowed money of an association on real estate security, and who have pledged their stock, or any portion thereof, as collateral thereto, as provided herein, shall not be entitled to have the value of such stock applied on the mortgage debt where the payment on such stock is more than three (3) months in arrears, unless the same has reached a withdrawal age as fixed by this act, and when such stock has reached that age the withdrawal value thereof shall be applied on said debt whenever the stock is three (3) months in arrears.

Sec. 5. Any such association may purchase at any sale, public or private, any real estate upon which it may have a mortgage, judgment, lien or other incumbrance, or in which it may have any interest, and may sell, convey, lease or mortgage the same at pleasure to any person or persons, and may acquire and hold a lot on which there is erected a building or buildings requisite for the convenient transaction of its business, and from portions of which not required for its own use a revenue may be derived; the cost of such building and or lots in no case to exceed five per cent of its assets; provided that any such association may acquire any lease-hold interest necessary for the transaction of its business.

Sec. 6. Every building and loan association heretofore or hereafter incorporated under the laws of this state and governed by this act shall deposit and keep with the state treasurer, or with a duly chartered trust company of this state, approved by the public examiner, in trust for all its members and creditors, all mortgages or other securities received by it in the usual course of its business. When deposited with a trust company, such company shall certify to the public examiner the possession of such securities, and the same shall not be surrendered without the authority and sanction of the said public examiner. Provided, that every such corporation heretofore organized not having or owning mortgages or other securities to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) shall deposit with the state treasurer additional securities to make, with the securities so owned and deposited, the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), and every such association hereafter organized under this act shall deposit and keep with the state treasurer in trust as aforesaid, securities of the value of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) before commencing to do business. The securities mentioned in this proviso shall consist of bonds or treasury notes of the United States, or national bank stocks, or the bonds of this state, or of any other state of the United States, or of any solvent city, county or town of this state or of any other state of the United States, having the legal authority to issue the same, and such securities may be withdrawn from time to time when mortgage securities of corresponding value shall be deposited as provided in this act, or when securities of like character are substituted therefor, or when the same shall have been paid or are required for foreclosure or suit; and it shall be the duty of the public examiner from time to time to examine such association to ascertain whether or not its securities are deposited as required by this act. Provided, that whenever required by the laws of any other state or territory or nation, all securities taken in such state, territory or nation, by any association organized under the laws of this state, and subject to the provisions of this act, and other securities sufficient to allow such association to enter and do business in such state, territory or nation, may be deposited with some officer authorized to receive the same in such state, territory or nation, under the laws thereof, for the benefit of its members and creditors, and to this end, upon the presentation to the public examiner of a duly authenticated copy of a resolution of the board of directors of any such association, having on deposit with the state treasurer or a duly chartered trust company securities in excess of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) demanding the transfer and specifying the securities to be transferred or the amount thereof to any other state, territory or nation for the purpose of enabling such association to comply with the laws thereof, it shall be the duty of the public examiner to cause such transfer to be made. The expense of making such transfer shall be borne by the association requiring the same and a receipt shall be taken by the officer or trust company making the transfer, and filed and kept in the office from which the securities are transferred in lieu thereof. But the securities kept on deposit in this state by any such association [illegible] in every case where securities taken in another state, territory or nation are deposited in such state, territory or nation, or when other securities are removed from this state to such other state, territory or nation for the purpose aforesaid, the association to which they belong shall make a certificate of such depository showing the amount and character of such deposit, which certificate shall be filed with the public examiner and renewed annually, together with a statement verified by the affidavit of some officer of such association, who has knowledge of the facts, showing all the securities taken or deposited by such association in such state, territory or nation at the time of the filing such certificate; and in case any securities taken in such state, territory or nation are not deposited there, then the same shall be deposited in this state as required by this act.

Sec. 7. All interests and dividends and premiums which may accrue on securities held by the state treasurer or such trust company, as provided for herein, and all dues or monthly payments which may become payable on stock pledged as security for loans, the mortgages for which are so deposited in accordance with the provisions of this act, may be collected and retained by the association depositing such securities or mortgages so long as such association remains solvent and faithfully performs all contracts with its members, and when any mortgage shall have been fully paid to said corporation the same may be surrendered to it upon filing with the depository the affidavit of the president or vice president and secretary of any such association that such indebtedness has been paid in full, which affidavit shall be first presented to the public examiner and by him approved. And any mortgage upon which default has been made may be surrendered as aforesaid for foreclosure upon like affidavit that default exists and that such mortgage is withdrawn for the purpose of foreclosure of suit.

Sec. 8. No building and loan association organized under the laws of any other state, territory or nation, shall do business in this state unless such association shall have securities of the value of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), and of the character mentioned in this act on deposit in trust for all its members and creditors with some responsible trust company duly incorporated under the laws of such state or territory in the United States, or with some authorized officer of this or some other state of the United States. Certificate of such deposit shall be made to the public examiner of this state, certifying the possession of such securities, which shall not thereafter be surrendered without the authority or consent of the public examiner or other authorized officer of the state or territory in which said company is incorporated.

Sec. 9. Every building and loan association organized under the laws of any other state, territory or nation shall, before commencing to do business in this state, first, file with the public examiner of this state a duly authenticated copy of its charter or articles of incorporation; second, file with the public examiner of this state the certificate of the authorized officer of another state, showing that securities of the value of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) are on deposit with such state officer or duly incorporated trust company in trust for all the members and creditors of such building and loan association; third, file with the public examiner of this state a duly authenticated copy of a resolution adopted by the board of directors of such association, stipulating and agreeing that if any legal process affecting such association be served on such examiner, and a copy thereof be mailed postage prepaid by the party procuring the issue of the same, or his attorneys, to said association, addressed to its home office, then such service and mailing of such process shall have the same effect as personal service on said association in this state; and also an agreement that said association will not remove any action commenced in any state court of this state against the same, to the United States court, and will pay every judgment that may be taken against it upon any such action within sixty (60) days after the final judgment shall have been entered; fourth, pay to the public examiner twenty-five dollars ($25) as fees for filing the papers mentioned in this section.

Sec. 10. When process against or affecting any foreign building and loan association is served on the public examiner the same shall be by duplicate copies, one of which shall be filed in the office of the public examiner, and the other by him immediately mailed, postage prepaid, to the home office of said association.

Sec. 11. The word "process" in this act shall include any writ, declaration, summons or order whereby any action, writ or proceedings shall be commenced, or which shall be issued in or upon any action, suit or proceeding authorized by law in this state.

Sec. 12. Service of process according to a stipulation provided in section 9 of this act shall be sufficient personal service on the association filing such stipulation.

Sec. 13. When by the laws of any other state, territory or nation, any taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits of money or securities or other obligations or prohibitions are imposed on building and loan associations of this state doing business in such other state, territory, or nation, or upon their agents therein, so long as such laws continue in force the same obligation and prohibition of whatever kind, shall be imposed upon all building and loan associations of such other state, territory or nation, doing business in this state and upon their agents here.

Sec. 14. Any building and loan association organized under the laws of any other state or territory that shall remove any action that shall be commenced against it in a court of this state to the United States court, or that shall fail to pay any judgment rendered against it upon a suit in any court of the state within sixty (60) days after the rendition of final judgment in such case, or that shall fail to make yearly statements to the public examiner as hereafter mentioned, or statements of the amount and value of its stock held in this state as hereafter required or, to pay the fees of the public examiner as provided in this act or to do any other act required in this act to be done and performed, shall upon violation of the provisions of this act have no right or authority to do or transact any further business in this state, and the public examiner shall thereupon cause notice of determination of such authority to do business to be mailed to such corporation and to be published in some newspaper of general circulation at the capital of this state, and shall communicate the facts to the attorney general of this state, who shall institute such proceedings in the matter as the case may require. Provided, any such corporation may be again authorized to commence business in this state upon such terms as the public examiner may deem just and proper, and upon full compliance with the provisions of this act.

Sec. 15. All building and loan associations hereafter incorporated in this state shall have an authorized capital of two million dollars ($2,000,000) at the time of the incorporation. Every share of capital stock issued by any such association shall be of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100), but this provision shall not be construed to forbid the issue by any such association of paid up certificates for a less amount, in liquidation of stock surrendered for cancellation or withdrawn before reaching its maturity period. Provided, that such paid-up certificates shall be certificates of indebtedness only, and the stock in liquidation of which such certificates are issued shall be thereupon surrendered and canceled.

Sec. 16. Any building and loan association heretofore or hereafter incorporated under the laws of this state, may at any time increase the amount of its capital stock by a vote of at least three-fourths of its board of directors. Provided, that no such increase shall be made unless three-fourths of the capital stock previously authorized has actually been issued, and the amount of increase made at any one time shall not exceed the amount issued previous to the time of such increase. Any amendments of the articles of incorporation of any such association in any other respect shall be done at an annual meeting by a two-thirds vote of stock represented, and voted at such annual meeting on the question of such amendment or amendments and only upon the notice hereinafter provided to be given.

Sec. 17. Whenever any building and loan association increases its capital stock, or otherwise amends its articles of incorporation as provided in this act, a copy of the resolution of the board of directors or stockholders making such increase or other amendment duly verified by oath of the president and secretary of such association, shall be filed in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the home office of said association is located, and in the office of the secretary of state, and be published four successive times in some daily or weekly newspaper published at the capital of the state, or in the county where the association has its home office. Proof of which publication shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state.

Sec. 18. In each year every building and loan association organized under the laws of this state and doing business in this or any other territory shall, within thirty (30) days after the end of the year for which its report to its stockholders is made, deposit with the public examiner an annual report of its affairs and operations for said year. Such report shall be verified under oath of the president and secretary or by three directors of the association and shall contain the following information: First, the amount of authorized capital, and the par value of each share of stock. Second, the number of shares sold during the year. Third, the number of shares canceled, and withdrawn during the year. Fourth, the number of shares in force at the end of the year. Fifth, a detailed statement of the receipts and disbursements during the year. Sixth, a detailed statement of the assets and liabilities at the end of the year. Such report shall also show the total amount received as dues on stock under each separate class or kind of stock and all deductions therefrom for expenses, withdrawals, cancellations, forfeitures, refunded or otherwise, and the amounts, if any, of such profits credited to stock or subject to such credit. The report shall also show the number of shares in force of each monthly issue or series, and the amount expended during the year in payment of salaries of officers, clerks, agents and all other employes, the amount expended for traveling expenses, rent, postage, including telegraph and express charges, printing, books and stationery, office supplies, office furniture, advertising, commission paid agents or other persons, and all other items of expense. In addition to such annual report and six (6) months after such report has been submitted to the public examiner, every such association shall prepare a report of its business for the preceding six (6) months, which report shall state the amount of resources [illegible] amount invested in real estate, the amount invested in real estate and secured by foreclosure, the amount invested in furniture and fixtures, the amount of expenses paid during the six months, the amount of cash on hand, and the amount of all other resources of the association not enumerated heretofore, and shall state as its liabilities the amount received from stock subscriptions, the amount due from stock delinquent in each class or kind of stock and the unpaid fines on such stock, the amount set aside as an expense fund from each class or kind of stock, the amount of undivided profits at the beginning of said period of six (6) months, the amount received as interest, premiums, fees, fines or other sources as profits during said period, the amount of such interest and premium delinquent at the end of such period, the amount of all bills payable and the amount of all other liabilities at the close of said period of six (6) months. Such report shall be made within twenty (20) days after the close of said period of six (6) months, and shall be verified by the secretary and president or vice president of the association, and within thirty (30) days a statement of the assets and liabilities shall be published at least once in some newspaper in the city or town where the association's principal place of business is, and a copy of such semi-annual report verified by the secretary shall be filed with the public examiner within ten (10) days after the printing thereof. Provided, that all such statements herein required to be made shall be uniform and in accordance with a form to be prescribed therefor by the public examiner, and shall correctly show the proportion which the entire expenses of the association for the term reported bears to the gross earnings of said association for that term. And provided further, that all reports required of building and loan associations organized under the laws of this state and doing a general business are also required of all foreign building and loan associations doing business in this state, and all the provisions of this act relating to such reports, the filing thereof and the fees therefor shall apply to such foreign building and loan associations.

If any such association shall fail to furnish to the public examiner of the state any report required by this act at the time so required it shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25) for every day such report shall be delayed or withheld, and the examiner may maintain an action in his name of office to recover such penalty, and the same shall be paid into the treasury of the state and applied to the expenses of the department of said examiner. After receiving such annual report, the public examiner, if satisfied that such corporation has complied with all [the] provisions of this act and is entitled to do business in this state, shall issue his certificate stating the compliance with such provision and that such corporation is entitled to do business in this state, which certificate shall be in force for the period of one (1) year unless sooner rescinded as provided in this act. The public examiner shall also issue such certificate to a domestic corporation which has complied with the law in regard to its articles of incorporation, and the deposit of securities and in all other respects except the filing of said report, which commence business at some intervening period in any year. Such certificate shall also be issued to any foreign corporation authorized to do business in this state after complying with the conditions of section 9 of this act and shall be in force until the time herein required for such annual report.

Sec. 19. It shall be the duty of such public examiner, at least once in each year, and as often as he may deem necessary, to assume and exercise over every building and loan association incorporated under the laws of this state, its business, officers, directors and employes, all the power and authority conferred upon him over banks and other moneyed corporations under the laws of this state, provided he shall not have the power to suspend the operations of any such association, except in the manner provided in the next succeeding section. And such public examiner shall have the same supervision and control over the business, within this state, of other corporations of like kind incorporated under the laws of other states, territories or nations, doing business in this state. Upon the completion of any examination of any association made by said public examiner or under his direction, the association so examined shall pay to said examiner a fee to be determined as follows, viz. for the first one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) of assets, a fee of ten dollars ($10) and for each additional one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) of assets, or major portion thereof, an additional fee of five dollars ($5).

Sec. 20. If it shall appear to said public examiner from any examination made by him or from any report of any examination made by him or from the annual report aforesaid, that said corporation is violating its charter, or the law, or that it is conducting business in an unsafe, unauthorized or dishonest manner, he shall, by an order under his hand and seal of office addressed to such corporation, direct conformity with requirements of its charter and of the law. And whenever such corporation shall refuse or neglect to make such report or account as may be lawfully required, or to comply with such order as aforesaid, the public examiner shall file a statement in writing with the attorney general setting forth the facts or particulars in which such alleged violation or refusal consists, which statement shall be prima facie evidence of such violation or refusal, whereupon the attorney general shall institute such proceedings against any such corporations as are now, or may hereafter be provided by law in the case of insolvent corporations, or such other proceedings as the occasion may require. And if such corporation shall have been organized under the laws of any other state or territory and attorney general shall upon receiving such communication, if in his judgment the facts in the case are sufficient to warrant such action, give notice to such corporation that it is no longer authorized to do business in this state, by depositing such notice in the postoffice, properly sealed and stamped, addressed to said corporation at its principal office in the state where incorporated, and thereupon said corporation shall cease to have any right in this state, and said notice may be published in the same manner as provided in section (14) fourteen of this act.

Sec. 21. All officers of any building and loan association governed by this act and doing business in this state, who sign or endorse checks, or handle any funds of such association, shall give such bonds or fidelity insurance for the faithful performance of their duties as the board of directors may require, and no such officer shall be deemed qualified to enter upon the duties of his office until his bond is approved by the board of directors and the public examiner, with whom such bond shall be filed; provided, that the public examiner may require of any association at any time such increase of said bond or additional security thereto or such increase of said insurance as he may deem necessary for the protection of the members. The penalty for failure of any association to file and maintain the bonds or policy as required by the provisions of this section shall be a fine of one hundred dollars ($100) for each day such association transacts business after such bond has become due under the provisions of this act. Said bond or policy shall be held in trust for the benefit and protection of the members of such association and shall be enforcible by any member whenever the cause of action shall accrue thereon.

Sec. 22. The name "building and loan association," as used in this act, shall include all corporations, societies, organizations or associations doing a saving and loan or investment business on the building society plan, whether mutual or otherwise, and whether issuing certificates of stock, which mature at a fixed time in advance or not.

Sec. 23. Any officer, director or agent, or any foreign building and loan association, or any other person whatever, who shall in this state solicit subscriptions to the stock of such association, or who shall sell or issue or knowingly cause to be sold or issued to a resident of this state any stock of such association while such association shall not have had the certificate of the public examiner authorizing it to do business in this state as herein described, or has not deposited as required by this act securities of the value and at the time herein prescribed or before said association has complied with all the provisions of this act, or when said association shall have been notified and required to discontinue business in this state as hereinbefore provided, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500) or by imprisonment of not less than ten (10) days nor more than six (6) months, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 24. Any officer, director or agent of any building and loan association incorporated under the laws of this state or any other person whatever, who shall sell or issue or knowingly cause to be sold or issued to any person not a resident of the county in which the home office of said association is located, or in the counties immediately adjacent thereto, any stock of said association while said association does not have on deposit with the public examiner or some loan and trust company, as required by this act, securities of the value and at the time hereinafter prescribed, or while such association shall not have a certificate of the public examiner authorizing it to do business as herein prescribed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100), and not more than five hundred dollars ($500), or by imprisonment of not less than ten (10) days, nor more than six (6) months, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 25. Any premium for loans made by any association governed by this act shall not be considered or treated as interest, nor render such association amenable to the laws relating to usury.

Sec. 26. Every such association heretofore organized under the laws of this state or incorporated under this act shall not issue preferred stock, but may issue different series of stock, and all shares of stock hereafter issued shall be of the par value when matured of one hundred dollars ($100) each. Any such association may issue installment stock to be paid in periodical sums, and prepaid stock upon which a gross sum shall be paid in advance, and which installment and prepaid stock shall mature when the amount so paid, together with the dividends declared upon the same, shall equal the par value of such stock (and a dividend bearing prepaid stock upon which a larger sum is paid than on the prepaid stock, and upon which a partial dividend may be paid annually out of [illegible] may be paid, which dividend shall in no case exceed the per cent of profits earned by all classes or series of stock at the time said dividend is declared. Any such association may issue from time to time a limited amount of guaranty or permanent stock for which the full par value shall be paid at the time of issue or in installments of five dollars ($5) on each share, from time to time, at the option of the purchaser, until the full par value of one hundred dollars ($100) is paid. Such guaranty or permanent stock to be paid a dividend on the amount paid in, such dividend not to exceed the per cent of profits earned by all classes or series of stock at the time such dividend is declared. The balance of profits (if any) and the principal paid on said stock not to be paid to holders of same until all lawful claims of every other class of stock shall have been fully liquidated and paid by such association. Provided that the total amount of guaranty or permanent stock at its par value issued by any association shall not exceed at the time of its issue twenty (20) per cent of the amount of payments to the credit of all other classes of stock. No building and loan association shall issue any certificate of shares until the terms and conditions thereof shall have been first submitted to and approved by the public examiner.

Sec. 27. Any shareholder whose share or shares are not in arrears or pledged upon a loan, shall be entitled to withdraw such share or shares at any time twenty-four (24) months from and after the date of the first payment on such share or shares, and not before such date; provided that the board of directors may, if they deem it to the interest of the association, buy in the share or shares of any shareholder desiring to withdraw at a previous date, paying therefor the sum paid in on said shares, less such discount as may be agreed upon and which shall not in any case exceed eight (8) per cent. Any such shareholder may give notice of withdrawal in writing to the secretary of said association and the liability of said shareholder to pay further installments and right to share in future profits shall cease with said notice. Such withdrawing shareholder shall be entitled to receive, at the end of two years from the date of his first payment, all monthly payments made on account of such share or shares (not including admission fees or fines) less the following deductions:

Fifty (50) cents on each certificate in payment for issuing and canceling the same, and two (2) per cent of the amount so paid in for a contingent or reserve fund to be used by the association to meet any contingency or loss in its business, from the depreciation of its securities or otherwise (provided that if the share or shares on which such notice of withdrawal is given are in arrears, a fine of ten (10) cents per share for each thirty (30) days such share or shares are delinquent may be deducted, in addition to the withdrawal fee and charge for the reserve fund hereinbefore provided for). All stockholders who do not give the notice as herein provided, failing to make payments, shall be subject to a fine of ten (10) cents per share per month for each month such payments are in arrears, for a period of six (6) months after the last payment made (such fines in the aggregate not to exceed the sum of sixty (60) cents per share, and at the end of such period of six (6) months, if arrearages and fines remain unpaid, the balance of such monthly payments, if any, after deducting the certificate fee, contingent fund, and fines as herein provided, shall be subject to withdrawal at a period not less than twenty four (24) months from the date of the first payment, on application of the stockholder. If such delinquent shares are not reclaimed or called for within twenty-four (24) months from the date of the last payment, the balance, if any, to the credit of such delinquent shares, shall be transferred to the contingent fund herein provided for, and the delinquent shareholder shall, from the time of such transfer, have no further claim upon the association on account of such share or shares, or the payments made thereon; provided that such shares, which may have been pledged as collateral for the payment of a loan and become delinquent, shall be adjusted as provided for in section 4 of this act. If such withdrawing member has made twenty-four (24) or more payments and less than thirty-six (36) payments he shall receive the amounts paid less the deductions provided for, and interest on such amount at the rate of five (5) per cent per annum, for the actual time the association has had the payments in excess of twenty-four (24) months; and if such withdrawing member has made thirty-six (36) or more payments and less than forty-eight (48) payments he shall receive the amount paid in, less the deductions provided for, and interest on such amount at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum for the actual time the association has had the payments in excess of twenty-four (24) months; and if such withdrawing member has made forty-eight (48) payments and less than sixty (60) payments he shall receive the amount paid in, less the deductions provided for, and interest on said amount at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum for the actual time the association has had the payments in excess of twenty-four (24) months; and if such withdrawing member has made sixty (60) or more payments, and the stock has not reached a maturity value, he shall receive the amounts paid in, less the deductions provided for, and interest on such amount at the rate of eight (8) per cent per annum for the actual time the association has had the payments; provided, that the net profits of the association for the time the association has had the use of all of its funds, shall amount to the sum of five (5), six (6), seven (7), and eight (8) per cent per annum, computed on the amounts paid in on all the shares in force at the time such withdrawals are made, and if such profits are not sufficient when so computed, then the stock so withdrawn shall be entitled to a rate per cent, found to be earned as net profits, during said period, such interest payments to be in all cases in lieu of such profits. Provided, further, that if by reason of extraordinary losses that entire net profit is exhausted, the withdrawing member shall not be entitled to the interest herein named; and if by reason of extraordinary losses, the association is compelled to charge such losses against its capital actually paid in, all withdrawing shares shall be subject to a pro rata charge of such losses with those remaining undrawn, and in such case all payment herein provided shall be considered of no effect, and the withdrawing member shall only be entitled to such sums as may be found to be due him after the adjustment of such losses among all shareholders. And provided, further, that whenever the capital of an association has been impaired by losses in excess of its reserve fund and profits earned, it shall be the duty of the directors to suspend sales of all classes of stock until such losses have been adjusted and distributed pro rata as a charge upon the shares of stock in force. And provided, further, that no more than one-half (½) of the amount received in payments on stock by such association in any month shall be used to pay withdrawals without the consent of the board of directors. And provided, further, that any association that has issued shares maturing at a definite period, which finds that its assets will not be sufficient under the mutual system to mature its stock at such period, without unusual assessments, may with the consent of any stockholder settle and discharge his stock by paying to him at the maturity period, or sooner, if its directors deem it practicable, such sum as he had paid into such association for monthly dues and withdrawal assessments, and such proportion of the profits as shall be mutually deemed by them equitable.

Sec. 28. Upon the death of a stockholder in any such association his heirs or personal representatives, upon giving sixty (60) days' notice to the association, shall receive from such association the then withdrawal value of his shares agreeable to the provisions of section 27 of this act.

Sec. 29. Every such association shall provide in its by-laws in what manner applications and bids for loans shall be received and who shall be entitled to loans thereunder; such proportion of the loan fund shall be loaned upon such application as the directors shall deem advisable; provided the securities shall be in the character and amount as required by this act; and provided further, that the provisions of this section relating to bidding for loans shall not apply to associations which fix the rate of interest and premium in any other manner.

Sec. 30. All associations governed by this act may, in payment of their expenses, use a sum not to exceed fourteen (14) per cent of their receipts for payments on stock. Whenever a distribution of profits is made and at least twice in each year, each association shall charge against the profits accrued four-fifths of such expenses; or, if there is not a sufficient amount of the profits to pay such part of the expense incurred, then the total amount of profits shall be so charged with expense and the balance of said four-fifths of such expenses shall be carried as "Expenses Paid" until the next report or distribution of profits. The remaining one-fifth of such expenses shall, at the time of making the charges to profits as herein provided, be carried to an account to be called "Permanent Expense," which shall finally be paid as follows: Whenever any share of stock has reached a maturity value the share of permanent expense contributed by said share of stock shall be charged against it, and the sum found after deducting such share of permanent expense shall be deemed the true maturity value of said stock. All fees and fines received by any association may be used for the payment of expenses in addition to the amount herein provided for.

Sec. 31. That not more than three (3) of the officers of any such association incorporated under the laws of this state shall be members of the board of directors of such association. Provided, that no change shall be required under this section until the next annual meeting of such association.

Sec. 32. All corporations organized in this state and doing business in this or any other state as building and loan associations shall comply with and be subject to all the provisions of this act within sixty (60) days after its passage, and shall be entitled to all the privileges and benefits thereof, without reincorporating.

Sec. 33. This act shall not apply to any association organized under the laws of this state which confines its loaning and business operations wholly to its county and the counties adjacent and adjoining thereto: provided, that any such association heretofore incorporated which desires to hereafter confine its business to adjacent counties as aforesaid may file with the public examiner a statement to that effect, and also containing the names of those holding the amount held by them of the stock of said association outside such counties, and so long as such association thereafter confines its sales of stock within the limits aforesaid, it shall not be subject to the provisions hereof, and any sales of stock outside the limits of said counties [illegible] individual stock of any member of such association.

Sec. 34. Every such association shall be assessed for and pay taxes upon its office furniture and fixtures and all real estate acquired in the course of its business.

Sec. 35. The amount standing to the credit of each member of any such association, upon its books, shall be considered and held as the individual credit of such member, and each member shall list the shares held by him for taxation at their real value in money in the county of his residence, the same as other credits are listed, except shares upon which loans have been made or money advanced by the association.

Sec. 36. It shall be the duty of every such association not incorporated under the laws of this state to make and forward to the public examiner upon the first day of May in each year, a statement containing the names and the withdrawal value of all its stock held and owned by residents of this state together with the place of residence of every such stockholder except those having loans as provided in the foregoing section, and it shall be the duty of said public examiner to make out and forward to the county auditors of the proper counties a statement of the stock held by them. And it shall be the duty of the said county auditors upon receiving the statements provided for in this and the foregoing sections, to furnish the assessors of each town in his county having such stockholders with the names of such stockholders, and the value of their stock as given in such statements, for the purpose of assessment.

Sec. 37. Any such association shall have authority to consolidate with one or more other corporations organized for the same purpose, upon such terms as may be agreed upon when such consolidation shall be deemed advisable by a majority vote of its members, and to transfer to such consolidated corporation its entire assets subject to the vested right of its members.

Sec. 38. All securities, cash, mortgages, certificates, bonds, notes, receipts, statements and records heretofore deposited with or received by the state auditor pursuant to law, shall, upon the passage of this act be transferred and delivered by him to the state treasurer, who shall receive the same, and who with his sureties shall be liable for the safe keeping thereof. The treasurer shall deliver up such securities only upon the written order of the public examiner except in pursuance of this act. All securities of such association heretofore required to be deposited with the state auditor shall be hereafter deposited as in this act provided. Upon filing any mortgage, the treasurer shall receive a fee of fifteen (15) cents therefor, and upon withdrawal of the same he shall receive a fee of ten (10) cents therefor, to be paid by the association so filing or withdrawing it.

Sec. 39. The public examiner and state treasurer respectively shall retain all the fees by this act provided to be paid to them or either of them in lieu of any allowance for clerk hire made necessary by the extra labor imposed by this act, and they are respectively hereby authorized and empowered to make and execute any and all orders, releases or other papers which the state auditor was heretofore authorized to make or execute in the premises.

Sec. 40. At least thirty (30) days prior to any annual or special meeting of the stockholders of any such association governed by this act, a notice stating the time and place of such meeting shall be deposited in the postoffice at the headquarters of such association, directed to each member to his address as the same appears at such time on the books of the association, and when so deposited, postage prepaid, shall be deemed a legal and sufficient notice of any such meeting, and there shall be attached to and accompany such notice any proposed amendment or amendments to the articles of incorporation of any such association, and a statement of any officers to be elected at such meeting. Any amendment so proposed and of which such notice shall have been duly given may be adopted at such meeting by the vote of two-thirds of the stock represented and voting thereat. Any member of such association entitled to vote at such meeting may vote in person or by proxy; but no person shall be appointed such proxy who shall not reside in the same county where the stockholder so appointing him resides at the time of such appointment, except that stockholders residing outside of this state may appoint proxies residing in any county in this state; and no person shall be appointed proxy in any case who is, at the time, an officer, agent or employe of any such association; and no person shall hold proxies to exceed five hundred votes for any such meeting.

Upon all questions to be voted upon at such meeting the vote shall be taken by calling the roll of persons entitled to vote thereat with the number of votes which each is entitled to cast and the vote shall be by written or printed ballot, the form for which may be prescribed by the board of directors.

Sec. 41. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after June 1, A. D. 1891, and any and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Approved April 23, 1891.

CHAPTER 132—S. F. NO. 24.

An Act to authorize the leasing by the state land commissioner of the lands belonging to the state situated in Kandiyohi county known as the state capitol lands.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That the state land commissioner of the State of Minnesota be and he is hereby authorized to lease the lands belonging to the state situated in Kandiyohi county, known as the state capitol lands, upon the terms and subject to the conditions hereinafter stated.

Sec. 2. The said lands shall be leased, according to the government subdivisions thereof, to the highest bidder in the same manner, and under the same regulations, so far as applicable, prescribed by law for the sale of state school lands. No lands shall be rented at a less price than fifty (50) cents per acre for each year. All persons who had, in good faith, settled upon said lands on the 1st day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred and ninety-one (1891), shall be entitled to rent the same at the highest sum per acre bidden therefor, provided that no settler thereon shall be entitled to rent, by virtue of such settlement, more than one hundred and sixty acres.

Sec. 3. Said lease shall be made for a term of not less than five (5) or more than ten (10) years, in the discretion of said land commissioner, and any leaseholder shall have a right to a renewal of the same, at the expiration thereof, upon such terms as the legislature may hereafter prescribe, and if no such terms are hereafter provided then upon the same terms as his original lease, and for such period, as the said land commissioner shall prescribe, being not less than five (5) or more than ten (10) years.

Sec. 4. Said lease shall be executed by the said land commissioner on behalf of the state, and by said applicant on his own behalf, and shall provide for half a year's rental being payable when said lease is made, and the second half-year's rental being payable six (6) months thereafter, and the rental for the subsequent years being payable in semi-annual installments in advance. A default in the payment of said rental at the time the same is due, and a continuance of such default in payment for thirty (30) days thereafter being sufficient ground for the termination of said lease by said land commissioner at his option. All payments of money for such rental shall be made to the state treasurer and said treasurer shall annually transmit to the treasurer of the township in which any of such lands so leased may be situated, an amount equal to one-fourth of all sums collected as rental for such lands so situated within said township during the preceding year. Which said sum shall be by said treasurer of said township placed to the credit of the road and bridge fund of said township. And said state treasurer shall in like manner transmit an amount equal to one-fourth of all sums so collected, to the treasurer of Kandiyohi county, to be by him placed to the credit of the revenue fund of said county. The balance of said rentals shall be placed by the state treasurer to the credit of the school fund of the state.

Sec. 5. The said lease shall contain covenants against waste, a violation of which shall be sufficient ground for the termination of said lease, at any time, by said state land commissioner, at his option.

Sec. 6. Said leaseholders shall have the right, when their said leases are terminated, either by expiration of the term or by or through any other cause, to remove from said lands so leased by them any buildings or structures they may have erected during the term of their occupancy.

Sec. 7. Any lease made of said lands, pursuant to the provisions of this act, may be terminated by either party thereto at any time upon one (1) year's written notice. Any lessee desiring to terminate such lease shall serve such notice upon the state land commissioner. When the said commissioner shall desire to terminate any lease he shall transmit a notice, as herein provided, to the sheriff of said county, who shall serve the same in the manner provided by law for the service of a summons in a civil action.

Sec. 8. Provided, further, that at any time before this act goes into effect the legislature shall have the power to provide for setting aside a tract of said land, not exceeding one section in extent, for the purpose of establishing a site for a state capitol, which said tract shall not be included or embraced within the terms of this act.

Sec. 9. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the first day of September, 1891.

Approved April 21, 1891.

CHAPTER 133—S. F. NO. 777.

An Act to amend section one (1) of chapter one hundred and thirty-nine (139) of the General Laws of 1889 entitled An act to fix the times for holding the general terms of the district court for the Seventh (7th) judicial district.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Section one (1) of chapter one hundred and thirty-nine (139) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (1889) is hereby amended by striking out all that part of said section beginning with the words "In the county of Pope" and ending with the words "On the second (2nd) day of such term," and inserting in lieu thereof the following, to wit: "In the county of Pope on the second (2nd) Monday of October in each year." Provided, that the jury both grand and petit required to appear at any term of said court in said county shall be summoned to appear on the second (2nd) day of such term.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after July 1, 1891.

Approved April 17, 1891.

CHAPTER 134—S. F. 877.

An Act providing for additional terms of court in Stearns county.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. There shall be held in and for the County of Stearns, in the Seventh judicial district, State of Minnesota, in addition to the general terms of court now held therein, two general terms, one on the 3d Monday of April and one on the 2d Monday of September in each year. Provided, that no grand or petit jury shall be summoned for the terms herein provided for, unless the judge of said court shall make and file with the clerk of said court, at least 15 days before the term, an order directing the summoning of such grand or petit jury.

Sec. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

CHAPTER 135—S. F. NO. 675.

An Act to fix the time of holding the general terms of the district court in the county of Carver in the Eighth Judicial district, Minnesota.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That the general terms of the district court, in the county of Carver, in the Eighth judicial district, shall be held on the second Monday in March and the third Monday in September of each year.

Sec. 2. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are repealed.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

CHAPTER 136—H. F. NO. 881.

An Act prescribing the times of holding the general terms of district court in the Ninth (9th) judicial district.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

CHAPTER 147—H. F. NO. 78.

An Act detaching the county of Itasca from Aitkin and organizing and providing for the election of county officers for Itasca county.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That all the territory within the boundaries of Itasca county, as now established, is declared to be and is hereby organized into a county to be known as Itasca county, and shall have, possess and enjoy all the privileges, rights and powers of organized counties in this state.

Sec. 2. The first board of county commissioners shall be appointed by the governor of this state from the qualified electors of said Itasca county, who shall at once divide the county into commissioners' districts, and who shall hold their offices until the next general election after the passage of this act.

Sec. 3. The officers of said county shall be appointed by the board of county commissioners of said county, so appointed, as soon as convenient after the passage of this act, who shall hold their offices until the next general election after the passage of this act and until their successors are elected and qualified; provided that the sheriff of Aitkin county shall remain and be sheriff of Itasca county, the same as now provided by law, until the next general election, and until the sheriff of said Itasca county is elected and qualified.

Sec. 4. The county seat shall be selected and chosen by the vote of the legal voters of said county at the next general election held after the passage of this act. At such election the electors or voters shall designate by their ballots the place or village where they desire said county seat to be located, and the place or village receiving the greatest number of votes shall be the location of the county seat, and the votes so cast shall be canvassed and returned in the same manner as votes for county officers; and until such location by election the county seat shall remain and be at such place as may be designated by a majority of the board of commissioners of said county.

Sec. 5. The county of Itasca is hereby detached from Aitkin county for all purposes whatever, except as provided for in this act, but shall remain as it is in the Fifteenth judicial district.

Sec. 6. The county officers of Aitkin county shall, as soon as the officers of said Itasca county are chosen and qualified, deliver to them upon demand all records or files, kept or made by said officers of Aitkin, or in their possession relating to said Itasca county that have been kept separate from the records or files of Aitkin county. All records or files made by or in the possession of said officers of Aitkin county, relating to Itasca county, which have not been kept separate from the records and files of Aitkin county shall be transcribed by the respective officers of said Itasca county to which said records or files belong, and said officers shall receive for said transcribing ten (10) cents per folio.

Sec. 7. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 8. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April March 7, 1891.

CHAPTER 148—S. F. NO. 726.

An Act to detach certain territory from the county of Morrison and attach the same to the county of Cass.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That all that part of the county of Morrison lying north of the north line of township number one hundred and thirty-one (131) be and the same is hereby detached from the county of Morrison and attached to the county of Cass.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect [illegible] the next general election to be held after the passage of this act, and the qualified electors of said counties may, at such election, vote by ballot for or against the adoption of this act.

Sec. 3. That at the time of giving notice of the next general election to be held in said counties of Morrison and Cass it shall be the duty of the officers of each voting precinct therein to give notice of the submission of this act to the electors thereof for their approval or disapproval; provided, that a refusal or neglect to give such notice shall not invalidate such election.

Sec. 4. That at said election each voter of either of said counties of Morrison and Cass who shall be in favor of adopting the provisions of this act shall have written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, upon his ballot the words: "For the act detaching certain territory from the county of Morrison and attaching the same to the county of Cass—Yes." Those of the said electors who shall be opposed to the adoption of said provisions shall have written or printed, or partly written and partly printed upon their ballots: "For the act detaching certain territory from the county of Morrison and attaching the same to the county of Cass—No." Such ballots shall be received and canvassed, at the same time and in the same manner, and the returns thereof made, by the judges of elections, to the county canvassing board, in the same manner as is required with reference to ballots for county officers, and the county canvassing board shall canvass such returns at the same time, and in the same manner as the returns of the votes cast for county officers.

Sec. 5. If, upon canvassing the votes aforesaid, it shall appear that the provisions of this act shall have been adopted by the voters of said counties of Morrison and Cass, the territory so detached shall remain a part of the county of Morrison until such time as the adjoining territory of the county of Cass, to which the same is to be attached, shall become organized, and when said county of Cass shall become organized, the territory detached from the county of Morrison by the provisions of this act shall be organized with and become a part of such organized county.

Sec. 6. That all the detached territory hereinbefore described shall remain subject to taxation to pay the principal and interest of the existing indebtedness of the said county of Morrison, from which the same is hereby detached, and shall be subject to taxation to pay the principal and interest of any indebtedness of the said county of Morrison, which may hereafter be incurred pursuant to any act of the legislature of the said state which may be passed at the session held during the year A. D. 1891, to the same extent as though this act had not been passed, and shall not be liable to taxation for the existing bonded indebtedness of the county to which it is hereby attached, nor of any bonded indebtedness of said county of Morrison other than as hereinbefore specified, and the county auditor of said county of Morrison from which said territory is hereby detached shall annually, after said detached territory shall have become a part of the organized county of Cass, certify in due season to the board of county commissioners of said Cass county the amount of tax to be levied upon said detached territory on account of such bonded indebtedness, which tax shall thereupon be levied and collected as other taxes and paid over to the county treasurer of the county from which the same shall have been so certified.

Sec. 7. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 14, 1891.

CHAPTER 149—S. F. NO. 103.

An Act to amend subdivision three (3) of section twenty-one (21) of chapter one hundred and forty-five (145) of the General Laws of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-five, relating to the incorporating of villages and defining their duties and powers.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That subdivision three (3) of section twenty-one (21) of chapter one hundred and forty-five (145) of the General Laws of the state for the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, be amended so as to read as follows:

Third—To receive, purchase and hold for the use of said village any estate, real and personal, and to sell, convey, lease or otherwise dispose of the same and to dispose of for any purpose and in any manner all surplus light, heat, steam, water or electricity, which may be had or produced after providing for the streets and the furnishing of water for the use of the village and its inhabitants.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

CHAPTER 150—H. F. NO. 293.

An Act to amend chapter fourteen (14) of the General Laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five (1885) entitled "An act to amend chapter fifty-eight (58) of the General Laws of the extra session of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one (1881) entitled 'An act relating to locating, establishing and vacating highways and cartways in Goodhue county, and to amend section forty-nine (49), chapter thirteen (13), General Statutes.'"

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That chapter fourteen (14) of the General Laws of Minnesota for one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five (1885) entitled "An act to amend chapter fifty-eight (58) of the General Laws of the extra session of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one (1881) entitled 'An act relating to locating, establishing and vacating highways and cartways in Goodhue county, and to amend section forty-nine (49), chapter thirteen (13), General Statutes,'" be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows: If twenty-four (24) freeholders of any county containing one hundred (100) or more legal voters, and twelve (12) freeholders of any county containing less than one hundred (100) legal voters, petition the board of commissioners of such county for the location, establishment, change or vacation of any highway or cartway running into more than one town, or on the line between two towns of said county and not within the limits of any incorporated city whether such highway or cartway is connected or to be connected with other roads or not, setting forth in such petition the beginning, course and termination of the highway or cartway proposed to be located, established, changed or vacated, together with the names of the owners of the land, if known, through which the same may pass, the auditor of such county shall lay such petition before the board of county commissioners at the next session thereafter.

Sec. 2. That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the county of Goodhue, but that as to said county chapter fifty-eight (58) of the General Laws of the extra session of one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one (1881) shall remain in full force and effect.

Sec. 3. That wherever the words "highways" or "road" occur in chapter five of the General Laws of Minnesota for one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three (1873), so far as the same relates to the locating, establishing, changing or vacating highways running into more than one town, said chapter shall be made to read "highways or cartways" or "roads or cartways."

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 18, 1891.

CHAPTER 152—H. F. NO. 288.

An Act to provide for the revision of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota:

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. The supreme court of the State of Minnesota is hereby authorized and requested to appoint three (3) discreet men learned in law, as commissioners to revise the laws of this state.

Sec. 2. Said commissioners, so appointed, or any two (2) of them, shall prepare a report and submit it to the next legislative assembly of the State of Minnesota and with it a draft of the laws as revised by them.

Sec. 3. Said commissioners, or any two (2) of them, are hereby authorized to expend such moneys for clerk hire, printing, stationery, postage and other objects necessary for the purpose of the commission and for the personal expenses of the commissioners, incurred while absent from their several places of abode in and about the business of such commission; provided, that the whole amount of such expenditures shall not exceed the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000).

Sec. 4. Upon the presentation of a certificate, signed by any two (2) of said commissioners, certifying the amount due to any person for either of the items herein mentioned, the state auditor is hereby authorized and required to draw warrants upon the state treasurer for the same. The whole amount of said warrants not to exceed the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000).

Sec. 5. This act shall take effect from the date of its approval.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 153—H. F. NO. 798.

An Act providing for the appointment of commissioners to examine the Torrens Australian system of land transfers, and to make report thereof, and appropriating money to pay such commissioners.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. The governor of the State of Minnesota is hereby authorized and requested to appoint three competent men, as commissioners, to fully investigate, inquire into and examine what is known as the "Torrens Australian system of land transfers," wherever the same has been adopted and is in practical operation.

Sec. 2. Said commissioners, so appointed, or any two of them, shall prepare a report, in detail, of the practical workings of said Torrens system, and fully explaining the same, and submit such report to the next legislative assembly of the State of Minnesota, at the opening of the session, and with it a draft of a bill embodying said system, with a view to its adoption, if deemed advisable.

Sec. 3. Said commissioners shall receive as compensation for their services as such, including all expenses connected therewith, the sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars, to be paid by the state treasurer; and the sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars, payable out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, is hereby appropriated to carry into effect the provisions of this act.

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 154—S. F. NO. 94.

An Act to provide for the erection of a suitable monument to the First Minnesota regiment on the battlefield of Gettysburg.

Whereas, The government has designated the principal lines of battle of the Union forces upon the historic battlefield of Gettysburg by constructing thereon broad avenues, upon which our sister states have erected at appropriate places elegant and enduring monuments, marking the positions and containing brief records of the services of their several regiments there engaged;

And Whereas, The First Regiment Minnesota volunteers, represented this state in that battle with unparalleled gallantry, resolutely and successfully charging and repelling, in a critical emergency, a force of more than twenty times its numbers, and holding back that force firmly until the emergency had passed, though losing in killed and wounded more than four-fifths of its men engaged and without the defection of a single man;

And Whereas, Due regard for the dead, and for the wounded and other survivors, and for the credit of the state, requires the erection of a fitting monument at the place where that charge was made, a monument worthy of that regiment and of this state to whom the regiment and the glory of its matchless valor on that field belongs; therefore,

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That the sum of twenty thousand (20,000) dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended in the construction and erection of a suitable monument to the First Regiment Minnesota volunteers, to be placed upon Hancock avenue, on the battlefield of Gettysburg, at or near the point from which that regiment on July 2nd, 1863, alone and successfully charged two Confederate brigades.

Sec. 2. The money hereby appropriated shall be drawn from the treasury by the governor, upon his warrant or requisition therefor.

Sec. 3. The governor is hereby authorized to appoint three commissioners, who shall serve without compensation, to devise a design and plan of such monument, and to contract for its construction and erection. But no design or plan of such monument shall be adopted, nor contract for its construction and erection be entered into, until the same shall first be approved by the governor.

Sec. 4. In connection with such monument a suitable marker, referring to it and to the regiment, may be constructed and placed on that part of the same avenue occupied by said regiment on July 3rd, 1863, in repelling the charge of the Confederates known as Pickett's charge.

Sec. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 15, 1891.

CHAPTER 155—H. F. NO. 1265.

An Act to appropriate money to carry on an investigation begun by a committee of the house, appointed March 21st, 1891, by the speaker in pursuance of a resolution duly passed by the house on the said day, to investigate whether wheat was taken without inspection from a public elevator in Duluth, and if same condition prevails in other public elevators, etc., and to do and carry on such other things in regard to such investigation as the house of representatives either have or may hereafter direct such committee to do under the original resolution or any resolution.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of ten thousand (10,000) dollars to be used for the purpose of continuing the investigation, begun by the committee of the house appointed March twenty-first (21st), one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one (1891) under resolution duly passed on March twenty-first (21st), one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one (1891), by the house of representatives as follows, to wit:

"Resolved that a committee of five (5) be appointed to investigate whether or not sixty thousand (60,000) bushels of wheat were taken out without inspection from a public elevator in Duluth; and if the same condition prevails in other public elevators in this state, with power to send for persons and papers, administer oaths and employ a stenographer to take down the testimony of witnesses and report to this house."

Sec. 2. The said committee of the house in connection with three (3) senators to be appointed by the president of the senate, one from each political party, who with the said house committee shall constitute a joint committee of the house and senate, shall conduct a further investigation into all matters referred to in said resolution, and any other matters pertaining to the weighing and inspection of grain. Said joint committee shall sit with open doors, examine witnesses and recall witnesses heretofore examined. The joint committee shall have authority to sit after the adjournment of the legislature, to send for persons, employ counsel and such clerks as may be necessary, and papers and compel the attendance of witnesses. The money hereby appropriated shall be paid out by the state treasurer upon the warrants of the state auditor drawn upon requisitions signed by the chairman and a majority of the committee; provided that no member of the investigating committee shall receive to exceed five (5) dollars a day for every day actually employed in the investigation. The committee shall report to the governor of the state as soon as the investigation is completed, and may make partial reports from time to time.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 20, 1891.

CHAPTER 156—H. F. NO. 668.

An Act to establish and maintain farmers' institutes in Minnesota.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That the sum of ten thousand dollars shall be, and is hereby, annually appropriated, beginning with the fiscal year commencing Aug. 1, 1891, for the maintenance of farmers' institutes to be held in the several counties of this state as hereinafter provided:

Sec. 2. That the average cost of such institutes to be paid out of such appropriation shall not exceed the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars, and in such expenditure shall only be included as legitimate and necessary, the board and traveling expenses of the instructors and a reasonable compensation for their services. The salary of the superintendent and his traveling and needful expenses, together with the cost of the necessary outfit of models, charts, outlines, etc., and the expenses consequent upon doing preliminary work, preparatory to the holding of these institutes, shall not be included in calculating this average cost.

Sec. 3. It is hereby provided that none of these moneys shall be expended for hall rent, fuel, lights, local advertising, nor compensation for services of instructors, other than those regularly employed.

Sec. 4. That a board of administration shall be and is hereby created to superintend the execution of this act, and on and after Aug. 1st, 1891, said board shall be constituted as follows:

Two members of the board of regents of the university of Minnesota to be selected by said board of regents; the president of the State Agricultural society, ex-officio; the president of the State Horticultural society, ex-officio; the president of the State Dairy association, ex-officio; and the director of the State Experiment station, ex-officio.

Sec. 5. Each member of the board of regents aforesaid shall hold his office for the period of one year, from Aug. 1st, 1891, at which time, or as soon thereafter as is practicable, and each three years thereafter, said board of regents shall make new appointments from their own number to act as members of said board of administration as successors to the members of the board of regents then in office. Said board of administration may select one of its number annually as president thereof.

Sec. 6. This board of administration is hereby empowered, by a majority vote thereof, to appoint a suitable and competent person state superintendent of farmers' institutes. The superintendent's term of office shall commence on Aug. 1, 1891, and shall continue for two years, subject to the discretion of the board of administration.

Sec. 7. The board of administration shall, in conjunction with the superintendent, arrange the institute circuits to be held annually, determining the times and places when such institutes shall be held during each year, and shall audit the accounts as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 8. The duties of the superintendent of farmers' institutes shall be as follows, viz.:

To superintend the several institutes when located as herein provided, to engage competent instructors therefor, to receive, examine and report upon all bills for expenses and services payable from said appropriation, and at the end of each fiscal year to make a detailed report of all farmers' institutes held under his direction, with an itemized account of all expenditures under this act, during the year last passed, to said board of administration.

Sec. 9. That the expense of such institutes, together with the salary of said superintendent, which is hereby fixed at fifteen hundred dollars per annum and the necessary expenses of his superintendence, and all other money named in this act, shall be paid out of said institute fund by the state treasurer upon warrants issued by the state auditor, which warrants shall only be drawn upon the certificate of the superintendent of institutes approved by the president of the board of administration.

Sec. 10. That the said board of administration is hereby empowered to act as an auditing board and shall receive and audit the report and accounts of said superintendent as aforesaid at the close of each fiscal year.

Sec. 11. That said board of administration shall cause to be published annually a hand book of practical agriculture for free distribution among the farmers of this state, said book to be called a Farmers' Institutes Annual, and No. 4, for the year 1891 and consecutively thereafter, and the necessary expense for such publication shall be met out of the appropriation herein made; provided that the expense of said annual in any one year shall not exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars. All accounts for said annual shall appear in the annual report made as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 12. In arranging for such farmers' institutes, they shall be held, so far as possible, at times and places when most convenient to the farmers of this state; each shall continue for not less than one day nor more than three days, with morning, afternoon, and when practicable, evening sessions; each shall be free to the public, and each shall consist of practical and instructive lectures upon topics pertaining to the farm and home; with essays and addresses, discussions and illustrations of such methods and practices as possess real merit and are adapted to the conditions of our agriculture; the sole object and purpose of these institutes being to disseminate practical knowledge upon questions pertaining to agriculture, horticulture, stock and dairy farming, with the least expense and inconvenience to the people of the state.

Sec. 13. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 22, 1891.

CHAPTER 157—H. F. NO. 627.

An Act to provide for the collection, arrangement and display of the products of the State of Minnesota at the World's Columbian exposition of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893), and to make an appropriation therefor.

Whereas, The congress of the United States has provided by an act approved April twenty-fifth (25th), one thousand eight hundred and ninety (1890), for celebrating the four hundredth (400th) anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, by holding an international exhibition of arts, industries, manufactures, and the products of the soil, mine and sea, in the city of Chicago, in the state of Illinois, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893); and whereas, it is of great importance that the natural resources, industrial development and general progress of the State of Minnesota should be fully and creditably displayed to the world at said exposition, therefore,

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the state of Minnesota:

Section 1. That for the purpose of exhibiting the resources, produce and general development of the state of Minnesota at the World's Columbian exposition of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893), a commission is hereby constituted, to be designated the board of world's fair managers of Minnesota, which shall consist of six (6) citizens, to be selected equally from each of the political parties, to be organized and continue its duties as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2. The members of said board shall be appointed by the governor within thirty (30) days after the passage of this act, and shall meet at such time as the governor may appoint, and organize by the election of a president, a vice president, a secretary and a treasurer. The treasurer of said board shall give a bond to the state in the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000), with sureties to be approved by the governor, for the proper performance of his duties. Four members of said board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The board shall have power to make rules and regulations for its own government; provided such rules and regulations shall not conflict with the regulations adopted under the act of congress for the government of said world's Columbian exposition. Any member of the board may be removed at any time by the governor for cause. Any vacancy which may occur in the membership of said board shall be filled by the governor.

Sec. 3. The members of the board appointed under this act shall not be entitled to any compensation for their services, expenses or transportation.

Sec. 4. The board of world's fair managers is authorized and directed to appoint a superintendent, and to fix his salary, which shall be payable monthly out of the appropriation hereinafter made, and said superintendent shall be authorized and required to assume and exercise, subject to the supervision of said board, all such executive powers and functions as may be necessary to secure a complete and creditable display of the interests of the state at the world's Columbian exposition of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893); and as the executive agent of said board he shall have personal charge of the solicitation, collection, transportation, arrangement and exhibition of the objects sent under the authority of the state to the World's Columbian exposition of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893), and of such objects sent by individual citizens of the state as may be by them placed in his charge. He shall make a report to the board monthly, and shall hold office at the pleasure of the board.

Sec. 5. The governor and the World's Columbian commissioners from the State of Minnesota shall be ex-officio members of the board of world's fair managers for the State of Minnesota in addition to said six (6) citizens aforesaid.

Sec. 6. The said board shall have charge of the interests of the state and its citizens in the preparation and exhibition at the World's Columbian exposition of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893) of the natural and industrial products of the state, and of objects illustrating its history, progress, moral and material welfare and future development; and in all other matters relating to the said world's Columbian exposition; it shall communicate with the officers of, and obtain and disseminate through the state all necessary information regarding said exposition, and in general have and exercise full authority in relation to the participation of the State of Minnesota and its citizens in the world's Columbian exposition of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893).

Sec. 7. The said board shall make a report of its proceedings and expenditures from time to time to the governor and at any time upon his written request, to be by him transmitted to the legislature, together with such suggestions as he may deem important regarding provision for a complete and creditable representation of the state at the world's Columbian exposition of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three (1893). At the close of said world's fair all exhibits now belonging to the state or hereafter acquired which cannot be disposed of with pecuniary advantage shall be turned over to and become the property of the University of the State of Minnesota; but such exhibits as said university cannot conveniently care for shall be turned over to and become the property of the state agricultural society of the State of Minnesota. The proceeds of any sale shall be turned into the state treasury.

Sec. 8. To carry out the provisions of this act the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) is hereby appropriated, and the state treasurer is directed to pay the same from the general fund from time to time, on the requisition of said board, signed by its president and secretary, and approved by the governor, and accompanied by estimates of the expenses to the payment of which the money so drawn is to be applied; provided always, that no portion of said fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) shall be used for the erection of any building, excepting such sum, not exceeding five thousand dollars, as may be necessary for rooms for state headquarters contiguous to the state exhibit in any buildings erected by the said exposition for the display of state collective exhibits. Any state officer or officer acting under this act who shall pledge or attempt to pledge the credit of this state beyond the sum appropriated herein shall be deemed guilty of larceny, in the sum so pledged or attempted to be pledged; and this state shall in no manner be liable in law or equity therefor; provided that no part of any money appropriated shall be paid as premiums for any exhibits.

Sec. 9. All collections, photographs, maps, specimens, furniture, or other property of the state used in the state collective exhibit at the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition of New Orleans in 1884-5, and now deposited in any of the state institutions, or at the experimental farm, the state fair buildings, or with the state fish commission, or at the state capitol, or elsewhere in the hands of state officers, shall be furnished to the board of world's fair managers so far as in their judgment such materials may be available for use in the exhibit contemplated by this act, such collections, specimens, etc., as above specified, to be returned to said depositories after the close of the exposition, and any new collections of permanent value made by said board, and which may by this act become the property of the state, shall be distributed to and be preserved by such state institutions, societies or archives as the board shall deem most suitable, after such exchanges shall have been made with other collections and institutions as the board may deem in the interests of science or for the benefit of this state.

Sec. 10. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

CHAPTER 158—H. F. NO. 49.

An Act to furnish seed grain for distribution in certain counties afflicted by frosts or blight or hail during the season of one thousand eight hundred and ninety (1890), to provide for the repayment thereof, and to authorize the boards of county commissioners of such counties to issue bonds for the payment thereof.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. It is hereby made the duty of the county auditors of the counties of Traverse, Big Stone, Stevens, Lac qui Parle and Pope, respectively, in the State of Minnesota, wherein the crop of the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety (1890) was partially or wholly destroyed by frost, or blight, or hail, to give notice before the tenth (10th) day of March, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one (1891), to the respective town clerks of the several towns of said counties, requiring them to post notices immediately, in at least three (3) of the most public places in each town notifying all persons wishing to avail themselves of the benefits of this act to meet at the town clerk's office and file with said town clerk on or before the twenty-fifth (25th) day of March, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one (1891), an application duly subscribed and sworn to by the applicant before said town clerk.

Said application shall contain a true statement of the number of acres the applicant has plowed and prepared for seeding for the ensuing season's crop; how many acres the applicant intends to have plowed and prepared for such seeding before seeding time; how many bushels are necessary and of what kinds of grain to seed the ground so prepared or to be prepared, and also that said applicant's crop was in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety (1890) entirely destroyed by frost or blight or hail, as the case may be, or if only partially destroyed, the extent of such destruction and how many bushels of each kind of grain the applicant harvested in said year one thousand eight hundred and ninety (1890); also what amount of said grain and of what kind of grain the applicant desires to borrow from the state; that the applicant has not procured and is not able to procure the necessary seed grain and that he desires the same for seed grain and for no other purpose and will not sell or dispose of the same or any part thereof.

Said application shall also contain a true and full description of all real and personal property owned by the applicant, and the incumbrances, if any, thereon, and the full description by government subdivisions of the land upon which the applicant intends to sow said seed grain.

Sec. 2. The town clerk of each town shall on or before the twelfth (12th) day of March A. D. eighteen hundred and ninety-one (1891), forward all applications made before him to the county auditor of his county, who shall file the same in his office. All applications filed in any county auditor's office under the provisions of this act shall be open to public inspection, and no applications shall be considered by the board provided for in section three (3) in this act except such as have been made and filed within the time and in the manner prescribed in section one (1) of this act.

Sec. 3. The board of county commissioners of each county, where the provisions of this act are applicable, shall be and are hereby constituted and appointed a board of examination and adjustment of the applications for seed grain under this act, and it shall be the duty of said board to meet at the county auditor's office on the seventeenth day of March, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one (1891), to examine and consider separately each application as provided in section one (1) of this act, and to decide who are entitled to benefits herein mentioned and the amount to which each applicant is entitled, and said board shall on or before the twenty-first (21st) day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one (1891), forward to the governor of the State of Minnesota a statement giving the number of applicants, the number of acres prepared or to be prepared, and the number of bushels of each kind of seed grain needed in the county. Said statement shall comprise and include only such applications as have been approved by said board and shall be signed by the chairman of said board and countersigned by the county auditor; provided no one applicant shall be allowed a greater amount in value of seed grain than one hundred and fifty ($150) dollars.

Sec. 4. The governor, upon receipt of the statements as provided in section three (3) of this act, if the same shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), appropriated for such purpose, shall apportion and distribute the amounts called for to the several counties for which applications are received, but if the amounts applied for shall exceed in the aggregate said sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000), then the governor shall apportion and distribute that sum to the counties applying pro rata in proportion to the amounts called for by said counties respectively, as shown by said statements of the county auditors thereof; and thereupon the governor shall inform each county auditor of the amount apportioned to his county, and shall authorize the board of county commissioners to purchase seed grain to the amount so apportioned, and cause the same to be distributed to the applicants in said county who are entitled to receive the same under the provisions of this act. It shall be a misdemeanor for any county commissioner to make any gain or profit from any transaction growing out of or connected with the operation of this act.

Sec. 5. Immediately upon receiving notice from the governor of the amount apportioned to their county, the board of county commissioners shall meet at the county auditor's office and readjust the applications in their county for seed grain, and apportion the amount that has been allowed to the county, among the applicants approved by said board pro rata in proportion to the amount required by each if there shall not be sufficient grain to supply all in full. Provided, that after all approved applicants for said grain in any county are supplied, if there be a surplus the same shall be sold by direction of the board of county commissioners, and the sum received therefor shall be turned over to the county treasurer, who shall give his receipt therefor, and said sum shall thereupon by him be paid over to the state treasurer, who shall receipt for the same to said county and endorse said amount so received on the county bond of the county making such payment.

Sec. 6. The county auditor of each county shall, as soon as the county commissioners shall have performed the duty prescribed in section five (5), issue to each applicant an order for the number of bushels of each kind of seed grain which has been allowed to said applicant.

Provided, however, that said order shall not be delivered until said applicant has signed a contract in triplicate, attested by the county auditor, to the effect that said applicant for and in consideration of ——— bushels of seed grain (naming the amount and kind) received from the state, promises to pay to the State of Minnesota (naming amount) ——— dollars, the amount of the cost of said seed grain; that said sum shall be taxable against all the real and personal property of said applicant; that such tax shall be levied by the county auditor of his county and collected as taxes against real and personal property are collected under the laws of this state, and that the sum so levied shall be a first lien upon the crop of grain raised each year by the person receiving said seed grain until said amount is fully paid.

Sec. 7. It shall be the duty of the county auditor of each county to cause the tax provided for in section six (6) to be levied against the property of each person receiving seed grain under the provisions of this act. One-half of said tax shall be levied in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one (1891), and the other half shall be levied in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two (1892), and all moneys collected by the county treasurer under the provisions of this act shall be kept separate from other state and county taxes, and shall be paid over to the state treasurer forthwith upon receipt of the same.

Sec. 8. The contracts provided for in section six (6) of this act shall be numbered consecutively by the county auditor; one (1) shall be filed in the office of the county auditor; one (1) shall be transmitted to the state auditor and filed in his office, and the third (3d) shall be filed in the office of the town clerk where the applicant making the contract resides.

The county auditor shall keep and transcribe in a book, to be used for that purpose only, said contracts and a correct list and schedule of the applications, giving the name of each applicant, the number of his application, the date of his contract, the cost of each kind of seed grain furnished to him, the description of land occupied by him, and showing also the total amount of money furnished to said county by the state.

A true copy of said list and schedule so transcribed shall be made and signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners and certified to by the auditor, and forwarded to the governor; and whenever the amount provided for in any contract filed under the provisions of this act is fully paid, the county auditor is empowered to cancel such contract, and he shall write the word "satisfied" opposite the name of such person in the book in which said contracts are entered, and shall deliver up said contract to the person entitled thereto.

Sec. 9. Upon the filing of the contract as provided in section eight (8) of this act, the State of Minnesota shall acquire a just and valid lien upon the crops of grain raised each year by the person receiving said seed grain, to the amount of the sum then due to the state upon said contract, as against all subsequent creditors, purchasers or mortgagees, in good faith or otherwise, and the said filings of said contract shall be held and considered to be full and sufficient notice to all parties of the existence and extent of said lien, which shall continue in force until the amount covered by said contract is fully paid.

Each and every person who has received seed grain under the provisions of this act shall, as soon as his crops of the year wherein payment is to be made under his said contract are harvested and threshed, market a sufficient amount of grain to pay the amount then due on his contract, and pay the same over at once to the county treasurer of his county, which payment shall satisfy said lien for that year.

Sec. 10. Any person or persons who shall, contrary to the provisions of this act, sell, transfer, take or carry away or in any manner dispose of the seed grain, or any part thereof, furnished by the state as provided in this act, or who shall use of said seed grain, or any thereof for any other purpose of sowing and planting his ground, or who shall transfer, take or carry away, or in any manner dispose of the crop, or any part thereof, procured by sowing or planting of said seed grain, with the intent to defraud the state, or the applicant for such seed grain, or to deprive said applicant of the use and benefit thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof before any justice of the peace shall pay a fine of not less than ten ($10) dollars, or more than one hundred ($100) dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail for a term of not less than ninety (90) days, and shall pay all costs of prosecution, and whoever under any of the provisions herein shall be found guilty of false swearing shall be deemed to have committed perjury and shall suffer the pains and penalties of that crime.

Sec. 11. It shall be the duty of the supervisors, constables and town clerks of towns, and the commissioners, sheriffs, and county attorneys of counties receiving aid under the provisions of this act, having knowledge of any violation of said provisions, to make complaint thereof to any justice of the proper county, and said justice shall thereupon issue a warrant for the arrest of the offender, and proceed to hear and determine the matter in issue in the same manner as provided in other cases, and every person convicted under the provisions of this act shall stand committed to the county jail until his fine is paid, provided such imprisonment shall not exceed ninety days.

Sec. 12. The county commissioners of each and every county receiving aid under the provisions of this act are hereby authorized and empowered to issue the bonds of such county to the State of Minnesota for the full amount of the aid received by such county, which bonds shall be payable on or before four (4) years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of three per cent per annum, payable annually, and shall be signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners, and countersigned by the county auditor, and sealed with his seal.

Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum after maturity, and shall be delivered to the state auditor before the aid contemplated by this act is furnished by the state.

All payments made by the county treasurer to the state treasurer as in this act provided shall be endorsed and credited, when made, on the bond of said county.

Sec. 13. If the said bonds are not paid before the year in which the same become due, the county auditor of the proper county shall at the time of making the annual tax levy for such year, levy an additional tax upon all the taxable property of such county for an amount sufficient to pay the sum then remaining unpaid on the bonds of his county issued as aforesaid, said tax to be levied and collected as other county taxes.

Sec. 14. That the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) be and the same is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated for the purpose of this act.

Sec. 15. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved February 24, 1891.

CHAPTER 159—H. F. NO. 607.

An Act to amend section one (1) of House File No. forty-nine (49), an act entitled "An act to furnish seed grain for distribution in certain counties," approved February twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and ninety-one (1891).

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That House File No. forty-nine (49), an act entitled "An act to furnish seed grain for distribution in certain counties afflicted by frost or blight or hail during the season of eighteen hundred and ninety (1890)," approved February twenty-fourth (24th), eighteen hundred and ninety-one (1891), be amended as follows: That the words and figures twenty-fifth (25th) day of March, where they occur in line four (4) of section one (1) of said bill be stricken out, and insert in lieu thereof the words and figures eleventh (11th) day of March.

PHONOGRAPH'S QUEER USES.

Some Stories Which Show That the Wonder Is Rapidly Growing.

Philadelphia Record: The phonograph seems likely soon to reach its heyday of prosperity. New fields are opening up day by day before the unobtrusive-looking little instrument, whose eavesdropping propensities are proverbial. At Newark, a day or two ago, a very funny story came to light. Mary Dusen keeps a boarding house, and one of her guests, Edward Edgands, owns a phonograph. Edward had a vague idea that all was not well with the hash Mary was wont to serve at breakfast five or six times each week. One day he placed his phonograph just within range of the kitchen, and the instrument recorded, and faithfully, too, the directions Mary gave the cook for compounding hash. The next day he entertained the boarders and horrified Mrs. Dusen by placing the hash recipe cylinder on the phonograph and having it recite the directions given the cook by Mary. It was alleged that this trick hurt Mrs. Dusen's business, and she entered suit against Edgands before Justice Beauvelt, who, after hearing the evidence, including the hash recipe, decided that the phonograph could not lie, and dismissed the case.

Gen. George Pearson, ex-Gov. Beaver's private secretary, is another victim of the phonograph. While at Harrisburg he made frequent use of the instrument, and often entertained his friends with cornet solos, Sousa marches and operatic airs. One day a relative of the same cognomen visited the governor's office with his best girl. The secretary was out, and the young man, who understood it, started the phonograph for the young lady's edification. Securing a new cylinder he told the maid to talk into this, somewhat in this vein: "I love you, George." George kisses her, and the phonograph records the smack. "Will you always be constant and true?" lisped the maid, and another kiss went on record.

This evening Secretary Pearson took his wife and a party of friends to his office. They listened to [illegible] play the cornet, Gilmore's band and heard Dr. Talmage tell of his trip abroad. Then the luckless secretary placed the cylinder used by the lovers on the instrument, "to see what it was," and heard. So did Mrs. Pearson and her friends. It took Mr. Pearson a week of Sundays to explain the matter to his wife's satisfaction. He has never used a phonograph since.

The owner of a cylinder which reproduces "Home, Sweet Home," as sung by Patti, tells an interesting story of how it was obtained. The diva positively refused to sing for a "record," so it was decided to steal it. A box was reserved at the San Francisco theater. The phonograph was placed therein in such a manner as to entirely conceal it from view. When the sweet singer responded to the encore the instrument was started. She sang "Home, Sweet Home" as only Patti can, and the possessor of the cylinder swears that the instrument recorded the thud of the auditors' tears as they fell to the floor, and the phonograph cannot lie.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

Flashed by the Wires of the Telegraph Condensed and Classified for Convenience of Readers.

Washington, Foreign, Accidental, Personal, Criminal and Other News of Importance.

WASHINGTON.

The treasury department is receiving numerous applications for the shipment of minor silver coin, in response to Treasurer Nebeker's circular. Many of these applications are from merchants in the far West and Southwest. Shipments are being made as rapidly as possible.

Secretary Foster has sent to Fred K. Thatcher, keeper of the Cleveland breakwater light station, a gold life saving "second service bar," suitably inscribed, in recognition of his gallantry in rescuing Mrs. Catherine Hazen from drowning near Cleveland breakwater, Lake Erie, on the night of Oct. 26, 1890.

In the legislature Colonial Secretary Bond read a message from Lord Knutsford, addressed to Gov. O'Brien, formally notifying the Newfoundland legislature that unless it passes an act to carry out the treaties between Great Britain and France, the bill now before the house of lords will become a law. Lord Knutsford's message was treated with silent contempt, and no notice was taken of it by the members of government or the legislature.

The clerks in the treasury office have identified $16.900 of the $17,000 charred and burned in the recent wreck at Waring station on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in Maryland. The money was so scarred and black that the packages looked like charcoal, but by expertness in separating each note and putting it under a strong magnifying glass all the money was identified with the exception of $100, which the express company carrying the money will lose.

PEOPLE IN PRINT.

Prof. C. S. Nash, of Hartford theological seminary, has accepted an appointment as professor of homiletics and pastoral theology at the Pacific theological seminary, Oakland, Cal.

Barry Sullivan, the well-known tragedian, is dead. He was born at Birmingham, England, in 1821 and first appeared on the stage in Cork in 1840. He visited America in 1857 and had an enthusiastic reception. He also visited Australia and India.

Capt. Huggins, in charge of army headquarters at Chicago in the absence of Gen. Miles, received a dispatch from Fort Washaki, Wyo., to the effect that Company L of the Eighth infantry had just been organized as an Indian company. The company is composed of twenty-eight Shoshones and twenty-seven Arapahoes, and they will be subjected to the same regulation and discipline as the white soldiers. White officers will command them.

CASUALTIES.

At Syracuse, N. Y., fire did $120,000 damage to the building and stock of J. W. Eager and three tenants. Half insured.

The Albuquerque (N. Mex.) foundry and machine works have been totally destroyed by fire. The fire was no doubt the work of an incendiary.

The large livery barn of August Hauntzman at Manson, Iowa, was burned. Nineteen horses, including two thoroughbred stallions, were roasted. The loss will be over $10,000, with slight insurance.

At Cambridge City, Md., the family of Thomas Knox ate very heartily of weinerwurst and shortly after showed symptoms of poisoning. One child is dead and four others are in a critical condition.

In a collision between passenger trains on the Pan Handle road near Dennison, Ohio, Baggagemaster Longnecker was killed. Several passengers were injured, but none seriously.

Chester E. Wilcox, a billard table manufacturer, while speeding his horse at Cold Spring Park, Milwaukee, was thrown from his sulky and instantly killed. His neck was broken.

An explosion of gas occurred in the Ocean coal mine near Clarksburg, W. Va., instantly killing George Feather, William Dougherty, Nathan Gains and Charles Welsh. The mine is on fire.

Conrad's opera house was destroyed by fire at Tyrone, Pa., Templeton & Crawford's millinery store and the establishment of Charles Conrad were also burned out. Loss, $20,000, partly insured. The cause of the fire is unknown.

WICKEDNESSES.

William Price was hanged at Marshall, Mo., for an assault upon Miss Alice Ninas, who afterward married but later committed suicide rather than testify regarding the assault.

In the Somerville police court at Boston, Dr. Leach was held in $10,000 for malpractice in causing the death of a girl domestic in his employ, and his wife was held in $5,000 as an accessory. Both were held for the grand jury.

Considerable disorder prevails at Barcelona. Five petards exploded, causing great alarm and doing much damage. A conflict between the police and strikers has just taken place. Pistol shots were exchanged. The ring-leaders among the rioters were arrested.

It has been learned that J. L. Dunn, who is under arrest at Atlanta, Ga., for forging a bill of cotton which enabled him to secure $12,500, is Thomas F Sibley, who on March 19 last swindled Wood Bros, of Chicago out of $5,200. Requisition papers have been applied for, and if the authorities at Atlanta will release Dunn he will be brought here for prosecution.

FOREIGN.

Marquis Di Rudini, the Italian premier, has signed a treaty renewing the dreibund for five years.

A French scientific expedition in Terra del Fuego was attacked by Indians, and it is reported that only two members escaped.

The rumor is again current in London that United States Minister Porter will soon leave Rome.

The Bolckow art collection was sold at auction in London, and realized $316,900, Meissonier's "Sign Painter" was sold for $83,600.

A cable from London says that Nunc Wallace has issued a challenge to fight Cal McCarthy at 7 stone 12 pounds for £500 to £1,000 either in England or America, give or take expenses.

The reichstag budget committee has approved of the grant of $25,000 to defray the cost of the steps to be taken in order to enable Germany to make a suitable participation in the Chicago world's fair.

A savage attack on the Rock Island management is printed in a late edition of the Financial Times of London. It claims that President Cable and the directors devote too much time to dabbling in stocks.

The queen regent of Spain having been appointed umpire to the dispute between Columbia and Venezuela over the boundary lines between those two republics, has rendered her decision, which is entirely in favor of Columbia.

It is reported that the treaty of commerce between Spain and the United States contains no stipulation in regard to its duration, and that therefore the treaty may be renounced by either side upon due notice of such action being given.

The Chilian insurgent party, over the signatures of Senors Moutt, Silva, Barros and Luce, has issued a notification which has been presented to the French government for the ministers and congressmen who are opposed to President Balmaceda has been established for the administration of the affairs of the eight Chilian provinces which are now in the hands of the insurgents.

SPORTING TRIFLES

The California Athletic club has decided to match Abe Willis, the Australian bantam-weight, and George Dixon, colored champion, for a fight. The purse will be $5,000 and the fight will take place in June.

In Chicago Rolla Heikes not only succeeded in his attempt to break 450 artificial flights at trap shooting in ninety minutes, but established a new record. He shot at 523 flights and broke the stipulated 450 in 52 minutes and 58 seconds.

Champion Powers and ex-Champion Deore played off their tie for three-cornered $450 jackpot in Chicago. The Cuban was "rattled" and he missed easy shots. Had not his nerves forsaken him in the nineteenth frame he might have won out.

The challenge game of billards between Jacob Schaefer, the world's champion, and Eugene Carter in Chicago, was easily won by Schaefer. The score stood: Schaefer, 800; Carter, 481. Though beaten, Carter had the best run, 111, Schaefer's highest being 101.

The board of appeals of the American Trotting association concluded its semi-annual meeting, held in Chicago. About fifty cases were disposed of, but none were of sensational interest. The Nelson case was not presented to the board and no action was taken in the matter.

LABOR CIRCLES

At Milwaukee a settlement of the stone cutters' strike has been effected, and this is apparently the beginning of the end of the trouble in the building trades.

Striking quarrymen near St. Louis drove the negroes who had taken their places away from two quarries and carried off all the tools.

Nominally a general strike of the union carpenters in Milwaukee was inaugurated but in reality the strike had very little effect on the labor situation. Many carpenters were idle before the strike was declared.

Three thousand non-union men are at work in the coke region of Pennsylvania, and it is thought that unless the strikers return to work soon the 14,000 men still idle in the region will be forced from their work, homes, and even the region.

Nearly 1,000 dock laborers at Ashtabula Harbor, O., struck against a reduction of wages. The men spent the day in parading. They have committed no acts of violence as yet, but say they will permit no one to take their places.

Seventeen hundred journeymen cigarmakers employed in Chicago went on strike for an increase of pay. About one-half of the manufacturers conceded the demands of the union. In all such shops the men returned to work at once. With the firms which have refused the increased pay the fight will be kept up as long as it is possible to maintain it.

POLITICAL CIRCLES.

O. K. Peckham of St. Louis has been elected president of the National Confectioners' association, in session at St. Louis.

The Iowa Republican state central committee has issued a call for a state convention to nominate a gubernatorial ticket, to be held at Cedar Rapids, July 1.

RAILROADS.

Union Pacific earnings for March: Gross earnings, $3,176,857; decrease, $308,720; net, $1,016,858; decrease, $42,091.

A dispatch from Tacoma stated the Great Northern road had decided to cross the Cascade mountains through the Nachez pass. Vice President Clough was asked if there was any foundation for the report. Mr. Clough said there was none whatever, and that no definite plan had been decided upon.

IN GENERAL.

John Calder & Co., commission merchants of New Orleans, have asked a respite of one, two and three years. The liabilities are $265,000, and assets $500,000.

At Springfield, Ohio. Elder Green immersed Mrs. Alice Madison, who is dying with consumption, in a metallic casket, in which she will be buried.

Wolf's periodic comet has been rediscovered by Mr. Barnard at Lock observatory. It is extremely faint and small, and is following closely the path predicted for it.

The New York supreme court continues J. Edward Simmons as permanent receiver to wind up the affairs of the American Loan and Trust company. He was previously made temporary receiver.

Charles J. Dickson, who declared himself to be vice president of an organization known as Christ's Followers and who said he went to New York from the West to kill Jay Gould has been declared insane.

The bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church are in session in Greencastle, Ind., with closed doors, discussing the laying out of conference work for the coming year.

The Rio Grande is now within a few inches of the highest point in the history of flood of 1884, and residents of the low lands are greatly alarmed. The bridges at Albuquerque and Los Lunas are wrecked below Socorro.

The Knutsford Newfoundland bill has passed the committee stage in the British house of lords after a futile attempt to postpone action until the Newfoundland parliament could pass a bill affecting the French fisheries.

The world's fair directors have refused the demand for a minimum rate of wages made by labor organizations. An appropriation of $200.000 has been made for the building on the lake front to be known as a world's fair congress hall during the fair and a permanent art palace thereafter.

Efforts to remove the so-called intruders from the Cherokee strip are liable to result in blood-shed. Two hundred negroes have appeared on the scene under arms and are drawn up in regular battle array. The situation is decidedly critical, and it is feared that the parties will come to a clash before the matter is ended.

PLUNGED INTO FIRE.

A Horrible and Fatal Accident Happens to a Pennsylvania Logging Railroad.

Coudersport, Pa., May 13.—To-night the pretty little lumber and farming towns of Austin, Costello, Galeton and Moore's Run, in Potter county, are on the verge of a panic, two especially being threatened with annihilation from fires that seem to form an impenetrable wall on every side.

For several days past the skies have been lighted up with fires apparently in every direction. But little fears were entertained by people living in the towns, as those threatened and in danger were farmers in the country districts, or lumber camps in the midst of the blazing forests. In spite of every effort, however, the flames crept steadily in snaky lines of smoke and flame toward the helpless towns until it was seen the people must fight back the flames or have their very houses burned down over their heads.

At Moore's run, on the Sinnemahoning Valley road, a train load of seventy-five willing men sent out from Austin Sunday night had been fighting back the fire by every conceivable means. They made trenches, piled up earth, and lighted back-fires, but were finally obliged to retreat.

The men hastily boarded the train, and started to make a run to another point; when it was found they were hemmed in by the forest fire on one side and on the other. It was finally decided to dash past the burning skidway, and the engineer and fireman, with faces covered with dampened cloths and their hands and arms wrapped in wool, mounted the little engine and pulled out through the wall of fire. The seventy-five exhausted men gathered in groups on the flats for protection, or lay on their faces on the floor. As the blazing furnace of logs was approached the heat became unbearable, and the smoke so blinding and stifling the men were obliged to cover their mouths with cloths.

Just opposite the millions of feet of burning logs, where the heat and smoke and flame were the greatest, a terrible thing occurred. The engineer had forgotten that such great heat would surely spread the rails, and he pulled the throttle wider in the hope of sooner escaping from a torment of heat and smoke. Then there was a lurch, an ominous heaving, and a shriek of despair as the train toppled over into the hell of fire beneath.

A scene ensued never to be forgotten by those who escaped, though every man will bear to his grave a mark of that awful moment. The cars caught fire like so many paper playthings, and the men within, half blinded and scarcely realizing anything except that they were being slowly struggling fearfully to regain the track, where safety lay for a time at least. Those uninjured from the fall, and only smarting from the pain of intense heat, bravely turned their burned, blackened hands to aid their more unfortunate fellows.

At this hour it is impossible to secure details, though enough is known of the scene that followed the hurling of the struggling mass of men into the furnace of flames to say that its like had never occurred before.

Supt. Badger, of the Sinnemahoning Valley road, was in charge of the relief train, and had worked the hardest of all to save the properties of others. When the train was ditched and rolled over so suddenly he must have been injured so as to be unable to help himself, and, owing to the smoke and panic, he was not found until too late. Jammed in the wreck, he had evidently burned to death.

At this time—9:30 p. m.—it is known that six others also miserably perished at once, or died soon after, and thirty others of the party were badly burned, many probably fatally, owing to fears that they inhaled the flames that seemed to fairly spring into their faces. Seven others of the party are missing and their fate is unknown, though they are likely in the charred wood of the logs or train.

started for the scene as soon as the fearful news spread, many male relatives of the men injured insisting on accompanying the train, though they will hardly be able to reach the place of the wreck unless the fires have burned themselves out.

Owing to the great devastation done to everything in the way of the fire communication is badly interrupted, and it is impossible to learn the names of the men burned or those still missing.

As to the damage, it is known 40,000,000 feet of hemlock logs and timber and 25,000 cords of valuable bark have already been destroyed, and the fires are raging without any appreciable diminution.

This evening the people are praying for rain, as it seems nothing but a drenching will quench the flames that have grown so fierce they must either be extinguished by the floods of heaven or burn out for lack of material.

The timber lands are owned by Goodyear Bros. of Buffalo and are situated in Potter, McKean and Tioga counties, and cover about 108,000 acres. The firm's extensive sawmills are located at Austin and are capable of turning out 4,000,000 feet of lumber per day. The Goodyears built the Sinnemahoning Valley railroad some years ago to carry their lumber to the Western New York and Pennsylvania roads.

SHOT HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Then He Sent a Bullet Through His Head.

Le Mars, Iowa, Special Telegram, May 13.—Thomas Saunders, a farmer living twelve miles south of Le Mars, came to town this morning and shot his mother-in-law, Mary A. Lidster, and then shot himself through the head. The woman will recover.

Saunders' wife walked home, to her mother, twelve miles, Saturday night, after a stormy scene with her husband. He blamed the mother-in-law for the domestic trouble. The coroner's jury declared Saunders insane. The widow and five children are left in good circumstances.

An Old Land Mark Burned.

Pleasant Valley, Wis., Special, May 13.—The house of S. W. Matteson caught fire this morning and burned to the ground. His son-in-law lived with him, and they lost most of the bedding and all of their best clothes. No insurance on house or contents. The house was an old land-mark, built about thirty-five years ago.

Arrived Safely.

Tacoma, Wash., May 13.—A report reached here to-day that the party of colonists on the steamer Lucy Lowe, reported wrecked on the straits of Juan De Fuca, arrived at their destination safely this morning after many hardships.

FIRED ON STRIKERS.

Denver, Colo., May 13.—A desperate fight took place in City Park to-day between F. N. Davis and Ed Davis (white), and John White, Tom Davis, E. Farris, J. W. Smith and J. Blackburn (colored), on one side and fifty or more strikers on the other. Two men were fatally shot and about twelve more wounded, more or less seriously. The fight, which was at close range, was brought about by the brickmakers' strike, which has been in progress at the Davis yards for several weeks past. This morning F. N. Davis and son, proprietors of the brick, with eight negroes, with double-barreled shot guns, heavily loaded with buckshot, started for the yards with the avowed intention of beginning work or dying in the attempt. As they were nearing the yards a party of strikers, headed by Frank Surber, appeared. Davis ordered the strikers to allow his men to pass. This this the strikers would not do, and Davis and son five men opened fire on the strikers. Thomas Kelly was shot in the small of the back and died two hours after.

Kelly was not a striker, and only went to the place out of mere curiosity. John Ridenour was also mortally wounded, and was taken to the Sisters' hospital in a dying condition. W. J. Shamel, who was one of the injured, said:

"We were sitting under the trees when Davis and his party came up with their guns on their arms. Mr. Surber said: 'Mr. Davis, we would like to talk to these men.' Davis replied: 'We want no talking.' Then he shouted, 'Fire!' and emptied his gun at the strikers. When poor Ridenour fell, young Davis shot him again after he was down." A number of men who were present at the time corroborated the story of Shamul.

The men about the park say that in addition to the men who were shot two little boys who were crossing the street at the time were hit by stray shot, but neither was fatally hurt.

FEW TAILS' MURDER.

It Is to Be Investigated by the Meade County Grand Jury.

Sturgis, S. D., Special Telegram, May 13.—The regular session of the Meade county circuit court opens here to-morrow. This session is of more than ordinary interest, as the signs indicate that the case of the slayers of Few Tails, the Indian killed last winter on Alkali creek by certain settlers, will be brought before the grand jury.

Deputy United States Marshal Matthieson arrived here yesterday from the Pine Ridge agency with Few Tails' widow and young daughter, as well as other Indian witnesses, to testify in the case. The squaw of Few Tails, it will be remembered, was severely wounded at the time of the affray, and made her way more dead than alive across the snow-covered prairies toward the agency, a distance of over ninety miles. She is now a cripple for life.

Attorney General Miller has instructed United States District Attorney Sterling of this state to appear here and assist our state's attorney in the proceedings. Mr. Sterling arrived this morning. The probabilities are that a most interesting case will be heard here, even rivaling the trial of Plenty Horses at Sioux Falls.

A BLOODY FIGHT.

Three Men Killed and Five Others Fatally Injured.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 13.—Details of a murderous affray which occurred on Wolf creek, near the North Carolina line, have been received here.

Jonathan Bell, an old and well-to-do man, the head of a mountain family, lost his wife by death six weeks ago. After two weeks he married a girl of seventeen, greatly to the disgust of his family. As time passed they grew more dissatisfied, and finally they went in a body to the old man's house, and taking the young wife out, stripped her and gave her 100 lashes.

On the following day, on complaint of the elder Bell and John Ballew, the white cappers were arrested, but released on bonds. They went to Ballew's house to punish him for interfering. Ballew and his family resisted, and in the battle which followed John Bell was killed. "Big" and "Wild Bill" Bell, Hiram Morton, Jack Johnson and three others were fatally shot. Johnson and "Big" Bell have since died, and it is said others are dying. There have been no arrests, and both sides are armed for more warfare.

A LIVELY CONTEST

Going on for the Location of an Indian Industrial School.

Black River Falls, Wis., Special, May 13. The Indian commissioner is to establish somewhere in this state an industrial school for the Winnebago Indians, and there is at present a lively contest going on between this and Shawano counties to secure its location.

A very large percentage of the Winnebagos reside in this county, and many of them have comfortable houses and are nearer the verge of civilization than they are elsewhere. There are also many pleasant associations and traditions of the tribe especially calculated to make this acceptable to Indians as the location of such a school. Black river has always had strong attractions for them, and especially as along its bank was the old camping grounds and battle fields of the famous old chief, Dakorah, whose name will live as long as the history of the tribe.

The citizens are largely petitioning the commissioner to locate the school somewhere in this county, as good farming lands can be obtained at very reasonable rates for the farm to be used in connection with it.

IN THE MOUNTAINS.

President Harrison and Party Visit Several Colorado Cities.

Colorado Springs, Col., May 13.—The presidential party arrived here this evening after a day spent in Leadville, Salida, Villa Grove, Pueblo and other places, where they met with rousing receptions.

At Leadville the president was presented a brick weighing eighty ounces, or nearly seven pounds, made of Leadville silver 999 fine, and the ladies of the party received beautiful souvenirs, including silver spoons, bullion bars, etc.

The presidential party retired to-night on the train, which will leave for Denver to-morrow morning.

Died in Church.

Little Falls, Minn., Special, May 13.—Lewis Scott, the aged janitor of the Episcopal church in this city, fell in an epileptic fit last evening while attending to his duties at the church, and died in a few minutes without regaining consciousness. He was a veteran of the Eighth Minnesota Volunteers.

Touched by Death.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—Hon. John W. Roche, for over a quarter of a century city controller of St. Paul, dropped dead on a Selby avenue cable train.

THE NORTHWEST.

MINNESOTA.

A. H. Spetry's stock barn, adjoining the city limits of William, and nine horses were burned. Loss, $2,500.

One of the men who burglarized Schlessener's store at Little Falls was arrested, and is now in jail. He had offered a razor for sale and the police nabbed him.

Coroner G. R. Pease of Redwood Falls was notified that James Brown, a farmer living in the town of Repo, had committed suicide by hanging himself. The motive for the commission of the act is unknown.

The eight-year-old son of H. Charron was nearly trampled to death at Little Falls, while watering a vicious horse. His thigh was broken, but his sister pulled him from under the animal and saved his life.

Work will soon begin on the $50,000 hospital and school building of the Franciscan sisters, who make their headquarters at Little Falls. An additional $25,000 building will be erected next year.

Heinmiller's hotel was burned at Marshall. Some of the guests were forced to jump from windows to escape. The hotel barn also caught fire and was consumed. Very little property was saved. Only a small insurance was carried.

Every quarry man in the St. Cloud quarries have quit work, the result of the Producers' association refusing to accept their scale of wages. There is very little probability of the matter being speedily adjusted as both sides are not disposed to yield.

Frost nipped some fields of flax in the vicinity of Northfield that had reached an advanced state, and it is feared that it will be an entire loss. Quite a bit of garden vegetables were also frozen, but the loss in the aggregate will not amount to much.

J. M. Thompson, of Northfield was awarded the gold medal for the largest number of sales by the Simmons Hardware Company of St. Louis. The medal is of solid gold, studded with diamonds, and is a most creditable work of art.

A "Citizens' association" to promote the social and business interests of the town was organized at Lake City with a membership of fifty-two, which will soon be largely increased. A board of directors was elected.

John Masteller, who was tried one year ago at Long Prairie on the charge of attempt to commit rape and given a ten year's sentence by Judge Searle was granted a new trial on points of law. The case came up and was dismissed by consent of both attorneys.

The question of issuing bonds for water works was voted on at Luverne. The opposition was very slight. The project carried by a vote of 155 to 32. The amount authorized is $30,000. Work will be commenced at once and a pump and standpipe system completed before fall.

Willie Noonan, aged fourteen years, was killed at Wabasha by being dragged three blocks by a colt. He had tied the halter strap around his wrist, and the colt became frightened and ran. The boy was kicked and badly mangled, and was dead before assistance reached him.

At the contest at the Pillsbury auditorium Owatonna for prizes in the music department Miss Hattie Ware received first prize and Herbert Lucra second for instrumental music. In vocal music Miss Marcia Searles received first and Miss Hattie Ware second. The entire programme was a great credit to the institution.

The Crown Point silver mine, of which Tinkham Bros. are the largest owners, situated in the Thunder Bay district, was sold to a firm of New York brokers, Simpson & Co., for $600,000. Mr. Tinkham leaves for the East to close the deal. The property is owned exclusively by Duluth capitalists.

Rush City had four bids for bonds of the village of $2,000 at 7 per cent on ten years' time opened at the council meeting Saturday night, and found that W. R. Lewis & Co., Chicago, bid $2,011; C. M. McCluer, Stillwater, $2,050; P. Johnson, Rush City, $2,058.30; J. D. Murkhammer having made the best bid was awarded the bonds by unanimous vote. All seem well pleased at the faith of the bidders in the town.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The Cass county, North Dakota, teachers' association met at Fargo for a four days' session.

The governor and militia line officers met at Bismarck and fixed on Devil's lake as the place for the encampment July 15, continuing one week.

The seeding has been about finished in Stark county, and never was the ground in better condition or more promising to the tiller of the soil.

At the town election at Forman, F. G. Bartlett, W. C. Forman and B. K. Rush were elected trustees, thus giving the Democrats control of the town board. The Democrats are jubliant over their victory.

Ex-Railroad Commissioner Underhill, who has been in Chicago since March, has shipped three imported stallions for service among the 60 mares on his Hart river ranch near antelope station in Stark county.

E. I. P. Staude, the largest dealer in farm machinery at Devils Lake, assigned to A. O. Whipple. Assets, $100,000; liabilities, $70,000. Staede went to Mankato a few months ago and is in business there.

Joseph R. Warner, switchman in the Northern Pacific yards at Fargo, was run over by a freight train. His head was severed from his body and both arms were horribly mutilated. It is not known how the accident occurred.

Cattlemen have been scouring the country for stock, and several thousand head have been shipped out of the Red River valley this spring. A train of twelve cars of stock started from Mayville one day recently, destined for St. Paul and Sioux City.

There is great excitement around Michigan City caused by land agents from Manitoba trying (and with some success) to induce our farmers to go there and take up land. Mass meetings have been held and three quite prominent farmers have been appointed delegates, and will start soon for that country on a tour of inspection.

Maj. F. W. Colman, who has been successful in placing the Hotel Dacotah, Grand Forks, in the rank of first class hotels, will remain permanently in the Northwest. Mr. Colman is a son of Robert W. Colman, of Baltimore, long the proprietor of the Carrolton, of that city. The stock of the latter hotel was placed in escrow some time ago to accomplish certain objects, but will be released on June 1 when the property can be conveyed by a clear majority of all stock and absolute control secured.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Samuel B. Milton, editor and proprietor of the Redfield Observer, has been commissioned aide de camp, with the rank of Colonel, by Gov. Mellette.

A special school election was held at Aberdeen. Republicans capturing all four of the board of education. Thirty women availed themselves of the opportunity to vote.

Eliza Rearick was arraigned at Woonsocket for the murder of her husband last October. She is now a mother, and the scene at her indictment was affecting in the extreme.

Snow and rain has been constantly falling for three days at Blunt. The ground is now covered with the beautiful, and the earth is thoroughly soaked. A large acreage of wheat has been sown, and an immense crop is expected.

The South Dakota university is at present without an executive, President Grose having resigned. Who will be Mr. Grose's successor is not yet determined, but the board will confer with the faculty and decide upon the man to occupy that most important position.

The Aberdeen land office is now prepared to accept commutation timber cuture proofs under the act of March 3, 1891. In these proofs entrymen will be required to show that they are bona fide residents of the state and have complied with the timber culture law for four years.

Chairman Sessions, of seed grain committee reports that 40,000 bushels of seed have been put out, and that 38,323 acres have been seeded by help thus furnished. Some farmers in thirty-one out of the thirty-four organized townships were helped. The seed cost a little less than $1 per bushel.

A meeting of the South Dakota Republican league executive committee will be held in Pierre on May 22, in connection with the annual encampment of the state Sons of Veterans' association, which occurs the same day. Both meetings will be of importance in a political sense.

Dr Livingston superintendent of the state insane asylum at Yankton, was removed by the state board of charities and corrections. The reasons cannot be learned, but it may be disclosed in a day or two. This is the second investigation of Dr. Livingston's official course. The other occurred about a year since.

WISCONSIN.

Fire at West Superior destroyed the ice house and barge at the end of the Tower bay ship docks. Loss was slight.

C. C. Paige's foundry and machine shops were damaged by fire at Oshkosh to the extent of $30,000. The insurance is $8,400

THE MOCKING BIRD

Some Interesting Facts About This Famous American Songster.

The mocking bird belongs to the great thrush family. It has a slender form with a long tail, and a bill as long as its head and rather wide at the base, a broad and strongly built breastbone, and its tongue is deeply cleft, with hair on the ends and outside edges of the forked part. Its color is a mixture of gray, brown and white, and its eyes are dark. Some are white, with pink eyes, but these specimens are extremely rare.

Their nests are made of twigs and weeds, and are lined with fibrous roots, horse-hair and cotton, sometimes mixed with human hair and cotton cord. The birds do not take much pains in building them and they do not seem to try to hide them. They select some spot within a few feet of the ground in an orange tree or a blackberry bush, and like their cousins, the robins, they love to live near the dwellings of man.

This may be owing to the protection such places afford against their natural enemies. The hawk, the wildcat, the opossum, and other animals that would disturb his peace, are likely to shun human abodes, and the country's being open about such places makes the approach of any foe readily seen. The eggs, as well as the young birds, are much sought after by snakes, but the parent birds are often successful in driving them off and they are always ready to wage war on any intruder upon their property.

In the early spring the female lays from three to six eggs, about an inch long and of a pale greenish-blue color, spotted and blotched with light yellowish-brown. Then she sits on them and keeps them warm and the male bird brings her worms and other delicacies during this time and when the birds are young.

When they are first hatched the birdlings are very ugly, for they have long bills that are always stretched open for food, and scrawny, bare bodies with a few pale yellow hairs scattered over them. But their feathers grow very rapidly, and in about two weeks they are full-fledged and are able to leave their nest and their father begins to give them lessons in flying and in singing.

Mocking birds are found in nearly every part of the United States, but in the north they are only summer visitors, and they migrate to the south in winter, passing that season in the states that border on Mexico and the Gulf.

Court Presentations.

Half of the American women, or perhaps all of them, who spend their money and energies in obtaining a presentation to royalty—at the point of the bayonet, so to speak—have but one idea in view. It is to say they have been at close quarters with the queen of England, and breathed the same atmosphere for about two and one-half seconds as that pudgy but virtuous monarch. This is something to relate to one's relatives at home, perhaps. The cost of a presentation, as every one knows, ranges from hundreds to thousands of dollars, but, of course, the good American like Mr. Mantalini "dem'ds the expense," and is only too thankful if no divorce nor scandal prevents the lord chamberlain from ordering a taboo at that or any other royal function in the hereafter. Judging, however, by the names which have already been sent in by that exalted functionary, the overrich citizen of the United States does not always get there. The line, it seems, can be drawn, even at a court presentation! Let us be grateful for so much, although it breaks a millionaire heart or two to find the mighty dollar is not sesame in a royal palace. It seldom happens that money fails as a key, but at that precious court of St. James there is a sort of Yale lock which defies it. And after all is said and done, and the American society beauty has been stared at by haughty royalty, and has heard her name called in the halls of the elect, what then? Is it not very silly, very absurd, and about as childish as the performances at a fashionable dancing school class?

A Weird Phenomenon.

Captain Carrie, of the British ship Wayfarer, which arrived in Oakland, Cal., recently, 154 days from Antwerp, reports a weird phenomenon. It had been blowing several days, but with nightfall the air became perfectly calm and the sea as smooth as glass. Overhead the sky was as black as ink from the dense masses of heavy clouds, and with the barometer at 28.50 a rainstorm was looked for. The expected downpour did not occur, but instead the sea glowed with a phosphorescence beyond anything the oldest mariner had ever seen. The ship's surroundings were lit up so that it was possible to read on deck. Nobody cared much for reading, however; the contrast between the light from the sea and the inky clouds was so gruesome that all hands could not help feeling that some unnatural catastrophe was about to occur. The crew were much relieved when a breeze dissipated the clouds, and then the phosphorescence was cleared at the same time.

A Big Improvement.

The younger daughter of the duke and duchess of Connaught was born on St. Patrick's day and rejoices in the name of Victoria Patricia, so called in honor of her grandma and that Irish saint. An American lady living in London and who seems to know a good deal about English royalty, says the little girl is a real beauty and that her cousins, of whom there is a troop, call her "Patsy." Whether this will render the name popular in aristocratic circles remains to be seen, but Patricia in itself is a lovely mouthful and a decided improvement on Gladys and Gwendoline, which are as common as Edith and Mabel were ten years ago.

This road will be a big thing for St, Hilaire and we must have it, The road should be built as soon as possible and the council will probably meet as soon as the survey is made, for final action, Let every man in town make it his business to see that this road is built as soon as possible.

A fish has a hard time of it in the Red Lake River. Nearly every farmer on the river has a fish trap and fish are being caught by the thousands. In a very short time the river will be cleared of fish. The catching of fish by nets or traps is a defiance of the laws and if our people wish to save what few remain some action must be taken in the matter. It is clearly wrong to allow them to be killed in such numbers at this season of the year.

Hompe, the alliance senator from Otter Tail, is said to have a pretty sure thing of the alliance nomination for Congress next year; and political gossip has it that he was instrumental in leaving Stearns county, the home of Kittle Halvorson, out of this district in order to be rid of him. Whether this be true or not it is certainly convenient for Hompe to have Halvorson in another district. When the time comes, however, there may be quite a contest for this honorable position.—Ada Index.

Crookston Times: If the people of Polk or any other county are not willing to pay for good roads they will never get them. Here seems to be the weak point all over the land, The roads everywhere are "the merest makeshifts." Everywhere the people want to get out of the mud and mire, but they seem to expect the ways and means to fall like the gentle dew from heaven, or the manna in the wilderness, and by no means to be raised by public taxation. This is the sheerest nonsense; good roads will cost money in the beginning but will cram it back into your pockets tenfold over in the end. Depreciated farm lands, loss of time, wear and tear of vehicles, horses and harness, will be heard of no more.

Minnesota is not the only state in the Union that is being ridiculed for idiotic legislation. The Missouri legislature has passed a law prohibiting geese running at large, and now the famous Gen. Hustad, of New York, has introduced a bill prohibiting cats running at large at night. The last bill will probably meet with vigorous opposition from manufacturers of bootjacks, and various other useful bric-a-brac to be found in a quiet man's rooms. Reform seems to be stalking abroad in the land and there is no telling what the people will be subjected to during the next legislative period.

Moorhead News: Minneapolis wishes to secure the Republican national convention for 1892, and all parties in the state of Minnesota ought to be unanimous in doing what they can to gratify that wish. Minneapolis is a large town that is full of life activity and push. Her growth and development are a source of pride to every citizen of the state. She has the hotels to furnish entertainment for all the crowd that would be attracted by the convention, and if she lacks a suitable hall, there is enterprise enough among her wide awake business men to build one. Let the press of the state without regard to politics advocate the worthy ambition of Minneapolis in this respect.

A wise exchange says that it is not unfrequent that newspapers find themselves unappreciated by the men of whom they have favored with their support, column after column being published in their favor, and yet such favors, when the test comes, are unappreciated. When you find your paper taking no interest in you or your success, when you find it keeping aggravatingly silent, when you think the editor should be tearing his linen in your behalf; do not work yourself into a fever of anxiety as to the cause, but just ask yourself wherein you have placed the paper and editor under obligations to use space and energy for you.

The prison managers would have been wiser had they conferred with Auditor Biermann as to the financial aspect of the prison twine plant. They were in too great a hurry to put the plant in operation and now they are embarrassed with no prospect of getting any part of the appropriation until August. Here is another blunder of the late legislature. They knew that the twine must be produced speedily for this season's binding and yet they neglected to provide funds in some way for the early requirements, There doesn't seem any way out of the difficulty, and the farmers will probably have to go without Stillwater twine this season.—Minneapolis Journal.

Upon complaint of Dan'l Petterson before H. E. Ives J. P., Nels Samuelson was arrested last Thursday on charge of stealing a harness from Patterson's stable. It seems that S. W. Wheelon of Dakota, and F Valarius of Crookston, were buying cattle and made a trade with Samuelson and got possession of a set of harnesses of Samuelson's They were left at Patterson's barn and Samuelson came in the next day and took them. A jury was called for who returned a verdict of not guilty, J. C. Mathews acted as attorney for the accused and Dan'l Patterson conducted the prosecution,

The state law requires that all oil sold in the state shall have been inspected. The legislature knew this and yet, with stolid indifferance, allowed the measure devolving oil inspection upon the dairy commission to fail. Whatever the Standard or other companies may say about the uselessness of inspection and their own ability to put safe oils on the market, that isn't business; nor is it a guarantee of the public's safety. The situation is serious. For every pint of oil now sold is sold illegally and if the interregnum of inspection continues, the state will be flooded with low grade and explosive oils. Under the circumstances the Governor is justified in taking some extraordinary steps, even of an extra constitutional character, to protect the people of the state.—Minneapolis Journal

One of the few good acts of the late legislature was in passing a bill reducing the saleries of the county officers of Polk county. The bill went into effect May 1st and our officials will heresfter draw the following saleries.

The auditor, Fifteen hundred dollars with a sum not to exceed Twenty five hundred dollars for clerk hire; the treasurer, Fifteen hundred dollars, and clerk hire not to exceed Thirteen hundred dollars; the register of deeds Fifteen hundred dellars with an allowance of Eighteen hundred dolars for clerk hire, and the fees of the office will remain the same and be turned into the county treasury at the end of each month; the clerk of court will receive Fifteen hundred dollars with clerk hire not to exceed Six hundred dollars, and the fees of the office will be turned into the county treasury at the end of each month; the stipend of the county attorney will be Twelve hundred and fifty dollars with an extra ten dollars a month for office rent and incidental expenses; the county superintendent receives Fifteen hundred dollars with an allowance of eight hundred dollars for an assistant who shall be a practical teacher and hold a first grade certificate; the judge of probate receives Fourteen hundred dollars with no clerk hire; the sheriff and all constables can only charge seventy-five percent of the fees allowed by law. Besides the above each office shall be provided by the county with office room, blanks, fuel light, stamps and the necessary running expenses of the office; Before any one shall be paid for clerk hire the officer and clerk are both required to file affidavits to the effect that the services were actually preformed and were necessary, and that no part of the amount goes to the officer himself.

Prices of nearly every farm product rule high, and prices of nearly everything else rule low Compare the price of eggs, butter potatoes, oats, wheat and corn with those of the last three years. These prices have advanced in spite of "gold bugs" and "silver bugs," of railroad extortions and robber tariffs, of grasping monopolies and greedy corporations which the before-election campaign orators charged with being the cause of low prices. The fact is that it is only when the supply exceeds the demand that these enemies of prosperity can get in their work. They may have slight influence at all times but they can control prices only when there is a surplus to help them. The Chicago packers have been able to control the cattle market for years because ther was a surplus, but if the demand once outgrows the supply, their control is gone and prices will go up in spite of them and the seller will have his day.—N. W. Agriculturist.

In the early days of 1884 I received a postal card from a gentleman in Keokuk, Iowa, saying: "The republican ticket will be Blaine and Logan." Early in 1888 the same gentleman wrote me. "Harrison and Morton will be nominated, and will win." The same political prophet has also given unvarying correct indications in advance concerning state campaigns. Hence, his present views are worthy of credence of of respectful consideration. He is now temporarily residing in Washington and says: "The republican ticket will be Blaine and Rusk, and the democratic ticket will be Cleveland and Morrison," Referring to possible contingencies such as the ill-health of Blaine, and his determination not to make another presidential race my prophet says. "in such an event the ticket will be Rusk and Morton, It will be impossible to keep Rusk off of the ticket. He is loyal to Harrison believes in him and sincerely works for Harrison's renomination. But Harrison will not be renominated The ticket will be Blaine and Rusk or Rusk and Morton. But I have no doubt that Blaine will head the ticket."—Special to the St. Paul Dispatch.

The Republicans of the country will almost demand next year that James G. Blaine be their candidate for president. He always was a favorite with many but his recent work insures that a unanimous Republican nomination and a certain election will be given him by the people if he can be induced to accept. Mr. Blaine alone in the past two years has shown more statesmanship than all our public men for the past ten years. He has originated and is fast developing the grand idea of reciprocity which will undoubtedly be accepted by all parties in a short time. It will bring better times to this country give work to our laborers and above all find a new market for the surplus food which our farmers are raising and bring them better prices. Who have we who could have handled the Italian matter as has Mr. Blaine? He, has safely brought us out of a serious trouble, with honor, and the old world countries will heresfter treat us with more respect. If we have a better or wiser statesman let us elect him, if not let us have James G, Blaine for our next president.

A FARMER IN NAME ONLY.

Had Never Seen a Plow Nor Milked a Cow, but He Was an Agriculturist.

A comical story is in quiet circulation among the members of the board of supervisors anent some of the appointments made at the industrial school.

To this person, as the story goes, came the superintendent, himself a new appointee, a day or two after they had both taken their places.

"Let's see, you are the farmer, are you not?" he inquired.

"That's what," replied the one addressed, taking his feet down from the [illegible] mantel.

"All right, then. What I wanted to tell you was that the field below the house is in good condition for plowing now, and the sooner you tackle it the sooner it will be done. Better hitch up and go at it right away."

A dazed expression came over the "farmer's" face, and he seemed for a moment lost for a reply. At last he said something in the tone of a man recovering from a fainting fit:

"Do you mean I'm to plow that field myself?"

"Why, of course. Aren't you the farmer?"

"Yes, that's all right. All the same I never touched a pair of plow handles in my life, and as for plowing that field—why, I simply can't do it."

"Then you'd better learn very quick. It's your work, and it's got to be done."

"Well, I'll not do it. I can't, and I won't."

And he didn't.

It is said to have been the next day late in the afternoon when the superintendent again encountered his "farmer."

This time the latter official was reading a newspaper, from which he looked up with anything but a pleased expression when interrupted.

"You don't seem to be doing anything," remarked the superintendent. "Better take a horse, ride over to the field yonder and drive up those cows. You'll have to milk them, too."

The farmer staggered to his feet, fairly gasping:

"I never in my life milked a cow," he exclaimed, as soon as he could speak. "How do you think I can do it now? More than that, I was never on a horse. Yet you ask me to get on some wild beast's back and go and drive them up. You must think I'm a sort of living miracle!"

"Well," said the superintendent, with pardonable impatience, "I should like to know how you came to be appointed 'farmer' to the institution. That's all."

"Well, all I can say," he answered according to the accepted ver[illegible] story, "is that [illegible] probably pretty [illegible] Suppose we drop the subject."

The subject is said to have been dropped.—San Francisco Examiner.

Uses Both Hands in Writing.

When Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, puts his hand on his heart and declares in strident tones that the rights and privileges of the people must and shall be maintained, he can do it with either hand, and gracefully too. He signs committee reports with his left hand, and attaches his signature to letters with his right. The difference in the chirography is easily detected. The senator has his "left handed week" and his "right handed week"—that is, he will use the pen for six days with one hand, and for another six days with the other. He holds the hymn book in his left hand, and usually turns the leaves of his Bible with his right. In debate he gesticulates ambidextrously.—New York World.

An amusing calculation has been made that the powdered shoe leather worn from off the soles of foot passengers on streets and pavements in London alone would amount to about a ton of shoemaking materials per day. It is not so absurd to imagine that some day these waste particles may be utilized, when we hear that vast quantities of old shoes are ground by mills into fine dust, which is mixed with india rubber, subjected to a great pressure, colored and sold cheap as artificial leather, for which it probably makes a sorry substitute.—Chambers' Journal.

He Didn't Know the Sex.

Officer J. A. Hussey, of the supreme judicial court, has an ingenuous 6-year-old youngster. The boy came running to his father the other day with the information that the family next door had got a baby. "Is that so?" said Officer Hussey. "Who told you?"

"Willie told me."

"Well, has he got a little brother or a little sister?"

"How do you 'spose I know?" responded the young hopeful. "It ain't christened yet, is it?"—Boston Record.

A Fair Show.

Under a late law made in Egypt the man who marries need not keep his own name, but take that of the woman if he so desires. It is said that this law was rendered necessary by so many American and English Smiths taking up their residence in that country. The girls wanted to marry, but they didn't want the name.—Detroit Free Press.

A Sensible Girl.

Johnson—When I do marry I intend to marry a sensible girl, if I can find one.

Tomson—Now there's Miss Sharpe. She jilted me——

Johnson—Just the girl I want. Won't you introduce me?—Epoch.

CUSTOMS OF HONOLULU.

The Best Looking Girls Are Trained to Dance Before the King.

The beautiful crescent shaped harbor, with the Big Diamond and Punch Bowl mountain peaks on either side and the town of Honolulu nestling between them, are the changing scenes forming the prelude to a strange drama. The countrymen, farmers and peasants wear but little clothing, simply what the natives call a malu, a near approach to the fig leaf. The fishermen [illegible] their clothing when they come [illegible] town, but as soon as they [illegible] wares and return to the [illegible] the clothing is re[illegible] over their shoulder. [illegible] men are of splendid physique [illegible] fine figures and splendid developed muscles.

When I had been in Honolulu but a few days I was riding past a country [illegible] in company with some friends. [illegible] what I supposed were two [illegible] figures. I asked why statues were placed in a locality so remote from the town and from any park. My question provoked peal upon peal of laughter. After a short time the statues walked away.

The society of the king's dancers is called the hiimuo. The Hawaiian girls mature young, at 12 and 14 years. They have the dark, languid eyes and voluptuous beauty of form that may be seen only in warm countries. From the most beautiful of these girls the king's dancers are selected. Great care is taken to secure the most attractive mold of form and the superior luxuriance of beauty. They are twenty in number. A place is prepared for them near the queen's palace. Their diet is the best that can be provided, and all their surroundings are those of luxury and dreamy, languid ease.

Upon state occasions they dance at the king's palace and also for the entertainment of distinguished visitors who wish to see all there is on the island. They wear short skirts made of birds' feathers and belted at the waist. Over the shoulder and under the arm is passed a black silk ribbon, upon which is printed in gilt letters the name of the society. Their dance to the wild music of the royal band of thirty-six pieces is indescribable.

Another female society of very peculiar characteristics, and one in which a membership is eagerly sought, is the lilinokalano or riding society. The riding costume is called the pa-u. It is a single piece of silk fifteen yards long and two yards wide. The ladies of the society all ride astride. The costume is folded in such a manner that one yard floats in the air upon either side of the horse. It is tucked in around the waist. It is usually of the brightest colors.—Cor. Denver News.

The Source of Nitrogen in Plants.

The progress recently made in tracing the interdependent relations of living organisms is clearing up some of the obscure problems in the nutrition of plants that have a direct bearing on the processes of evolution and the applications of science in agriculture.

Since the discovery of the composition of the atmosphere the problem of the sources of the nitrogen of vegetation has given rise to a wider range of experimental investigation and discussion than any other in vegetable physiology. The evidence appeared to be conclusive as to its source in certain families, including the cereals, while the large supplies of nitrogen obtained by leguminous plants were not fully accounted for.

The experiments of Boussingault in France and the elaborate investigations at Rothamsted, in England, seemed to show that atmospheric nitrogen is not appropriated to any extent by the leaves of plants, and that the soil is the main or sole source of the nitrogen of vegetation.—Dr. Manly Miles in Popular Science Monthly ✓

Two Households.

Mrs. Heartsore—Yes, it just keeps me on pins and needles to think my dear boy belongs to a football club. I'm so afraid something will happen. Does yours?

Mrs. Cheery—Indeed he doesn't. He wanted to join one, but I just packed him off to France, where they don't have anything worse than duelling clubs.—New York Weekly.

Old Fashioned.

New Boarder—See here, I can't stand this lamp. It smells like an oil refinery. What sort of a lamp is it anyhow?

Chambermaid—That's a center table lamp, sir.

New Boarder—Well, take it away, and bring me one of the old fashioned kind. I don't care for these new fangled scenter table lamps.—New York Weekly.

Considerate Jinks.

Blinks (during heavy rain)—Did you run over and ask Jinks for that umbrella I loaned him last night?

Office Boy—Yes, sir. He says he's very sorry, but the umbrella is wet yet, and he wouldn't like to return it in that condition. He says he'll carry it home to-night and dry it by the fire.—Good News.

How to Get Rid of a Bore.

Mrs. Greathead—How quickly the time passes in the company of clever people, Mr. Slowboy! It seems only ten minutes since you came, and it is a good two hours.—Harper's Bazar.

A Proposal.

She (piqued)—I don't know exactly what to make of you, Mr. Bland!

He (eager to suggest)—Er—why not try a husband?—American Grocer.

Bad Form.

The little girl was pretty and the street car was crowded.

"I'll give you my seat if you'll take it," said the boy.

The little girl put up her hand to check his movements. "I'm ever so much obliged to you," she whispered, "but you shouldn't offer your seat till you are ready to get off, 'cause people might think you're from the country."—Exchange.

"August Flower"

Dyspepsia. There is a gentleman at Malden-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., named Captain A. G. Pareis, who has written us a letter in which it is evident that he has made up his mind concerning some things, and this is what he says:

"I have used your preparation called August Flower in my family for seven or eight years. It is constantly in my house, and we consider it the best remedy for Indigestion, and Constipation we have ever used or known. My wife is troubled with Dyspepsia, and at times suffers very much after eating. The August Flower, however, relieves the difficulty. My wife frequently says to me when I am going to town, 'We are out of August Flower, and I think you had better get another bottle.' I am also troubled with Indigestion, and whenever I am, I take one or two teaspoonfuls before eating, for a day or two, and all trouble is removed." ◎

FARINELLI'S LOVE

The grand old castle of St. Idefonso, at Madrid, was a-blaze with light. All that wealth and taste could bring together, was gathered here in this temple of art; and, on this evening, a crowd of the noblest and richest people in Madrid had assembled to honor the presiding priestess of the temple.

She whose exquisite taste had planned the reception, was Queen Elisabeth, widow of Philip of Spain. Here she reigned, queen of hearts. Hither she summoned youth, beauty, genius, and intellect. Nightly her spacious apartments sheltered, not only the noble borne and nobly bred, but others whose intellect had outgrown their birth and station, and who, for the time being, were accepted as equals with Elizabeth and her distinguished guests.

But, on this night, she had aimed at a more select party than ever before. Hardly had the guests entered and paid their homage to their beautiful and intellectual hostess, ere she passed into the centre of the grand reception hall, and placed her finger upon her lip, as if to entreat their silence and attention.

Low and soft, from a vaulted chamber opposite the hall, came the sweetest music that earth has ever heard from mortal voice. It commenced with a murmuring wail, as if it were sung above the dead, breaking the hearts of the listeners with its sad melody—then changing to a higher strain, it burst out into full, wild, gushing bursts of song, that held the soul entranced with its rich sweetness, and dying away to a soft yet thrilling cadence, as full of unapproachable sweetness as the tender prelude had been.

Not the faintest murmur of applause broke the silence that succeeded it. Queen Elizabeth gratified at the noiseless homage, turned and entered the chamber from whence had floated the matchless strains. No one moved; and in a few moments, she returned, not alone.

A graceful figure accompanied her; a noble head was bowed to the clustering groups on each side of the pathway toward the grand chandelier, whither Elizabeth led her guest; and in a low yet distinct voice, said: "Signor Farinelli, I thank you in the name of our friends here, for the pleasure you have given us."

It may well be supposed that no other voice was raised in song, after Farinelli's. The guests, carried away in the remembrance of those delicious tones, felt that they had heard that which would unfit them for other strains. Many of the noblest Spaniards present gathered around the singer, offering him the warm and friendly courtesy that acknowledges such merit as his beyond wealth or station. Such courtesy from a people generally considered, haughty and distant, was truly acceptable to such a man as Farinelli, whose voice, superb as it was, did not constitute all his perfections.

Standing apart from others, and partially in the shadow of one of the magnificent columns that supported the vaulted roof of Queen Elizabeth's reception hall, was a young and beautiful Spanish girl. Her robe, of the finest texture, hung in full, rich folds around her graceful person; and her rich black hair fell in long ringlets over her shoulders, and parted from her forehead by a row of beads. The full red lips were slightly apart as she stood, listening to the singer, and the olive cheek was flushed to a deep crimson.

When all others pressed toward Farinelli, she alone kept back. Her silence and immovable position were observed by him. He glanced back at her, still standing against the column, her splendid eyes fixed upon his face, but quickly withdrawn when she caught the glance he gave. But the brief interchange of looks had been sufficient. Each knew that, in that short minute, the life's destiny had been sealed. For the child of song had drank in sweeter music than his lips had ever warbled—for the orphaned Melania had recognized a kindred spirit whose sympathy would shed a ray of sunlight over her darkened life.

Brief indeed were the dreams of both. True, they met often—but always with the quick, sharp eyes of Elizabeth upon them. Elizabeth was really interested in Farinelli. He it was whose magical voice had chased away the melancholy of the royal Philip. She had never forgotten that. Then she had a tender regard for the orphan. She had taken her home, after her parents' death, and had been a mother to the half heart-broken child.

If Elizabeth watched Melania, it was not because she believed that he had won the young girl's heart, but because she feared, like many others of her household, she might be prejudiced against him. A report had gone abroad that Farinelli was employed by England to meddle with Spanish politics; and it required all Elizabeth's firm friendship for him, to uphold him against their suspicions. To prevent Melania from imbibing such ideas of her favorite, she was constantly relating instances of his goodness, especially of his noble generosity to the Milan singer. Theresa Castellini, whom he had thoroughly instructed in his art. Each of those relations deepened the sentiment that was fast growing up in the bosom of the young girl. But, as has been said her dreams were brief. Farinelli was obliged to absent himself, in order to fulfil other engagements; and the constant presence of Elizabeth forbade any opportunity of disclosing to Melania the love with which she had inspired him.

Two years! How long it seems to the young Farinelli went to fulfil other engagements and to win the meed he so richly deserved. Melania's heart went with him. He returned at the end of two years to find her loveliness matured, but her manner as gentle and childlike as ever. He sang, at Elizabeth's request, and there was no falling away from the rich tones that had beguiled her young heart two years before.

She had slunk into a corner, unable to meet the eyes she loved while others gazed at the singer, not comprehending that the little shrinking orphan inspired the tones that seemed absolutely to be uttered by no mere mortal voice.

But Melania's beauty and sweetness had, it seemed, won more hearts than one. A young Spanish noble had entreated the Queen's interest with her, and Elizabeth readily promised it.

She lost no time in pleading his suit with her protegee, Melania's tears were mysterious, and the Queen grew vexed and angry at her refusal to receive his attentions.

"Strange!" cried Elizabeth. "What on earth could you—could any one expect, higher or better than this lover of yours?"

"Nothing, surely; but believe me, I cannot marry him."

"Cannot. Will not, you mean. Have you any preference for another?"

The girl's crimson blushes betrayed her. Elizabeth ran over the names of those likely to have formed an attachment for her; and, at length, without thinking how nearly she was right, she spoke the name of Carlo Farinelli.

There was a deep sob, but no word, in answer.

"Can it be?" asked the Queen, in a severe tone. "Can I believe that a man in his position—so much older than yourself—so little calculated for domestic life—so every way unfit for you, can he be the possessor of your heart? Speak, Melania, or forfeit my friendship forever."

The face grew white as death; but there was firmness and heroic resolution there.

"I love Signor Farinelli above all others. I honor and respect him. He has never asked me to be his wife; but if he did, I should feel myself honored above all women."

"Girl, girl! you are mad!" said the Queen. "What are you thinking of? A public singer for the husband of one whom I have treated as my own child!"

"And who praised him to me, until I learnt from you to think him the highest and noblest of mankind?"

The Queen could not deny this. For hours she had expatiated upon his perfections to Melania.

"And this is the answer I am to give to your suitor?"

"As you please. I am not ashamed of my preference, but I did not speak of it voluntarily; and if you choose to betray my confidence you can do so."

Here was rebellion from a quarter least expected. Melania had been so gentle—so quiet, and now how changed! So the Queen thought and believed, too, that it was her duty to suppress it. Melania, however, would not hear a word of the lover she had chosen for her; and Elizabeth sent her away to a province where Melania herself had an estate. She departed privately, for such was the Queens requisition.

When, day after day, Farinelli haunted the palace and looked in vain for the dear eyes that were his sole attraction thither, he could not forbear asking for her. The answer was indefinite, and unsatisfactory; and he came to believe that he had no share in the heart that was literally breaking for love of him.

A melancholy, like that of the royal Philip, possessed her. Life wore away without energy to quit her gloomy abode, even when the news of Elizabeth's death had paved the way, had she wished it, to return to Ildefonso.

One memory was sweet to the gentle being who thus voluntarily exiled herself from the world. It was the memory of that matchless voice, as she had heard it in the halls of St. Ildefonso. Remembrance had not lost one of those glorious tones, and her only pleasure was in singing the strains she had heard him utter.

Had Farinelli forgotten his own dream? Never. Melania was lost to him, he sincerely believed, through Elizabeth's doing. No one could tell whither she had flown; after the first jeering answer from Elizabeth, he never condescended to question her again.

His life was very beautiful, but he missed one link that he hoped to wear. His days were verging toward sunset. He knew and felt that the star he had worshipped would arise upon him in the world beyond the sky. So he thought, when at the age of twenty-five he retired to his villa at Bologna.

Here he had gathered all the gifts that had been showered upon him when his voice brought princes and nobles and crowned heads to honor the sweetest singer on earth. Jewels, rich and rare, sparkled there, each with a memory of its own. Here was the Cross of the Knights of Calatrava; which the royal hand of Philip had bestowed upon him when he sang the demon of melancholy from its throne in his heart. And here, dearer than all the diamonds in the king's crown, was a faded rose that he had once stolen from the maiden of Ildefonso, as she stood beside her royal patroness, that last night on which they met, never to meet again

* * * * * *

"A lady, Arteveldt! Did she give you a message?"

"None, signor. She wished much to see you—called herself an old friend, and bade me ask if you would receive her."

"Certainly. But I can think of no one who would come thus to visit an old man who is dropping away from life, as the leaves are dropping from the trees yonder. Show her in, Arteveldt."

A soft footstep—a low sweet voice, as she spoke to the page, and the lady was in the room. She wore mourning as deep as a widow could wear. She was not young, having apparently seen at least a score of years fewer than Farinelli.

He was charmed with the manners, and convesation of the lady, who now owned that a curious desire to see the famous singer she had once heard in her youth was her motive for coming, and not business, as she had led him to believe.

Two hours passed away, and still they talked—talked of the past—o Philip the Melancholy, of Queen Elizabeth, of the old-time splendors of St. Ildefonso.

Twilight had long reigned in the room, and now the darkness had come on, but neither seemed to heed it, until the page entered with lights; and, starting at the lateness of the hour, the lady bade him call her servants to fetch her carriage round. She rose, and stood before Farinelli, giving him her hand as she did so.

"I shall remember this hour in my lonely home—my lonely home," she repeated.

"And so shall I, in mine, lady. You know my name—may I know yours? I would fain utter it in my prayers, when I bless you for making me so happy. It is like a dream of my youth—a dream which was cruelly broken."

The lady sighed.

"I too had my dreams," she said, softly, weeping as she spoke. "I had dreams that I might be happy with one from whom the mistress of Ildefonso parted me. I am Melania del Soto."

Long years had passed since that name had been heard; but it sent the rich blood in crimson torrents over the pale and withered face, lighting it up with almost the glow of youth.

"Melana! your voice has been stirring at my heart, like a trumpet," he said, as he kissed the thin, white fingers he held. "Your name has been dear to me ever—the watchword for every good thought and deed. Can I forgive her who parted us? Ah, yes! I am too old to bear malice. Melania, my wife that should have been! Not long may this worn-out frame be here—but promise me that you will see me often. Come to me every week while I live. It will soothe me to believe that one being will miss me when I am gone home."

Every week saw the aged pair together, for a few hours. Farinelli decked his rooms with flowers for her coming. One pleasant twilight, she entered his apartment and found him lying on a low couch, his hands clasped, as if in prayer. She sat down to await the moment in which he should awake. There was profound silence in the room. No sound of breath came from the sleeper. The stillness was painfully oppressive to the watcher. She bent above the couch, and touched the still noble and beautiful brow. Its chill made her start back aghast; but she recovered herself and pressed her lips to the cold forehead, reverently.

"Death, the consoler,

Laying his hand on that heart, had stilled it for ever."

MARRIAGE IN INDIA.

Ten Years the Legal Age at Which Marriage May Be Consummated.

The age at which marriage may legally be consummated in India is ten years. The physical, mental, and moral objections to marriage at such an early age require no explanation; they are patent to all. That a child is in no sense fit to become a wife and mother, that her own health often pays the penalty, and that the race that springs from her is likely to lose in physical and mental vigor, are facts which do not admit of contradiction. Marriage, however, will always take place in India much earlier than in European countries, and that it should be postponed for two or three years is all that the most ardent reformer can hope or expect at present. It is calculated that in India one woman in five is a widow; of these a very large proportion must be women who, having been betrothed at any time between the cradle and ten years of age, have become widows without ever having been wives.

To understand the full misery of their condition one must realize that marriage is the very Alpha and Omega of an Indian woman's existence, and that the whole bent and training of her mind points to a husband as the end and object of life. He is, in fact, her only raison d'etre, and when, therefore, she either altogether misses the fulfilment of her destiny or loses her husband early, she is, both in her own and in public estimation, a most unhappy being. The shorn head, the plain clothes, the absence of ornament of all luxury, are not gratuitous cruelties; they are but the symbols of an overwhelming misfortune, and seem to be accepted as the natural expression of a hopeless grief. I do not see how this sentiment with regard to widowhood is to be modified by any reforms that we can suggest. It is only by the education and elevation of women that any change can come over the feeling of the people with regard to marriage, and it is only when public opinion ceases to regard her as a chattel and begins to recognize her as a helpmate that a woman's condition, whether as wife or widow, can become more honorable and more worthy of respect.—Lady Dufferin in the Nineteenth Century.

Portuguese Workmen.

Among Portuguese workmen—and I now allude to those who have learned a handicraft—there is what I may style, without exaggeration, a national want of the perception of accuracy. There is an unfortunate expression, "a little more or less," and this is in constant use, verbally and practically. A door may gape at the top or bottom, windows almost invariably rattle in their sashes, but you will never persuade the carpenter that his work is badly done; he will acknowledge the existence of what are pointed out as defects, and answer: "That's no harm—what does it matter?" From the same cause, straight or parallel lines and right angles, the careful carrying out of which makes all the difference in the finished look of work, are also "a little more or less;" and the vagaries of a furrow in any plowed field must be seen to be appreciated.

The actual supply of first-rate workmen is practically nil, and the artisan is not only unequal to the production of excellence in his special line, but, what is worse, does not possess the moral faculty of judging and enjoying the sight of perfect specimens of workmanship. Stonecutting seems to have been for centuries an art in which the Portuguese have excelled; this and silversmith's work are the two crafts which may be exempt from the sweeping condemnation passed on the artisan of the present day.—Blackwood's Magazine.

About Shoes.

Never try to wear a shoe too small or that does not fit when first put on. Never let your shoe get hard or dry. Do not let it run down at the heel or side. Never wear into the welt or insole. A shoe repaired in time will retain its shape and afford comfort and will be found true economy. Never put wet shoes by the fire to dry but dry them gradually and slowly. Never dry a wet shoe without first applying some oil or grease—castor oil or tallow is the best. The steam generated in a wet boot or shoe will scald it and cause it to crack. Do not use too much force in polishing; a gentle brushing with a soft brush is better than the vigorous work of the boot-black.

Do not allow a thick crust of blacking on your shoes. Wash it off occasionally and apply a little castor oil—you can polish it over in an hour or two. Never try on or handle a patent-leather shoe when cold; always thoroughly warm it before bending the leather. A patent-leather shoe put on in a warm room can be worn out in the cold weather without injury. Never put a good pair of shoes in galoches, use an old pair for this and withdraw the galoches as soon as you enter a house.—New York Ledger.

THE ENGINEER'S MASCOT.

Strange Story Told by a Railroad Official.

A prominent Reading Railroad official was talking about railroad affairs recently and the conversation turned on mascots, "I remember," said he, "when I was an engineer on the main line, many years ago, and of course you know we all have our little superstitions. Well, mine was this: While running over the high trestles of the Catawissa division, where, you know, the train seems to be moving through mid air for several miles, and there is nothing but rock and timber below, I was in the habit of watching for the appearance of an old man, who, I noticed, always crossed the track just before we came to the trestle, at the same time every day, rain or shine, winter or summer. I came to look upon this old character, with his bent form and white hair, as a mascot for the safety of the passengers and our train, and I always breathed hard until I rounded the curve, which was just a few rods, before the trestle, and easier when I saw him. He came to know the sound of my whistle and always waved his hand.

"Well, one day he didn't appear as my engine approached the spot where he was accustomed to be and I was that scared that I stopped the engine. Something told me all was not right, and I couldn't have driven that train on to save me until I had investigated. Sure enough I walked out on the trestle with the conductor and fireman, and about one hundred yards out we found a rail loosened and turned to one side. A freight had passed over an hour before and done the mischief. We went on down the road and the next day my old friend was on hand as usual. I stopped the train to speak to him and he told me he had been sick the day before. I am not given to foolishness, but I tell you I connect that man with good luck, for the day he died I was promoted and have gone up the ladder ever since."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Old Man Took a Hand.

An actor told a story recently about a fencing-master in London who had two sons. Both of them, like the father, were physical giants. Who was the strongest and best fighter was a disputed question until a burglar got into the house one night. One of the sons, opened the front door with a latchkey late at night, found a robber in the hall. They immediately clinched. The other brother, hearing the noise, rushed downstairs, and not being able in the dark to distinguish a burglar from a worthy and honest citizen of London, proceeded to pound both men who he ran against. Meanwhile brother No. 1, thinking there was two burglars in the house, turned half of his attention to the new enemy and the fight became desperate. The father, awakened by the uproar, rushed down stairs with a heavy walking stick. Then the fight was something to admire, but to avoid. When it was all over and the gas was lighted by the aged fencing-master, it was discovered that he had whipped not only the burglar but his two sons.

A Whitewash That Stays Put.

I have found a whitewash that is, however, not exactly pure white, but one that will stick. It may be made as follows: Slake half a bushel of stone lime in hot water. When done, pour in two gallons of clear grease of any kind and hot water enough to thoroughly mix. Finish by adding enough water to make a barrel. For each gallon of the grease a gallon of coal tar may be substituted, with good results. The addition of the grease was suggested by seeing the brief statement somewhere that "potash and grease make soft soap, and soda and grease make soft soap, and lime and grease insoluble soap." Some tree trunks treated to a whitewash made as above subjected since to three or four heavy rains, retain it like old paint.—Correspondence Country Gentleman.

Reynard catches rats after the manner of a terrier, and when not engaged is frequently seen following his master about like a well-behaved canine, to which he bears no little resemblance. He is perfectly tame, and goes about the streets of the town without being molested by the dogs.

Cuticura Soap

FOR BAD COMPLEXIONS RED ROUGH HANDS AND BABY HUMORS.

BAD COMPLEXIONS, WITH PIMPLY, blotchy, oily skin, Red, Rough Hands, with chaps, painful finger ends and shapeless nails, and simple Baby Humors prevented and cured by CUTICURA SOAP. A marvelous beautifier of world-wide celebrity, it is incomparable as a Skin Purifying Soap, unequalled for the Toilet and without a rival for the Nursery.

Absolutely pure, delicately medicated, exquisitely perfumed, CUTICURA SOAP produces the whitest, clearest skin, and softest hands and prevents inflammation and clogging of the pores, the cause of pimples, blackheads, and most complexional disfigurations, while it admits of no comparison with other skin soaps, and rivals in delicacy the most noted of toilet and nursery soaps. Sale greater than the combined sale of all other skin soaps. Price, 25c.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. From Father to Son.

Scrofula is a blood poison which descends from parent to child. It is a taint which must be eradicated from the system before a cure can be made. Swift's Specific, S. S. S., drives out the virus through the pores of the skin and thus relieves the blood of the poison.

AFFLICTED FROM CHILDHOOD.

Mrs. N. Ritchey, of Mackey, Ind., says: "Justice compels me to say that S. S. S. has worked little short of a miracle in my case, in curing me of aggravated Scrofula, which afflicted me from childhood. It attacked my throat and nose, and threatened my lungs. My throat was so sore that I was compelled to subsist on liquid food. When I began S. S. S. I was in a wretched condition but commenced to improve at once, and am now entirely well."

He was seen by Sheriff Fadden on the train going to Fargo, from which he escaped through the closet window of the coach while the train was in motion leaving behind a pair of shoes and a hat. Sheriff Fadden is searching for him.

The bitter warfare has for a long time been waged between the editors of the Washburn papers has culminated in a libel suit. The Leader charged J. E. Britton, editor of the Mail, with committing the crime of arson and other offenses while he was a clerk of the Berthold Indian agency, and on this account Britton brought an action against his rival. Several prominent politicians of the state are mixed up in the fight.

Edward Rooney, one of the prominent citizens of Michigan City started for Manitoba, taking with him eighty head of cattle, nine horses, farm machinery and household furniture, also his wife, and six children, leaving nothing except $3,000 or $4,000 worth of notes secured on said stock and his hotel in this city. He is seventy-two hours ahead of the authorities, who are now after him. He got the start of his creditors by saying that he was going out to his farm to put in a large crop.

The Northwestern live stock company, which was organized at Bismarck, has made its first purchase of sheep. It has secured a well graded lot of 8,000 in Oregon, all of which will be placed with farmers in this locality. Sheep are in good demand at $4 per head and upward, there being an advance of 25 per cent within the year. Farmers experienced difficulty in procuring well bred males, and Eastern breeders can obtain good prices for choice stock. The cattle business has recovered from the depression and is again very active.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The flow of water and pressure of Springfield's artesian spouter grows greater.

Ex-County Treasurer Sever Serley of Chippewa Falls pleaded guilty to embezzling $20,000 of the county's funds. Serley has been in jail for over five months, and stoutly maintained his innocence until his trial was begun. Judge Marshall has sentenced him to four years at Waupun.

The house of S. W. Matteson, at Pleasant Valley caught fire and burned to the ground. His son-in-law lived with him, and they lost most of the bedding and all of their best clothes. No insurance on house or contents. The house was an old landmark, built about thirty-five years ago.

Fire destroyed the oil house and blacksmith shop at the Island mill, La Crosse. The wind was favorable or the entire plant, one of the finest in this section, would probably have been swept away. Fire at Bangor destroyed a barn and some small buildings. Three houses were on fire at once, but the citizens saved them.

IOWA.

Columbus Junction is to have a normal college.

There were thirty-six deaths in Des Moines during April.

Dr. R. M. Strong, an old pioneer of Winneshick county, died at his home in Hesper, aged over seventy.

Harman Rust, a wealthy farmer living seven miles north of Ackley, was killed by lightning while engaged in planting corn.

The next state convention of the Roman Catholic Mutual Protective association of Iowa will be held at Carroll.

A mad steer caused considerable excitement on the streets of Dunlap. Several ladies had narrow escapes from the infuriated brute, but none were injured.

J. K. Cumberland and wife, on the charg of murdering the Robertsons at Harlan, have been held without bonds for trial at the September term of court.

The Epworth league convention of the district opened at Mt. Vernon with a large number of delegates in attendance. The meeting lasted two days.

A Dubuque girl was arrested and fined in police court because she dared to defend her reputation in a Sullivanistic manner. Another girl called her a "chippie" and she slapped her "real hard."

W. E. Bell, organizer of the Farmers Alliance for the Eighth congressional district, has issued a call for a convention to be held at Marion, May 27, for the purpose of forming a district organization.

The jury in the case of L. C. Purdy, the American Express agent Albia, who was accused of embezzling the funds of the company under the pretense of having been robbed last Christmas by three masked men, after two days' deliberation, failed to agree. The case will be retried in September.

Thomas Saunders, a farmer living twelve miles south of Le Mars, came to town and shot his mother-in-law, Mary A. Ledster, and then shot himself through the head. The woman will recover. Saunders had quarreled with his wife, and blamed the mother-in-law for the domestic trouble. The coroner's jury declared Saunders insane.

Gerhard Krack's grain warehouse at Davenport, has been closed by voluntary assignment, and his homestead has been turned over to his indorsers. He has been speculating heavily in barley, it is said, dealing mostly with St. Louis houses. Krack has lost large sums, but pending an investigation, the amount is unknown.

A Kossuth county young lady was surprised at seeing in the papers that a license had been issued to her and a young man acquaintance. The fellow had never consulted her about the matter, and it is presumed that he supposed that was the proper procedure. The young lady's friends are quite indignant, and the marriage will not come off.

A freight train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road was derailed and the engine and six cars were hurled into the river, six miles from Dubuque. James Richmond, the engineer, was carried down with his engine and his body lies beneath it. Fireman Newell and the brakeman jumped and, though badly injured, will recover.

Too Many Bears.

A young huntsman of Helena, Montana, was following the upper course of the Milk River, and came suddenly face to face with a bear. He brought his rifle to his shoulder, took careful aim, and shot the bear dead. The next moment a second bear appeared from a rocky den. The young hunter again made a successful shot. To his surprise a third bear came out of the den. He killed this one also, and before he had time to remove from the spot, bruin number four appeared. It was exciting sport to be sure, but there were more bears than he cared to see at one time. However, he made a good shot, and bruin tumbled over making four dead bears.

While the huntsman stood watching his game, a fifth bear, larger than any of the previous ones, came out of the den and rushed forward. The young man fired, but missed; and before he could reload, the infuriated beast was upon him! One blow of the huge paw sent the gun flying from his grasp, but he quickly drew his hunting-knife, and wouned bruin in the neck. In doing this he received a severe squeeze from the brute, and a fearful bite on the shoulder. Then he lost consciousness.

When he recovered his senses, his horse was between him and the bear. The horse was kicking viciously, and bruin was making but feeble resistance, and soon lumbered off into the brush. The hunter was badly shaken up, and the wound in his shoulder was exceedingly painful. With difficulty he mounted his horse, which was quite unhurt, and rode to a place of shelter a few miles further on, where his injuries received attention and his game was secured.—Youth's Companion.

His One Virtue.

Widow: "Have you any particular virtue, Mr. Kute, that might make me feel inclined to trust my daughter to you for life?"

Comic Paragraphist: "Yes, my dear madam, I have. I've never made a joke about a mother-in-law in my life!"

Widow: "Take her! She's yours!"

ON ANOTHER CHASE.

The Cruiser Charleston Again Racing Over the Ocean in Search of the Itata.

By Swift Sailing and Good Luck There Is Some Prospect of a Capture.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The navy department to-day received a dispatch that the Charleston sailed southward from Acapulco last evening, leaving the Esmeralda in port.

There was no word of the Itata. The presumption is that the Charleston commander was satisfied that the Itata had passed Acapulco either before his arrival there, or while he lay in port, and that he has resumed the long chase. It is estimated that the Itata has been stealing along at about seven knots, and as she was ten days out last Friday night, she should at that time have been just at Acapulco, where it is reported from that place that she met the Esmeralda.

She is a much smaller vessel than the Esmeralda and burns much less coal. It is regarded as within the probabilities that the latter vessel might have supplied her with this necessary article, which would account for the strait the war ship is now in respecting a further supply of coal.

If it be true that the Itata was off Acapulco Friday night, she had two full days' start of the Charleston when the latter started again in pursuit last night. This is about the same lead that she had when she started from San Francisco, so that it does not appear that the case is any nearer a conclusion. But if the two vessels now follow the same course, the Charleston, steaming at fourteen knots, should come up with the Itata by to-morrow night. This event, of course, is based upon the assumption, which is not founded upon a strong probablity, that the two vessels are steering exactly the same course.

If the Charleston passes the Itata, the next port which they are likely to be heard from is Panama, about 1,200 miles from Acapulco, or Payta, Peru, still further down the coast. As it is, the vessels have probably covered less than half the distance to Iquique, the nearest Chilian port.

FORCED TO APOLOGIZE.

The Uncomfortable Position in Which the Insurgent Vessel Was Placed.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—A copy of the Chilian Times, which reached here by the steamer San Blas, announces that by special agreement with Germany, Great Britain is taking German interests in Chili under her protection until the arrival of three German warships, which are now en route.

The Times says the Warspite forced an apology out of the insurgent man-of-war Blanco Encalado just before the latter was sunk by the torpedo boats. The Blanco was engaged in the blockading of Iquique, when she, with other vessels of the blockading fleet, ran out of coal. The English and German merchantmen were lying side by side, both coal laden. The rebel fleet took hold of them on the pretense that they were in range in the event of firing, and towed them out to sea, despite the protests of the captains. Out of range of the fort's guns the insurgent made a forced purchase of such coal as they needed.

They voluntarily paid an extravagant price for it, but nevertheless the captains of the vessels reported the matter to the British admiral, Hotham, who gave the Blanco the option of apologizing or fighting inside of twenty-four hours. It was then 11:30 a. m. Precisely at noon the Blanco ran up the British and German flags above the rebel standard and fired a royal salute.

The coal would have been replaced and the ships towed back to their former anchorage but for the fact that most of the coal had been burned and the two merchant ships had no further business at Iquique.

KILLED BY LOCUSTS.

Terrible Death of a Prominent French Naturalist.

ALGIERS, May 20.—The French savant, M. Kunckel Herculais, the president of the ethnological society, who was employed on the government mission of investigating the locust plague in this province, has met a horrible death.

While examining a deposit of locusts' eggs at the village of Sidieral, he was overcome with fatigue and the heat and fell asleep on the ground. While sleeping he was attacked by a swarm of locusts.

On awakening he struggled desperately to escape from the living flood. He set fire to the insect-laden bushes near him, but all his efforts proved ineffectual, and when finally the locusts left the spot his corpse was found.

CLUBBED TO DEATH.

A Minneapolis Woman Murdered in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Alice Martin, twenty-eight years old, was found murdered in her apartments early this morning. She had been clubbed to death. J. H. Painter, who lived with the woman, was locked up on suspicion of being the murderer. Painter says that he went to the theater last night and did not return home till after 12 o'clock. He says he found the Martin woman lying dead on the floor. She was lying in a pool of blood. One side of her face was badly crushed, and her head was cut in several places. Tenants in the same house say that they heard the woman and some man quarrel during the early part of the evening. The murdered woman's parents live at Minneapolis.

KEPT VERY QUIET.

A Railroad Accident in Which a Number of Lives Were Lost.

KANSAS CITY, May 20.—Mrs. A. A. Center of Pottsdam, N. Y., who has been visiting at the home of W. W. Morgan, says that a bridge on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad at Albuquerque fell last Friday, carrying with it a passenger train that had been two hours in advance of the train by which she was traveling. The latter train was flagged and the passengers were obliged to cross the cut which the bridge spanned and meet a train on the other side. Mrs. Center says that it was reported that twelve or fourteen people were killed. No telegraphic report of such a wreck has been received.

Not Looking for Office.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, May 20.—Ex-Gov. A. R. McGill is expected to arrive in Washington in a few days. He is a member of the board to visit the West Point military academy, who are ordered to report at the academy on June 1. The governor's arrival here will be the signal for a number of reports that he is after some office or desires to take a hand in Minnesota patronage. Capt. J. K. Moore, now appointment clerk in the treasury department, who was McGill's private secretary, says there is no truth in the report whatever that McGill had any desire to be postmaster at St. Paul.

THIRD PARTY MOVE.

Delegates Assembling at Cincinnati for the National Union Conference to Begin To-Day.

CINCINNATI, May 20.—The three or four hundred delegates and others in attendance upon the National Union conference, which begins its sessions in this city to-morrow, were reinforced this morning by the arrival of a special train bearing ten car loads of citizens from Kansas and other Western points, and it is estimated that there are now here nearly 1,300 people representing at least two-thirds of the states of the Union.

This morning's train brought Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota, Norton, of the Chicago Sentinel; Elder, speaker of the Kansas house of representatives; Congressman-elect McKeighan of Nebraska, Robb of Iowa, Wood of Kansas, Snyder of Indiana, Powderly, Hayes and Devlin of Detroit.

Most of the organizations expected are well represented and, there does not seem to be any apprehension on the part of those present that anything will occur to mar the harmony essential to a perfect understanding among so many different organizations. It is claimed by the leaders that the representatives of these bodies have come here in a spirit of concession, and that they have not brought any "hobbies" with them; and such, so far as indications go, appear to be the case.

There promises to be a breeze over the delegation from Minnesota, headed by Ignatius Donnelly. Miss McDonald and several others will endeavor to secure recognition by the conference, but Donnelly and his followers do not appear to be worried about the situation, and claim that the opposition comes from persons hostile to the movement, who are acting under orders from

THE "WHEAT RING" OF MINNESOTA.

There is considerable comment on the reported opposition of Senator Peffer to the "third party" movement, and it is openly stated by Capt. Powers and others that it would be better for Mr. Peffer and other gentlemen holding official positions to listen to the voice of the people than to try to dictate the course to be pursued by the conference in regard to the formation of a third party.

There is, however, a division of sentiment on the third party question, but the drift seems to be favorable to such action as will insure the nomination of a national ticket in 1892. This conference will not undertake to make any nomination, but an effort will be made to get things into such shape that it will be an easy matter to take action in that regard next year. It is denied that the South is so strongly opposed to a third party as has been represented.

FROM THEIR FRIENDS.

An Array of Presents Received by President and Mrs. Harrison.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—On Saturday, when Mrs. Harrison had her trunks unpacked, all the souvenirs of her journey were brought to light—she has them all arranged on the tables upstairs in the corridor, and they make a glittering array of precious metals.

The presents made to the president are also among the display, and between them all the number must certainly reach 400. On one long table are arranged all the gold and silver souvenirs.

In Utah the president was given the freedom of the state in the presentation of a silver map of the state nearly a foot square. In San Francisco the invitation to the Palace hotel banquet was on a thick gold card; the menu card was another gold plate, and the freedom of the city was on a superbly wrought square of gold. From the launching of the Monterey Mrs. Harrison has several elegant mementoes. One is a purple velvet sash, another is a large silver ladle with a picture of the ship in the bowl, and the third a hammer made from one of the first rivets placed in the ship.

Mrs. Harrison also has a spoon to show for nearly every town and city she visited in the silver states. From different cities on the coast she has elegant gold and silver knives and spoons made in odd and attractive shapes. A miner's lamp of silver was a present in another place, and little dishes of silver filagree work a reminder of another.

GOOD NEWS.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—That the Italian government is endeavoring to check the tide of emigration to the United States is shown by the issuance of a circular by the Italian minister of the interior department prefects of the kingdom for the restriction of such immigration so far as minors are concerned.

A copy of this circular received at the treasury department shows that minors will not be allowed to leave the kingdom when not accompanied by relatives or guardians, except on production of proper shipping articles, and such documents will be required also in case the minor is accompanied by a relative or guardian who can neither read nor write. Minors eighteen years of age will not be allowed to emigrate, except on specific authority by the minister of war.

Corte, Italian consul at New Orleans, has arrived here, but declines to talk, pleading the fatigue of his trip. He will call on the marquis Imperiali during the day. The department of state has not yet received a request from Gov. Nichols to recall Consul Corte's exequatur, but there is little likelihood that he will ever again represent his country in the United States.

WILL NOT RESIGN.

Commissioner Raum Sets at Rest All Rumors to the Contrary.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—In an interview to-night, Gen. Raum, commissioner of pensions, stated emphatically that he did not intend to resign.

He said that his relations with President Harrison and Secretary Noble were entirely pleasant, and there was no quarrel between the secretary and himself.

The commissioner then said that he wished "the public to understand that there is a coterie of men in Washington, a few of whom are in the pension office, who have formed a conspiracy to break down his character as a public officer and as a private citizen, and to bring the pension office into public disrepute." He added: "I am not to be driven from the pension office by these men. I have devoted my best thought and energy to its organization, and the bureau is at the present time one of the most efficient working organizations of the government."

Quay on Deck Again.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, May 20.—Matt Quay and Tim Byrnes met here last night. This conference, however, was not of half so much importance as the conference between the president and Senator Quay to-day. Quay has a number of small jobs to fix up with the president, and notwithstanding the fact that he has been turned down in regard to several appointments in Pennsylvania, he has never exhibited any soreness and is always ready to reach out and get what will be allowed him. It is given out that even if Byrnes does represent the league, Quay is of more importance at the White House than the Minnesota man.

Farmers are all well pleased with the rain last Monday night. The prospects for a big crop is daily growing brighter.

The swallows have arrived and have commenced to build their nests on the buildings in town. They are a great nuisance.

S. M, Hoff has just received a very fine invoice of the very best stoves in the market. Call around and look them over.

Mrs. Peter Hall and two children arrived from St. Paul last Monday. Mr. Hall is moving into the Watts house east of the track, Charley Bramsness who has been very sick with typhoid fever is slowly recovering. He has been very dangerously ill but is now past danger.

S, O, Huseth, of Grand Forks, came over last week and has opened a jewelry store at Hanson's, Mr. Huseth is we understand a good workman and should do a fair business.

The early mosquito is around looking up a location for the summer. It is to be expected that we will again have the usual supply of those pests this summer.

S. M. Hoff was around yesterday with a novel lead pencil for ye editor, It is an exact imitation of a wire nail nicely nickle plated and is gotten up as an advertisement of the Salem wire nail,

Several farmers have informed us that the recent frosts have not hurt the wheat in the least but rather improved it, and that the ground has been too damp for the high winds to do much damage.

Fred Eikhof has purchased lot ten of block forty from O. A. Ulen for a cash consideration of three hundred dollars and will move his building formerly occupied as the furniture store, onto it. We understand that Mr. Eikhof will use the building for a saloon after July 1st.

Messrs, Erickson and Svenson commenced work again yesterday on the Norwegian Lutheran Church and will push the work as rapidly as possible. They expect to have it completed in about three weeks. Their contract calls for the building to be finished by June 11th.

The Times is sorry to learn that Mr. A. Kaiser, editor of the Thirteen Towns is suffering with a bad attack of rheumatism. He arrived in the city Tuesday and started the same evening for the Hot springs where hopes to find relief. He was accompanied by Henry Peterson,

After July 1 the flag of the Union will have forty four stars, the forty-fourth representing Wyoming admitted during the year. In the new arrangement there will be six horizontal rows of stars. the row at the top and that at the bottom each containing eight stars and the four rows between each containing seven.

S. M. Dainard has traded his alto horn to J. M. Hanson for a fiddle and the neighbors in Hanson's locality are not pleased with the trade. Hanson's lung capacity seems ample and he says he will learn to play on that horn if he clears the town of people, In the mean time Dainard's neighbors on Water street are jubilant as Sam hasn't begun yet to play on his fiddle.

There seems to be considerable demand for St. Hilaire town lots lately. C. G. Rapp has purchased five lots on water street from the Townsite Company and E. M. Hoff will buy a couple more and L. K. Kolstad also intends buying a couple, They all intend to erect dwellings within the coming year which is a good sign and shows that the business men here have confidence in the town,

The census returns show some figures that are not encouraging with regard to crime. Criminal statistics declare the fact that we have in the United States now thirteen more convicts to the million of population than there were in 1880. It would be interesting to know whether crime in the country is increasing at such a rate as this. If so it is a bad lookout.

Dodge County Republican: Now talk about your town, write about it, speak well of it; help to improve it; continue to beautify the streets; patronize its merchants; speak well of your neighbors advertise in the local pape; report news items for its columns; keep your subscriptions paid up; speak well of enterprising public-spirited citizens; and you will be sure to have a live town.

The new constitution of the federation of Australia is soon to be submitted to a vote of the people. As has been before stated the constitution follows very closely that of the United States, the principal differanee being that instead of a President there will be a Governor General appointed by the queen of England, and who will be advised by an executive council consisting of a ministry whose number is not to exceed twelve. —News.

S. M. Hoff is making arrangements to open the creamery the latter part of this week. He intends putting three teams on the road gathering cream and will pay thirteen cents an inch. He has secured the services of James Fulton of Hawley, who is an experianced butter maker. He is the son of N. H, Fulton who managed the creamery here several years ago. We hope Mr. Hoff will be successful as the running of the creamery here will be a good thing for both village and country.

Reports that come from the Pacific Coast country are not very encouraging. Parties who have been out there say that business is almost at a stand still and in the larger cities there are thousands of idle men, In short the boom has flattened out as it must in all countries where there is nothing in it but wind. Many who have left the Red River Valley to pick up a fortune in the far west are now wishing they were back where there is prosperity all the time.—Crookston Times.

If the records of the Italian criminal courts could be produced to show the amount of rewards offered by that government for the heads of the bandits who escaped to America and were Parkersoned at New Orleans, an explanation would probably be thus evoked for the indignation of John Macaroni He naturally resents the shedding of blood by American revolvers when by all justice that blood should have spattered an Italian guillotine. Yours Truly

Deputy U, S. Marshall J, W. Howes was in town last Monday on his way to St. Paul. He has been making a very extensive trip in the northern part of the state looking for timber thieves; Canadians are crossing the line and cutting pine and Mr. Howes was detailed by the government to look into the matter. He left Red Lake Falls nearly three months ago going to Red Lake, from there to Rainy River up the river to Lake of the Woods, thence back to Red Lake and down the Red Lake River. He informs us that his party traveled seven hundred miles on foot, about six hundred miles by canoe and nearly three hundred miles by team, Mr. Howes informs us that he found some exceptionally fine country along the Rainy River and predicts that as soon as it is opened up it will prove a good farming country.

Messrs Holmes, Hanson, Patterson, Ives and Williams started last Thursday to look over the proposed road on the reservation to the high landing. They found that a road could be built with very little cost from here to the river about four miles this side of the landing. The boat can easily reach this point as it is above all the rapids and the river is of good depth. The river was found almost due east of here about fourteen miles. Another party will start out the last of this week and will endeavor to make a more thorough exploration of the country, and the road will undoubtedly be built inside of thirty days.

Peter Lindblom was arrested last Friday by Constable Williams on a charge of wife beating. The complaint was made by one of the neighbors to whom the poor woman came for relief. Lindbloom was tried before Justice Hanson and fined fifteen dollars and costs. It seems that Lindbloom is in the habit of getting drunk and going home and making things lively for all in that vicinity. Dr, Heinemuth was called to attend to the injured woman and pronounced her injuries slight, She refused to appear and Lindbloom got off much lighter than he would otherwise. A good strong blacksnake whip liberally applied would be a good remedy in such cases.

The Luverne Herald publishes the following very opportune suggestion to farmers with regard to their seed corn: "Some time ago one of the best farmers in this county requested the Herald to suggest to the farmers that smoking seed corn would prevent gophers from eating it. In a recent issue of the Rural World a farmer writes that he hung seed corn in the smoke house and smoked it as long as he did his hams; that every kernal grew and that not a spear was touched by gophers mice or blackbirds while some sweet corn planted by the side of it but not smoked, was entirely destroyed. Some of the farmers in this county tried the experiment last year and found that the growing qualities of the seed were not impaired and that the gophers would not eat it It can do no harm and may be of great value."

There is encouragment in the later reports from the efforts to make soldiers out of the Indians, The first impressions were not favorable and possibly there was more or less prejudice among the officers against the plan. Several troops composed entirely of indians have been made up, and predictions come from some of those who are familiar with the circumstances that it will be made a success and contribute materially to the solution of the Indian problem. It will utilize the element that fosters the discontent and give sufficient exercise to keep them toned into orderly life. It will be specially useful in affording a chance for those who have been educated at the government schools. They have often fallen back to their original state from lack of some employment that has authority attached to it.—St. Paul Globe.

Fire was discovered in the roof of E. M. Hoffs building last Saturday afternoon at 4:30. An alarm was quickly given and nearly the whole town turned out. The fire engine was brought out but did not work well at first owing to the bad condition of the valves. By the time the engine was in good running order the fire had gained considerable headway covering the entire roof A large amount of water was brought in buckets and everybody in town did effective and hard work After over an hours hard work the fire was put out after destroying the entire roof and part of the walls in the upper story, Nearly everything in the building was taken out except a large cooking range in the upper story but there was considerable damage done to Mr, Hoff's household furniture by breakage and water. Eikhof & Brink succeeded in getting everything out of the lower part with little damage. The fire started in the attic where Mr. Hoff had been storing his storm windows and must have caught from a match or a candle. It is very fortunate that there was no wind at the time or the town would have been in danger, The boys all worked well and are deserving of great credit in putting the fire out. The loss on the building will amount to about four hundred dollars and one hundred and fifty on contents. Mr. Hoff is insured in the St. Paul Fire & Marine Insurance Company, $1,000 on the building and $500 on contents.

Washington May 10th.—[Special, to the New York World.]—Mr. Blaine has more important business on hand and in prospect than all the other members of the cabinet put together. In fact he is the administrator just now, and will fill a large space in the public eye for months to come.

In all probability the most stirring features of the imbroglio with Italy are yet to come, and, of course, he will figure in them as the representative of this country.

The Bering sea controversy will be interesting and will develop Mr. Blaine at his best. He finds in Lord Salisbury a foeman far worthier of his steel than the Marquis di Rudini. Then there are the Canadian reciprocity scheme, the Newfoundland fisheries affair, the new treaty with Spain, the efforts to acquire a coaling station at the Mole St. Nicholas, and other highly important matters to command his attention. His friends say that he works best when his hands are full. In that view of the case his success within the next 10 months ought to be conspicuous.

But all this is discouraging enough to the friends of the president, who would be glad to have Mr. Blaine a little more in the background, They see that when his trip shall have come to an end the president will be lost again in Mr. Blaine's shadow, and that this is a bad time for him to lose the attention of the country.

The Republican clubs, under the inspiration received at Cincinnati are all at work, but not in the president's interests, They are likely to entirely forget the president in the enthusiasm for Mr. Blaine, and especially as all the showy work of the administration in the near future will be performed by the premier. This state of the case will swell the Harrison howl for that letter of declination which they are demanding of Mr, Blaine.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Pioneer Press: Some of our state contemporaries are bothering themselves and their readers quite unnecessarily by assuming that Gov. Merriam is scheming for the succesion to Senator Davis. It is of course not unlikely that the governor may have amused his imagination with passing dreams of that sort, but it is hardly credible that he has entertained any serious purpose to be a candidate for the United States senatorship. At any rate no such purpose, so far as we know, has ever been avowed, even to his most intimate friends. He is not in it, as the boys would say. He has made a very good governor because the position calls for the business qualifications and the strong good sense which he possesses in so eminent a degree. With these qualifications he would make as good a senator as many others who have enjoyed or now enjoy that dignity. But they are not all the attributes which are desirable in a United States senator, if we can get the higher and rarer ones. How far Gov. Merriam may be credited with the possession of these higher and rarer gifts it is not necessary to discuss, because we have no knowledge that he expects to become a candidate for the position.

G. W. Van Dusen, the veteran elevator man, and present manager of the elevator syndicate, while expressing himself as not being a man who kept as close watch of all the phases of the question as some of his contemporaries yet had an opinion in the matter at issue, and it corresponded in the main with the situation as shown in the Pioneer Press. "I believe," said Mr. Van Dusen, "that this country has entered upon an era of permanently higher prices for all farm products and more especially wheat. Five years ago we arrived at the limit of production. Their annual increase each year since has not been 1 percent, and I can see no reason to expect anything else in the years to come. The increasing area of wheat raising in the new western country will just about compensate each year for the loss in the older sections of the country. It will be just about a stand-off. In the mean time the population is increasing at a steady rate. In five years I believe we will be importing wheat into this country. I can see no other logical conclusion. While as regards wheat the farmers of the older settled sections of the state will get but little benefit from the situation, it is certain that the other kind of products will feel the effects of the rise in this staple, and good prices will be realized all along the line and the farmers condition much improved."—Pioneer Pres.

BEAU BRUMMEL'S SNUFF BOX.

It Caused Estrangement Between the Beau and His Royal Patron.

One of the most touching and, in its way, pathetic incidents in the drama "Beau Brummel" is in the last act, when a poor, broken down dandy hears that his old patron and prince is passing through Calais. Nerving himself with a great effort on his part with his last remaining snuff box, he sends it in the shape of a peace offering and token of contrition to his former royal friend.

No bigger sacrifice was possible to the actual George Brummel. In the days of his prosperity he had no greater fad than the collection of all sorts of snuff boxes; it amounted, in fact, almost to a mania, and by his sagacity and good taste he possessed at one time an unrivaled collection. During his palmy days of London life there was among his collection one box which the regent especially admired.

"Brummel," he said, "this box must be mine. Go to Gray's and order any box you like in lieu of it." Brummel of course assented, and at the same time begged that the new box might have a miniature of the prince as its chief ornament, to which the latter, much pleased, consented. The box was ordered, and in its manufacture Brummel took the most active interest, an interest shared by the prince himself, who suggested several alterations and improvements in the design.

When it was almost completed the quarrel took place at Claremont between the prince and the beau, which was the primary cause of the latter's ultimate downfall. A day or two after its occurrence Brummel went to the jeweler's to inquire about the box, and was then told that the regent had sent express directions that it was not to be delivered. Brummel's chagrin and surprise were intense, and it was this somewhat ungenerous act which first induced him to bear himself with hostility against the prince, and by his own acts and foolish words to widen a breach which was to extend for years.—New York Times.

A Hard Test.

In a western court a witness had been detailing with great minuteness certain conversations which had occurred several years before. Again and again the witness testified to names and dates and precise words, and it became necessary for his cross-examiner to break him up. This was done by a very simple device. While the witness was glibly rattling off his testimony the cross examiner handed him a law book, and said, "Read aloud a paragraph from that book." "What for?" inquired the witness. "I will tell you after you have read it," said the lawyer, and the witness accordingly read aloud a paragraph of most uninteresting material about lands, appurtenances and hereditaments.

Then the lawyer went on and asked him a few more questions about his memory, and the witness was positive that his memory was very good. Suddenly the lawyer said, "By the way, will you please repeat that paragraph you just read about lands, appurtenances and hereditaments?" "Why, of course I could not do that," replied the witness. "You must have a queer memory," retorted the lawyer, "since you can repeat things that you say occurred years ago, and you cannot repeat what you read a moment ago." The witness was nonplussed.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Embarrassment of Joe.

Joe and Dinnis are well known characters about the customs house. The first man does all the custom house business for a large railroad; the other is a broker's clerk.

He who is here called Joe feels himself to be the perfect pink of politeness, and believes that he would rather die than be otherwise. Only one thing mars his happiness, and that is his hair. It is a brilliant red.

One evening Joe was coming down Bedford avenue, Williamsburg, and Dinnis was going up, with his wife on his arm. Dinnis was overjoyed at meeting the other. He wanted Mrs. Dinnis to know Joe, and wanted Joe to know his wife. So he caught Joe by one arm, drew his wife forward and said:

"Hey, Mary! This is the red headed fellow I was telling you about that works in the custom house."

And then he wondered why Joe was confused.—New York Evening Sun.

Experientia Docet.

The Sunday school teacher had just read the story of the bringing to life of the son of the widow of Nain, and then began to ask questions to see if her scholars had understood what she had read.

"In the first place, let me see if any of you can tell me what a widow is."

There was a long silence. Finally a small boy spoke: "I know, 'coe my mother's one. It's a lady what takes in washing."—New York Evening Sun.

A Serious Case.

Jinks (breathlessly)—Say, Binks, if a man dies while I owe him money am I released from the debt?

Legal Friend—No. His executors will snap you up quicker than— But hold on. What's your hurry?

Most Unkind Cut of All.

Kidder—Saw you with your girl yesterday.

Kiddee—Yes. Jever know her?

Kidder—No; but pap says she used to be an old flame of his.—Texas Siftings.

New Method of Engraving.

A French scientist has introduced a process for the engraving of designs on wood, leather or similar materials by means of a pencil or tool, the point of which is constantly at red heat. After a series of experiments with hot iron and platinum wire heated by electricity, a special tool was finally devised by the inventor of this process, which renders the operation extremely simple. The tool in question is another application of the cautery instrument used by surgeons. The pencil has a wooden handle, upon which is mounted a small platinum tube with a fine point. Two separate receptacles communicate with the tools by means of a rubber tube. One of these contains a hydrocarbon, such as alcohol, benzine or wood spirit, and the other contains compressed air.

A constant flow of the hydrocarbon vapor is maintained at the point of the tool, which is thereby kept in a state of intense heat. Both receptacles are provided with regulating apparatus, by which the supply of ink can be adjusted or cut off, as desired. The operation of tracing designs on woodwork and leather is thus simplified to the utmost possible extent. A tracing of the design is made on the article to be ornamented, and any degree of relief is instantly effected, very little skill on the part of the operator being required. The new process will be of the greatest service to bookbinders, carpenters and others, as well as affording a ready means of labeling cases, barrels, etc.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Augustin Daly's Literary Passion.

A man you seldom hear of in a literary way, and who is one of the most discriminate book buyers in the United States, is Mr. Augustin Daly, the playwright and manager. He is on the best of terms with literary men and women both in America and Europe. He has a library full of interest to the student of the history of the stage and to the general lover of rare books. Although Mr. Daly is not himself a collector of portraits or illustrations for the extra illustrating of books, he is a liberal purchaser of extended works of an interesting nature.

The latest addition of importance to his library is an edition of the Thackeray letters with extra illustrations inserted. It cost him not less than $5,000 for the gratification of this whim alone. I suppose that Mr. Daly has one of the finest libraries of dramatic works and rare prints in the country, and his investments represent thousands of dollars. I know he has filed a standing order at one of the New York book stores to send him anything new in the way of books bearing on the drama or stage. Then he has his best books illustrated with rare prints, portraits, play bills and sketches. One work of ten royal octavo volumes contains 3,000 of these special illustrations alone, and cost Mr. Daly over $10,000.—Edward W. Bok's Letter.

Invention of Poplin.

The original invention of poplin is claimed by Avignon, France, once a papal see, on which account it was called a papaline, in compliment to the reigning pope, at which time (the Fifteenth century) this rich material was produced to supply the gorgeous ecclesiastical vestments and hangings in use. The industry was introduced into Dublin by French immigrants, refugees at the time of the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, who settled in that part of the Irish capital called the "Liberties." The La Touche family established the first organized manufactory there, which commenced operations in 1693.—Dry Goods Chronicle.

Ducks and Snow.

Wild geese or wild ducks, unlike most of the species which breed on the shores of the Arctic ocean, are in no hurry to leave their summer quarters so long as there is food enough on the tundras. Hence, their early appearance in the south may be taken as a sign that the snow has acquired possession of the northern feeding grounds. But it admits of no other interpretation, since it by no means follows that this cold snap will take an equatorial direction, or that the birds will outstrip the progress of the cold. In reality, they often arrive with the very weather they are held to prognosticate.—Exchange

The Difference.

"Here, sir, is a fine silver watch for $15. Here is another equally as good for $10."

"What's the difference between them?"

"Five dollars."—Jewelers' Circular.

A New Bicycle Bell.

Charles E. Carroll, of New Haven, has invented a bicycle bell which promises to supersede many of those now in use. It is composed of two gongs joined by a band of metal, which makes the whole perfectly dust proof. Inside is an alarm movement, which is wound up by a small key attached to one of the gongs. One winding suffices for 600 alarms. The alarm is rung by pressing up a small lever toward the handle of the bicycle, from which the bell is hung. The whole arrangement is neat and tasteful and forms an ornament to a machine.—Springfield Homestead.

Kept Whole for Thirty-three Years.

An Auburn man claims to have the second kerosene lamp ever sold in Lewiston. He bought it thirty-three years ago, and at a time when the popular sentiment was very much opposed to the adoption of the lamps. How times and opinions have changed within the past few years!—Lewiston Journal.

Matrimonial Item.

"What's the matter here?" asked a stranger of a small boy, as he noticed a large wedding party coming out of a church on Fifth avenue.

"Nawthin' but the tied goin' out," was the reply.—Texas Siftings.

A Warped Judgment.

Mrs. Bingo—What do you think of this necktie? The clerk said it was the prettiest one in the store.

Mr. Bingo—Then the clerk must be a married man.—Clothier and Furnisher.

Used up.

It's the only way to use some things, but it's a bad condition for a man or woman. It means disease. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That means health. It invigorates the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood and cleanses and renews the whole system. For all scrofulous humors and blood-taints, and even consumption (or lung-scrofula), if taken in time, it's a positive remedy. It's a guaranteed one. In all diseases of the liver, blood and lungs, it's warranted to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded. No other medicine of its class is sold, through druggists, on this peculiar plan. You can judge why. You only pay for the good you get.

Slightly Mistaken.

"Give me a ham sandwich!" shouted the traveler at the bar of the refreshment room. Two seconds later he complained to the attendant, "That was the worst sandwich I ever had. No more taste than sawdust, and not big enough to see."

"You've et yer ticket," returned the attendant contemptuously, "this here's yer ham san'wich."

Something About Dollars.

The dollar sign ($) is not a monogram of "U. S." but dates from the days when the transfer was made from Spanish to American dollars and accounts were kept equally in dollars and reals. Thus: One dollar eight reals. Later the 8 was placed between the perpendicular parallel lines [8]; then the perpendicular lines crossed the eight and combined with it to form the present sign ($).

But the origin of the dollar mark is not so important a question as how to get the dollars, and how to get the most out of them afterwards. A great many rules for becoming wealthy have been given, and John Jacob Astor's—"Cut down your expenses and let your income run on"—is as good as any. We can, however, offer some advice on spending the money especially if you intend to use any of it traveling. Select "The Burlington" when you want to reach any prominent place in the East, West, North or South, and its luxurious equipment, fast time, and sure connections will convince you that it gives you the most for your money. Any ticket agent can sell you tickets by this line, or you can address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul.

A.'s mother was putting him to bed one night. Perhaps he was unusually tired, certain it is he was very unwilling to go through with his evening devotions, and when his mother gently but firmly insisted, he said: "Oh, dear, you'll make me wear my teeth all out saying my prayers!"

"My wife cured me of a very severe colic in five minutes with Johnson's Anodyne Liniment."

LOVE'S SILENCE.

Of all the words that bear their part,
In all the deeds of day to day,
One word is chiefly in my heart,
One little word I must not say.

The hills of truth are straight and steep
They have a smart in every stone;
And climbing them I needs must weep
To think that love must die unknown.

Night follows day—day chases night,
And brings a lesson strange to teach,
That love is lifeless in the light,
And silence is the fullest speech.

A MODERN DRYAD.

It was the last day in July. At three o'clock in the afternoon Edith Miller was lying in a hammock swung from two of the large pillars at one corner of the back porch. The pillars were overgrown with honeysuckle, trained to form a wall of leaves and flowers at this end of the porch. Several wicker chairs were supplied with cushions stood in seeming disorder near the hammock, while on a rug near by lay a large mastiff. All the members of the family except Edith had gone on a picnic to one of the neighboring hills. During the early part of the afternoon Edith had been reading a novel, but the novel had evidently proved uninteresting, for it had fallen on the rug, while the girl lay half dreaming in her hammock, which she kept slowly moving with a little foot. She was wondering what her fate would be on the morrow.

The morrow would bring her not only her twentieth birthday, but—according to prophecy—her future happiness or misery. While she was wondering what her destiny would be, she started suddenly, believing that she had heard the door-bell ring. She sat up quickly, passed her hand over her eyes, and tried to convince herself that she had only imagined she had heard the sound. There was a long silence. Evidently she had been dreaming, for no one went to the door. She was on the point of lying down again, when the bell rang for the second time. A few minutes later and the maid told Edith that there was some one in the parlor to see her.

"Pshaw! some cousin come to disturb me! what a bore these cousins are!"

But the moment Edith entered the parlor she stopped, blushed crimson, and exclaimed prettily:

"Why! Mr. Brooks! I—I never dreamed it could be you! I am very glad to see you," and she offered her hand as she approached. "And pray," she added "what brought you up here?"

"Well," he replied, his color deepening at the sight of her, "since I asked for you, I suppose I might reasonably say that I came up here to see you. I am not doing wrong, am I?"

"No—how silly! I am delighted you came, only I am sorry I am the only one at home just now to receive you; but you see all the rest have gone off on a picnic. When I was told there was some one in here to see me, I was out on the back porch, lying in a hammock, and trying to read a novel."

"Then I interrupted you?"

"But I am glad you did, for it was awfully stupid and pokey. Suppose we go out on the porch, Mr. Brooks, and then you can tell me all that you have been doing since I saw you last."

"I haven't been doing much lately, except wishing from one day's end to the other that I were up here. It has been pretty slow and hot in the city for the last two or three weeks. I wasn't breaking down under the heat or the work, but still," he continued, smiling, "if I may say so, I found no trouble in convincing myself that I ought to run up here for a few days."

"And why here?" she asked, smiling prettily, and looking up at him in a somewhat coquettish way as he paused to let her pass out on the porch.

"Well, as soon as I get up my courage I'll tell you," and he laughed a little, in an easy, half-boyish way.

When Edith was seated in the hammock, and Brooks in one of the wicker chairs close by, there was a short silence.

"Have you mustered up your courage yet?" she asked.

"Don't you think," he said seriously, after a moment's hesitation, "don't you think that, after all, one is more apt to follow the course of one's heart than the idea of one's sense of duty? It seems to me so, and if I remember rightly, Bacon touches on this point. He says, 'Whatsoever a man commandeth upon himself, let him set hours for it; but whatsoever is agreable to his nature, let him take no care for any set times, for his thoughts will fly to it of themselves.' Now, have I answered your question?"

"Oh perfectly, though I object to having Bacon quoted at me on a Summer day."

"Very well; I won't do it any more. Fact is," he added with a smile, "that's all I know."

After a while they started down to the bank of a quiet river that skirted Edith's summer home. They strolled along a narrow, winding path, talking and laughing softly, with the mastiff was walking majestically behind his mistress. They sat down on a bench built around the trunk of one of the large trees near the water edge, but presently Brooks got up to pick some flowers that were growing wild in the shade of the old trees. When he returned he wove the flowers into a wreath, while Edith talked to him. Now and then he laughed lightly over what she said, and occasionally ventured some reply which he knew would bring the color to her face.

"There!" he said, holding up the wreath for her inspection, "isn't it artistic?"

"Why! it is lovely! It's worthy to be worn by a fairy."

"Really? Well then I'll give it, to you, for—if you don't mind my saying so—you look like a fairy this afternoon; but I don't wish you to be one, for if you were, you might fly away so I should never see you again. Let me put it on, and then we'll pretend that you are one of those lovely dryads, and that you have control over these woods."

When he set the wreath of flowers on her head, she looked up at him, smiling sweetly.

"I am a dyrad, didn't you know it?"

"Why, no; tell me how it happened," he said, seating himself on the grass at her feet.

"Yes, I will tell you. You are the first one to hear it. Six years ago tomorrow I was playing down in these woods when my fairy godmother came to me. She told me that I had not obeyed the rules made by fairy godmothers for little girls, and that I must be punished; and then she led me to that old oak tree over there. She touched it with her wand, and the tree opened, and then she led me in, and she touched me with her wand so that I became a little dryad. Then she touched the tree again with her wand, whereupon the tree closed up, shutting me in, and I lived there for a year; and at the end of a year—five years ago tomorrow—my fairy godmother returned, and she touched the tree, and opened it as it had done before. She told me I was free for five years, but that I should be shut up again in the tree—and this time for the rest of my life—unless at the end of five years I did not fall in love with some mortal and tell him, unasked, of my love."

"Poor little dryad, and what a terrible fate," said Brooks, smiling up at her; "but I pray with all my heart that the right mortal will appear before your time is up, and that he will let you tell him of your love. Whichever way your fate may turn, may I hear of the result? May I come to inquire whether you won earthly happiness, or were transformed into a dryad, and shut up in that dark tree again?"

"Yes, you may come," she said very softly, "but—but you must not come too late."

"But, tell me how soon?" he asked, going nearer to her and looking into her lovely eyes.

"You may come," she said, in a faltering voice, gazing steadily at him as she drew back just a little slower than he advanced, "you may come—to-morrow," and then her voice failed her as her color died away.

"But, tell me, Edith," he said, taking her hand and looking down at her, "Won't to-day do as well as to-morrow?"

Mrs Cat's Kindness.

A laborer employed in one of the mills at Sutter Creek has in his home one of the strangest family of animals in existence. The head of the family is an old cat, who is the mother of a thrifty family of five kittens; but in spite of the cares of motherhood, she has taken it upon herself to provide for a rat which she has taken under her protection. During a storm some two months ago a half-grown rat, lame and nearly drowned, crawled into the house, evidently in search of food and shelter, and by some chance made its way to the place where the old cat lay snugly on a heap of sacks with her family. Strangely, the mother seemed touched with pity over the condition of the wanderer, and instead of attacking him she coolly made room for him and did everything to relieve his sufferings. The rat displayed every sign of gratitude, and the miner's family, when they discovered the intruder, were so struck with surprise, that they forbade any one to disturb them. The result was that the rat chose to remain with his new-formed friends, and has now become as docile as his foster mother. A warm attachment seems to have sprung up between the two, and the rat has grown fat and lazy, wandering about as it suits its fancy, and evidently pleased with his new surroundings.

Beads.

Glass beads originated with the Egyptians. Some have been found with hieroglyphic inscriptions, showing the date to be about 1500 B. C. Glass beads and beagles for necklaces were used by the Egyptians and many other ancient nations. They were also used on cloth employed for mummy wrappings. They have been long used by eastern nations for devotional purposes, being worn by Chinese, Tartars, Buddhists and Turks alike. The Chinese rosary is composed of 108 beads of corals, stones, etc., some of them being as large as a pigeon's egg. They are mentioned by St. Augustine, A. D. 366, and by the Druids of the time of Cæsar. Beads of copper have been found in all of the ancient burial mounds of Northern Europe and Asia, as well as in the mounds of America. Gold beads have been discovered in some of the cliff dwellings of Arizona and Mexico. Whether these are earlier or later than those of Egypt it would be difficult to say.

THE INVENTIVE GENIUS.

Quinine is now successfully manufactured in Madras.

It has been found that an electric current will sour milk.

Since 1880 over 700 applicants for patents for electric accumulators have been made in England alone.

The velocity of electricity has been found by the revolving-mirror method to be nearly one-half that of light.

An English physician has invented a cabinet for the generation of ozone for restorative purposes. The ozone is produced by electricity.

A good water-proof cement can be made, it is said, from equal parts of red and white lead worked into a stiff paste with boiling linseed oil.

The creosoted wood floors of a building recently burned in New York were the only portion of the structure not destroyed. They were only charred.

A new gumming machine for envelopes can gum, dry and deliver envelopes at the rate of 20,000 per hour, and at a cost of a little less than one-half cent per thousand.

Onyx now brings from $3 to $5 per cubic foot. The material is sold in blocks, and until it is sawn and polished the manufacturer can not know whether he has a good or a bad bargain.

IN NATURE'S ZOO.

A resident of Reading, Pa., was bitten by a pet parrot some days ago and, after suffering terrible agonies, died.

It took nearly a hundred words to report the death of the stallion Isonomy by cable. But then he was worth $37,000 and during his life had earned something like $750,000.

A resident of Joinville-le-Pont, near Paris, is said to have 3,000,000 geese, which produce annually 20,000,000 of quills. He has the largest quill manufactory in the world.

Capt. A. H. Ramsay, of Toccoa, Ga., owns a mule forty-five years of age. The mule is white, about half the size of ordinary mules, and sports the name of Jessey. "He is as sprightly as a spring chicken, can unlatch a gate, lay down a fence and dismount the best of riders."

Gus. Gottschalk, of Bozeman, Mont., has among his stock of furs the skin of a sea otter, measuring seven feet from tip of flipper to nose and thirty-three inches around the girth. "It is the largest one ever captured on the west coast and its skin is worth $500. It was captured by an Indian."

TREES THAT STING.

The Beautiful Shrubs of Queensland Have Their Drawbacks.

Though the tropical shrubs of Queensland are very luxurient and beautiful, they are not without their dangerous drawbacks, for there is one plant growing among them that is deadly in its effects—that is to say, deadly in the same way that one would apply that term to fire, for if a certain proportion of one's body be burned by the stinging tree death will be the result.

They are found of all sizes, from three inches up to fifteen and twenty feet. In the old ones the stem is whitish, and the red berries usually grow in clusters at the top. It emits a peculiar and disagreeable smell, but it is best known by its leaf, which is nearly round, with a point on the top and jagged all around the edges like a nettle. All the leaves are large, even on small plants—sometimes larger than a saucer.

The effects of the sting are curious; it leaves no mark, but the pain is said to be maddening, and for months after a jab from one of its numerous "stingers" the part stung remains very tender; especially is this true in rainy weather, or when the parts stung have been accidentally dampened, even if very slightly.

Hunters who have found themselves surrounded by small forests of "stinging trees" in the dusk of evening have been known to lie down and pass the night as comfortably as possible, fearing to make an effort to extricate themselves in the dim, uncertain light, least they might get deeper and deeper into the besetting trouble.

"I have seen," said Shuman, "a man, who would treat ordinary pain lightly, roll on the ground in agony for hours after being stung, and have known a horse so completely mad, after getting into a thicket of these trees, that he rushed open-mouthed at every one that approached him, and had to be shot to relieve his agony." Dogs, when stung, will rush about, whining piteously, biting pieces of flesh from the affected parts.

The small "stinging trees," only a few inches high, are even more dangerous than the large ones, being so small they are likely to brush one's ankles before they are seen.

One safeguard for the experienced hunter is the fact that they always grow in palm thickets and no place else. The presence of palm trees is, therefore, sufficient to put an old settler on his guard.

CATHEDRAL ARCHITECTURE.

How the Great Church of Rome Was Built of Butter.

The cathedral is first found to perfection in the thirteenth century, but it is more elaborate in the fourteenth, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The tenth century was an important epoch in the history of cathedrals. It was the general belief at that time that the end of the world was approaching and a falling off in building activity is noticed in consequence. After the beginning of the year 1000 A. D. a general sense of relief is shown in the building of new churches. The erection of a church was a convenient means for the expression of thankfulness. The founding of monasteries, especially of the Cistercian order, led also to this phenomenal activity. An illustration of this progressive spirit is seen in the tower of the Rouen cathedral, which was built of butter. I mean by that that the people of Rouen, by giving up butter in Lent, paid for it from their savings.

The sculpture of cathedrals, which was so exquisitely carried out in the middle ages, contained a means for teaching the bible in days when books were almost unknown. This is well shown in the statues of Christ. At that time it was more than a symbol; it was a sign of the living spirit. Then, too, the cathedral was more than a church and was not merely a religious place. It was the one superlative place in the city—the center of learning and of the community. Our modern churches have deteriorated, as in the early days, to mere places of worship.

The Daughter's Lover.

There is no race of young people yet born with old heads upon their shoulders, nor should we desire it, says the Ladies Home Journal. The unreasonableness, the extravagances and the illusions of youth are part of its charming conditions. But a husband is to be chosen, not alone for the quickly fleeting hours of youth; he is to be a friend and supporter through the burden and heat of the day, and a companion for the long shadows of the evening of life. Therefore no girl should be allowed to choose a husband as she would choose a partner in a dance, and yet this is what many girls are inclined to do.

Mothers ought to supplement by their own experience the inexperience and emotions of their daughters, and to warn them against passions which bring evil unless guarded and directed to good ends. For the marriages of affection, on which we are apt to pride ourselves are very often marriages of youthful caprice. Too often love in a cottage comes in for all the hardships of a cottage without love.

He Had the Last Word.

A bachelor tradesman who has just died in Hamburg adopted a novel method of revenging himself on the woman who once jilted him. In his will he left her a legacy of 12,000 marks, but also indited the following letter which he ordered to be handed to the lady, who is now a widow, with the money: "Madam: Some thirty years ago I was a suitor for your hand in marriage. You refused my offer, and as a consequence my days have been passed in peace and quietness. Now I requite your goodness."

How to Play Diplomacy.

"Say, Fred," said a lad who, in spite of his youth takes a good deal of interest in diplomatic matters, "let's play diplomacy."

"I don't know how."

"Oh, I'll show you. The first thing to do is for you to go into the parlor and I'll go into the dining room, and then we'll write letters to each other."

As to Points of View.

That all depends upon the point of view is shown by the circumstances that a man falling out of a baloon does not want to reach the earth, although he is more than likely to get it.

The Soap that Cleans Most is Lenox.

To Contributors.

Taverner, of the Boston Post, makes a suggestion which may be commended, with some grains of allowance, to all contributors to The Companion. "I doubt," he says, "if Shakespeare himself would have furnished good 'copy' if he had attempted to put down his plays with a pencil and a pad," and he continues:

The late Philip Welch, who flooded all the comic papers and some of the serious ones with the most original, the most concise and pointed paragraphs, wrote each one—they were always short—in the middle of a sheet of good, thick notepaper.

Thus he secured two advantages. Having a sheet of paper for each joke, he was under no temptation to lengthen his witticism to suit the page; and the nature of his material, such as one would use for an invitation to an evening party, naturally led him to be concise and finished—to have a beautiful bon mot in the exact middle of a beautiful expanse of white.

I will only add that I make these observations chiefly for the benefit of my friend, Penloper, whose comparative failure as a humorist I attribute to his use of cheap yellow paper and an ill-sharpened pencil.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The Circus Lion.

A circus man says: "Some people think that the lion is the king of beasts, but if they could only see what I have seen they would change their opinion. A few years ago we were showing in the Midlands, when one of the lions got out of his cage, and was about to make his escape, when a man, of powerful build, who happened to be standing near, stepped up to his lordship and deliberately kicked him until he turned and crept back into the cage.

"At another time a drunken keeper opened a cage door and a large lion was about to spring out, when my brother seized a barrel stave and hammered the beast on the head. It crouched down upon the floor, and then one of the men went up and shut the cage. When he first saw the lion about to escape it was standing with its head and shoulders outside the bars and one bound would have given it freedom."

Nobody has ever claimed that a circus or menagerie lion is the "king of beasts." But when you meet a lion on his native and original jurisdiction, we doubt that it would be a healthy operation to try to thrash him with a barrel stave.

And if any man tried to kick a lion wandering upon his customary territory we are inclined to think that the result would be disastrously fatal to him.

Queen's English.

"I'm always perfectly impartial," said an old man, gravely, "but I do hate potato-bugs and furriners. So does many another kindly person.

An English bicyclist was coming, at great speed, down one of the steepest streets in Edinburgh, when his machine capsized, and landed him in the middle of the road. Two carters were passing, and they promptly came to his assistance.

"Maun, hoo did ye fa?" kindly inquired one of the carters. To which he received this answer:

"I was coming down that declivity with such velocity that I lost my gravity and fell on the macadamized road."

The carter turned from the unfortunate rider with insular contempt.

"C'wa,' Jock he said to his mate. "If I'd kent the cratur' wis a forriner, he would hae lain in the gutter lang eneuch for me."—Weekly Citizen.

It Took a Long Time to Decide.

The wife of a celebrated divine has such a fancy for Angora cats that she has a room devoted to them, leading out of which a gallery is built, so that the animals can have exercise and fresh air without wandering away.

In addition to the cat craze, a monkey was added to the household menagerie, and all went pleasantly until one day, as the doctor stepped into his bath, the monkey jumped in with him. Then there was wrath in the man's eye, when, after a brief struggle, he left the bath tub, holding the monkey by the neck, both dripping with water, and marched into the presence of his good lady, saying:—

"Madam, this monkey business has gone too far; you must decide between me and the monkey!"

She looked placidly up from a cat she was petting, saying:—

"Will you give me twenty-four hours to decide, dear?"

The monkey is still a member of the household.

Makes the Weak Strong

The way in which Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up people in run down or weakened state of health, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"German Syrup"

Here is an incident from the South—Mississippi, written in April, 1890, just after the Grippe had visited that country. "I am a farmer, one of those who have to rise early and work late. At the beginning of last Winter I was on a trip to the City of Vicksburg, Miss., where I got well drenched in a shower of rain. I went home and was soon after seized with a dry, hacking cough. This grew worse every day, until I had to seek relief. I consulted Dr. Dixon who has since died, and he told me to get a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Meantime my cough grew worse and worse and then the Grippe came along and I caught that also very severely. My condition then compelled me to do something. I got two bottles of German Syrup. I began using them, and before taking much of the second bottle, I was entirely clear of the Cough that had hung to me so long, the Grippe, and all its bad effects. I felt tip-top and have felt that way ever since." PETER J. BRIALS, Jr., Cayuga, Hines Co., Miss.

AROUND WASHINGTON.

SECRETARY FOSTER has decided that a foreign painting exported can not be reimported without the payment of duty.

No action will be taken in regard to the issue of the Spanish reciprocity proclamation as the president does not care to act in the absence of Secretary Blaine.

THE war department will order the city of Chicago to remove the obstructive pier in the Canal street bridge over the Chicago river.

BY direction of the secretary of war, Private Will G. Huntly, troop B, 8th cavalry, now at Ft. Meade, South Dakota, having enlisted under false pretentions, will be discharged.

THE president has made the following appointments in the navy; Commodore John T. Irwin, to be rear admiral; Capt. Oscar F. Stanton, to be commodore; Commander Louis Kempff, to be captain; Lieutenant-Commander W. B. Brownson, to be commander; Lieut. Richardson Clover to be lieutenant commander.

THE secretary of war, with the approval of the president, has made the following allotments of money to the various states and territories for arming and equipping the militia: Arkansas, $6,450; California, $7,371; Colorado, $2,764; Idaho, $2,764; Iowa, $11,978; Kansas, $8,292; Kentucky, $11,978; Louisina, $7,371; Michigan, $11,011; Minnesota, $6,450; Mississippi, $8,272; Missouri, $14,712; Montana, $2,764; Nebraska, $4,007; Nevada, $2,764; North Dakota, $2,764; Ohio, $21,192; Oregon, $1,764; Pennsylvania, $27,612; South Dakota, $3,685; Tennessee, $11,057; Texas, $11,978; Washington, $2,764; West Virginia, $5,528; Wisconsin, $10,135; New Mexico, $3,000; Oklahoma, $3,000; Arizona, $3,000.

PERSONAL.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN was expelled from the order of Elks.

W. P. HEPBURN, of Iowa, solicitor of the treasury, has accepted an invitation to deliver the memorial address on Decoration day at Grafton, Va.

EX-PRESIDENT and Mrs. Cleveland will make Tudor Haven their principal place of residence during the coming summer, much to the disappointment of Marion residents, who have been hoping that they would again spend the season there.

HON. CHARLES CAMERON, one of the best known lawyers in Chicago, and for a quarter of a century a leading politician, died from paresis, from which he has been suffering for the last four months. Col. Cameron was born at Fort Stanley, Can., in 1825.

WILLIAM M. RICE, of New York, formerly of Houston Tex., has just donated $200,000 to the city to establish an institute for the advancement of literature, science and art. It is to be planned after Cooper Union institute, of New York, and will be known as W. M. Rice institute.

IN an interview with ex-Gov. Boyd he said: I can't see how I can be blamed for wanting to be governor of the state, when I received a plurality of votes. Perhaps in November the court will decide in my favor. Yes, it is true that President Harrison informed me that my defeat would be a fatal blow to the Republicans in Nebraska. Ex-Attorney General Garland has been retained by me, and says that there will be no trouble in eventually regaining my seat.

CASUALTIES.

MRS. J. L. HOGAN was killed in a railway accident at Danville, Va.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY

A New Political Party the Outcome of the Conference at Cincinnati.

Its Birth Announced by Scenes of the Greatest Confusion and the Wildest Hilarity.

CINCINNATI, Special.—Whatever its outcome the big convention which assembled here was inaugurated in a fashion of which any American citizen might well be proud.

Fifteen hundred representatives of the bone and sinew of the nation, gathered alike from farm and city toil, came to order on the very watch-tick that had months before been agreed upon, lifted their voices in magnificent diapason in a hymn to their country, said together in reverential unison the Lord's prayer, and then calmly proceeded to fight out as best their manhood directed the question whether or not a great new political party in the United States should forthwith be given existence.

The first real excitement in the convention was caused by no less a person than Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota. He did it with a harmless-looking little suggestion, that, to save time, the appointment of committeemen by each state be completed in a lump, each state naming all of its committeemen at once, including the member of the national committee.

This led to a very warm discussion in which Gen. Weaver of Iowa, wasted the sage and charged him with trying to pledge the convention on the sly to the formation of a third party. Donnelly disclaimed any intention to take an undue advantage.

The Chairman came to the rescue and declared the motion out of order.

After the appointment of a committee on resolutions the convention adjourned until tomorrow.

The committee on resolutions consists of one member from each state represented, they met in the evening and organized by electing Ignatius Donnelly, chairman.

SECOND DAY.

The convention amused itself while waiting for the report of the committee on resolutions in passing the hat to defray the expenses of the convention and to send a colored alliance man home.

The report of the committee on order of business elicited applause when the programme outlined showed a place for the appointment of members of

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Opposition was manifested at once to the proposition to limit all speeches to five minutes. A lady delegate from South Dakota got the floor and pleaded with the men folks to please not try to cut things off so short. Cries of "We are here for business" was the reply from a score, and attempts to debate the question were howled down in short order. The five-minute rule carried the day.

It was necessary to apply the previous question gag before a vote could be obtained on the report of the committee on order of business. Then the report went through like a cannon ball. How the convention did screech when the vote was announced.

"That means a third party right now," shouted an excited Kansan. "We are going to have a national committee, don't you see? And that is what we have been after. We've won the first victory, anyhow. Hooray, I say—hooray!"

Pandemonium broke loose from ceiling to floor. While the applause was still making the windows rattle Senator Peffer opened his powerful lungs, and, with a mighty effort, made himself heard sufficiently to declare the convention adjourned till 2 p. m.

A PROTEST FROM POLK.

When the convention reassembled a letter from L. L. Polk was read advising this conference to issue an address, and defer action on a third party until 1892. This caused a breeze, and when a motion to refer it to the committee on resolutions was declared carried there was a loud demand—notably from the Minnesota delegation—that the negative be put more forcibly by the chair. The demand was renewed and continued from time to time during the reading of a number of miscellaneous telegrams.

Mr. Fish of Minnesota argued that Mr. Polk's letter was ill-timed, and claimed that it showed how useless it would be to refer the third party question to the meeting in 1892, at which Polk and his followers will be leading spirits.

Ignatius Donnelly, chairman of the committee on resolutions, climbed on the rostrum at this juncture and almost his first words caused a whirlwind of excitement. The declaration from Donnelly, which set the convention wild, was that he was there to report that the committee on platform was a unit for the organization of a third party. Donnelly evidently felt that his moment of triumph had come in the struggle which he himself so deftly began just twenty-four hours before, and for which he had been so by Gen. Weaver of Iowa. Two alternatives were presented, he said; either to ignore a third party or divide the friends of reform.

He gave way to Robert Schilling of Wisconsin, secretary of the committee, who read the platform. The name of the new party, the "People's Party of the United States," elicited a magnificent outburst of applause, and, as each plank was read, the cheering was renewed so frequently that the great hall seemed to reverberate continuously.

A plank recommended universal suffrage to favorable consideration, and another demanded payment of pensions on a gold basis. The former met with a rather chilly reception, but the latter was roundly cheered.

At this juncture a delegate objected that the platform was one-sided for the Farmers' Alliance, but he met with little encouragement, and Schilling declared that the convention was for harmony, and for the "new declaration of independence." He announced that the pension plank was left to the soldier member on the committee, with an inquiry whether it was satisfactory, and, on his acquiescence, it was adopted unanimously.

The convention went wild and mounted tables, chairs, like Comanches. A portion of the convention sang to the tune of "Good-bye My Lover, Good-bye, the words "Good-bye old parties, good-bye." and then the "Doxology." The tumult surpassing in its remarkable suddenness and vigors, anything that had previously taken place in the convention lasted fully a quarter of an hour, till it ceased from sheer exhaustion of the delegates.

SHOUTING AND YELLING

The platform proper, exclusive of the resolutions, was then adopted by a rising vote. At this stage the convention was little better than a howling mob, and in the midst of the confusion G. M. Hiller of California came to the front on the prohibition question, which had been ignored in the platform and resolutions. All efforts to choke him off with points of order were ineffectual. The resolution offered by him was brief, but to the point. It said: "Resolved, That we favor the abolition of the liquor traffic."

Confusion became worse confounded. Fifty orators were clamoring for recognition, but the first to succeed was Schilling of Wisconsin. He declared himself a strong temperance man, one who neither drank nor even smoked, but he opposed the discussion of the question of prohibition at this time. Mr. Schilling declared that the resolution proposed by Mr. Miller had been fully considered and voted down by the committee on platform. To spring it now was plainly throwing a fire brand into the convention, and in his opinion it was a deliberate attempt

TO CAUSE A SPLIT IN THE PARTY.

The pressure at this time for recognition was extraordinary. In desperation the chair proposed to give ten of the most vociferous delegates, who were crowded about his desk clamoring for recognition, one minute each, and a hundred watches were pulled out to make sure that none of the speakers exceeded the sixty-seconds limit. The prohibition amendment was overwhelmingly defeated.

The resolutions were then adopted with only three dissenting votes.

At this juncture Gen. J. B. Weaver relieved Chairman Peffer, who was worn out with his fruitless efforts to preserve order, and had besides to catch a train for Washington. A resolution against trusts was choked off by a point of order raised by Schilling of Wisconsin, that all resolutions should be referred to the committee on resolutions without being read. Then the convention got down to business again and the matter of choosing a national committee was taken up. Chairman Weaver declared a welcome recess to enable the overheated, exhausted delegates to select members of the national committee from their respective states.

After the selection of the committee there were a few moments of confused preparation for adjournment sine die, then the chairman's gavel fell and the first convention of the People's party of the United States had passed into history.

THE PLATFORM.

Following is the platform in full as presented to the convention:

That in view of the great social, industrial and economical revolution now dawning upon the civilized world, and the new and living issues confronting the American people, we believe that the time has arrived for a crystallization of the political reform forces of our country, and the formation of what should be known as the People's party of the United States of America.

That we most heartily endorse the demands of the platforms as adopted at St. Louis, Mo., in 1889, Ocala, Fla., in 1890, and Omaha, Neb., in 1891, by industrial organizations there represented, summarized as follows:

The right to make and issue money is a sovereign power to be maintained by the people for the common benefit, hence we demand the abolition of national banks as banks of issue, and as a substitute for national bank notes we demand that legal tender treasury notes be issued in sufficient volume to transact the business of the country on a cash basis, without damage or especial advantage to any class or calling, such notes to be legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, and such notes, when demanded by the people, shall be loaned to them at not more than 2 per cent per annum upon non-perishable products, as indicated in the subtreasury plan, and also upon real estate, with proper limitation upon the quantity of land and amount of money.

We demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

We demand the passage of laws prohibiting alien ownership of land, and that congress take prompt action to devise some plan to obtain all lands now owned by aliens and foreign syndicates, and that all lands now held by railroads and other corporations in excess of such as actually used and needed by them be reclaimed by the government, and held for actual settlers only.

Believing the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privilege to none, we demand that taxation, national, state or municipal, shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another.

We demand that all revenues, national, state or county, shall be limited to the necessary expenses of the government, economically and honestly administered.

We demand a just and equitable system of graduated tax on income.

We demand the most rigid, honest and just national control and supervision of the means of public communication and transportation, and if this control and supervision does not remove the abuses now existing, we demand the government ownership of such means of communication and transportation.

We demand the election of president, vice president and United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

That we urge united action of all progressive organizations in attending the conference called for Feb. 22, 1892, by six of the leading reform organizations.

That a national central committee be appointed by this conference, to be composed of a chairman, to be elected by this body, and of three members from each state represented, to be named by each state delegation.

That this central committee shall represent this body, attend the national conference on Feb. 22, 1892, and if possible unite with that and all other reform organizations there assembled. If no satisfactory arrangement can be effected, this committee shall call a national convention, not later than June 1, 1892, for the purpose of nominating candidates for president and vice president.

That the members of the central committee for each state where there is no independent political organization conduct an active system of political agitation in their respective states.

NOT IN THE PLATFORM.

Following are resolutions submitted for consideration, and not contained in the platform:

Resolved, That the question of universal suffrage be recommended to the favorable consideration of the various states and territories.

That while the party in power in 1869 pledged the faith of the nation to pay a debt in coin that had been contracted on a depreciated currency basis and payable in currency, thus adding nearly $1,000,000,000 to the burdens of the people, which meant gold for the bondholders and depreciated currency for the soldier, and holding that the men who imperiled their lives to save the life of a nation should have been paid in money as good as that paid to the bondholder, we demand the issue of legal tender treasury notes in sufficient amount to make the pay of the soldiers equal to par with coin, or such other legislation as shall do equal and exact justice to the Union soldiers of this country.

That, as eight hours constitute a legal day's work for government employes in mechanical departments, we believe this principle should be farther extended so as to apply to all corporations employing labor in the different states of the Union.

That this conference condemns in unmeasured terms the action of the directors of the World's Columbian Exposition, on May 10, in refusing the minimum rate of wages asked for by the labor organizations of Chicago.

That the attorney general of the United States should make immediate provision to submit the act of March 2, 1889, providing for the opening of Oklahoma to homestead settlement, to the United States supreme court, so that the expensive and dilatory litigation now pending there be ended.

The following resolution introduced by Mason A. Green of Massachusetts in behalf of the Nationalists was referred to the various reform bodies for their adoption:

That when in the course of business consolidations in the form of trusts or private syndicates it becomes evident that any branch of commerce is used for the behoof and profit of a few men at the expense of the general public, we believe that the people should assume charge of such commerce through their national, state or municipal administration.

Three Paces.

Convicts who were forced to drag about a ball and chain at the galleys could often be detected, when released, by their habit of trailing one foot after the other. John Boyle O'Reilly, condemned to convict life in Australia for his Fenian sympathies, had also in after years a habit which told a like sad story. Says a friend in his recent "Life."

When walking abstractedly and mechanically, he always went a short distance, and then retraced his steps, no matter how wide a stretch he had before him.

It was always three paces forward, turn, and three paces back, exactly like the restless turning of a lion in a cage. One day I asked him:

"Boyle, what was the length of your cell when you were in prison? How many paces?"

"Three," he said. Why do you ask?"

"Because, when you are absent-minded, you always walk three paces forward, and then retrace your steps."

SLAIN BY A BULLET.

A Would-Be Jail Breaker Killed at Devils Lake, N. D., by a Deputy Sheriff.

He Was Making a Desperate Attack on the Sheriff With a Heavy Padlock.

DEVILS LAKE, N. D., Special Telegram, May 27.—Edward W. Heerman, a prisoner in jail, was killed to-day by Deputy Sheriff Gilbert Olson.

Sheriff Wagness had ordered Heerman into his cell. Heerman refused to obey. Wagness told the prisoner that he should be compelled to put him in by force if he refused to obey his order. Heerman thereupon made a desperate attack on the sheriff, beginning operations by throwing a handful of salt which he had secreted from his morning's meal in the eyes of Wagness, dealing him at the same time several severe blows about the head and face with a large padlock held firmly in his hand.

Sheriff Wagness, stunned by the blows and nearly blinded, dropped his pistol. At this juncture Deputy Olson arrived, and a scramble ensued for the weapon, which was secured by the deputy who, seeing the sheriff hors de combat and fearing for his own life, quickly fired at the prisoner. The shot took effect in the groin and proved fatal, the victim dying in about two hours from the time he was shot.

Although but twenty years old, Heerman was a desperate character, having on former occasions brutally attacked jail officials. There is no doubt but for the timely arrival and quick action of Deputy Oleson, Sheriff Wagness would have been killed.

When Heerman was told his wound would prove fatal he sent for Sheriff Wagness and told him that he was exonerated from all blame, for he had made up his mind to kill any one that stood in the way of his escape.

WOES OF A YOUNG WIFE.

She Is Taken West, Cruelly Beaten and Then Deserted.

SEATTLE, Wash., Special Telegram, May 27.—Mrs. J. W. Kreider, who left here today for Chicago, tells a terrible story of suffering at the hands of a fickle husband and a hateful father-in-law, the latter being E. C. Kreider, one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens in Illinois.

Young Kreider met his wife, Miss Adelaide Holmes, in Chicago a year ago, and after a brief courtship married her three months ago. Miss Holmes' only relatives were a widowed mother and two brothers. Her father, up to three years ago, when he died, had been at the head of a large merchant tailoring establishment in Chicago; He had reared his family well, and at his death left quite an estate, and the family lived well.

The marriage brought forth a storm of indignation from the father, but of this the with heard but little. Her mother and brothers returned to England to live. A short period of happiness followed and then came a sudden decision on the part of the husband to come West. A month ago Mr. and Mrs. Kreider arrived in Seattle, going thence to Fairhaven, where they located. The husband intimated that his father wanted him to leave his wife. She knew this and said little.

Suddenly, one day two weeks since, young Kreider returned in a drunken condition to the country residence of Mr. Wheeler of Fairhaven, where the man and his wife were stopping as guests. Entering the house he attacked his wife and beat her most cruelly. The arrest of young Kreider followed immediately, but the case did not come to a hearing. On his release he deserted his wife and fled to Chicago over the Canadian Pacific.

A few letters from sire to son which the poor woman found explained it all. She had been brought West to be gotten rid of. Mrs. Kreider came to Seattle last week where the great strain caused her to break down, but careful nursing restored her. When her story was learned counsel was retained, and through the legal firm's correspondents in Chicago action for divorce and full restitution for the indignities heaped upon her was begun.

E. C. Kreider, the father-in-law, is president of a large flour mill company and one of the owners of the Jacksonville Journal and possesses other newspaper interests. He was prominently mentioned before the last election as a candidate for state treasurer on the Republican ticket.

THE DUELISTS.

Their Present Whereabouts and Condition Known Only to a Few.

CHICAGO, May 27.—The whereabouts of Baron Rudolph Kalnoky, who is reported to have fought a duel yesterday morning in Jackson park, is unknown, save to a few who will not talk.

At the Richelieu no additional information can be secured, everybody being in a state of ignorance. Manager Carlson was told yesterday morning that the duel had been fought. But he declines to state who told him, for the reason that he gave his word of honor he would keep silent on that part of the tale. He declares that he knows nothing about the identity of the count's opponent, that neither are in the hotel and that their present location is to him unknown.

NOT COUNT KALNOKY'S NEPHEW.

VIENNA, May 26.—Inquiries made here show that Baron Rudolph Kalnoky de Korospatak, who is announced to have fought a duel yesterday at Chicago with a young Southerner, is not a nephew of Count Kalnoky, in this city. Count Kalnoky has no relative bearing the name of Rudolph Kalnoky de Korospatak, nor has he a relative now in America.

FOUGHT A DUEL.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 27.—Two variety performers named Leonard and Gilmore quarreled to-day over a woman and agreed to fight a duel to settle it.

They retired to a room and began slashing each other with knives. Leonard soon fell with eight terrible gashes in the body and soon died.

A Victory for Pickler.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, May 27.—The order for a change in the boundary lines between the Chamberlain and Pierre district was issued to-day, notwithstanding the protest of Pettigrew. Representative Pickler wins a victory over the senator. The change throws a strip eight miles wide, formerly in the Chamberlain district, into the Pierre district, most of the land being covered by settlement. The line takes in all the land except the southern tier of townships of Nelson county, which leaves the Chamberlain district with very little land occupied at present upon which filings may be made. The Bad river country is now in the Pierre district.

DEFAULTER BARDSLEY.

He Is Watched by Detectives, Being Too Ill to Leave His Bed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—City Treasurer Bardsley's condition was still so serious this morning that he was unable to appear before Magistrate Pole to answer to the charge of misappropriating $39,000 of the city money. His counsel appeared and presented a physician's certificate setting forth that it would be dangerous to attempt to make Mr. Bardsley leave his bed at this time, but stating that he was improving and would probably be able to appear in a few days. The hearing was continued until Friday and bail was fixed at $25,000.

This afternoon Attorney General Hensel had an affidavit prepared and presented to Magistrate Pole, charging John Bardsley with having collected $367,004 belonging to the State of Pennsylvania and failing to account for the same, although lawful demands had been made therefor by the proper state officers. Magistrate Pole thereupon increased Bardsley's bail from $25,000 to $50,000. Two detectives have remained in a room adjoining Mr. Bardsley's bed room since Saturday night, when the first warrant was served.

Up to late this afternoon Gideon W. Marsh, the fugitive president of the Keystone National bank, had not been located.

The special committee of the council that is investigating the city depositories met again this afternoon. Francis W. Kennedy, president of the suspended Spring Garden bank, testified that the bank had paid Mr. Bardsley fully half he had on deposit. This money was deposited to the credit of John Bardsley, trustee, but the witness understood that the money belonged to the state. Mr. Kennedy made the surprising statement that on the morning of the bank's suspension he sent to Bardsley $47,000 with collateral.

The finance committee of councils met this evening and was presented by City Controller Thompson with a list of the due bills held by Bardsley from the Keystone bank, which Mr. Thompson had recieved from Bardsley's counsel. There are fourteen of these due bills, all of which were given during the yer 1890, and they aggregate $945,000. On one of the bills there was a credit of $20,000, leaving a total of $925,000.

A FATAL MISTAKE.

Untimely Death of Congressman L. C. Houk of Tennessee.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 27.—Judge L. C. Houk, representative in congress from the Second Tennessee district, died to-day.

Yesterday he went to a drug store near his residence to get a prescription put up. The druggist compounded it for him and set it down in a glass near another containing a strong solution of arsenic, which Judge Houk took by mistake.

Antidotes were promptly administered and last night he was so well that nothing was said about the circumstance, except to a few friends. He slept through the night and died this morning suddenly. He had heart disease and the poison and excitement following the incident affected that organ and were the cause of his death.

A FIRE BUG CONFESSES.

Then a Prominent Citizen of St. Cloud Is Arrested.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Special Telegram, May 27.—Last night neighbors discovered the residence property of Harry Brauch, proprietor of the Grand Union hotel, in flames on the outside, but subdued the fire.

This morning the police arrested Nichols Karets, a young bartender, for the crime. After being in jail a few hours Karets sent for the chief of police and made a confession. He said that Brauch had agreed to give him $500 for burning the building, on which there was $2,500 insurance. With the money obtained in this way Brauch said He would go West and join a Mrs. Hart, who formerly was landlady of the hotel, and with whom it is alleged Brauch has endeavored to elope several times.

Brauch was arrested. He is a over fifty years of age, was possessed of a good deal of property and had always been regarded as a good citizen. He has a family of grown up children.

SOUTH HAVEN SCORCHED.

A Disastrous Fire in a Wright County Village.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Special Telegram, May 27.—Reports were received here to-day of a disastrous fire which visited South Haven, a little hamlet just across the line from this county in Wright county, Saturday night. The conflagration started in the general merchandise store of A. J. Lano, and his family, who lived over the store, escaped with difficulty.

The fire was communicated thence to Mobitor & Perry's store and to the dwelling house of W. C. Weeks. Lano's loss is $6,000, with $3,000 insurance; Monitor & Perry's, $2,000, with no insurance; Weeks', $500, with no insurance. Spontaneous combustion was the origin of the fire.

HANGING IN A CELLAR.

Mysterious Taking Off of an Iowa Woman and Her Four Children.

HARLAN, Iowa, May 27.—Mrs. Christen Pederson, a Danish woman, and four children, aged from five to ten, were found hanging in the cellar of their house, three miles north of this town, yesterday. It is thought they have been hanging since Wednesday night, the 20th inst. The husband was sent to the insane asylum about a week ago, and this series of murders and suicide shows that his wife should have accompanied him, as she must have been violently insane.

THE BAPTISTS.

Seventy-Seventh Anniversary of the Baptist Missionary Union.

CINCINNATI, May 27.—The seventy-seventh anniversary of the American Baptist Missionary union was observed to-day. This is the oldest society of the Baptists. The chairman, Rev. Dr. Northrop, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, delivered an address.

Timber Culture Entries.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—In answer to a letter on the subject, the acting commissioner of the land office to-day sent out the following: "Parties may commute timber culture entries at $1.25 per acre under the act of March 3, 1891, whether within railroad limits or not, on proof of compliance with law for four years, when the entry is valid, and not forfeited by subsequent failure to comply with the law."

Delirious From an Assault.

PEORIA, Ill., May 27.—To-day Anna Gerber, a school teacher of Hilton, was met in a lonely wood while going to her school by George Ditch, of this city, who dragged her into the woods. The girl gave him her watch and money if he would allow her to go, and he promised to do so. He ran around in the woods and intercepted her again. In the struggle which followed her clothes were torn off and she was terribly beaten. Ditch was frightened away. The girl dragged herself to the nearest house, where she now lies delirious and not expected to survive the night. Armed men are searching the woods for Ditch, and if caught he will be lynched.

WHY SHE "DRAPPED."

How a Negro Butcher Eloquently Plead His Bad Case.

An enraged man went into a butcher shop kept by a negro. "You old hound!" exclaimed the man, "I have a great notion to kill you."

"Why, whut fur, cap'n?"

"What far? You good for nothing scoundel, that beef you sold me yesterday was from a cow that had died."

"'Cose it wuz, cap'n. Does you reckon I gwine cut beef frum er live cow? I does hope, sah, dat you doan think I'se so cruil ez dat."

"You know what I mean, you old wolf. The cow had eaten so many buckeyes that they killed her."

"Now jest lissun ter dat white man's talk. De cow didn't do no sich 'o' a thing."

"But I heard a man say that he saw her drop down dead in your lot."

"Wall, I do 'clur 'ter goodness. Ain't folks got nuthin' ter do 'cep' go er bout talkin' erbout dar neighbor's cattle? It uster be dat da talked erbout folks an' now ez' da has erbout wore de folks out, da has gun ter talk erbout de cattle. Dis do beat any country I eber lived in since de day I wuz borned."

"But I tell you that this man saw the cow drop dead in your lot. How do you account for that?"

"But the man says that there was no one near her when she fell. How about that?"

"Now lemme tell you. Dat wuz de wildes' cow I eber seed in my life. W'y, sah, she didn' want ter do nothin' but run all de time. An' de udder day she had er monstus runnin' fit on her an' de fust thing she knowd, ker bip, she run er gin de end o' a rail. De rail hit her 'zackly 'tween de eyes an' killed her in er minit. I hated it might'ly, too, fur she wuz o' de fines' stock an' I wuz gwine ter keep her. W'y, sah, you oughter be 'gratulatin' yo'se'f dat you got some o' dat fine meat 'stead o' comin' roun' yere tryin' ter raise er row wid er man dat is tryin' ter ack squar wid over'body an' I'se got de rheumatiz so bad right now dat I doan hardly know whut ter do an' de doctor he dun tole me dat lessen I wuz kerful I wa'n't gwine live but er mighty short time, an' my folks all sick an' dun buried my wife yisterday an' my son hatter be set up wid all night an' daughter dun married a man dat beats her like she wuz er dog. I doan think I gwine live long caze de Lawd He sorter whisperin' ter me dat my time dun almos' come."

The white man looked steadily at the negro for a moment and then said: "I ought to knock your head off, but you are so complete a rascal that I can not help admiring you."—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Crusher on Dick.

"Oh, come into the garden Maud!" The soft notes came swelling through the forsythia bushes and the yellow bells shook as if chiming in unison with the mellow voice that uttered them. "Oh, come into the garden Maud!" A figure appeared at the window and the door softly opened. Then there was another figure and another voice set the forsythia blossoms jolting in visible and pitiable discord. "Maud, you get right back into the house, and don't you be catching your death of cold in any garden. Tell Dick Sappins he can come into the house and see you if he wants to, only he's got to leave his banjo on the porch."—Washington Post.

Where Chinese Get Their Lighting Oil.

Candle and soap makers are familiar with the Chinese tallow tree (Stillingia sebifera), but probably they do not know all about it. Acting Consul Hosie at Wenchow says that it is not generally known that the fruit of this tree produces oil as well as tallow. Chinese tallow is a white, hard fat, formed on the surface of the seeds. It is separated by a process of steaming and pressing through sieves. It is from the hard, black kernels left behind that the Chinese obtain what Mr. Hosie describes as a good lighting oil of a brownish-yellow color.

For Neuralgia in the Temples.

Take a piece of brown paper, saturate it in a teaspoon of laudnum and sprinkle it thickly with black pepper and bind to the head. The effect of this is almost magical, but if a person is peculiarly susceptible to the influences of opiates it must not be applied too freely, as the laudanum is absorbed by the pores of the skin, and in this way is diffused into the system. It is very rare, however, that any one is found with an organization too sensitive to stand this treatment.

Concluded to Wait.

Miss Pumper—How did it happen, Miss Grasper, that your nuptials were deterred? Your wedding was fixed for last month, wasn't it?

Miss Grasper—Yes, but you see I happened just the day before to read an article about "the coming billionaire," so I dismissed the other fellow and determined to wait.—Boston Courier.

For Spot Cash.

If you have $5,000 in cold cash you can manage to have your wife, your mother, father, uncle or aunt sent to a private insane asylum, whether sane or insane. The conveniences invented for the present generation are almost without number, and this is one of them.

Needed Exercise.

"John, won't you please saw me a little wood this morning?"

"I'm sorry, dear, but I haven't time. I have to go to the gymnasium for my hour's work with the clubs."—Cape Cod Item.

S. M Hoff has his creamery and is turning out a good grade of butter. He intends to run it all summer if he can secure the requisite amount of cream to do so. The farmers should do all in their power to aid Mr. Hoff in his good work. Support local industries for by so doing we lay a firm foundation for the future welfare of our community.

S. M. Hoff has just received a very fine invoice of the very best stoves in the market. Call around and look them over.

It does not appear that Mr. Blaine has at any time, been seriously ill during his stay in New York: but the pronounced Harrison organs have tried their best to make out that he has been a very sick man, even hinting at the "dizziness," which was a favorite term with Mr. Blaine's opponents several years ago when they were trying to switch him off the track to the nomination.—Journal.

After all, the best crop reports come from Uncle Jerry Rusk. The agricultural department has a well organized corps of correspondents in every organized county where crops are grown, in the country. The department doesn't make guesses about bugs or smut but gets facts even if it is a little slower than the grapevine news, which, ever and anon, convulses the grain pits.—Journal.

The present center of population of the United States, twenty miles east of Columbus, Indiana, has been marked by a handsome monument bearing the inscription "Center of Population United States." This is the second monument of the kind ever erected the first being twenty-three miles west of the city of Washington, D. C., on the spot which was the center of population in 1810.

Leading citizens of St. Cloud propose to call a convention thoroughly representative of the people of the state to frame a railroad law to be enacted by the next legislature, They would engage railway experts and practical men to aid in drafting a bill which would be absolutely constitutional and impregnable, equitable and practical. The subject is certainly of sufficient importance to enlist the attention of the whole state. It is a wretched farce to rush railroad bills at high pressure into a legislature, which have been hastily drawn by a few ignoramuses, blind with prejudice. If the matter is in public discussion for the next year and a half, it is probable that the next legislature will do something sensible in this direction.—Minneapolis Journal

Washington May 18—The gifts made to President Harrison at various points during his journey filled a large size express wagon to overflowing. There were almost countless articles from California—bric-a-brac in native woods and native minerals. There were boxes of wines and crates of fruits. There were gifts from the ladies of San Francisco consisting of works of art and other things that ladies know so well how to design. From Colorado were silver bricks and silver candlesticks, and Mr. Harrison has a collection of gold and silver mean cards that would excite the envy of rulers greater in the world than he. As for addresses of welcome, resolutions etc., engrossed upon parchment and in some cases elaborately framed, there must be several trunkfuls.

In canvassing for subscriptions to the Confederate Soldiers' Home in Missouri the promoters of that enterprise receive almost as much money and quite as much encouragement from members of the G. A. R. as from the sympathizers of the lost cause. This is as creditable to the veteran defenders of the Union as it is satisfactory to their erstwhile foes. The true man of valor and patriotism finds it in his heart to forgive and forget while the high privates in the sutler's department and the carpet knights who stayed at home and "hollered sick 'um" are the ones who seek to perpetuate sectional strife and animosity for the political effect it may have.—Daily News.

Washington May 18.—Postmaster-General Wanamaker is back in his office [illegible]. He said today that his trip in the west had impressed him with the fact that that section was in need of additional postal facilities, and it will be his aim from this time on to do everything in his power to give the West the benefit of new ideas he has acquired for the bettering of the postal service in the West. It is not improbable that the Fargo postmaster will soon be appointed. It need create no surprise either if several Democratic postmasters are requested to retire before their term expires.—Minneapolis Journal,

Helena Mont., May 22—Reports from the Flat Head country are to the effect that a reign of lawlessness exists among the boomers who have stampeded to that country in advance of the Great Northern's western extension, which is expected to boom land in that vicinity. Two new towns—Columbia Falls and Kalispell—have suddenly sprung up and $1,000,000 worth of lots sold in them. Among the motly population are many tough characters, and acts of violence are of frequent occurrence. Three men were killed Monday within a few miles of each other. Officers of the law are few and afford little protection,—Dispatch.

Washington D. C. May 19.—[Special]—In a conversation today the president referred to the Minnesota organization of the Republican league and showed himself very familiar with the big meeting at Minneapolis. He expressed much admiration for the early and spirited action taken by the league, as well as for the terse and admirable platform adopted.

"Some decisive step was needed at just that time" said the president, "and the Minnesota Republicans seemed to strike at the opportune moment. I regard the successful meeting of the national organization which followed as largely due to the impetus given by the clear cut and enthusiastic action of the Minnesota league.—Tribune.

Washington May 14.—The report of the statistician of the department of agriculture, now in press, shows an increase since April of last year of more then 100 percent in the price of corn and oats, 30 percent and more in wheat in primitive markets, 32 percent in Chicago for choice beeves and 34 for Texans and advanced values of all cereals and meats.

A hopeful and cheerful feeling is noticed, says the report, in official correspondence from all parts of the country. The elimination of the surplus of corn and oats through the under production of last year insures good prices for those crops, and the shortage of the wheat of the world for two years with the low foreign prospect for the growing crop promises the largest foreign demand for ten years a renumerative prices. Fortunately present appearances indicate ability to meet such demands with ease. The opinion is expressed that farm lands at present prices are promising investments—St. Paul Dispatch.

Washington May 22.—Although the tariff bill of last October provides a bounty of 2 cents and 1¾ cents per pound for raising certain grades of maple, sorghum and beet sugar not one application by a Minnesota farmer for license to take advantage of the bounty has yet been received at the treasury department, Marcus Johnson, collector of internal revenue at St. Paul, was sent fifty blank licenses and bonds some time ago at his request, he stating that fifty sugar raisers at least would take licenses, but nothing has been heard from them yet, Under the law, if the application is not sent to the treasury department before July 1st next no bounty will be paid next season. As it is estimated that Minnesota will raise 200,000 pounds of sugar next season a failure to take licenses will result in considerable financial loss to the farmers The chief of the sugar division of the internal revenue bureau said this morning: "I am very much afraid the sugar industry in Minnesota will be seriously retarded unless farmers are appraised at once of the necessity of taking out a license at once. As a license does not cost them a cent, being furnished by the government free, there is no excuse for delay.—Dispatch.

Last week 16,700 immigrants landed in this country from 18 steamship lines The number is extraordinary for this time of the year and shows that the little diplomatic flurry with Italy has stimulated immigration instead of discouraging it. If there is to be a war between the United States and Italy or any other European power the loyal subjects of the beloved and devinely ordained monarchs want to lose no time in getting away from the noise of the captains and the shouting for king and country. They would much rather take their chance in America, where, according to the macaroni-inspired statesmanship of Italy, a constitution is permitted to exhist which is incompetent to defend the lives of the stabbers garroters and slungshot patriots of the Mafia. If peace stimulates immigration and threats of war overstimulate it, it is plain that America cannot leave the regulation of this vital matter to the European end of the line. The immigration laws must be over-hauled and the defenses against the pauper criminal and vicious dumpage of Europe's lower strata strengthened. We are inclined to believe that America needs this sort of defense far worse than she needs a new navy.—Minneapolis Times.

ABO CASTLE.

It Is the Oldest Building in Finland and Was Used as a Prison.

About midway between the observatory and the sea stands Abo castle which is the oldest building in Finland. It dates back to 1157, to the days of Eric, the saint, the first Swedish conqueror, who with St. Henry, bishop of Upsala, introduced Christianity into Finland. Henry has since been regarded as the patron saint of the Finns.

In the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries the old castle witnessed the [illegible] of many calamities upon Abo. The town was ravaged in 1458 with fire kindled by lightning, and within twenty years it was burned again. In 1509 the Danes sacked the place, and half a century later three fires occurred successively within six years, after which in 1614, the castle itself was burnt during a visit of Gustavus II Adolphus when the royal kitchen took fire.

Another part of the castle was used as a storehouse, but the portion that [illegible] me [illegible] was the prison, the first visit to which, in 1874, I had never forgotten. In the [illegible] days of my prison experience I had seen nothing worse than the Tolbooth in Edinburgh, and knew nothing of dungeons in [illegible] [illegible] what I had gathered from "Robin Hood" and similar stories of my boyhood. But when I came to Abo I witnessed what my imagination had pictured.

A flight of steps brought us to a damp, dark passage, through which we made our way, illumined by the light of a lantern, to a heavily bolted, clumsy door. This was duly opened and we were invited to enter. Having so done we found ourselves in a good size room, dimly lighted by a window, which was shaded by a high building only a few feet distant. The embrasure of the window exposed a wall I should think twelve feet thick, and on the inner side of which were grated bars, so that the [illegible] could be opened and shut only by means of a long rod. The floor was of bare earth, and the furniture, if such it could be called, was of the roughest description.

A rickety wooden bedstead, an earthen ewer with water, a lump of coarse black bread, and a wooden tub containing salt fish heads, showed us prison fare which looked coarse enough, but, to our surprise, we were told that in spite of such drawbacks some of the poor come to the jail in autumn and beg to be allowed admittance in preference to enduring the hardships of a northern winter. This would have seemed to me hardly credible had I not heard a similar story when visiting one of the prisons in Guernsey.

The prison authorities inform me that irons are used only rarely, and principally for the transport of dangerous criminals. I remember hearing when in Finland in 1876 that it sometimes happened when prisoners were on their way from the country districts in farmers' carts that accomplices waylaid the officers and released their comrades.—Henry Lansdell, D. D., in Harper's.

TOM RIVERS.

Tom Rivers killed by a railway train?
 I suppose it had to be.
Tom wasn't of any great account
 Since the day that General Lee

Threw over the fight and surrendered,
 And turned Grant's army adrift
To straggle to the north again.
 Ah, well! there's many a rift

In the rock of hardy persistence
 Before a success is made.
Tom came back with a shattered arm

Yet I remember the night that Tom,
 Together with Brown and me,
Was stretched out on a [illegible] cot—
 'Twas in eighteen sixty-three.

I think it was after Port Hudson;
 Young Brown was crazy and daft;
He cried for "mother" and "sister,"
 And shouted and yelled and laughed

Until Rivers and I would rather
 Have been in the battle's range
Than to hear his mournful raving
 That stopped at the word "Exchange!"

In less than an hour, when the surgeon
 Had picked us by choice and lot,
Brown was passed, but a ticket fell
 On the [illegible] of Rivers' cot.

And Rivers stepped on the broken floor,
 With his left arm hanging down,
Took the ticket and turned it once,
 Then fastened it tight on Brown!

* * * * *

We all go back. But young Brown and I
 Were carried on fortune's prow,
While Tom went down—but who can say
 That he is not higher now?

—John James Meehan.

The Company Didn't Object.

An elderly lady, evidently a good old soul, entered a tram car the other day with her "leedle dawg."

"Do you object to my dog?" she asked one of the passengers.

"Not at all, provided he does not bite," was the reply.

"And you?" she asked, turning to another.

"Not at all, madame."

The other passengers being ceremoniously appealed to, raised no objections, provided Ponto behaved himself, and everything was settled quite amicably, when in came the zealous conductor for the fares.

"You can't have a dog in the car with you, ma'am. The company don't allow it."

The word "company" was delivered with an emphasis that was unmistakable; but the old lady, mindful of her little canvass, triumphantly replied:

"Oh! the company don't object in the least; I've asked them all!"

And, all unconscious of her little joke, she smiled benignantly on her fellow passengers.—London Tit-Bits.

Doubtful Compliments.

The colonel who, taking his leave at a garden party, inquires, "Have I had the pleasure of saying good-by to you, Miss Mary?"—the hostess sweetly assuring a distinguished pianist who has risen abruptly from the instrument with a sarcastic protest lest he should disturb the conversation, that he does not do so at all; the young man who, on being told that a possible rival had taken the lady who is speaking in to dinner the previous evening, declares that "that's all he's fit for!" These are decided instances of this class of bad compliment; while, for a well meant but lukewarm one poor Newman Noggs' reply to the collector's query respecting the Kenwigs' new baby, that it wasn't a very nasty one, may be cited.—All the Year Round.

Not Only a Telegraph Operator.

A country operator once entered a plea in extenuation of his lack of skill. He said: "I am a country office, and am called a 'ham' by city operators, but I claim the honor of being the hardest worked man in the business. I'm the town clerk, justice of the peace, real estate agent, insurance agent, postmaster, express agent, superintendent of the Sunday school, and president of the village debating society. Is it any wonder that I 'break' pretty often, with all those cares on my mind?"—New York Times.

Substitute for Gum Arabic.

Gum arabic, which was once universally used, has become very scarce and dear, and a substitute for it is being made from starch, which is subjected under pressure and at a high temperature to the action of sulphurous acid. The product, after neutralization, is soluble and extremely adhesive.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

If the sheets on which books are printed were of uniform size a quarto page would be as unvarying an area as a square foot or an acre, and before the invention of machines for making paper, there was such uniformity in the sizes of sheets. The paper molds in which the sheets were made had fixed conventional sizes.

The first locomotive to run in the south was built in New York from plans furnished by a citizen of Charleston, S. C. It was called the "Best Friend," and was placed on the Charleston railroad in 1835.

In the vast majority of luminous animals the phosphorescent light is useful only in guiding one sex in its search for the other, and this is probably the case with deep sea fish as well as with terrestial creatures.

A new waterproof glove has been brought out in London. In place of hardening when wet, owing to the peculiar dressing of the skin, the rain does not affect it in the least.

Equal quantities of oil of turpentine and essence of lemon are said to be excellent for taking stains and grease out of silk.

The pulse is slower at night and during sleep. A tall person has a slower pulse than a short person.

How to Skin an Eel.

When hooked an eel will tie a line into many thousand intricate knots without any apparent difficulty. He is slippery, and should be seized near the middle, with the middle finger over, the rest under his body. In this position he can only wind himself around your wrist and cover your sleeve with slime. Said slime often, if dried, is nearly as adhesive as the skin.

If skinned before his demise he is as lively as ever, and half cooked four inch pieces will wriggle freely.

To remove the eel's outer garment grasp firmly with a mittened hand, cut through the back of the neck till the spinal column is broken, then through to the skin in front, seize the exposed meat with a bit of paper to prevent slipping, and steadily pull the hide toward the tail, turning it wrong side out.

To the inexperienced it would be an hour's job to skin an eel, but old hands take off their jackets very rapidly. A good pair of pincers comes handy about peeling them. In the spring the eels begin to bite when the oak leaves are as large as a mouse's ear. Eel skin is tougher than tripe or bull beef, and it is used for connecting the two portions of flails where much friction accrues. Our forefathers used eel skin as ribbon to tie up their cues with, at least the sailors did.—G. W. Singer in Lewiston Journal.

Ben Franklin's Humor.

Franklin rendered printers a service in showing them the effectiveness of humor in enhancing the value of newspapers, and in promoting good causes. In those times there were no journalists except printers, and commonly the same hand wrote and set in type the paragraphs of news. From first to last he knew the value of a little fun in the newspaper, and how helpful it may be made in exposing false pretensions and in recommending virtuous habits. His first boyish essays, timidly thrust under the door of the printing office, and the last piece he ever wrote, done a few days before his death, were humorous.

At the same time, he never abused the power of the press by harsh criticism or insinuations of bad motives. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to find in the thirty years' file of his Pennsylvania Gazette an article intended to wound the feelings of an individual.—Youth's Companion.

An Opinion of New York.

A writer once asked a rustic citizen of Connecticut, who had recently paid his first visit to New York, what he thought of the great city.

"Waal, I never!" answered the man. "Why, there on Broadway it allers seemed 's though meetin' was jes' out!"—Christian Union.

Perm.

The town of Perm, though far inferior in dignity of aspect, commercial importance and natural beauty to Nijni Novgorod, Kazan and other towns on the Volga, is not altogether devoid of life and interest. Situated on the elevated left bank of the "mother river," as the peasants call her, it commands a homely but pleasant prospect, extending over fifteen versts of the ancient land "Biarmy," with its old fashioned churches and houses.

In Perm you will still see the old fashioned vehicle of fifty years ago, called leéneyka, the most atrociously uncomfortable contrivance that was ever devised for mortals to sit on, especially for ladies. As the seat is long, high and narrow men can easily sit astride, but the unfortunate women are obliged to sit sideways, with their legs hanging helplessly down, if they do not happen to be long enough to reach the footboard.

Having no support for the back, they can keep their equilibrium only by sitting in the modern censense fashion and linking their arms through, as in country dances. If a lady sits alone she clutches hold of the driver's woolen sash, with which he girds up his long, loose caftan, and is jerked and jolted along over the rough, uneven, round stones in mortal terror of being thrown off every minute.—Murray's Magazine.

A Tamed Eagle.

My eagle is named Ronival, after the hill in South Uist, where he was hatched. He is a male, and a very fine bird. I have had him now for four years, and he has assumed his white tail. He is allowed to fly about at large, but he is not fond of going far, and will always come at the call of the kitchen maid who feeds him, and for whom he shows the greatest affection. She can manage him even when in most ungovernable temper. He has a particular aversion to small boys, and will fly at one going near him. The only animal he is afraid of is the pig, and to hear a pig grunt is enough to make him fly off, even if it should not be in sight.

A well dressed friend ventured one day to touch him with the point of his fashionable light umbrella, which so offended Ronival's majesty that he flew at the offending instrument and literally smashed it, breaking the stick and tearing the silk to tatters. Usually, however, he is affable enough, and does no more mischief than occasionally killing a hen or two if his own dinner is not served punctually enough, and this is really great forbearance, considering he actually lives at large in a poultry yard.—Birds of Iona and Mull.

The Work on a Needle.

Large coils of wire are cut until each piece is the length of two needles. These pieces are made straight, and sharpened at the ends; then two eyes are stamped near the middle, with a cross cut between. The twin needles, now head to head, are filed apart, and each lies by itself. But it is far from being ready to begin the work for which it is designed. It must be smoothed where the filing was done; heated to redness and plunged into oil to temper the steel; sand and emery, putty powder and oil must polish it bright; soap and water must cleanse it. And even then it is not ready for use. The eye is to be made smooth, that the thread may not be cut, and the final polishing is required to make it dainty enough for the work it must do.—Harper's Young People.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date [illegible] made by [illegible] Pellin and Rosa Pellin his wife mortgagors to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dak. as mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 10th day of July 1880 at 10 o'clock a. m. in Book 26 of mortgages, pages 120, 121 and 122.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum so secured due and payable; and default having been made, the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred ninety four dollars and twenty cents and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the lands described in and secured by said mortgage to-wit: The west half of the north east quarter and the west half of the south east quarter of section two in township one hundred fifty north of range forty two west, situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at Public auction on Saturday the 30th day of May 1891 at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with the expences of sale together with an attorneys fee of twenty five dollars stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure of the same.

A SNAIL IN THE EYE.

Peculiar Little Creature That Will Hunt Up Dirt in Optics.

Did you ever hear of an eye snail? It is found on the coast of some of the South Pacific islands, a product of the sea, and in appearance not unlike the half of a dry English pea. The flat side is slightly concaved, and by close inspection the numerous small legs can be seen in readiness for business, closely folded together.

Now comes the most singular part of the story: Place the little animal under the lid of the eye, and he springs off, running all about and around the ball apparently in search of anything of a foreign nature, which, should he find, he will sieze and come out of the eye, evidently satisfied with having performed his duty.

Stranger still, the thing remains lifeless in the pocket until immersed in a little vinegar, whereupon it begins jumping about, signifying its willingness to work.

Although the thing resembles the half of an English pea, there is nothing irritating about it in the eye. Whites are made aquainted with its use by the natives, who frequently get grains of sand in their eyes while diving.

The Wine-Drinking Baby Capri.

When wandering one evening toward the Villa di Tiberio, I stumbled on a curious scene. A mother sat on a wall by the roadside with her infant in her arms, while the father, a strapping young farmer, poured wine from a black bottle down the eager throat of the baby. My remonstrances were met by a smile at my ignorance and the assertion that there was nothing better than wine for it. On my return I found the boy partaking of its natural food as heartily as it had done from the wine bottle. "That," I said to the mother, "is the proper drink for your child. You will lay up misery for it if you exchange it for wine." "Do you think so, Signore?" she replied, and, showing me the legs and cheeks of the fattest young rascal I ever saw, she added. "Does that look like disease? Can you find in our country a baby of six months to edual him?"

On mentioning the incident to an old man at the hotel he assured me that it was quite the usual practice in Capri, and on the same evening pointing to his son a handsome young fellow who was dancing the tarantella, he said, "Had that lad not got wine from the time he was four months old he would not have been, here to-night. It saved his life. Good Words.

Guns and Gun-Making.

The government gun-factory at Watervliet, N. Y. will turn out this week, says the Springfield Rupublican, a new twelve-inch steel rifle of the most modern aspect. It will be sent within a few days to be tested at Sandy Hook, and is likely to attract attention. The gun weighs fifty-two tons, has a range it is presumed of over ten miles, and it will carry a 1,000-pound projectile, the weight of the charge of powder being 400 pounds. The goverment is not likely to make guns much heavier than this one, and in keeping the weight under sixty tons our experts are in line with the latest criticism of the 110-ton guns of England and Italy, of which Admiral Hopkins of the English navy said not long ago: "Vast sums of the public money have been squandered on these big guns; they are a great deal too large to be effective, and it is earnestly to be hoped that we shall hear no more of such cumbersome monsters but return to a lighter armament."

To Prevent Rusting.

Professor Smithelis, in speaking before the Leeds, England, association of engineers, endeavored to answer the question: "How can the action of rusting be prevented?" He said many things have been tried. Iron might be painted, and by the adoption of certain precautions an affective method might be arrived at. One precaution was that the metal must be perfectly clean. A spot of rust embedded below a coat of paint would often break out of itself. There was the method of covering the iron with oils and tarry matters. There was also the process of galvanizing the iron; the process of enameling, which was useful for small articles, although the enamel was apt to chip off, and the Bower-Barff process, which was admirable. Alluding to boilers, he said that by putting soda into them not only was the acidity of the water corrected, but something was introduced which would absorb the carbonic-acid gas and prevent its acting in a rusty capacity.—Chicago News.

"August Flower"

Perhaps you do not believe these statements concerning Green's August Flower. Well, we can't make you. We can't force conviction into your head or medicine into your throat. We don't want to. The money is yours, and the misery is yours; and until you are willing to believe, and spend the one for the relief of the other, they will stay so. John H. Foster, 1122 Brown Street, Philadelphia, says: "My wife is a little Scotch woman, thirty years of age and of a naturally delicate disposition. For five or six years past she has been suffering from Dyspepsia. She became so bad at last that she could not sit down to a meal but she had to vomit it as soon as she had eaten it. Two bottles of your August Flower have cured her, after many doctors failed. She can now eat anything, and enjoy it; and as for Dyspepsia, she does not know that she ever had it." ⊕

TO MY WIFE.

Come to me, dearest, I'm lonely without thee;
Daytime and night time, I'm thinking about thee;
Night time and day time in dreams I behold thee;
Unwelcome the waking that ceases to fold thee.

Come to me darling, my sorrows to lighten;
Come in thy beauty, to bless and to brighten;
Come in thy womanhood, meekly and lowly;
Come in thy loveliness, queenly and holy.

Swallows will flit around the desolate ruin,
Telling of Spring and its joyous renewing;
And thoughts of thy love and its manifold treasure,
Are circling my heart with a promise of pleasure.

O, Spring of my spirit! O, May of my bosom!
Shine out on my soul till it burgeon and blossom;
The past of my life has a rose-root within it,
And thy fondness alone to the sunshine can win it.

Figures that move like a song through the even';
Features lit up by a reflex of heaven—
Eyes like the skies of poor Erin, our mother,
Where shadow and sunshine are chasing each other.

Smiles coming seldom, but childlike and simple,
Opening their eyes from the heart of a dimple;
Oh, thanks to the Saviour, that even thy seeming
Is left to the exile to brighten his dreaming.

You have been glad when you knew I was gladdened;
Dear, are you sad now to hear I am saddened?
Our hearts ever answer in tune and in time, love,
As octave to octave, and rhyme unto rhyme, love.

I cannot weep, but your tears will be flowing;
You cannot smile but my cheek will be glowing;
I would not die without you at my side, love;
You will not linger when I shall have died, love.

Come to me, dear, ere I die in my sorrow,
Rise on my gloom like the sun of to-morrow;
Strong, swift and fond, as the words which I speak, love,
With a song on your lips and a smile on your cheek, love.

Come, for my heart in your absence is weary,
Haste, for my spirit is sickened and dreary;
Come to my heart that is aching to press thee;
Come to the arms that would fondly caress thee.

—Joseph Brennan.

HE BEGGED FOR MERCY.

DURING the month of February, 1853, Seth Damon, of Acton, instituted an action at law against Gabriel Butterworth, of the same town, for the recovery of thirty thousand dollars, of which he claimed that said Butterworth had defrauded him. The circumstances were these Butterworth owned and kept the principal store in Acton, and though he had never been regarded as an exemplary gentleman, his honor in business had not been impugned. Those who had the faculty of looking upon the undercurrent of human actions decided that he was a man not bound by honor, but who understood the laws of self interest too well to be guilty of small meannesses in business. What he was capable of doing on a grand scale was not mooted until the occurrence of which I am about to speak.

Seth Damon had removed from Edson to Acton in the fall, and had purchased the iron works. Shortly after concluding the purchase he had a payment of £30,000 to make, and late on a Saturday afternoon he arrived from New York with the money—part of it in bank notes and part of it in gold. When he arrived he found that the parties to whom the money was to be paid had left town, and would not return till Monday. Mr. Butterworth had the only reliable safety vault in town, and to Mr. Butterworth Damon took the $30,000 asking permission to lodge it in his vault over the Sabbath, which permission was readily and cheerfully granted.

During Sunday night the people of the village were aroused by the alarm of fire; and upon starting out it was found that the alarm came from Butterworth's store, but Mr. Butterworth had been active. He had discovered the fire in season, and, with the assistance of his boys, had put it out before much damage had been done. Upon looking over the premises it was found that the fire had not only been the evident work of an incendiary, but that it had been set in several different places.

"How fortunate," said the owner, "that I discovered it in season."

But very soon another discovery was made. The safety vault had been broken open and every dollar it had contained stolen away! Here was alarm and consternation. Gabriel Butterworth seemed fit to go crazy.

"For myself I care not," he cried. "A few hundreds were all I had in there; but my friend had a great sum!"

Immediately search for the robber or robbers was instituted, and word was sent far and near to all sheriffs and their deputies and to the police of the cities.

Now, it had so happened that on that very Sunday evening—or, I may say, Sunday night, for it was near midnight—I, John Watson, had been returning from my brother's, in Dunstable. I had left my hired team at the stable, and on my way to my boarding house I passed the store of Mr. Butterworth. In the back yard of the store was a horse trough, and, being thirsty, I stepped around that way to get a draught of water.

As I stooped to drink at the spout of the fountain I saw a gleam of light through a crevice in the shutters of one of the store windows. Curiosity impelled me to go and peer through, for I wondered who could be in there at that hour of a Sunday night. The crevice was quite large, made by the wearing away of the edges of the shutters where they had been caught by the hooks that held them back when open, and through it I looked into the store. I looked upon the wall within which the saefty vault was built, and I saw the vault open, and I saw Gabriel Butterworth at work therein. I saw him put large packages into his breast pocket, and I saw him bring out two or three small canvas bags, and set them upon the floor by the door that opened toward his dwelling. As I saw him approaching this outer door a second time I thought he might come out, and I went away. It was an hour afterward that I heard the alarm of fire. And it was not until the following morning that I heard of the robbery of the safe.

I was placed in a critical position; but I had a duty to perform. I went to Mr. Damon, and told him what I had seen, and also gave him liberty to call upon me for my testimony in public when he should need it. Until I should be so called upon I was to hold my silence.

While the officers were hunting hither and thither, Mr. Damon kept a strict watch upon the movements of Mr. Butterworth, and at length detected him in the act of depositing a large sum of money in a bank in Buffalo. His action immediately followed, and Butterworth was arrested.

This was the way matters stood when I was summoned to appear before the grand jury at Wiltonburg. I went there in company with Mr. Damon, and secured lodgings at the Sabine house. It was a small inn, well and comfortably kept, and frequented by patrons of moderate means. There were two public houses of more fashionable pretentions in the place.

It was on the afternoon of the 14th day of February that I took quarters at the Sabine house, and after tea I requested the landlord to build a fire in my room, which he did, he also furnished me with a good lamp. It was 8 o'clock, and I sat at the table engaged in reading, when some one rapped upon my door. I said "come in," and a young man named Laban Shaw entered. This Shaw I had known very well as a clerk of Gabriel Butterworth; but I had never been intimate with him from the fact that I had never liked him. He must have seen the look of displeasure upon my face, for he quickly said:

"Pardon me, Mr. Watson. I don't mean to intrude. I have come down to be present at the examination tomorrow—summoned by Butterworth's man of course—and I got here too late to get a room with a stove in it; and, worse still, I must take a room with another bed in it, and with a stanger for company. And so may I just warm my fingers and toes by your fire and leave my carpet bag under your bed?"

He laughed when he spoke of the carpet bag; but yet he did not know what sort of a faculty his stranger roommate might have for getting up and walking off in the night.

Of course I granted him his request, and he put his carpet bag under my bed, and then sat down by my stove, and we chatted socially enough for half an hour or more without once alluding to the business which had brought the pair of us to Wiltonburg. His conversation was pleasant, and I really come to like the fellow; and I thought to myself that I had been prejudiced against him without cause. At length he arose, and bade me good night, and went away, and shortly afterward I retired. I had been in bed but a little while, when another rap upon my door disturbed me; and to my demand of what was wanted I received answer from Laban Shaw. He bade me not to light a lamp. He had only come for his nightgown. He could get it in the dark. I arose and unlocked my door, and his apologies were many and earnest. He always slept, in winter, in a flannel nightgown, and he had thoughtlessly left it in his carpet bag. He was sorry—very sorry. He had thought to try to sleep without it rather than disturb me, but his room was cold and——

I cut him short, and told him there was no need of further apology; and while he fumbled over his bag I went to the stove to make double assurance that the fire was all right. I offered to light a match for him, but he said he had got his dress and all was right. He then went out, and I closed and locked the door after him, and then got back into bed.

But I was not to sleep. I had been very sleepy when Shaw disturbed me, but an entirely different feeling possessed me now. First came a nervous twitching in my limbs—a "crawly" feeling, as some express it—that sensation which induces gaping and yawning, but which no amount of yawning could now subdue. By and by a sense of nightmare stole over me; and, though awake, a sense as of impending danger possessed me. At length, so uncomfortable did I become in my recumbent position, that I arose and lighted my lamp, resolved to replenish my fire, and dress myself, and see if I could read away my nervous fit.

My lamp was lighted, and as I returned to the bedside for my slippers my attention was attracted by a string which lay upon the carpet—a string leading from the bed to the door. I stopped to examine it and found it fast at both ends. I brought the lamp and took a more careful survey. The string was a fine silken trout line, new and strong, one end of which disappeared beneath the bed and the other beneath the door. In my then present condition I was suspicious of evil, and my senses were painfully keen. Raising the hanging edge of the coverlet, I looked under the bed. The carpet bag which Laban Shaw had left lay there, partly open, with the silken line leading out from it. What could it mean? Had the man accidently carried the end of the line away with his night dress without noticing it? I drew the bag out from beneath the bed, and as I held its jaws apart I saw within a double barreled pistol, both hammers cocked, bright percussion caps gleaming upon the tubes, while the silken line, with double end, was made fast to the triggers! And I saw that the muzzles of the pistol barrels were inserted into the end of an oblong box or case of galvanized iron. And I comprehended, too, that a very slight pull upon that string might have discharged the pistols, and, furthermore, that a man outside of my door might have done that thing!

For a little time my hands trembled so that I dared not touch the infernal contrivance; but at length I composed myself, and went at work. First, I cut the string with my knife: and then, as carefully as possible, I eased down the hammers of the pistol, after which I drew it from the iron case. I had just done this when I heard a step in the hall outside my door. Quick as thought I sprang up, and turned the key, and threw the door open, and, before me, revealed by the light of the lamp, stood Laban Shaw. He was frightened when he saw me, and trembled like an aspen. I was stronger than he at any time, and now he was as a child in my hands. I grasped him by the collar, and dragged him into my room; and I pointed the double-barreled pistol at his breast, and told him I would shoot him as I would shoot a dog if he gave me occasion.

He was abject and terrified. Like a whipped cur he crawled at my feet, and begged for mercy. His master had hired him to do it with promise of great reward. It had transpired that my testimony before the jury would be conclusive of Butterworth's guilt, and Butterworth had taken this means to get rid of me. In his great terror, the poor accomplice made a clear confession, and when he told all I released my grasp. He begged that I would let him go, but I dared not—my duty would not allow it. I rang my bell, and in time, the hostler, who slept in the office, answered my summons. I sent him for an officer, and at length had the satisfaction of seeing my prisoner led safely away.

On the following day the carpet bag was taken before the grand jury and the iron case examined before an experienced chemist, assisted by an old armorer from the arsenal. It was found to contain a fulminate of mercury, mixed with bits of iron; and it was the opinion of both the chemist and the armorer that the power of the explosive agent, had it been ignited as it was placed, beneath my bed, would not only have been sufficient to blow me to atoms, but that it would also have literally stripped and shivered to fragments all of the house above it!

And a single pull of that silken string would have been sufficient to this horrible end! And but for my nervous waking—my incubus of foreboding—the destroyer would have come; the fatal cord would have been touched, the mine sprung, and I should have been launched into eternity as upon the lightning's bolt!

And so Gabriel Butterworth did not procure the destruction of my testimony, but through that testimony the grand jury found cause for indictment of far graver character than had at first been anticipated, and of those graver charges he was convicted. Seth Damon received back the full sum he had intrusted to the false man's care and shortly afterward I entered into business with him, and to-day Seth Damon and I are partners. Laban Shaw came out from prison and went to Idaho. I have not heard of him since. Gabriel Butterworth did not live to serve out his full term of sentence.—Chicago Ledger.

Economizing the Lay-Out.

Mrs. W. was a thrifty and practical soul, and she came of a family which through all the country side was renowned for being "near." In other words, she came of a race of people who were the reverse of generous, and in herself she was, it may be added, the flower of their qualities. She had an excellent husband, but he was stricken down with typhoid pneumonia, and one morning the physician in charge announced to the weeping wife that he could live only a few hours at most. In her way Mrs. W. was fond of her husband, and she was greatly affected by the verdict which announced her approaching separation from. The scene between her and her husband was affecting in the extreme, and the nurse, who was present in the background, was moved to tears by the fervor of Mrs. W.'s grief.

"George" the weeping wife said at last, "what clothes do you want to have on when— when—"

Tears choked her utterance, and her husband feebly murmured that it did not matter to him any more how he was arrayed.

"Then you won't mind, dearest," she said between her sobs, "if we put on your old pants? The new ones haven't been worn but once, and we can send them back to the tailor, and no one will notice what sort of pants you have on in the cof—cof—coffin."

Dear George was too far gone either to care what trousers were used for the arraying of his remains for the tomb or to appreciate the perfection of his wife's economy; he simply moaned and gave up the ghost, leaving his wife free to practice any economical device that should occur to her frugal mind in the arrangements which followed in doleful sequence.

He Ought to Have Sworn Off Sooner

From the Hartford Times.

An interesting case was received Thursday evening at Johns Hopkins Hospital, in Baltimore. The patient has animals in the shape of snakes living in his blood. He is from Charleston, S. C., and has suffered from his peculiar disease more or less for twenty years. Many times his blood has been examined under the microscope, and the snake-shaped parasities have always been found present. This is the first case of the kind to put in an appearance at Johns Hopkins Hospital. Only twenty-five cases of this disease are said to have been reported in this country.

Cost of a Soldier.

The annual cost per man in some of the armies of Europe is: £64 in Great Britian, £52 in Austro-Hungary, £46 in Germany. £22.16 in Russia. Switzerland comes at the bottom of the list with an annual cost of £7 per man.—Chicago Times.

A Famous Ceylon Ruby.

Of the gems found in Ceylon the ruby is of most value, and has at times secured the highest prices. Rejecting as a traveller's tale the assertion of Marco Polo, that he saw a Ceylon ruby the size of a man's arm says the Times of India, it may be interesting to recall what is related of another Ceylon ruby, in connection with the part played unwittingly, in the rise of a family that was of note in a subsequent period in the history of the Dutch republic.

A "Chetty" physician became the owner of a large ruby, said to have been the size of a small curry-stuff grinding stone. Cutting it into pieces and retaining the larger portions, he presented the Dutch governor of Colombo, Imhoff, with eighteen buttons set with the smaller pieces. Imhoff, not unmindful of gratitude, promptly exalted the donor to the proud position of first malabar mudaliyar of the gate, a title of honor still retained, and about equivalent to a lord lieutenancy of a county in England.

This rise in rank, however, stirring into restless action the dormant energies of the Chetty, the governor was at last glad to get rid of his protege by transforming him into a dignitary learned in the law, and presenting him with a seat as judge of the supreme court in Java. This gentleman was grandfather to Dr. Quint Ondaatjee, alluded to in Allison's "History of Europe" as the "great democratic leader." Whatever, however, the value attached to the Ceylon rubies in the past or the present, it should be noted that really valuable ones have ever been scarce, and they cannot vie in comparison with some Burmese specimens.

DIGEST OF THE NEWS

Interesting Digest of the Happenings of the Past Week Culled From the Associated Press.

Washington, Criminal, Foreign, Personal, Casualty, and Other Important News.

AROUND WASHINGTON.

Assistant Secretary Spaulding has instructed collectors of customs along the Mexican border, to "assume that all lottery tickets entered are of foreign production and to assess duty accordingly."

The following members of the national house of representatives have been appointed a committee to attend the funeral of the late Representative Leonidas C. Houck, of the second district of Tennessee: Taylor, Enloe and McMillan of Tennessee, Crisp of Georgia, Wilson of Kentucky, and Dalzell of Pennsylvania.

The United States supreme court dismissed the writs of error sworn out upon the refusal of the United States court to grant writs of habeas corpus in the cases of Jugiro, Slocum, Wood and Smiler, the condemned murderers now in Sing Sing prison. The four men will probably be sentenced in a few days to die by electrocution.

The interior department has notified the members of the North Dakota delegation in congress that it was necessary that an appointment should be made of a receiver of the Minot land office in place of D. W. Hammond, who refuses to serve. The land department wants to open up the office, but cannot do so until the receiver is appointed and qualified.

PERSONAL.

Rear Admiral S. P. Carter, retired, is dead in Washington.

Rev. Dr. J. Henry Vandyke, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, dropped dead at his residence in that city.

Hon. Charles Emery Smith, American minister to Russia, has arrived at Paris from St. Petersburg.

The decree of divorce obtained by Capt. O'Shea from his wife on account of alleged adultery with Mr. Parnell, has been made absolute.

Gen. James B. Longstreet is in very feeble health. He has been so ill for the past few weeks that he has given up work on his history of the confederate war.

The international bicycle road race from Bordeaux to Paris, a distance of 258 miles, was won by the Englishman Mills, in twenty-six hours thirty-five minutes. The Frenchmen were nowhere.

Secretary Blaine's health grows better every day. He will probably go to Bar Harbor, Me., soon. Another story that Mr. Blaine is losing his memory was published in St. Louis, but the news from New York makes the untruthfulness of the report apparent.

Miss Emma Juch, one of the soloists in the Indianapolis musical festival, has been made defendant in an attachment proceedings and her pay in the hands of the festival managers was ordered held to await the issue of the suit. The suit was brought by the First National Bank of Butte, Mont., and the demand is for $2,000.

CASUALTIES.

The steamers Lesteris and Mersey collided in the river Mersey and both sunk. Four persons were drowned.

At a fire in the transfer yards of the C. & U. road at Chicago, Abraham Strughusky was fatally injured.

Near Jonesboro, Ill., a passenger train rolled down an embankment, killing one passenger and fatally injuring another and the engineer.

The Anderson Butter Dish factory burned at Anderson, Ind. Three hundred girls and a hundred men are thrown out of employment, and the loss will reach $30,000.

A cloud burst in Gulyer Gulch, near Boise City, Idaho, did considerable damage to crops. The United States building and parade grounds were injured to the extent of $10,000. One farm house was carried away, but no lives lost.

In New York city Carrie Hartle, aged 3 years, was drowned by falling into a barrel of water while playing with her doll. The parents thought she was lost and so informed the police. The body was discovered.

Fire was discovered in three places in the transfer yards of the Chicago & Northwestern road, at Chicago the other night, at the intersection of Jefferson and Sixteenth streets, and two freight cars were destroyed. The total loss is about $2,000. It is believed that the origin of the fire was incendiary.

CRIMINAL.

J. C. Adams, sentenced to hang at Wichita, Kan., for the murder of Capt. Wm. Couch, of Oklahoma fame has been granted a new trial.

Peter Greenwood, treasurer of Wood River township, near Alton, Ill., is $10,000 short in his accounts and has disappeared.

At Carroll, Iowa, two men entered the American express office, bound and gagged an employe named Mathews, rifled the money box of $3,000 and escaped.

Near Tuscaloosa, Ala., Jim Morrison, an escaped convict, killed two officers while resisting arrest. He was wounded slightly but escaped.

Cornelius A. King, the New York agent for Hinchcliff Bros., the Paterson (N. J.) brewers, has disappeared, and is alleged to be a defaulter to the amount of $20,000.

Jugiro, Slocumb, Wood and Smiler the condemned murderers now in Sing Sing prison, will probably be re-sentenced in a few days to die by lectricity, as they have no further legal hope.

Alexander McKibben, a commercial traveler, committed suicide in Pittsburg and comes from an old and respected family. His brother, Col. Chambers McKibben, is a member of Gov. Patterson's staff, and is secretary of the Dupuesne club, the swell club of Pittsburg.

Another Jack the Ripper has been arrested in New York, after a desperate struggle in which he and the policeman used clubs. Three knives were found on the prisoner. One was a table knife, resembling very much the one with which Carrie Brown was cut.

Near Sutton, W. Va., Alex Dunlap, a negro railroad laborer, had a fight with Italians, and with a rifle kept fully 200 Italians at bay from early morning until the afternoon, when he was arrested. In the fray he shot two of the Italians, inflicting fatal wounds.

The New Orleans grand jury has found an indictment against McCrystal and Cooney, two of O'Malley's assistants, for attempting to bribe a juror, but the discovery has just been made that there is no law in Louisiana to punish the crime.

John M. Vandyke of Washington, N. J., who was detected in passing United States express money orders in Milwaukee, has been found guilty. Through the influence of wealthy friends the matter was adjusted so that sentence was suspended on payment of costs.

A Denver dispatch says John Kennedy, a young man of seventeen, was shot and killed by an unknown assassin in ambush as he and his father were riding along a country road in Jefferson county. The shot was evidently intended for the father. Suspicion points to a relative with whom the elder Kennedy has been on unfriendly terms for three years, as the assassin. No arrests have yet been made.

RAILROADS.

The secretary of state of Illinois recorded a resolution of the stockholders of the Chicago & Western Indiana authorizing the directors to issue additional bonds of the company to the amount of $1,000,000, to enlarge and improve the property.

The annual meeting of Pacific Mail Steamship company was held in New York and resulted in the re-election of the old board of directors without opposition. The annual report presented showed surplus earnings of $882,919 after paying all charges, but no dividend will be declared, as the company has decided to use the money in improvements for the purpose of taking advantage of the new subsidy law.

OTHER SHORES.

An agreement has been made which will prevent further conflicts between the British and Portuguese in Mozambique.

The Pope has ordered that all newspaper comments on his latest encyclical, especially those of the British and American papers, be sent to him.

The members of the board of county commissioners, of Cook county, Illinois, were summoned and gave testimony before the grand jury at Chicago. There is much speculation as to the ultimate object of the inquiry.

R. L. Tunis & Co., of Baltimore have made an assignment. Their liabilities, it is thought, may amount to several hundred thousand dollars, while their assets are believed to be less than $100,000.

Judge Patterson of the supreme court of New York has just handed down an important decision, in which he holds that an illegitimate child can inherit its mother's property, regardless of a will executed before its birth and admitted to probate.

When Bishop Bonacum, of Lincoln, Neb., denied Hon. Patrick Egan, the Irish agitator, the privilege of a communicant in St. Theresa's cathedral. Egan refused to pay a $500 subscription he had made to the building fund. The bishop sued Mr. Egan for the amount, and Judge Tibbets decided that Egan must pay the subscription.

The bark Lottie Moore arrived at New York, ninety-four days from Pisagua, with a cargo of nitrate of soda. While laying off Pisagua Feb. 5 the bark was exposed to the fire of men-of-war which bombarded that city. Several shots pierced the bark's spars and yards. One went through the forward house. No one was injured.

The controlling interest in the Salt Lake Herald has passed into Gentile hands. The Herald has been the leading exponent of the Mormon church, and this sale practically breaks the back of the Church of the Latter Day Saints as a factor in Utah politics. The Herald will be made a strong Democratic sheet.

Nine Japanese women, who were brought to this country on the steamship Pemptos and who were refused a landing at San Francisco by the customs officials on the ground that they had been brought to this country for immoral purposes, were brought before United States Judge Dealy, at Portland, Ore., on a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Dealy ordered the women set at liberty.

WILL LOSE HIS HEAD

Tcheng-Ki-Tong, Formerly Connected With London and Paris Legations Sentenced to Death.

His Propensity for Swindling While in Paris the Probable Cause of the Sentence.

Paris, June 3.—Advices received from Peking state that Tcheng-Ki-Tong, who was acting first secretary of the Chinese legation in London and in this city, has been condemned to death.

It is believed here that this sentence is the outcome of the diplomat's action while in this country. Tcheng-Ki-Tong had for six years acted as secretary of legation here and in London, and his life in this city, where he spent the greater portion of his time, was marked with many forms of extravagance.

During the early part of this year the London Times published a dispatch coming ostensibly from Li Hung Chang, the Chinese prime minister, authorizing Tcheng Ki Tong to negotiate for his government a loan of £7,000,000. Tcheng Ki Tong opened negotiations with two banks in London and a bank in Paris to furnish the loan.

While the negotiations were in progress Tcheng Ki Tong was recalled, and he afterward sailed from Marseilles to China to the great sorrow of a number of creditors whom he owed large sums. In fact, it was generally believed that the Chinese diplomat had taken advantage of his official position to swindle right and left. Some of his dupes would probably have had him arrested if such a course had been possible, but representing as he did the emperor of China he was free to pursue his swindling schemes with no fear of the French law before him, his position exempting him from the process of law.

But Chinese law is far reaching where the subjects of the emperor are concerned, and when Tcheng-Ki-Tong was recalled, owing, no doubt, to reports of his conduct here reaching the Chinese authorities, there was no course open to him but to obey the emperor's mandate. Had he not done so his family in China would have been held responsible for his acts, and all his relatives would have been held to a strict accountability for the deeds of their kinsman. Rather than bring this disaster upon his relatives, Tcheng-Ki-Tong obeyed his sovereign's command to return to his native country.

Immediately upon his arrival there he was placed under arrest. His trial shortly followed, and death is the penalty for his wrong doing.

HOW WILL IT RESULT?

The Outcome of the Shindy Between Finley and the Alton Uncertain.

Chicago, June 3.—What will be the outcome of the dispute caused by Chairman Finley's decision against the Chicago & Alton railroad is just now the all-absorbing question in Western passenger circles.

The situation is regarded as decidedly critical when viewed in the light of General Manager Chappell's emphatic announcement that the Alton will not pay $1 of the fine imposed by Mr. Finley. There is no reason to suppose that the chairman will recede from his position. He has executed the agreement presumably according to his best judgment, and it remains with the association to say whether he shall be sustained or not.

If Chairman Finley's judgment is confirmed and the Alton still refuses to pay the fine the association will probably go to pieces. In consequence of this state of affairs more than usual interest is felt in the regular monthly meeting of the association which begins to-morrow. The only way the Alton can be forced out of the association is by all the other roads withdrawing and organizing anew without the Alton. But it is doubtful if anybody really believes that this will be the result. The other roads know too well that a Western passenger association, with the Alton on the outside and inclined to make trouble, will be short lived.

The opinion seems to be general that a rate war is to be avoided above all things, and, although it will be a bitter pill for some of the competitors of the Alton to swallow, it is not improbable that they will choose the easiest way to keep out of trouble and decline to confirm Chairman Finley's ruling.

She Wanted a Nice Picture.

Boston Traveller: A local photographer tells a story of a young man who came into the studio one day and asked nervously if he might have a little conversation with him.

The visitor was painfully ugly, and, after some awkward blushing and indefinite allusions, he asked the artist if he supposed he had among his samples a picture of any young man who looked like him, but was better looking.

"What do you mean, young man?" asked the photographer.

"Well," replied he, making a clean breast of it, "I am just engaged to be married. The young lady lives out West. She is going home to-morrow. She says she thinks I am so good she doesn't mind my being homely, but she wants a good-looking picture to take home with her to show the girls."

Ten Had a Walkover.

Chicago, June 3.—Although eleven circuit judges were to be elected in Chicago to-day, each for a term of six years, there was practically no contest except for the eleventh place, where five Republican and Democratic judges who were candidates for re-election had a complete walkaway. The eleventh judgeship was captured by Francis Adams, the candidate of the Carter Harrison Democracy, endorsed by the Republicans. The straight Democrats, in putting up a full ticket of eleven judges, simply scattered strength. Judicial elections were held also at other places throughout the state. Jacksonville and Jerseyville went Democratic. Kirkwood was carried by the Republicans.

East-Bound Shipments.

Chicago, June 3.—The shipments of flour, grain and provisions from Chicago to the seaboard by the lines in the Central Traffic association last week aggregated 14,982 tons, against 13,988 for the week previous, an increase of 996 tons, and against 28,337 for the corresponding week last year, a decrease of 13,355 tons. The Vanderbilt lines carried 50 per cent of the business, the Pennsylvania lines 29 per cent, the Chicago & Grand Trunk 9 per cent, the Baltimore & Ohio 12 per cent.

A Military Display.

Chicago, June 3.—At a meeting of the world's fair ceremonies committees to-day it was stated that Colorado, California, North Dakota, Minnesota, Kansas, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania will send to the dedication ceremonies in October, 1892, the pick of the state's troops. The committee decided to make the military display the decided feature of the big parade. E. T. Lee's scheme for a reunion of the soldiers of the North and South was discussed, and it was decided to make no special features of such a reunion. Soldiers wearing either the blue or the gray will be welcomed and well treated.

HE STILL LIVES.

Sir John Macdonald's Life Hanging by a Slender Thread.

Ottawa, Ont., June 3.—The premier passed the day marked by periods of depression. He took a small amount of nourishment. Consciousness remains much the same as in the past two days. He suffers no pain. There is every prospect that he will live through the night. The heart's action is becoming more feeble, indicating that life's fires are burning very low.

To-day saw no cessation of the rush towards Earnscliffe. At the approaches on Sussex street a long line of vehicles blocked the roadway and the curious throng, including many ladies, passed up to the very gates in their anxiety to learn the latest news.

The question of the leadership is being anxiously discussed. The general opinion is that Sir John Thompson will be the next premier, although a majority of the Western members favor Sir Charles Tupper. The French Conservatives are almost a unit for Sir John Thompson, and may insist upon his appointment. The matter, to a very considerable degree, rests with the governor-general, who, it is stated, learned the premier's wishes during the election campaign. Sir Charles Tupper, at that time, was his choice. Hon. J. J. C. Abbott is also stongly spoken of.

SIR JOHN'S SUCCESSOR.

Toronto, Ont., June 3.—Discussing the question of what will follow in the event of Sir John Macdonald's demise, the Globe, the provincial organ of the Liberal party, says:

"Hints have been thrown out about a coalition, but that is out of the question. The Liberals would not coalesce with Sir Charles Tupper or Sir Hector Langevin upon any terms, nor join with Abbott or Sir John Thompson, except upon a clear understanding that the national policy should be abandoned in favor of free trade with the United States. The Tory party would scarcely care to see itself effaced in that manner.

"Whoever Sir John's successor may be, the task before him is one of extraordinary difficulty. With Sir John it was always after me the deluge, and Mr. Blake has just shown how gravely our future is compromised. The Liberal are prepared, putting public considerations first, to do everything that is fair and reasonable to enable the queen's government to be called on, but they cannot be expected to condone things which they have condemned or to support a financial policy which they know to be wrong."

BAD EFFECT UPON BUSINESS.

Montreal, June 3.—Sir John Macdonald's illness and the possible political complications that may ensue in the Canadian premier's death, is having a marked effect on stocks, and the Montreal market to-day was very weak and panicky, bank stocks and general stocks all showing a weak tendency. The general feeling on the street is that on Sir John's death there will be a sudden break in stocks, and the feeling is an uneasy one.

BAD BANKING.

Testimony Showing Criminal Management of a Philadelphia Bank.

Philadelphia, June 3.—Francis W. Kennedy, president of the suspended Spring Garden National bank, was arraigned to-day before United States Commissioner Bell, charged with making false returns to the controller of the currency, making false entries in the bank's books and with the embezzlement of $100,000, and upward of the bank's funds. Henry H. Kennedy, cashier of the bank, was also arraigned with his brother, charged with conspiracy with him and being guilty himself of the first two charges of the indictment.

In addition to the charges brought against them by the federal authorities, the Kennedy's are under $10,000 bail each to answer in the state court to the charge of receiving money at a time they knew the bank was insolvent.

Bank Examiner Drew, who testified to his taking charge of the bank at the request of President Kennedy. Witness asked Mr. Kennedy if there was anything crooked in the management of the bank, and was told by Mr. Kennedy that there was. He found in the cash drawer checks of President Kennedy drawn on the Spring Garden bank to the amount of $70,000 and other papers that raised the sum total to about $100,000. President Kennedy's account was shown by the books to be overdrawn $10,587.

Harry E. Turner, paying-teller, identified the checks of President Kennedy that he had been carrying as cash. These checks were carried by order of president Kennedy. On Feb. 9, the day previous to the visit of the bank examiner by order of the president, he transferred $30,000 of the "carrys" he had in his drawer to loans and discounts, and $41,000 of it to F. W. Kennedy's account. By this arrangement a cash balance of $51,000 was shown instead of $70,000. After the departure of the bank examiner the "carrys" were gradually increased to the amount they were

WHEN THE BANK FAILED.

Samuel A. McClure, assistant cashier, testified that he kept the stock ledger, and on Feb. 9 he discovered an over issue of 200 shares of stock. He spoke to President Kennedy about it, and was told that he should have the certificates the next day. The next day the bank examiner visited the bank and witness, relying on the promise of President Kennedy to give him the certificates of over-issued stock, took a trial balance by charging the over-issued stock to the account of a depositor and F. W. Kennedy.

Samuel R. Shute, a clerk, testified that on Feb. 11, last, he was keeping the individual ledger account. W. W. Kennedy's account at the time was overdrawn to the amount of $51,000 and the entry so showed in the book. The bank examiner was at the time examining the bank, but before he arrived at witness' book Cashier Henry H. Kennedy came to where he was working and altered the date to the day preceding and then brought him some deposit slips for about $60,000. These slips witness entered to the credit of F. W. Kennedy, thereby making it appear that the bank owed Kennedy about $10,000. Several other clerks of the bank also testified that Directors Young and Evans owed the bank respectively about $75,000 and $200,000, and that President Kennedy owes in the neighborhood of $891,000.

President Kennedy's bail was fixed at $30,000 and Cashier Henry H. Kennedy's at $15,000. Bail was entered for Henry H. Kennedy at once.

The Evidence Not Conclusive.

Moorhead, Minn., Special Telegram, June 3.—Chuck-Un-Dum, an Indian, was brought before United States Commissioner Tillotson on the charge of selling liquor to the Indians at White Earth. The evidence not being conclusive the commissioner discharged the accused.

A New Cruiser.

Washington, June 3.—Proposals were opened at the navy department to-day for the construction of the protected cruiser No. 13, provision for which was made by the last congress. The vessel is designed to make, in an emergency, the extraordinary speed of twenty-two knots an hour, which would enable her to capture the swiftest of the ocean greyhounds, or to escape from the pursuit of any more formidable craft. The bids were as follows: Will Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia, $2,745,000; Union Iron works of San Francisco, $2,793,000; Bath Iron works of Bath, Me., $2,690,000.

The creamery has been running steadily the past week and is turning out about two hundred pounds of first class butter daily. Two teams are now on the road and more will be put on in a short time. It should receive the hearty support of all and will prove beneficial to the town.

Any man who can deliberately walk up to the rack and pay his taxes, penalty, interest and all without feeling the conviction settling upon him like an attack of the grip that the government is going pell-mell to the demnition bow-wows, is worthy of instant canonization. The official records, however, fail to disclose the identity of any such individual.—News.

Gov. Boies says that the farmers of Iowa say they have lost money every year for five years. The manufacturers say every year they are losing money, and the merchants say the same thing. And so do the railroads, And so does everybody. And then the census comes along and shows by the increase of wealth that they are all lying.—McGregor News.

Junction City, [Ore.] Pilot:—Four dollars expressage on a letter was the price in California in 1849. Now a big box of oranges may be sent all the way across the continent for about that sum, and a letter for two cents. And yet there are some old croakers who pretend to believe that our government has not been improving during the last forty years.

WILL WE CELEBRATE?

One month from tomorrow will be the Fourth of July and if St. Hilaire is going to celebrate it is time to commence. We would suggest that a meeting be called as soon possible to discuss the matter. It is undeniable that a celebration is beneficial to a town and if we decide to have a celebration it should be a good one.

Winona Herald: We firmly and conscientiously believe the only effective way to guard against the danger of the growing power of money is by constitutional amendment prohibiting the accumulation of vast fortunes. The limit should be placed high enough to satisfy any reasonable man, not less than $1,000,000 nor more than $5,000,000.

An exchange says a young lady wants to know how to make "not enough" out of the word "enough." That is easy, It is done by transposing the letters and arranging them into two words Take the 3rd, 2nd and 1st letters of the word enough for the first word, and the 6th, 4th and 5th letters for the second word, and you have something that is "not enough" for any young lady.

Mr. George C. Mott, adjuster for the St. Paul Fire & Marine Insurance Co. was in town last Thursday settling the E. M. Hoff loss. It was settled by the company paying Mr. Hoff $220 for damage to the building and $100 damage on his furniture and Mr. Hoff has already received a check for the same. This company always pay their losses promptly and are entitled to consideration from those who wish insurance.

That village council of Pelican Rapids must be composed of either knaves or fools. We have known village councils that were particular and discriminating, but for a hoodlum council we need go no further than Pelican Rapids. The Pioneer, a bright paper published there, has until recently done the village printing, but the council now sees fit to send the printing out of town. That is a little the smallest piece of work we have seen for many a day. The publisher of the Pioneer, Mrs. Rathbun, has our sympathy for having her lot cast among such parasites.—News, Red Lake Falls.

"The girl who is annoyed by the way her best fellow prolongs his evening call should try this gentle hint. Request him to write eleven ciphers in a line; make a downward mark on the right of the first; upward on the fourth; downward on right of fifth, upward on right of seventh, upward on right of eight; downward on right of tenth, and then read what he has written. The effect is electrical."—Wadena Pioneer.

Crookston Times. Is there any doubt that a crime was committed last week in this county in the name of christian science? Young Liebert (the Times had it Eibert in its last issue) was deprived of medicine and permitted by a faith healer and a coterie of deciples, to die of typhoid fever when there is no doubt that he would recover and was recovering under the treatment of a regular physician. It seems to us that the grand jury of this county should take cognizance of this new method of reducing the population.

A St. Louis paper says that glass may be cut with scissors as easily as if it were a piece of paper. The secret consists in plunging the pane of glass into a tub of water submerging also the hands and the scissors, The scissors will cut in straight lines without a flaw. This result is achieved in consequence of the absence of vibration. If the least portion of the scissors is left out of water the vibration will prevent the glass cutting.

C. A. L. Totten, of the Fourth United States Artillery, and a professor in Yale College, has discovered by scientific and scriptural researches that the end of time will set in just about the proper moment to interfere with the inauguration of the People's candidate for President in 1893.

Prof. Totten arrives at his conclusion after a close study of the Apochryphal book of Esdras, and makes several cushion caroms, so to speak, on the feast of Purim, the seventh cycle of the third heat, and the completion of the twelfth part.

In fact the professors calculations are so abstruse and his conclusions so hard to follow, that it is really doubtful if they will have any appreciable weight in the next campaign, or affect the value of threedences as openers.—St. Paul News,

The Duluth News voices a popular public sentiment when it says: Is there among the statesmen elected to the next congress some one who will oblige the country by securing the passage of a bill to simplify the land laws of the United States? The simple minded citizen who wants to settle upon a piece of land enters upon the study of the most unintelligible, inexplicable, vague obscure ambiguous and perplexing questions that the mind can conceive. Every now and then some new riddle purporting to define the rights of parties to land entries, is sent out from Washington and published in the papers, and when the anxious seeker for information reads it, his last state is worse than the first. Yet congress goes right along passing new land laws and making amendments to them, which only tend to increase the confusion. Really, about the most disastrous thing a man can do in these days is to try and acquire a piece of land under the land laws of the United States.

Minneapolis Journal: Republican leaders throughout the state are discussing the advisability of of making the next state convention much larger than ever before. In the past the state central committee in issuing a call for a state convention has apportioned the delegates from each county in proportion to the number of Republican votes cast in that county the last state convention containing 456 members. The plan, as at present outlined, is to allow one delegate for each 100 votes cast in 1888, which would make a convention, including members at large from each county, of about 1,500. The plan has met with the universal indorsement of every man who has been approached thus far, although the idea was not broached by its projectors until the past few days.

But there is an underlying reason for this huge political love feast. It is claimed that the Democrats and Alliance men have formed an unholy union and that the monster convention will act as an antidote for the poisenous germs which might be generated by the combine. P. H. Kelly, Mike Doran, Ignatius Donnelly and Carrington Phelps are the quartette of experianced politicians who are credited with having conceived the idea of effecting a political fusion between the Democrats and Alliance men who will join hands on a state ticket, half of the nominees to be Democrats and the other half Alliance men. So it is said the Republicans must either enter into an official and defensive alliance in order to defeat the move by arousing enthusiasm galore and getting every Republican vote in the state to rally in defense of the party.

Next to the deep abiding interest which every man has in his individual possessions is the pride and satisfaction he feels in seeing his town prosper and his people happy, Too many men selfish in the extreme, are envious of their neighbor's prosperity and hence we see many who patronize foreign establishments for everything they need rather than buy at home and help their own town. Many articles that are bought elsewhere are no better or cheaper than those offered by home dealers. This shortsightedness does not permit them to see that their interests are identified with those with whom they are continually coming in contact in the every day affairs of life,

Now it seems to us that a man in the community in which he lives can get anything good enough for himself without sending away to other places for it. Every resident should take sufficient interest in the town in which he lives to do his trading and thus keep the money in circulation in his own community, In short, if you want to kill a town and invite hard times to your door import everything you can and export as little as possible. Patronize your home business men and mechanics and see what a differance it will make.

Council Proceedings

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

On motion Eickhoff & Brink were allowed to move their present business into the house on Lot 10 Block 40 until July 1st. 1891. Bill of H. E. Ives for $3.50 for publishing notice of sanitary inspection was allowed. It was resolved to have the village hall insured by the St. Paul Fire & Marine Insurance Co. for the sum of $300. It was resolved that the village council act as a committee to build a road south of the village. M. Williams was appointed village marshall for an indefinate length of time at $15 per month. The village marshall was instructed to enforce the chimney ordinance within the village limits.

Moved to adjourn till next regular meeting.

Snakes' Legs.

There are two very finely prepared skeletons of big snakes in the National museum, and in making them ready for exhibition the utmost pains were taken to preserve the cartilaginous extremities of the ribs, which with ordinary treatment are lost. Without these little pieces of cartilage the serpent's skeleton can hardly be said to be complete, inasmuch as they are the feet upon which the reptile walks, as it were. In fact a snake walks on the ends of its ribs, and in that manner achieves locomotion. Some big serpents, however, like the boas and pythons, really have hind legs, though they are quite rudimentary. Pythons, you know, are constrictors, crushing their prey in their toils. They have no poison glands, but they can bite terrifically with their many teeth, which turn inward like hooks, so that a person once seized would have little chance of disengaging himself save by chopping off the head of the animal.—Washington Letter.

The Baleful Rainbow.

An English traveler relates that he was once on the road with a company of native followers, when there came on a shower. As the rain ceased a brilliant rainbow appeared. At this all his servants covered their mouths with their hats to escape the poisonous vapors which, as they declared, are always given forth by rainbows.

The curious feature of the adventure was that when he had gone only a few hundred yards he was by some coincidence seized with a sudden fit of vomiting.

He received no sympathy, and without doubt his misfortune will long be cited in that neighborhood as fresh proof of the rainbow's baneful influence.

The Wolves of France.

J. J. Rousseau attributed any natural superiority that England possessed over France to her freedom from wolves. In 1889, 515 wolves were killed in France, and the bounties paid for their destruction amounted to 36,000 francs, or nearly 70 francs per head. The reward varies, following the age, the sex and the "antecedents" of the wolf. The ordinary sum is 40 francs; if a she wolf in young, 150 francs; for a wolf that has attacked a human being, 200 francs. Most wolves were killed—82 and 76—in the departments of the Dordogne and Charente.

Under the ancient regime the lieutenant for the destruction of wolves was an important functionary. Today he is the largest landed proprietor in the forest district chosen by the prefect, and who binds himself to keep a pack of wolf hounds, etc., to hunt down the wolves in December and March. In return the proprietor is allowed two days' free shooting per month in the government forests. The wags say the lieutenants are the natural friends of the wolves, in order to uphold their sporting rights. It is difficult to run to earth an old wolf, because the animal can run its 100 miles at a pinch in a single night. The Prince de Joinville has the best pack of wolf hounds in France. Any one who captures a wolf, no matter by what means, has only to bring the animal's ears and right fore-paw to the local mayoralty to receive the reward. The ears are then slit to prevent a second presentation and the paw is nailed against the office wall and registered.—Paris Cor. Pittsburg Press.

Encounter with Albatrosses.

During the passage of a Nova Scotian bark a most extraordinary affair is reported to have occurred, showing alike the ferocious and dangerous proclivities of the albatross. The bark had just got out of the latitude where rough weather is always encountered, and was sailing with a fair wind when the cry of "Man overboard!" sounded throughout the ship. The unfortunate fellow was a Dane, one of the crew, and he was seen at a short distance breasting the waves. The bark was brought round, answering her helm instantly, and the vessel was soon on her way to the struggling man.

Suddenly two large albatrosses were seen to descend with an eaglelike swoop and attack the poor fellow in a terrible manner. Both birds dashed at him, and to those on board the vessel it seemed as if they were endeavoring to gouge out his eyes with their hooked bills, while with their wings they kept beating the unfortunate man about the head. The sight was a terrible one, but it did not last long, as the bark sailed over the course where the Dane had fallen overboard about seven minutes before, but he was nowhere to be seen. There was no doubt in the minds of those on board that the poor fellow was killed by the albatrosses, as he was a powerful swimmer and seemed to fight desperately for a few moments with the ferocious birds.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Fought for Their Lives.

Four woodsmen from Ottawa, Ont., had a desperate fight with a pack of wolves while returning from work to their camp on the Kippewa river. Two brothers named Barrett stopped on the road to examine a trap, and their two companions went ahead. The latter had not proceeded far when they heard loud shouting mingled with the barking of wolves.

They hurried back and discovered the Barretts, with their backs to a tree, desperately defending themselves with their axes against a pack of seventeen wolves.

The men looked about them, and were appalled to see that the pack was being re-enforced by a number of equally desperate animals.

After fully ten minutes of fighting for their lives the men fortunately killed seven of the wolves, which had an effect upon their companions, for they turned and fled. All the men were bleeding from the legs and sides, where they had been bitten.—Exchange.

One Who Knew Byron.

Col. Andrew Derrom is probably the only man in the United States who ever saw Lord Byron. George Bancroft knew the poet, but he is now dead. Col. Derrom saw Lord Byron at Argostoli, Greece, in 1823 and 1824, and remembers him very plainly. He was then on his mission for Greek independence, and Col. Derrom was there with his father, who was in the British service. Since the death of Mr. Bancroft Col. Derrom is probably the only man in America who ever met the great poet face to face. He commanded the Twenty-fifth New Jersey volunteers, in Gen. Getty's division, Ninth corps, during the campaign of 1862-3.—Paterson (N. J.) Guardian.

Here's Your Clam.

A New Yorker has succeeded in making an artificial clam which tastes better than the original, will keep fresh for five years and costs only half as much as the bivalve dug out of the sand. His orders from clubs and restaurants will make him rich in three years. The clam has not used the public as he ought to, and this is the result.—Detroit Free Press.

WHY SHE LEFT MOLOKAI.

Sister Rose Gertrude's Reasons for Leaving Her Work Among the Lepers.

The ground was divided into three parts—one for "suspects" (that is, persons whom the doctors are not sure having the disease), one for the lepers under Dr. Luna's treatment, and the third for the persons brought in for examination and the unfortunates waiting to be shipped to Molokai. The board of health vested the entire control of the hospital, apart from the medical and surgical work, in their agent, who also acts as a sort of policeman to catch the lepers and bring them up for examination. He in his turn gave over the authority to the Luna—a sort of general overseer—one of the leper patients, a man of no education, who confessed himself that before he "got the disease he often had the devil." This overseer retained all the keys of communication until the day I left, even of the "suspect" side, which he ought not to have entered, as he was a confirmed leper.

Space would fail were I to tell of all that took place during those six eventful months. In that time some of the patients, formerly pronounced lepers, were cured; the condition of all was ameliorated, and hope sprang high in the hearts of these hitherto despairing people. Then came a time when, in several instances, the doctor's wishes and mine were put aside; some of our patients were made to work by the Luna in an utterly unfit condition; one, indeed, who had had a strong fever, was so thrown back that he nearly lost his life. Lastly, we heard from the patients that the Luna and the agent had been speaking against the doctor and myself, trying to prejudice the people and do us harm.

We complained to the board of health, as the matter became more serious; they seemed unwilling to take any steps in the matter. A native gentleman, representative of the people in the legislative assembly, took up the matter and brought it before the house. A committee from the house visited the hospital three days, and took down voluminous evidence, which was printed in a report. They found that the Luna was unworthy of his office and should be immediately removed, as also the agent of the board of health. This was not done. The president of the board of health was removed from his office.

For some unaccountable reason of their own, they upheld the Luna and the agent, and there was nothing left but for the doctor and myself to resign, it being impossible to work any longer under the then existing circumstances. And so, with an aching heart, we left the people, with all the more sorrow that their lives had been so bright with hope before, as one of them said in his speech before the committee of the legislative assembly, "There never has been such a doctor before in these islands; there never has been a woman who has cared so for the lepers."—Sister Rose Gertrude in Ladies' Home Journal.

Forgiven.

He was a bit of a boy not over 8 years old, but he followed me so persistently and kept up his cry of "Paper, sir!" so continuously that I turned on him in a way I afterward regretted. He felt hurt and insulted, and as he disappeared in the darkness I heard him calling:

"Never mind, old man! I'll grow up and give you the awfulest licking a man ever got!"

We have met almost daily for the past year, and on each occasion there has been no evidence of unbending. A dozen times, at least, I have heard him remark in an aside:

"There goes a fellow I am going to lick if it takes me fifty years."

The other day I was surprised to receive a call from my young enemy. Although he looked no older or stronger, I was wondering if he had come to carry out his awful threat, when he extended his little "paw" and said:

"Say, let's quit."

"I'm agreed."

"I said I'd lick you, and I meant it all along, but—but"——

"What's happened to change your mind?"

"Mother's dead—died Monday," he gasped, as he sat down, "and I don't want to fight nobody nor nothin'. If you'll forgive me I'll forgive you."

And so we shook hands and made up, and I know we both feel the better for it.—Detroit Free Press.

A Cheap Way to Warm Cold Feet.

More than twenty-five years ago, while I was in the Thirty-fifth Massachusetts regiment, strutting around in Virginia, I was sometimes troubled with cold feet. At one time while I was stamping upon the ground in the effort to warm my extremities a comrade in the same regiment said to me, "If your feet are cold try this." He raised his foot from the ground and struck some light blows with his hand on the upper part of his leg, just above the knee. I did the same with both legs, and instantaneously felt a flow of warm blood coursing downward, and the feet became comfortably warm. The experiment was repeated with good effect in the comparatively warm climate of Virginia, and also with equally good results in the more rugged atmosphere of New England.—Boston Journal.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date June 30th 1886 made by Ferdinand Poulin and Rose Poulin his wife mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 10th day of July 1886 at 10 o'clock a. m. in Book 23 of mortgages pages 120, 121 and 122.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum so secured due and payable; and default having been made, the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred ninety four dollars and twenty cents, and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the lands described in and secured by said mortgage to-wit: The west half of the north east quarter and the west half of the south east quarter of section two in township one hundred fifty north of range forty two west, situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at Public auction on Saturday the 30th day of May 1891 at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with the expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of twenty five dollars stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure of the same.

The Latest Thing in Shrouds.

A lady walked into a pattern store on Fourteenth street the other day and asked for the latest pattern for a shroud suited to a middle aged widow. In conversation with the clerk she said, quite cheerfully, that she had made her own shroud eight years ago and had it packed away in her trunk ready for the final day of dissolution: but her hair having become gray since then she thought a new shroud was necessary now. "Do you not think that the lace on the neck should be a little narrower to suit me now?" calmly asked the lady. The clerk said, with a weary look, that he really was no authority on such matters. He referred her to another pattern store further up town, and rubbed his hands in ghoulish glee when she departed. Now he wants to hear from the rival establishment.—New York Continent.

Sneezing One's Teeth Out.

The report of the physician in charge of the Ningpo Missionary Hospital for the past year contains some interesting observations on tooth-drawing in China. Dr. Daly remarks that Chinese teeth are much more easily extracted than those of Europeans. The native dentists are said to possess a wonderful powder, which is rubbed on the gum over the affected tooth; after an interval of about five minutes the patient is told to sneeze, whereupon the tooth falls out. Dr. Daly has offered a reward of $100 to anyone performing the operation in this way in his presence, on condition that he is allowed to choose the tooth and examine the mouth before and afterward. So far no one will consent to perform the operation on these conditions.—New York Medical Record.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN.

SUBJECTS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO THE AGRICULTURIST.

Dry and Wet Fodder—The Care of Cows' Feet—Warmth of Growing Vegetation—Winter Wheat—Birds Pulling Corn.

Dry and Wet Fodder.

An interesting and instructive experiment in feeding swine is reported from Germany. It was formerly believed that the moistening of the food was desirable; and the experiment was undertaken to compare the effects of the same food when given in a dry state and when moistened or made into soup.

The experiment was made with four pigs of the same litter, and continued from November 28, 1889, to March 8, 1890. The food consisted of beets and potatoes in equal amounts, creamery refuse, swill and rye and barley meal. At the beginning about one and a half pounds each of the rye and barley meals were fed per head; later this was increased to two pounds. The pigs were fed three times a day. Two received the grain meals mixed with the other food, which was wet, and two received it seperately, in a dry state, after the wet food had been eaten clean.

The gain in live weight during the period of the experiment was as follows: The two pigs to which the grain was fed dry gained respectively 118 and 115 pounds—a total of 233 pounds; the others gained 100 and 76 pounds—a total of 176 pounds. This shows a difference of 57 pounds in favor of feeding the grain dry. It should be noted, however, that the gain in the two dry fed pigs was nearly equal, while there was a marked difference—no less than 24 pounds—in the gain of the two wet-fed ones. One of the second lot must therefore have been less vigorous and thrifty than its mate. If the same relative gain had been made the difference between the totals of the two lots would have been considerably less—say thirty-six instead of fifty-seven pounds. The lesson taught by the experiment would still have been marked, however. Experience in this country points to a similar conclusion.

The Care of Cows' Feet.

Every dairyman that wishes to prevent his cows from losing flesh, condition and milking power should attend carefully to the soundness of their feet; for they, more than any other domesticated animals, are liable to that painful and injurious disease foul-in-the-feet. The main cause of this disease lies in two facts—first, that cows are cloven footed; second that their habits lead them to wade through mud. When any kind of filth becomes lodged for a time between the hoofs the part becomes inflamed, swells and discharges matter, while a fungoid growth develops at the same time. Steers are not so liable to this disease as cows; for not being so much accustomed to indoor feeding, they have not the same inclination to come home before the proper time, crowd around the gate and convert the ground into a mire. Other causes for this disease are tubercle and a strain in the foot.

Treatment advised when the trouble has come from the filth between the hoofs is that the foot should be washed, poulticed with linseed and afterward dressed with sulphate of copper, carbolic acid or butter of antimony. The foot should be kept clean and the cows indoors to rest. When a strain in the foot is the cause there has probably been an excessive growth of the horny part. The toe nails should therefore be cut with a sharp, fine-toothed saw, while the front of the sole must sometimes be pared as well. When tubercle is the cause the disease is too deeply seated for treatment.

Warmth of Growing Vegetation.

The act of growing implies changes in cellular tissue that always are accompanied by warmth; at least as compared with the freezing point. Hence even tender vegetation often escapes when the thermometer registers below the frost temperature. This is because the thermometer encased in tin is made so as to be susceptible to the slightest changes of heat or cold. Even when frost is deposited on a plant the leaf itself is often not frozen, and will not be unless the frost is thawed out too suddenly. In that case the cold in the crystals of ice goes into what they are in contact with while thawing, just the same as is done by making ice cream by thawing ice around it. If there is much wind and the temperature only just down to the freezing point, buds, blossoms and leaves may be injured on the windward side of the trees, while on the lee side the fruit will escape. This phenomena will probably be witnessed on many trees this year, and it may induce the habit which some trees have now of bearing on each side in alternate years, a valuable habit where there is a single tree of some fruit wanted only for family use. Where snow lies on fruit blossoms it may protect them. The chief danger in such case would be not while the snow remained with the germ of fruit hidden beneath it, but when it thawed. Showering trees with cold water as the temperature began to warm would be most apt to let the snow thaw off with least possible injury to the fruit.

Winter Wheat.

From every part of the country comes reports of the condition of winter wheat. Beginning with last fall and continuing until the present, the season has been very favorable over the whole winter wheat area. Reports to the department of agriculture show that the condition of winter wheat is higher than it has been for nine years. Danger is to be anticipated in some quarters from the Hessian fly, but it is not very serious. Wheat is thrifty, stocky and well stooled out, so that it is in a better condition than usual to withstand the ravages of insect enemies. The flattering prospects for a large crop of wheat are accompanied by conditions that insure good prices. Harvest will find this country with a very low reserve of old wheat on hand, and even if our next crop comes up to its present promises and turns out to be a very large one, it is most likely that it will all be needed and taken at good prices. The present outlook is a very favorable one. A big crop of dollar wheat would lift the farmers of this country out of the slough of despond and place them on the solid road to prosperity. Every line of trade and ever channel of business would also be benefited. The corn area of 1891 will doubtless be a very large one. The present high prices will stimulate production. Too many farmers had to buy dear corn this season, and they will make the greatest effort not to be caught again.—Farm and Fireside.

Birds Pulling Corn.

Blackbirds are often very troublesome about pulling corn when it first breaks ground and until it is too tall for them to handle. They have no fear of the lines around the field that would keep off the cows, and they are too numerous to be shot, and too brave to be afraid of scarecrows, or of a man with a gun when he is more than a gunshot away. Corn they want, corn they will have, and it is the best way to let them have it. A peck of corn scattered around the borders of a ten-acre field, putting the larger part on the edge next the swamp, where they most do congregate, will usually satisfy their appetite while the corn is growing, unless they are very numerous, and they would rather pick it up than pull it from the hill. If one feeding is not enough, give another, as it takes but little more corn and much less labor than it would to replant the field. Do not poison the corn, as the blackbirds, robins and other birds that would eat it are troublesome only a few days in the year, and the farmers' friends, in these days of numerous insect pests, the rest of the time.

Seasonable Bee Sayings.

When two or more prime swarms come out and cluster together, and are allowed to hang awhile, the queens will usually all be balled, and drop to the ground with their balls of bees, when the queens can be secured and returned to their hives by caging, or without if you can tell where each one comes from.

If you would like to know where a swarm comes from, take away the queen and sprinkle the bees with flour, then smoke them off, and you can soon see where to return your queen.

If you wish to avoid the openings between the sections made by the T-tins, holding the sections apart, turn your tins over, put a sawcut through the rest for the tin to lie on, then with a follower and wedge you can press the sections up tightly, saving much time for the bees (as to fill these cracks between the sections will be their first work on them), and save you much time scraping sections.—John Andrews, in American Bee-Keeper.

Cabbage Worm Remedy.

W. S. S. of Chicago writes: I have thoroughly tried bubach, tar oil water, and everything else I could hear or read of for the cabbage worm and signally failed. I tried collecting the butterfly, but found that would not do, for it cost more than the cabbage is worth. Finally I tried hot water, and this did the business. I have used it three years. Have the water at from 150 to 160° Fahr., and put it on with a common tin sprinkler. I begin it as soon as I find a worm or a hole in the leaf, and seldom have to give the plants more than three doses in the season. The water is hot enough to kill the worm, but does not injure the plant, and it will pass between the leaves while the powder will not. This remedy costs nothing, and its application only the time used in applying it.

Growing a Diversity of Crops.

The expenses of the farm and family go on through all the year. It is almost impossible to make profit unless there is equal continuity in selling. There may be and should be special crops that furnish the bulk of the money received from the farm; but if this is drawn upon by a continual drain not relieved by any new supply, it will be drawn down to nothing. For years southern farmers have depended wholly on their sales of cotton, and though this is one of the most profitable crops grown, it has been impossible for southern planters to keep out of debt until they adopted the northern plan of growing a diversity of crops.—Coleman's Rural World.

Farm Notes.

The garden in proportion to the ground it occupies, pays far better than the farm.

It is impossible to live well without a nice garden, small fruit orchard and strawberry bed.

Our farmers must give more attention to the growing of grass and less attention to grain.

The professional gardner does not need much land but he wants it to be rich and convenient to a good market.

The Canadian government has decided to make a grant of money for the establishment of dairy schools throughout the Dominion.

Dr. Wiley is credited with having discovered a method whereby the production of sugar from sorghum can be doubled. This is important.

Prof. Atwater says: "I have traced the roots of timothy to a depth of two feet four inches, and the clover three feet and two inches in a hard clay soil, suitable for making brick."

Jotham Winrow, in the American Grange Bulletin, says: "The average American farmer is not an ignoramus, he is not uncivilized, he is not a fool, a swindler nor a failure."

Every farmer should grow a small acreage of alfalfa since there is no crop that will yield as much per acre or is more valuable one year with another.

To be a thoroughly successful dairyman a man must know how to breed and select good stock. Wherever there is a great variation in the financial reports from different dairymen in the same location the variation comes from difference of brains and energy in the dairymen.

HE MADE A BOLD STAND.

His Wife Had Been Nagging Him Long Enough and He So Informed Her.

"Henry," she said as he took off his overcoat and looked around for his slippers, "did you mail that letter that I gave you yesterday?"

"Yes, my dear," he replied promptly; "I mailed it yesterday afternoon."

"Are you sure?"

He drew himself up haughtily. He felt that he had the best of it this time and he proposed to make the most of it.

"Maria," he said with dignity, "I have stood this nagging as long as I propose to. Every time I undertake to do anything for you you insult me instead of thanking me, and all because I carried some letters of yours two days once and failed to match a piece of ribbon. It has gone on long enough, and hereafter I want it understood that when I say I have done a thing I have done it and that settles it. I mailed your letter, Maria, at Randolph and State Streets.

"Then," said the little North Side woman, and her eyes flashed, "what is this that the postman left this morning marked 'Received in Bad Order?' It begins, 'My Dearest Harry,' and ends, 'Yours lovingly, Lily.' Henry did you mail my letter, or did you——" and she tapped the envelope she held.

"I think—I think I did," he replied meekly, as with trembling fingers he pulled his wife's sealed and stamped letter out of his pocket. "I—I guess I mailed that old 1886 letter by mistake, Maria. You remember Lily, don't you, Mary? Youthful flame of mine. I wonder where she is. Have you heard, Mamie?"

"And before the interview was over he promised to throw all the old letters away and never speak of nagging again.—Chicago Tribune.

ON A NIGHT TRAIN.

How the Passengers Were Kept Awake by a Bridal Couple.

A young clam farmer from Canarsie, accompanied by his 250-pound wife, created much amusement on a bridge train coming to Brooklyn one night a little before mid-night. The cars were as well filled as is usual at that hour. The rustics drew attention to themselves by the loud tones of their conversation, "Now, baby," the man was saying, "you know I ain't a bit stingy and I wouldn't care for the money at all, but I don't want any catfish of a toll-grabber to do the dead swindle on me—Sunday nights, anyway."

"Oh, never mind Reuben," said "baby" consolingly.

"Well, now, baby, you can see for yourself. There's 84 cents out of a dollar. Do you see that? That shark has kept back ten cents on me. It ain't the money I care for baby. Here, do you want it it?"

"No; I don't want it. I wish you would keep quiet."

"Well, if you don't wan't it, here goes," scattering the change on the floor.

Baby maintained a stolid silence, gazing ruefully at the coin on the floor. Finally Reuben realized that he had been guilty of criminal waste, and he said: "Well, if you don't want it, I'll take it," and he began clumsily to pick the money out of the spaces in the matting. At this point a general laugh arose from the other passengers. When the Brooklyn station was reached the farmer was still mourning his missing dime, and when I left his ponderous wife was struggling to prevent him from taking the next train to New York to get hunk with "that pirate" at the toll-box.—Brooklyn Eagle.

It Has Two Stomachs.

At the April meeting of the Natural History Society, Dr. Thomas S. Stevens entertained and instructed the members by an illustrated paper on a rotifer, a microscopic animal that is among the rarest in the group. It was first discovered by a Russian microscopist, next found twice in Philadelphia, once in Illinois and some years ago in Trenton. It has now been rediscovered here.

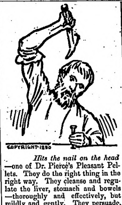
The creature is unique in several particulars that would be of little interest to the general reader, but which fill with inexpressible joy the heart of the devoted microscopist, who is happy when he is prying into the little brain or the larger stomach of the animal.

The little creature is blessed above the human beast in having two stomachs, which it can fill with other animals and apparently enjoy itself by digesting them in spite of their wriggling. But in connection with one of the animal's stomachs a discovery has been made in Trenton that has never before been made in any part of the world—otherwise it would not be a discovery. This pouch is internally lined with a dense and woolly coating of vibrating hairs. These strange internally appendages appear to be unknown in any other than the Trenton rotifer, and are, therefore, of great interest in a scientific way.

Another pleasing point, pleasing both to the animal and to the microscopist, is that the rotifer has no means of seeking its food nor of creating currents in the water that shall bring food to its double stomach. It can only rest on a small leaf or other object, hold its mouth widely open and wait for Providence to fill it by means of some wandering animal that shall blunder into the trap and be done for, because once in those jaws there is no escape.—Trenton State Gazette.

Fooling the Ducks.

A hunter, says the Richmond (Mo.) Democrat, got after a flock of didapper ducks in the lake. Those birds, it is claimed, are able to dodge a bullet after the flash of the gun. The hunter shot away all his cartridges without hitting a duck. When the didappers saw a puff of smoke from the gun they would dive before the shot reached them. The hunter was determined not to be outdone, so he lit a cigar and began to puff as fast as he could. In this way he kept the ducks under until he drowned the entire flock.—American Field.



Hits the nail on the head—one of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They do the right thing in the right way. They cleanse and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels—thoroughly and effectively, but mildly and gently. They persuade, rather than force. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet's a gentle laxative; three to four act as a cathartic. They're the smallest, but the best. There's less to take, but there's more good in it, when it's taken. They're the original Little Liver Pill, and they've never been equaled. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

Macaulay as a Speaker.

Men listened to Macaulay with respect, weighed his arguments, reflected on what he had said, were often convinced, sometimes converted; but nowhere did crowds of eager listeners and ardent admirers bend beneath the music of his voice or the lightning glance of his eye. An old friend of mine, recently dead, who had often heard him and remembered him perfectly, assured me, however, that he was a great power fifty years ago, and he believed that his oratorical triumphs hardly received full credit in those days.

Macaulay himself said that one of his chief defects as a public speaker was his extraordinary rapidity of utterance, which spoiled the effect of his words. His speeches resembled carefully-prepared essays, delivered with incredible rapidity and some want of impressiveness, rather than the spontaneous outburst of the orator's full heart. Fluency and great facility in finding the right words are not an unmixed gain to the speaker. Appropriate pauses and emphasis are even more important; otherwise a torrent of words lacks impressiveness. Then the management of the voice counts for very much. A speech that flows on like a rope unwound from a cylinder is not a good one. Again, to be successful a speech must be enlivened with anecdotes or humor; people can always read for solid instruction, but a platform speaker must amuse and please rather than teach.—The Gentleman's Magazine.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Some hearts, like evening primroses, open most beautifully in the shadow of life.

The goodness of to-day will not blot out the sin of yesterday.

"Heals all cuts, burns and bruises like magic." That's Johnson's Anodyne Liniment surely.

Let us be always cheerful; if life is a burden, let it be the burden of song.

Next to being a great poet, is the power of understanding one.

Very few persons have sense enough to despise the praise of a fool.

Good Bye!

This is a sad word when taken leave of the beloved, but when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters enables us to say it to an attack o liver complaint it is by no means sad, but decidedly jolly. Similarly, if the great tonic alternative relieves from dyspepsia or kidney trouble we experience joy. Malaria, rheumatism and neuralgia are also tenants which this remedy dispossesses.

Truly fine nature dislike finery, but coarse ones may dislike both firmness and finery.

APPEARANCES AGAINST HIM.

Dilemma of a Prohibitionist Who Was Escorting Two Inebriates.

One of the ablest of the tutors in a leading New England college was at the same time an uncompromising foe to everything of the character of strong drink.

He not only practiced all the teachings of the prohibition science in his own person, but never allowed an opportunity to pass unused of publicly declaring against intoxicating beverages and general dissipation. Hence his standing in the matter was particularly well known.

His rigidity of views on this subject, however, did not prevent his owing to several little hobbies and a goodness of heart that sometimes had the effect of taking the moral partly out of his precepts.

One of these hobbies was his ardent love of botany, and his gentleness of nature came out in his overlooking and hiding many of the collegians' little faults.

One morning early he was returning from a botanizing excursion, when by the roadside he saw a freshman who was plainly the worse from being out all night. He had evidently tried to make his way to his lodgings, but the effort was too much.

Stipulus, the tutor, roused him and, linking his arm to his own, continued on his way. But what was his surprise, on going some little distance, to meet another student in quite the same condition as the first.

For a moment the inconsistency of him—a stanch teetotaler—playing a part of a rescuing ship to these wrecks of dissipation made him pause, but his heart got the better of it.

Lifting the second fallen one he steadied the pair as well as he could and kept on his way.

This double burden was not easy to navigate, and he was by no means a powerful man their wobbling gradually imparted a like motion to his own steps. And at the very moment when this wave-like movement had, so to speak, reached its climax, on turning a corner he came face to face with several members of the senior class.

The surprise was so great that, not knowing whether they had given him the slightest sign of recognition, he failed to recover himself, or even think of asking assistance until they had disappeared.

Conscious of the purity of his heart and motives, however, he saw his cargo home and then went about his duties at the college, only to find the report meeting him on every hand that that morning he had been seen in such a condition on the public street that it was necessary for two good-natured students to almost break their backs trying to carry him home.

Of course the matter was made plain to the faculty, but while Stipulus is no less a teetotaler than ever, he wouldn't now stoop to pick up a man if he saw him fall out of a balloon.—Philadelphia Times.

Character in Handwriting.

Graphology, which is lightly thought of in this country, is vastly considered in England, where many woman, young and old, make a profound study of reading characters through the handwriting. In the society set a Miss Valentine is often startlingly successful. Not long ago at breakfast the company listened with breathless interest while she unfolded the virtues, vices, ambitions and vagaries of the authors of various specimens of handwriting presented for her consideration. Merely from the address of an American she minutely and accurately described the writer, even telling that the lady was a skilled musician. One of the men produced an envelope directed to himself and she announced instantly: "The man who wrote that is a clergyman and I should think rather high in the church." It actually proved to be from the bishop of Lincoln. A young daughter of Sir William Bruce is said to be the most remarkable palmist in England, but is chary of exhibiting her skill.

Expectation takes up more joy on trust than fruition can discharge.

Creates An Appetite

There is nothing for which we recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla with greater confidence than for loss of appetite, indigestion, sick headache and other troubles of dyspeptic nature. In the most natural way this medicine gently tones the stomach, assists digestion, and makes one feel "real hungry." Ladies in delicate health, or very dainty and particular at meals, after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a few days, find themselves longing for and eating the plainest food with unexpected relish and satisfaction. Try it.

"German Syrup"

Martinsville, N.J., Methodist Parsonage. "My acquaintance with your remedy, Boschee's German Syrup, was made about fourteen years ago, when I contracted a Cold which resulted in a Hoarseness and a Cough which disabled me from filling my pulpit for a number of Sabbaths. After trying a Physician, without obtaining relief—I cannot say now what remedy he prescribed—I saw the advertisement of your remedy and obtained a bottle. I received such quick and permanent help from it that whenever we have had Throat or Bronchial troubles since in our family, Boschee's German Syrup has been our favorite remedy and always with favorable results. I have never hesitated to report my experience of its use to others when I have found them troubled in like manner." REV. W. H. HAGGARTY, of the Newark, New Jersey, M.E. Conference, April 25, '90. It is claimed in Washington that Senator, Hansbrough will make arrangements while west this summer to take up his permanent residence at Grand Forks instead of Devils Lake, N. D.

Miss Paddock, the daughter of Maggie Mitchell, looks very much like her mother, but she is so different from her that she has hardly crossed the threshold of a dressing room or seen the glare of the footlights except faintly and from far away.

Sir Antoine A. Dorion, chief justice of Quebec queen's bench court and formerly leader of the Quebec liberal party, is dead in Montreal. He was for many years one of the most prominent figures in Canadian public life.

Col. Sidney D. Maxwell, who for 20 years has filled the responsible position of superintendent of the Merchants' exchange and chamber of commerce at Cincinnati, Ohio, tendered his resignation to the board of directors at a regular meeting and it was referred to a special committee.

CASUALTIES.

A Turin dispatch says the wind blew a hurricane in the Susa valley. A large number of houses were blown over and nine persons were killed and many injured.

David Leonard, a G. A. R. veteran and janitor of the county building in Chicago, fell down the light shaft and received fatal injuries. He had gone up to take down the flag after the close of the memorial day exercises.

The loss by the fire at the Brooklyn Cooperage company's works is not as great as at first reported. The loss will amount to $120,000. The cooperage company is owned principally by the Sugar trust. The sugar house of Dick & Meyers was damaged to the extent of $10,000.

At Bedford, Ind., a saw mill explosion killed five men. The mill was owned by John and Joe Dusard. The killed are: Doc Kern, Edward Dusard, son of one of the proprietors; James Perkins, Granger Evans, all of Fayetteville; Geo. Hayden, of Swiss City, Ind.

An infant hurricane visited St. Louis and locality. The greatest damage was done on the outskirts of the town and in East St. Louis, where three dwelling houses, a factory and a number of sheds were blown to splinters, several buildings unroofed and trees blown down. Fortunately no one was injured.

CRIMINAL.

While trying to steal horses, three men, one named Greenaway and the others unknown, were shot to death by Shawnee Indians in the Indian Territory.

Walter Dempsey, wanted in Chicago and Milwaukee on the charge of falsifying accounts and embezzling $5,000, has been arrested in New York.

At Jacksboro, Tex., a cowboy named Cope was killed by the sheriff while resisting arrest; but Cope mortally wounded the sheriff before he died.

Peter Cedar, living six miles from Genoa, Neb., shot and killed his daughter-in-law, inflicting probably fatal injuries and then committed suicide by taking poison.

The Hennessy jury bribers came before the court in New Orleans and pleaded not guilty. The cases came up, McCrystal and O'Maley being the first on the docket.

At Grand Bank, N. F., James Follett shot and killed his brother on the public street, The cause of the shooting was Edward's undue familiarity with his brother's wife.

The three New York murderers Smiler, Slocum and Weed, whose appeals to the supreme court against electrocution failed, were resentenced to be executed during the week beginning July 6.

Sherman Gatton, a mail clerk living at Chicago Junction, was brought to Cleveland from Cincinnati by a deputy United States marshal and locked up in jail, charged with robbing the mails.

The jury at Mount Sterling Ky., in the case of John, Frank and Charles Wiggington for poisoning William Ferguson and R. C. Walts, returned a verdict of guilty, and fixed the punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for life.

A negro named Tobe Long was found lying dead in the road outside of his house at Macon, Ga. His wife was arrested, and is said to have confessed that she killed her husband in a fit of jealousy and dragged the body out of the house into the road during the night.

A Butler, Pa., grand jury returned true bills on 13 indictments against members of the West Sunbury M. E. church charging them with forcible entry, disturbing a religious meeting and riot. The cases will be tried. Rival factions in the church have for some time been carrying on a bitter contest for possession of the church property.

C. R. Boyd, local editor of the Titus County, Tex. Times, was found dead a short distance from Mount Pleasant, with his throat cut from ear to ear. He was suspected of being the correspondent of a scurrilous paper published in Kansas City, but it is not known that he was killed on that account.

OTHER SHORES.

Verin, a prominent broker of Paris, has been declared on the bourse to be a defaulter to the amount of $1,000,000. The announcement created a profound sensation.

The vote in the chamber of deputies on the pork tariff is not necessarily final. The government means to adhere to its original proposals regarding American pork.

The Dublin National Press accuses Mr. Parnell of misappropriating certain funds, and says it will reiterate the charge in order to compel Mr. Parnell to take legal proceedings against the publishers.

SPORTING TRIFLES

The national tournament of off-hand rifle shooters will be held in St. Louis from June 8 to 14 inclusive.

An English rider named Fletcher recently rode on a tricycle a distance of 236 miles inside of twenty-four hours.

Jimmy Carroll, Jack Ashton, Gus Tuthill and others who witnessed the Meyer-Bowen fight all declare that Meyer is easily the better man.

A Milwaukee paper claims that Anson vainly offered Milwaukee Dahlen and a cash consideration for Shriver. Anson needs one more catcher badly, and Shriver would have been just the man for him.

George Franklin wishes to meet Tommy Hogan for a purse to be put up by friends and a side bet of $250. He is willing to fight any number of rounds or to a finish, and at any time.

President Young has never remitted a fine imposed on a player except by authority of the board of directors, who have authorized him to do so three times since the organization of the national league.

McGuire, the University of Virginia pitcher, struck out 21 men of the Old Dominion club on Monday, May 18, and now holds the strike-out record of the season. It is a rare thing now for more then 10 to be retired on strikes in a professional game.

There seems to be a great dearth of pitching talent this season. The speed and curves of pitchers reached their limit several years ago, since which time the batters have been training their eyes. With nothing new before them, the big batters are able to hit hard and often.

John Burns, the Marlborough, Mass., prize fighter who killed Henry McGlone of Natick a few months ago in a bloody battle with hard gloves, was himself killed by a terrible blow on the temple while engaged in a prize fight with Harry Tracy of Cambridge. It was a foul blow delivered while Burns was in his corner recovering from the effects of a knock-out blow on the jaw. Tracy had won the fight by the preceding blow, and there was no occasion for the blow which caused Burn's death.

LABOR CIRCLES

Cable & Co. several days ago threatened that, unless the men who were out on a strike at Washington, Ind., returned to work, the four mines operated by them would be abandoned until next fall. As there has been no indication of the strikers returning to work, the mines have been closed. Six hundred men are thrown out of employment.

IN GENERAL.

The United States circuit court at Nashville, Tenn., has sustained the constitutionality of the anti-trust law.

The supreme court of Connecticut has rendered a decision which will favor the Democrats in the gubernatorial contest.

It is reported in Boston that Francis F. Emery, boots and shoes, has assigned with liabilities of $300,000. Mr. Emery denies that he is in financial trouble.

The Illinois senate has passed its amendment to the house compulsory education bill. It requires the teaching of reading, writing and United States history in English in all private and parochial schools.

The New York Dispatch Publishing company is in the sheriff's hands. The company published the New York Dispatch, the Daily Traveler and Hotel Record, Drake's Magazine and the Evening Call.

The standing committee of the diocese of Springfield, Ill., Episcopal church, by a vote of three to three, has declined to confirm the election of Phillips Brooks bishop of Massachusetts.

Blumenstein & Hirsch entered judgment for $32,065 against Joseph Frank, of Chicago, in favor of Daniel Richter, growing out of the failure of the Swan Cattle company. Execution has been issued.

Incorporation papers have been filed at Columbus, Ohio, for the Consolidated Oatmeal company, with a capital stock of $3,500,000. All the oatmeal mills of the country are thus brought under one management.

The recent completed German-Lutheran college building in Springfield Ill., an annex to the Concordia college, was dedicated with imposing ceremonies. Excursionists to the number of 5,000, from Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis and various Illinois towns were present.

Owing to the abolishment of the office of county tax collectors, and there being no way to collect back taxes, the treasury of Newcastle county, Del., is practically bankrupt, and county warrants have gone to protest. There are over $60,000 taxes due the county, but it has been necessary to borrow $10,000 to meet current expenses.

The Eckstein white lead company, of Cincinnati, applied for the appointment of a receiver for the Central rubber selling company, of Trenton, N. J., charging that the liabilities of the concern amount to $130,000, while its assets consist only of accounts and bills receivable, mostly by the insolvent Star & Hamilton rubber companies.

SIR JOHN NO MORE.

Canada Loses Her First Minister and the Author of the Canadian Confederation.

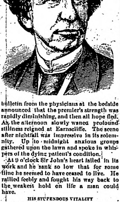
Premier Macdonald Passes Peacefully Away After a Long Struggle With the Inevitable.

Ottawa, June 6.—Sir John Macdonald is dead.

A nation is to-night mourning its greatest statesman, and a great party is in grief for the loss of a beloved leader.

Toward that sick chamber at Earnscliffe public notice has been directed for the last ten days, and the sympathy of the nation has gone out in greater degree as the picture presented grew darker and more pathetic. From all parts of the dominion, and from the sovereign comes a message of condolence. To all of the inquires but one answer could be given—the end might be delayed, but was inevitable.

The beginning of the end came early yesterday morning. The premier had slept the greater part of the night, and through the day he slept at intervals. The afternoon bulletin from the physicians at the bedside announced that the premier's strength was rapidly diminishing, and then all hope fled. As the afternoon slowly waned profound stillness reigned at Earnscliffe. The scene after nightfall was impressive in its solemnity. Up to midnight anxious groups gathered upon the lawn and spoke in whispers of the dying patient's condition.



At 9 o'clock Sir John's heart failed in its work and he sank so low that for some time he seemed to have ceased to live. He rallied feebly and fought his way back to the weakest hold on life a man could have.

HIS STUPENDOUS VITALITY

was making a grand struggle. The light of a new day brought with it nothing to relieve the anxious suspense. There was no change in the patient's condition; he was unconscious. His limbs were numb and there was nothing to mark that life was not extinct, but the feeble fluttering of the pulse and the almost imperceptible breathing. The family had been gathered about the bedside all night. Lady Macdonald, almost worn out by her long vigil, was there, and the premier's son, Hugh J. Macdonald, had kept his place at his father's side.

There was no bulletin from the physicians this morning. Nothing could be said beyond what had already been given out. It was a matter of time, perhaps moments, perhaps hours. The marvelous vitality which was staying the hand of death was slowly but surely ebbing.

The scenes of the morning and the afternoon were but counterparts of yesterday.

At 2 o'clock the physicians concurred in the opinion that the premier could not live until 9 o'clock, and again did they err. The dying premier had been perfectly unconscious for nearly thirty-eight hours, and the spark of life still lingered on.

The members of the cabinet held a long meeting this afternoon, Ministers Dewdney, Powell, Tupper and Costigan afterward called at Earnscliffe for the last report. The action of the patient's heart at times during the eveing was so feeble that Sir John was believed to be dead. Once the family gathered at the bedside under the impression that but it proved to be another of the dreaded sinking spells which, in succession, had left the aged statesman with less and less vitality. Not since 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon had any substantial liquid nourishment passed his lips. Such an unequal struggle could not much longer be sustained.

Eventide found the members of the family gathered about the bedside of the dying statesman waiting patiently for dissolution. Outside in the dusk were gathered the correspondents and small groups of anxious friends. The patient lay unconscious. Nature no longer asserted itself; life's fires were burning low, flickered and smouldered as though the soul would leave its tenement at each successive break. No one would recognize in the dying man one vestige of resemblance to the great political leader who had guided the destinies of Canada for nearly half a century.

At 10 o'clock it was evident that the end was near at hand. The household was summoned to the death chamber. Lady Macdonald stood by the side of her noble husband, and around her gathered the members of the family. Her face showed traces of weary watching and long suspense.

Death came peacefully to the aged premier at 10:15. The pulse fluttered, the breath came shorter and the pulse was still.

When the announcement of Sir John's death was made the bells of the city were tolled to convey the intelligence to the thousands who were anxiously awaiting this signal that their beloved premier was dead. Lady Macdonald is now prostrated with grief.

The funeral is likely to take place on Tuesday next, and will be of a state character. On that day the body will likely be removed to the senate chamber and lie in state for four or five hours. The interment will subsequently take place at Kingston, Ont., where the premier's first wife and his father are buried.

There has been a suggestion made that the remains of Sir John Macdonald shall be interred in Westminster Abbey, and it has given rise to considerable discussion. Referring to this suggestion the Toronto Telegram says to-night:

> Ottawa is in a sense our political Jerusalem, and enshrined on Parliament hill, a nation's heart, the ashes of Sir John Macdonald would sleep in a noble tomb. The greatness will be secured to generation after generation of Canadians who will go there to honor the memory of one of the founders of a nation that will endure till the resurrection day.

THE DEAD PREMIER.

Mourning for Sir John Macdonald—The Funeral Programme.

Ottawa, Ont., June 8.—Ottawa is the city of mourning to-day. Everywhere are seen signs of the general sorrow felt at the loss the nation has sustained in the death of Sir John Macdonald, one of her greatest sons, Flags are flying at half-mast from the parliament and other public buildings and also many private houses, some of which are draped with crape. The United States flag is floating at half-mast over the United States consulate. The remains of the dead leader were embalmed this morning. Sir John's body is less emaciated than was generally supposed.

The casket in which the remains will be interred is of steel, and painted a beautiful rose color. The massive handles consist of solid bars of oxidized silver, and extend along both sides of the coffin. On the lid are three large silver figures emblematic of the flight of time, in white silk. The outside of the casket is made of solid oak. The inscription on the silver plate has not yet been engraved.

The official programme of the funeral arrangements is as follows: The body will be privately moved from Earnscliffe to the parliament building, and will lie in state there from 1 o'clock Tuesday morning till the hour of the funeral. The state funeral will leave the parliament buildings at 1 o'clock, p. m., Wednesday, for St. Albans' church, and thence to the Canadian Pacific station, whence the body will be conveyed to Kingston. The body will lie in state at the city hall, Kingston, until Thursday noon, when the interment will take place.

Deep sympathy is expressed with Lady Macdonald, and messages of sympathy and condolence are pouring in from every quarter of the globe. In every church in the city to-day lengthy references were made to the deceased statesman. Arrangements have been made to fire minute guns and in every city in Canada on Wednesday afternoon during the funeral. Hundreds visited Earnscliffe to-day and cards were left at the gates. Policemen excluded the general public.

The ex-cabinet ministers met this afternoon, when Sir John Thompson arrived from Montreal, whither he had gone to visit his little daughter, who is seriously ill. It was decided to give the premier a state funeral. Lady Macdonald, on being communicated with, gave her consent to the arrangement.

At this writing the government has not sent for any of Sir John's colleagues to form a ministry.

Queen Victoria to-day cabled to the Governor general that she was deeply pained to learn of Sir John's death, which she regarded as a great loss to Canada and the sovereign. Her majesty extended her heartfelt sympathy to Lady Macdonald in her bereavement. Other dispatches have also been received from Lord Salisbury and scores of other notable persons in England.

It is understood that the government has not yet summoned anybody to form a ministry. Sir Hector Langevin said to-night that certain decencies had to be observed, and that he thought it extremely unlikely that Lord Stanley would take any action regarding a ministry till after Sir John's funeral.

CANVASSING IN TORONTO.

Toronto, June 8.—A quiet canvass is being carried on among prominent Conservatives in this city with a view of discovering how far the accession of Sir John Thompson to the party leadership would be acceptable. The feeling against him on the part of the Orangemen has been found to be of unexpected strength.

Immediately after the announcement of the premier's death last night, all the fire and church bells were tolled, and the newspapers came out with special morning editions.

NO TIDINGS OF TUPPER.

Sir Charles' Plans or Present Whereabouts Unknown.

London, June 6.—Two or three cable messages respecting Sir John Macdonald's condition have been published daily here. The news was followed with the closest intest throughout the kingdom.

Meanwhile there are no tidings of Sir Charles Tupper's plans. At the high commissioner's office nothing is known. Various inquiries in unofficial circles, where his movements are generally closely followed, had the same result. It is believed that he is still in Vienna, but two other colonial delegates to the postal congress have already returned to London.

Among the many who are acquainted with Sir Charles Tupper's long cherished desire for the succession to the leadership, the belief gains ground that his present line of action is followed, because it is thought best calculated to stimulate a request from Ottawa to return and assume command.

Whatever may be the issue of the present position of the party, no one here expects Sir Charles Tupper to remain in London many weeks longer.

A Wonderful Cat

A woman asked a Chicago Herald representative a few days ago to come to her house and observe the cunning device of her cat in its war against the rats. The cat, a big tom, was found in the back yard, standing on a box under a tree. The boards around the fence had been cut, and through the aperture the rats were in the habit of emerging. The woman took a bacon bone and threw it into the yard. Immediately Tom got up jumped off the box, and carried it near the hole and began rolling on it and rubbing himself with it industriously. After he had greased himself well he left the bone near the hole, lay down in front of it and appeared to go to sleep.

"Now," said the woman, "he will stay there through the night, and in the morning there will be half a dozen rats laid out around him. You see, the rats smell him if he remains in his natural condition and won't come out, but the grease of the bacon bone deceives them. When he can get a venison bone his catch is enormous, sometimes as many as twelve rats being found dead in the morning. As soon as any of us get up in the morning he will scratch at the door to be let in, and will, by his mewing, induce us to go out to see the result of his scheme.

Rude but Just.

This story of Carlyle and George Gilfillan has recently been put in circulation. The latter author, whose "Literary Portraits," by the way, was a great favorite with the young ladies, was a popular lecturer, and is said to have had a pretty fair appreciation of George Gilfillan. He called one day at Mr. Carlyle's, and his knock was responded to by Carlyle himself. As Carlyle opened the door and stood before him, Gilfillan introduced himself with a grandiloquent bow, and said: "I am George Gilfillan, and you are Mr. Carlyle, I suppose. I have been lecturing about you all over England." Carlyle looked at him half a moment, and then throwing back his shaggy mane blurted out; "What the dickens did you lecture about me for?" and slammed the door in his face.—Exchange.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

Chief McQuade of Duluth received a telegram from the sheriff at Benson, stating that Noak, the murderer of the Finlander Markay had been captured.

Cards have been received at Red Wing announcing the marriage at Syracuse, N. Y., of Frank E. Knox, formerly of this city, and Mrs. D. V. Aylesworth.

Two Salvation Army officers were arrested and lodged in jail at Red Wing for playing musical instruments on the streets, contrary to a city ordinance.

Deputy Sheriff O'Gannan arrested John P. Rowan, of Grove City, at Annandale on a charge of forgery preferred at Meeker county. Rowan protests his innocence.

Mrs. Helen Wylie, a pioneer resident of Goodhue county, died at her home in Sugar Loaf valley after a long illness, aged fifty-three years.

John F. Rowen was bound over to the grand jury at Litchfield, on the charge of forging a check on the Merchants and Farming bank at Grove City. In default of $500 bonds he was sent to jail.

The McMahon murder trial was concluded at Henderson. The jury, after being in ten hours, rendered a verdict of not guilty on the ground of insanity. T. J. McMahon shot his wife May 24, 1890.

The California wine house, at St. Cloud, owned by M. Miller & Co., was sold recently to Nick Lambert. The wholesale part of the house will remain under the same management.

Adelbert Goheen, under sentence of death, at Fergus Falls tells Sheriff Billings he will never be hanged alive. The sheriff differs from him. Two watchers, one night and one day, are with Goheen constantly.

The first graduating exercises ever held in Glenwood took place in the town hall. Edwin Thorson, son of Judge Thorson being the only graduate. The hall was handsomely decorated for the occasion.

In the case of Margaret J. Mitchell vs. W. B. E. and C. S. Mitchell for $5,000 damages, which has been occupying the attention of jury for two days at St. Cloud, a verdict was rendered of $500 for the plaintiff.

Chuck-Un-Dum, an Indian, was brought before United States Commissioner Tillotson on the charge of selling liquor to the Indians at White Earth. The evidence not being conclusive the commissioner discharged the accused.

Albert Fisher was sentenced at Rochester to two years in Stillwater for larceny in the second degree and Charles Lester, his accomplice, to the reformatory at St. Cloud. Both are Rochester boys, and their crime was the robbery of a local hardware store.

In the case of Orcutt vs. Northern Pacific railroad at St. Cloud, the jury returned a verdict of $575 for the plaintiff. Orcutt sued for $2,000 damages for personal injuries received while side-tracked with a car load of goods at Sauk Rapids.

An 8-year-old son of Joseph Kohland, a cigarmaker employed by Marx & Wier, of St. Cloud, was probably fatally shot in the abdomen while playing with a revolver. It is not known just how the accident occurred, as the boy's mother found him unconscious in the wood shed.

F. S. Hunt, a prominent young veterinary surgeon, of Sauk Center, was quietly married by Judge L. R. Barto to Miss Nellie Deldrich, also of that city. The girl's parents objected to the marriage, and were not informed of the event until Hunt went for his wife's clothes and his own.

Jos. Meilke and Jos. J. Doll have been arrested at Fergus Falls for placing an obstruction on the Northern Pacific track at Richland. Doll was held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,000 and committed to the county jail. Meilke was released on his own recognizance.

At the close of the high school commencement exercises at Northfield, Prof. W. F. F. Shelleck, the superintendent of the public schools, and the leader of the high school orchestra, was presented with a beautiful coronet, the gift of students in the high school.

At St. Cloud, Harry Branch, arrested a short time ago on the charge of incendiarism, and was subsequently released on $2,000 bail, failed to appear for trial, and inquiries prove that he has flown. Nic Karls, who was arrested on the same charge, appeared and waved examination.

A farmers' institute will be held at Brown's Valley June 25, and will be conducted by Supt. G. C. Gregg and his excellent corps of assistants. Farmers and merchants have taken hold of the matter and will endeavor to make it one of the most successful institutes ever held in the state.

A bad wreck was caused at Anoka by the west bound Eastern Minnesota freight running into an open switch and colliding with the yard switch engine. Both engines were smashed into kindling wood and Fireman Temple badly injured about the head. Five cars of wheat were stove up and a tramp stealing a ride nearly killed.

At Aurora John and Knut Hanson attacked Peter Zeiner. Zeiner defended himself with a hatchet, cutting off John's ear, breaking his skull and cutting a long gash in his side, so that he cannot live. Knut was somewhat injured. Zeiner gave himself up to the authorities, and he and Knut are both in jail awaiting a hearing.

Patrick Murphy, a tramp, was injured by the cars at Wadena. He tried to jump a freight train, and slipped and fell under the cars, the wheels cutting off the fingers of the right hand and crushing the right shoulder and arm. He was taken to the hospital at Brainerd, where his arm was amputated, but he died soon after. His home was in Sand Hill, N. Y. He was a soldier in the War of the Rebellion and about fifty years of age.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Peter Miller, of McLean county, prefers serious charges against Reverends L. E. Ryan, of Bismarck, and Geo. Brownell, of Wasburn.

All the merchants burned out at Wahpeton are continuing business at new stands. D. E. Rice says his loss was $6,000 and insurance $2,500, instead of the figures given before.

The annual meeting of the Red river valley university was in session. Many Methodist clergymen and laymen are in the city to witness the corner stone exercises.

Senator Casey has received notice from Acting Secretary Chandler of the interior department, that authority has been granted for the temporary use of the Rock Island reservation near Devil's Lake city, for the encampment of the North Dakota militia.

Heavy losses of sheep and lambs are reported since the present storm began. Farmers and stock companies have brought about 50,000 sheep into North Dakota this spring, and in very few instances have they been prepared to house them during the lambing period.

The attorney general of North Dakota has rendered an opinion declaring the election of H. P. Rucker, of Grand Forks, as chairman of the state world's fair board void. Rucker is a member of the board of national commissioners, and the attorney general holds that he cannot hold an office on the state board, being only an ex-officio or advisory member of the board.

Joseph H. Shaw, a farmer living three miles southeast of Hope, was found dead in his shanty with two bullet holes in his head. It is unquestionably a case of murder with money as the motive. He has been quite successful in Dakota, and was in the habit of boasting about it. A farm hand from an adjoining place is suspected of having committed the deed. He was seen going to Shaw's place about a week ago, and the decomposed body indicates that the murder had been committed then.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

A Carthage report says cut worms are doing great damage to the corn, flax and gardens in various parts of this county.

Rev. H. S. Mills, pastor of the Congregational church at Huron, has tendered his resignation, to take effect July 1.

The grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias of South Dakota held their session in Madison.

During the recent thunder storm lightning struck the dwelling of J. A. Nye, one mile south of Salem, injuring two of the family, a son and daughter, quite severely.

An artesian well derrick 60 feet high blew down at Letcher. Sam Lane, half way up to strengthen the guys miraculously escaped injury.

At the school election held at Watertown W. D. Morris, A. Connor, H. A. Hildebrandt and A. C. Johnson were elected for a term of two years. A light vote was polled.

Government officials are having trouble in many instances in forcing Indian children to attend the government schools. In some cases rations have to be cut off before the parents are willing to let them go.

Hans Volc, a young man twenty-three years old, living near Bristol, committed suicide by jumping head foremost into an old well thirty-four feet deep. The cause is supposed to be insanity.

At the first regular meeting of the newly elected board of education, at Mitchell Frank A. Helwig of Clarence, N. Y., was elected superintendent of schools in place of Miss J. M. Pryne, the present incumbent. A number of other changes in the force were also made.

The sheriff jailed Charles Oliphant at Sturgis. He is a young man living 30 miles in the country. He shot a neighbor's boy named Fellon, the trouble arising from a dog chasing cattle. Fellon will die. Oliphant admits committing the crime.

A Pierre dispatch says; The proposition to issue $120,000 worth of funding bonds was submitted to the people of this county. The proposition carried by a practically unanimous vote. In this city there were but three votes against. Owing to inclement weather and no opposition, the vote was very light.

Judge Campbell at Aberdeen denied the motion of the defendant for a new trial in the case of Cramer vs. Kennedy. The issue was the states attorneyship of this county, the plaintiff being an independent and the defendant a republican. The case attracted much attention and aroused much bitterness.

The feeling is growing among South Dakota farmers that the settlers who stick to their farms will never have reason to regret their determination. A real estate dealer in Castalia, Charles Mix county, has sold within the last week nearly 5,000 acres of land in that county for $10 per acre to one person for cash. Papers in that county are now calling on the farmers to hold on to their farms.

The South Dakota sheep breeders and wool growers held the second annual meeting at Huron and it was largely attended. Col. Gedd is president and W. F. T. Bushnell, of Huron, is secretary. Congressman Pickler addressed the association and a large crowd of citizens. H. G. Wolfe has been elected clerk of courts for Beadle county to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of J. L. Spaulding.

WISCONSIN.

While Mrs. Lambdin of New Richmond was upstairs for a few moments, a sneak thief entered the house and took all the silverware he could find, including napkin rings, spoons and knives and forks.

At a meeting of the council of the diocese of Fond du Lac it was voted to refuse to consent to the consecration of Phillips Brooks for bishop of Massachusetts. The committee stood two in favor to three against giving consent.

Jennie Olson, a nine-year-old girl who wandered into the woods and was lost, was found next day six miles from Ashland in an unconscious condition. She was exposed nearly thirty-six hours to a cold rain and her escape from death is remarkable.

The school district of Eau Claire has voted in favor of borrowing $40,000 from the state to build a high school and manual training school. Frank McDonough, Dr. James H. Noble, Dr. Chas. Alexander and J. F. Ellis were elected to the board of education.

P. B. Leroy, proprietor of a Tower avenue barber shop, West Superior, is suffering from serious injuries inflicted by John Barr, a discharged employer. Barr walked into the shop and dealt Leroy a stunning blow, following up another, which stretched the victim of assault out senseless. Barr escaped.

The first mate on the schooner Sherwood, one of Biglow & Co.'s fleet of lumber boats of Chicago, was instantly killed at Washburn. A tow line broke, striking him on the head. The Sherwood was aground and the steamer White and Friant trying to release her when the accident occurred.

The Lancers cavalry was formed at La Crosse with 60 members. Officers were elected as follows: Chairman, W. E. Lackerly; secretary, W. S. Luce; treasurer, G. A. Burnham; captain, D. W. Marsten, 1st. lieutenant, W. H. Parker; 2d lieutenant, G. H. Allen; 1st sergeant, J. W. Skinner; 2d sergeant, John R. Newell.

The Northwestern association, ancient order of united workmen at Menomonie, elected J. H. Wilcox, of Medford, president; Rockwell J. Flint, of Menomonie, vice-president; L. A. Clark, of Rice Lake, secretary; D. J. Tillinghast, of Bloomer, treasurer. There was a big parade and a public meeting. Rice Lake was chosen as the place of meeting next year.

In the United States circuit court, at Eau Claire, the jury rendered a verdict in the case of George Beauvin vs. the Penokee Lumber company, awarding the plaintiff $10,000 damages. A motion was made for a new trial. The defendant is a New York corporation. The plaintiff had a foot and arm cut off in defendant's saw mill, in Ashland, county, Wis. He was an employee in the mill.

Arthur Slaight, the horse thief, who stole the horse, buggy and harness belonging to Jas. Kaye, in New Richmond, was captured at Cylon, a small station 10 miles east of here on the Central, where he was trying to sell them. District Attorney Hawkins brought the man to this city and afterwards sent him to jail in Hudson, where he will remain until his trial, which occurs at the latter place on June 22.

One of the most disastrous rainstorms ever known in this section visited Darlington, the other day. The wind blew a hurricane, the rain fell in torrents and hailstones as large as hen's eggs, crashed against houses and through the foliage. Many window lights were broken, several outhouses blown down and incalculable damage to crops has resulted. The river has risen four feet in an hour, and bids fair to be the highest ever known. No loss of life is reported so far.

IOWA.

Martin Peatry, aged 14, while fishing south of Ottumwa, fell in and was drowned.

The Mason City Turf club will complete its mile track by July 4.

Daniel F. Miller, one of the oldest lawyers in Iowa and a pioneer of the state, celebrated his golden wedding at Keokuk, the other evening.

United States Marshal Beach arrested Lou Redman at Mason City for illegally selling intoxicating liquors. Redman has once before been arraigned before the federal court.

Preparations for a new packing house in Dubuque were completed. The parties engaged in it are S. D. Ryan and several eastern capitalists. It will be located on the levee at the lower end of the city, and have a capacity of 1,000 hogs per day.

The State funeral directors' association adjourned to meet at Sioux City next year. The following officers were chosen: President, H. K. Burkett, of Creston; treasurer, D. C. Wilbur, of Marshalltown; secretary, A. E. Wilber, of Marshalltown.

A. traunweiser, a jeweler of Cedar rapids, thirty-five years old shot his wife killing her instantly, and then shot himself, dying on the spot. It is supposed he was crazy. He had threatened several times to kill his wife.

An excursion train bound for Cedar Rapids from Davenport, Iowa ran off the track near Tipton. Four coaches tipped over on their sides and were dragged some distance, but the engine never left the rails. The accident is supposed to have been caused by spreading rails. Several were severely injured, but probably none fatally.

A proposition has been extended from outside capitalists to a large tow mill with the necessary machinery for manufacturing the various products of flax straw in Mason City. They ask a guaranteed loan of $20,000. This is a great flax center and the establishment of such a factory would be a big thing for Northern Iowa.

The Dubuque county Farmers' Alliance mutual fire and lightning insurance association filed articles of incorporation. There is no capital stock, as it is a mutual company and only members of the Alliance will be insured. It runs for 20 years, with the privilege of renewal. A woman once consulted a seer regarding a way to retain the affection of her husband and this was the advice received: "Get a raw piece of best sirloin steak, about half an inch thick. Rub with a central slice from a wild onion, salt and pepper. Toast over a bright coal fire with a gridiron which is handled only by your self, never by your servants; then put a little sweet butter over the beef, Give him half a pound of this each morning and do not speak while he eats it."

Swan Andersan, of Black River, had the misfortune to lose his dwelling house and all its contents by fire last Thursday morning. The fire started while he was doing the chores in the morning and gained such headway before it was discovered that the children who were asleep in the house were saved with difficulty and all of the family clothing and furniture were burned. The building was insured in the Hecla Fire Insurance Co. for $400 and the clothing and furniture for $200.

Stillwater, Minn, June 2.—The state binding twine factory is smashing the binding twine trust and eastern brokers are quoting binding twine to the farmers of this county at from 6 to 13 cents cheaper this season than last, One of the firms has gone so far as to offer twine at 5 cents per pound. At a meeting of the Washington county alliance yesterday afternoon the twine problem was thoroughly discussed, and the local alliance will purchase prison made twine even if it is three or four cents higher per pound than eastern twine. They feel that the action of the eastern manufacturer is a direct blow at the factory here and they will do all in their power to break up the trust which has so long existed. The establishment of the factory here has already been the means of saving to the farmers of the state about $250,000.

Crookston Times. The Red River Valley college is like the Irishman's flea, When you put your finger on it and think you have it, you find it isn't there. The Association held another meeting this week and voted the college to Grand Forks, it being claimed they could not get a satisfactory title to the land upon which it was to be erected here. Future changes in the program will be announced from time to time in these columns and its location at Fargo, Moorhead, Ada, Fisher, and will be duly chronicled.

One of the prettiest farms in Polk county, if not the prettiest, belongs to Olaf M. and John Sandine on the Marais, in town of Hidem. It has always been a source of surprise to us that the land department of the Great Northern Railway Co. has not seen fit to publish a cut of this farm in some of its boom literature about farms in the Northwest. At the Sandine home can be seen an ideal farm and we might add, and truthfully too, ideal farmers. The house and other buildings are situated some 600 feet from the main road surrounded by a lawn of nearly four acres in extent. Back of the buildings is a stream of running water, the Grand Marais, the banks of which are heavily fringed with timber. Just to the North of the buildings, on the banks of the Marais, almost buried from sight in a cluster of trees can be diserned the steeple of one of the handsomest churches in Polk county—Norwegian Lutheran In all directions for miles and miles the country is under high cultivation, while on most every quarter section are substantial buildings—the homes of prosperous farmers. The scene is one well worth a visit and goes to show what possibilities are in store for this country if man will only do his part.—E. G. F. Courrier.

The last United States census shows that the population of cities is now 29:12 per cent of the whole number. In the beginning of the century it was 3.35 per cent and in 1880 22.67 percent The drift to the cities in the last decade has been remarkable. This is one of the most hopeful signs for the future of farming. The people of the cities are consumers of agricultural products and the more consumers the better the market. The artificial stimulus given to production by the opening of new and fertile lands along the railroads that were pushed far beyond the frontier of civilization and the ease with which prairie lands were converted into farms has kept production ahead of consumption but with the limited area of government arable lands remaining, the increase, hereafter, must come mostly from better farming and larger yields. But with the cities growing apace, and the natural increase in population, consumption ought to soon overtake production and make better times for skillful farmers. Careless farmers will never thrive no matter how good crops or how high prices are.—N. W, Agriculturist.

The following are the predictions of Prof. Hicks as to the weather for June.

The opening days of June will be warm, with reactionary rains and storms. After an intermission of pleasant cooler days and nights, about the 6th it will grow oppresively warm and very active storm indications will begin to appear to the west. On next to the 7th, 8th, 9th, a series of active, violent disturbances may certainly be expected. These disturbances are apt to be prolonged beyond the normal time by the fact that the equinox of Mercury falls on the 12th, that of Venus on the 17th, with moon's first quarter on the 14th—all of these added to the fact that the June solstice reaches its electric crisis about this time. The best outlook for heavy rains during the whole summer is during this and the storm period next following, Among the results naturally to be looked for will be many startling, grand displays of lightening downpours of rain —frequent and heavy hail storms with phenominal drops of the mercury from hot to cool, and earthquake shocks in different parts of the globe. Carefull observers will detect a natural tendency of clouds and air currents to whirl suddenly backward from the east, precipitating drenching downpours of rain and hail upon localities which they have apparently passed. Watch and see.

ONE OF GOD'S LITTLE HEROES.

The patter of feet was on the stair,
As the editor turned in his sanctum chair,
And said—for weary the day had been—
"Don't let another intruder in."

But scarce had he uttered the words before
A face peered in at the half closed door,
And a child sobbed out, "Sir, mother said
I should come and tell you that Dan is dead."

"And pray who is 'Dan?'" The streaming eyes
Looked questioning up, with a strange surprise:
"Not know him? Why, sir, all day he sold
The papers you print, through wet and cold.

"The newsboys say that they could not tell
The reason his stock went off so well;
I know: With his voice so sweet and low,
Could any one bear to say him 'No?'

"And the money he made, whatever it be,
He carried straight home to mother and me;
No matter about his rags, he said,
If only he kept us clothed and fed.

"And he did it, sir—trudging through rain and cold,
Nor stopped till the last of his sheets was sold;
But he's dead—he's dead! and we miss him so!
And mother—she thought you might like to know."

In the paper next morning, at "leader," ran
A paragraph thus: "The newsboy Dan,
One of God's little heroes who Did nobly the duty he had to do—
For mother and sister earning bread,
By patient endurance and toil—is dead."

A Church Service at Home.

Mr. Bings (to his valet, Sunday morning)—Well, I declare, this is a wonderful age! Thanks to the discoveries of science I am able to sit here comfortably in my room, and by means of a phonograph participate in an entire service at Westminster abbey. Now, James, take your place at the box and begin turning the crank when you see that I have the tubes properly adjusted.

James—Yessir.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Bings (half an hour later)—I am getting a little tired, James. Turn just a trifle faster.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Bing (ten minutes later)—What's the matter, James?

James—Please, sir, the maid just opened the door and said Mr. Whipp was wantin' you to go out riding with him. His carriage is at the door. I told her you was engaged, but you'd be down as quick as you got through.

Mr. Bings—Quite right. But I haven't got to the sermon yet. Turn, James—turn like sixty!—New York Weekly.

A Well That Flows Gold.

There is a wonderful well down in Del Norte. It is an artesian well with an abundant flow of pure water, sufficient to irrigate a considerable body of land. That would be enough for any one but a San Luis man, but this is mineral water. It is effervescent, very palatable and extremely healthful. Nor is this all; the force of the water brings up from the depths an occasional lump of native silver or a gold nugget. The frugal farmer has placed a sack of wire netting over the mouth of the well to catch the metal and prevent it from choking the cows. Local scientists claim that at a great distance down and under an enormous pressure the water is washing away a ledge of rock whose softer parts go into solution and give the water its mineral qualities, but whose gold and silver, not being dissolved, are brought to the surface in a metallic state.—Pike's Peak Herald.

Our Daily Life.

It is daily life that tests us—the manner of men we are. It is not our prayers, it is not our profession, but it is the tone of daily intercourse and conduct that decides how we stand. The little homely graces; the cheerful, every day amenities; the Christ spirit uttering itself not so much in conscious act as in unconscious influence; not so much in deeds as in that subtle aroma which, without name, exales from the saintly soul to equals and inferiors, to agreeable and disagreeable, to rich, poor, ignorant; to young, to old; bearing burdens, accepting crosses, seeking no great thing to do, content to put self by, and be a servant of the lowest—these are fruits of only one root—fruits that none may counterfeit.—Ware.

Try Your Very Best.

Everybody knows more or less about Dr. Johnson. He was a grand specimen of the English character. He had a most extraordinary faculty of conversation; perhaps he was the greatest conversationalist that ever lived. Somebody said to him once:

"Dr. Johnson, how did you acquire this extraordinary faculty of excellence in conversation that you have?"

Dr. Johnson replied:

"I am not aware of any method by which I acquired any excellence of that kind, if I possess it, except this: that when I have had anything to say I have always tried to say it in the very best manner that I could."—New York Ledger.

A Shoe That Was Worth a Fortune.

From an Italian source it is reported that on the death of a poor old cobbler, when his relatives appeared on the scene to claim the succession, they were carrying all that was of any value away, when some one noticed an old shoe hanging on a nail above their heads. It was hauled down more in jest than earnest, when behold! it turned out to be hard and heavy, and on a closer inspection the shoe was found to contain a sum of 50,000 francs in gold and bank notes. Truly, a strange banking place and lucky find.—Chambers' Journal.

Consolation.

"By Jove! I've spent that $5 gold piece for a cent!"

"How idiotic of you!"

"Oh, well, it's not so bad; I got the cent's worth out of it—which is more than I would have got if I hadn't spent it. My wife takes all my gold."—Epoch.

The Story of Two Men.

Speaking of the ups and downs of a literary life, I was talking a few days ago with Mr. George W. Childs, and he gave me an illustration on this very point. Perhaps a little more than a score of years ago there was not a periodical more famous or prosperous than Graham's Magazine. It was published in Philadelphia, and every great author of the time wrote for its pages. Washington Irving's best work was published in it. Edgar Allan Poe was one of the regular contributors. Longfellow, Emerson, Bryant, Thackeray, Mrs. Sigourney, Lowell—who did not write for its pages and who did not know its publisher and owner? George W. Childs was then office boy in a store opposite Mr. Graham's publishing house.

"How often," said Mr. Childs to me, "have I stood on the sidewalk in front of the store where I was employed, resting my tired hand on my broomstick, and seeing Mr. Graham roll by in his magnificent equipage with some world renowned author at his side, wondering if ever I would reach such a point of luxury in my struggling existence." Mr. Graham's Philadelphia home was the Mecca for all famous literary visitors to town, and there he entertained in sumptuous style the greatest literary lights which American literature has ever known. And to day! Lying in a hospital in the interior of New Jersey is the once successful publisher of Graham's Magazine and the friend and entertainer of his great contemporaries. Sick and nearly blind, he is almost entirely forgotten by the world, which hears nothing of him.—Edward W. Bok's Letter.

The Queen's Witty Rebuke.

A fact but little known is that besides Lord Kingsale and Lord Forester there is another individual who has the curious prerogative of remaining covered in the presence of the British sovereign—namely, the master of Trinity college, Cambridge. Anent this a curious anecdote has been narrated: A superstition prevails concerning the necessity for exercising the right or losing it altogether, so when on a certain occasion the queen visited Cambridge university the then well known and highly popular master of Trinity kept his hat on during the proceedings. The queen apparently did not notice the circumstance, and the master began to feel uncomfortable.

At length, just as her majesty was about to depart, he deferentially approached and said: "Your majesty has perhaps wondered that I should appear so far wanting in respect as to keep my hat on all day, but er—perhaps it has escaped your majesty's memory that Lord Kingsale in Ireland, Lord Forester in England and also the master of Trinity have a right to keep their hats on in the presence of their sovereign." "Quite so—ahem—but not in the presence of a lady!" was the freezing rejoinder.—Philadelphia Record.

An Honored Boy.

I once saw a little boy take a splendid medal in Paris, France, in this way: On his way to school with his little dinner basket he came across a poor, half starved dog, and he pitied the dog so that he just opened his dinner basket and gave it all his dinner and went without himself.

The French society for the prevention of cruelty to animals heard of it and awarded him a medal, and I was present at the annual meeting of the society in the great hall of the Sorbonne when the medal was presented.

When the little fellow's name was called, and he came forward to get the medal, the whole vast audience of French men and women stood up and cheered him.

Now whether you ever get a medal or not, I hope you will always do to every half starved dog or cat, or other creature you may happen to meet, exactly what you would like to have done if you were half starved yourself.—George Tangell's Address in Our Dumb Animals.

To Fold a Duodecimo.

The duodecimo, or 12mo, is an irregular size. To make it the sheet must be folded so as to form twelve leaves—not an easy thing to do off hand; as the reader will find if he tries it. The process is, nevertheless, simple when it has been learned. Fold one-third of the width of the sheet lengthwise upon itself; next fold the paper across its breadth in the center. Next fold the sheet across its length—that is, fold the two leaves upon the four. Finally fold it again across, and you have your sheet in duodecimo form, and, what is more, in such shape that it may easily be sewed in with others to form a book.—Exchange.

A Message at Sea.

Several large albatrosses were following the barkentine Jasper one day in February, 1890. One was caught, and a piece of quill about two inches long discovered securely fastened round its neck. This quill was unsealed, and a slip of paper taken from it containing the following message: "Feb. 9, '90, latitude 23 degs. south, longitude 164 degs. east. All well. Posted by an albatross. Ship Janet Court, Glasgow." This ship was outward bound from Liverpool to New Zealand, and at that date was due in about the position indicated in the message.—Chambers' Journal.

Pastoral Politeness.

Caller—Please, sir, the master, Deacon Skinflint, died last night, and the missus wants to know if you will preside at the funeral?

Long Suffering Pastor—Yes, certainly, with pleasure.—Good News.

An Indian Delicacy.

The choicest delicacy known to the Indian epicure is the tongue of the elk, which is getting to be exceedingly rare. A gentleman who had been hunting quite far north returned during the dancing season of the Indians. He brought with him an elk's tongue to the agency. It was stolen in a very short time. During the trance of one of the Indians, after long hours of dancing, the Messiah brought him an elk's tongue, so he said. The Indians never doubted the Messiah afterward.—Chicago Herald.

He Was Conquered.

Recently some people coming in on one of the ferries saw a large family towed along by a dapper, pink-faced little man. The family consisted of one very large wife, two very neat nurses, five babies, assorted sizes, and seventeen bags and bundles. The little man led the way out of the ferry house, called a carriage, and packed everything, even to the last bag neatly in. Then he said to the driver: "To the Windsor" and then, with hand on the door, said affably to his wife: "Now my dear, you're all comfortable, and I'll go uptown on the elevated and meet you at the Windsor," and gave the carriage door a bang as he backed off. But the large wife was more than a match for him. She pulled the window down like a flash and called out to the driver, "Don't you move!" and then to her recent spouse, who was sheering off with smiles, she thus addressed herself; "Here sir you don't do that! This circus belongs to you and you travel with it. You come back in this carriage!"

And he suddenly grew grave and meek and crawled into a small corner of the carriage, looking not half so happy as a man should who owned such a circus and had the privilege of traveling with it.—New York Evening Sun.

The Yeomen of the Guard.

When Queen Victoria holds her Drawing-rooms, one of the sights that most pleases the public is the march of the Yeomen of the Guard down the Mall to Buckingham Palace. The Yeomen of the Guard form, together with the Gentlemen-at-arms, the bodyguard of the sovereign on all great state occasions. They are one hundred in number, all old soldiers of approved service, and were originally instituted in 1485 by Henry VII. With some very trifling alterations, they have preserved for four centuries the costume of the Tudor period, and with their gay uniforms, flat caps, and long partisans, have a very striking appearance at state ceremonials. The headquarters of the corps are at the Tower of London, where they show visitors round the fortress, and are popularly known as beef-eaters, a corruption of the French buffetier, a name by which they were called from it being part of their duties to attend the sovereign at royal banquets.

LOVE AND THE WITCHES.

It was a little, fearful maid,
Whose mother left her alone;
Her door with iron bolt she stayed,
And 'gainst it rolled a lucky stone—
For many a night she'd waked with fright when witches by the house had flown.

To piping lute in still midnight,
Who comes a-singing at the door,—
That showeth seams of golden light,—
"Ah, open darling, I implore"?
She could not help knowing 'twas Love, although they'd never met before.

She swiftly shot the iron bar,
And rolled the lucky stone away,
And careful set the iron door ajar—
"Now enter in, Sir Love, I pray;
My mother knows it not, but I have watched for you this many a day."

With fan and roar of gloomy wings
They gave the door a windy shove;
They perched on chairs and brooms and things;
Like bats they beat around above—
Poor little maid, she'd let the witches in with Love.

—June Century.

A QUEER EXCHANGE.

We were whaling in the Artic Ocean, to the north of Point Barrow, Alaska, in the old Scotch bark Emma Davis. That was my fifth whaling voyage, and no ship could have had worse luck. When we had been out fourteen months we had to buy a barrel of oil to keep our lamps a going. We had sighted a whale now and then, but they were as wild as deer, and twice when we had made fast we had our boats stove and lost two or three men. We had lost topmasts, been aleak, had several sails destroyed, been on fire, and it seemed as if the very devil was to pay with the voyage, and yet no one could blame any one else. It was simply "ship's luck." and we had to make the best of it. Finally late in the season, when we ought to have been heading for the south, we got among the whales. That is, they suddenly appeared all around us, and on the very first day we killed four without accident. We cut them in without trying out, as this was the quicker way to dispose of them, and the last of the blubber was no sooner over the rail than down went the boats and two more whales were secured.

The winter gales were at hand and ice was making fast; but it was our golden opportunity. We drifted slowly to the south, killing and cutting in as we went, and if we could have had two weeks more of it we could have filled the ship. One afternoon, as we had ahalf cut whale on each side of us, a gale sprang up, a heavy snow storm came on, and in less than an hour we had to let go of our prizes and look sharply after the bark. It was the beginning of the Arctic winter, and while the Captain was satisfied of it he decided to take one more chance. There might come a few days of fine weather after the gale, and so we drifted away to the north to wear out the gale. For thirty hours there was no let up, and every half hour we had to turn out and shovel snow over the rails. Just as the gale broke we got among the field ice, and the temperature went down in four hours from 2° below zero to 18° below. From a gale blowing at the rate of forty miles an hour the wind died out until it hadn't motion enough to flare a candle. On that first night, when we were surrounded by field ice and drifting with it, many of the men were badly frostbitten, and the frost cracked through the old ship like muskets.

Morning came without a breath of wind, with the temperature down to 27° below, and now every man knew it was one chance in ten for us. We were drifting very slowly to the south, and while we made everything as snug as possible the Captain hoped for a break before winter actually shut down. Before noon the sea, as far as could be discovered from the crow's nest with a glass, was covered with field ice, and by night the temperature was 32° below. We kept up our fires and got out all the spare clothing and bedding, but many of the men suffered with the cold, and no one slept more than ten minutes at a time on account of the noises. When morning came again it brought in wind, while the cold was just as intense, and we could now discover a great change in the ice around us. It was rugged and broken, the heave of the sea having piled cakes on top of each other, and the field was four or five feet thick. The old man himself went to the crow's nest and took a long look, and when he came down he said to the men, who were waiting to hear his words:

"Well, boys, it looks very serious to me, and I expect you had better prepare to winter this side of Dundee."

That settled it with us. We turned to and began to caulk and batten to keep out the cold, and in a couple of days we were as ready as we could be. For four days and nights there wasn't a puff of wind, with the cold so intense that ice formed to the thickness of seven feet alongside the bark. At daylight on the morning of the fifth a squall came out of the south-west, accompanied by snow, and before noon the ice field was broken up. At noon the wind died almost out, but within an hour it shipped to the north, and away went everything to the south. A wilder sight than a sea covered with great cakes and blocks of ice, each one tossing, grinding, and crashing on its own account, no one ever saw. We dared show only a rag of sail—just enough to give her steerage way—and the smashing she got that afternoon seemed enough to break every timber in her bows. At night the wind fell again, and at 7 o'clock the thermometer marked 42° below. As soon as the heave of the sea subsided the ice was firmly welded together again, and when morning came there were hills and hummocks in sight as big as the ship. The men were now told by the mate that our position was about ninety miles north of Smith's Bay, and that our floe was no longer drifting. This signified that the southern edge of it rested against the shore ice, and that we were in for it, unless some unlooked for streak of luck came to our aid.

Next day there were heavy wind squalls, but the ice did not break nor did the ship move. That settled it. For the next week we had calms and squalls, with the temperature ranging from 27° to 38° below, but the pack was as solid as a rocky ledge. We were housed in by this time, and had established the winter routine, and the Arctic night had come. For the next month, not to worry the reader with details, our life was that so often described in the books. Then a sudden and terrible interruption came. The bark began to heave out. The first movement occurred at about 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and filled everybody with dire alarm. After five minutes she heaved again, lifting right out of the solid field, with great cakes clinging to her, as if machinery was at work. As she lifted she canted to starboard, and at noon her decks were at an angle of 45 degrees. It has always seemed to me that powder ought to have been used to blow up the ice around her and let her back. Indeed had not our Captain got so badly rattled we could have cut and sawed and dragged away half an acre of ice in half a day. The carpenter, who had a little plan of his own, reported that the heave had shattered several planks in her bottom, and that she would fill if she was cradled back. She took one more heave, canting over until almost on her beam ends, and then we got the order to abandon her. We got out clothing, bedding, provisions, a compass, and four boats, and at midnight headed away in four gangs for Smith's Bay, each gang having a boat, which was dragged and lifted over the ice. The order to abandon ship has the same effect on the sailor that the order to retreat does on the soldier. It creates a panicky feeling, and he loses his judgment. We had not gone five miles before some of the men began to curse the Captain's stupidity in leaving the neighborhood of the bark, and others expressed their doubts of the carpenter's reports. However, all pressed forward, and, after making ten miles, we went into camp. Fortuntely for us, there was no wind, while the thermometer was only about 15° below. After a rest of six hours we pushed on again, and now our marches and rests were marked by hours. It was terrible hard work crossing those ice fields, and five hours of pulling, hauling, climbing and sliding were enough to wear out the best man in the crew.

We had made forty miles or more and were strung out on the pack for a mile or more, when a man named Tinkerson and myself, who were ahead to pick the route, turned a large hummock or hill of ice to find ourselves bumping up against a three-masted ship. There she lay, broadside to us and not over fifty feet away, looming up in the darkness like a mountain. We rubbed our eyes and looked again, but it was not a deception. We sent the news back and waited until all had come up, and then Capt. Tree went forward with his mates and hailed her. There was no response, and, after hailing again, the first mate climbed in over the bows. In three or four minutes he reported her abandoned, and we all went on board. We soon found her to be the Bristol ship Endurance, a whaler, of course, and two thirds full of blubber and oil. She had a slight list to port and after looking her over, the officers said that she had hove out, the same as our bark, but had settled back again. She had also been abandoned in a hurry, as there were many evidences, but an inspection showed plenty of provisions aboard, and proved her perfectly sound. We had our bedding and clothing, and when it was decided to take possession of her the crew were pleased. In three hours after first sighting her we were as much at home aboard as if we had formed the original crew. She was a larger craft than ours, and also better found, and we profited by the change.

We had been aboard of the Endurance about a month when the carpenter fell sick. In his case it was pure homesickness and nothing else. He was moody and taciturn, refused to make any effort to throw off the feeling, and at length took to his bed. There was really no medicine to touch his case. He was slowly dying because of his desire to get home to wife and bairns. All of us had a touch of his malady, but we shook it off by hunting, trapping, indulging in games, and keeping our thoughts with the ship. Lord! man, but I have often wondered why half the crew did not go dead crazy. It was endless night. It was ice—ice—ice. It was like being shut up in a dungeon, with the addition that when night came and all was still, the ship was full of groans and sighs from stem to stern—noises caused by the ice heaving and settling. I was appointed to nurse the carpenter, and when he had been brought very low and knew that he must go, he told me a secret. He said he had made a false report to the Captain about the damage to the bark's bottom on purpose to induce him to abandon her and start for land. He hoped in this way to get home the sooner.

This confession was made to me with the promise on my part not to betray the man while living, and he lived on for two weeks after making the statement. When he had been buried in an icy grave I told the Captain, and he at once fitted out an expedition to go back and look up the bark. The first mate and five men composed this party, and after being gone a week, during which time the weather was full of tempest, snow and sleet, they returned from the west and blundered right against us before they saw the ship. Their compass had been broken, and they had been lost for six days on that fearful waste of ice. One man died of exposure that night, and two others were used up for a month. Two weeks later the second mate headed a party, but they only went about fifteen miles to the north. They reported traveling so difficult that they had to return. Nothing further was done until the sun and daylight came again. Then the first mate set out again, but after making about half the distance he found open water and signs of a break up, and returned.

No further efforts were made. Day by day the sun lasted a little longer, giving us more of the blessed daylight, and at last a gale came to break up the great field and show us streaks of open water. When we were finally clear of the icy bed which had held the ship, we headed for Point Barron, sometimes gaining and sometimes losing ground. One day, I remember, we made twenty miles to the south, but on the very next a change of wind packed the ice and drifted us that far back to the north. We were slowly working down toward the Straits, however, when one day at noon, after a snow squall lasting about two hours, we got into a channel running south-west. We had scarcely entered it before we caught sight of a bark coming down a channel from the north, and not over a mile to the west of us. Twenty voices at once cried out that the stranger was our old craft, the Emma Davis, and as we neared each other, running the long lines of a triangle, everybody felt sure of it. We also noticed much excitement aboard the bark, but it was only when the two crafts got out their ice anchors within a stones throw of each other that matters were fully explained.

Who do you suppose the strange men were? None other than the crew of the Endurance. They had our bark and we had their ship. A swap and been made of crafts. Their ship had hove out about the same time ours did, and they had abandoned her for the same reasons. Instead of trying to make the land, they had sought to find a brig which they had seen to the north of them. This brig was a myth or some foreign vessel which got safely out and could not afterward be traced. In hunting for her they came across our bark. Three days only had passed, and yet she had canted back almost to an even keel. They had boarded her, taken full possession, and then worked her out on the break-up. We changed crews and resumed the voyage, and both crafts entered the port of Nuwuk together, whence, later on, both resumed the business of whaling. It was called even up all the way round, and neither was debtor nor creditor.

Strong Writer.

Uncle Stephen, an old negro, had come to cut the grass in the front yard, and as Colonel Winter started out of his office he stopped to greet the old man. "Well, Stephen." said the Colonel, "I hear that you intend to give your son an education."

"Dat's what I does, sah, I knows what 'tis ter struggle erlong widout larnin,' an' I is 'termined dat my son sha'n't trabble bar' foot ober de same hard road dat I did."

"A noble resolution Stephen. I wish all fathers felt as you do. Is your boy learning rapidly?"

"Ez fast ez er hoss-ken trot, sah. Why, last week he wrote a letter to his aunt dat libs mo' dan twenty miles from yere, an' atter a while he gwine ter write ter his udder aunt dat libs fifty mile away."

"Why dosen't he write to her now?"

"Oh, he kaint write so fur, yit. He ken write twenty mile fust-rate, but I tole him not ter try ter write fifty mile till he got stronger wid his pen. But he's gwine ter git dar, I tell you. Good But Homely.

The Boston Traveller says that a young man came into the studio of a local photographer, not long ago, and asked nervously if he might have a little private conversation with him.

The visitor was painfully ugly, and after some indefinite and awkward remarks and more or less blushing, he came to the point by asking the artist if he supposed he had among his samples a picture of any young man who looked like him, but was better-looking.

"What do you mean?" inquired the photographer.

"Well, you see, I am engaged to be married. The young lady lives out West. She is going home to-morrow. She says she thinks I'm so good that she doesn't mind my being homely, but she wants a good-looking picture to take home with her to show the girls."

The traveller gives no intimation that the story is "to be continued," but a sequel certainly seems to be called for.

How Many Times Do You Chew?

A party of three men, says the New York Sun, fell to talking over the news from England that Mr. Gladstone chews every mouthful of his food 22 times. They agreed to observe their own habit at dinner that day, by counting the motions of the jaws in eating, and to make report when next they met. It was found by the report that all three of them outdid Mr. Gladstone, in one respect at least. Number one ascertained, by actual count that his teeth ordinarily operate from 35 to 40 times upon meats, from 20 to 30 times upon dry bread, and from 15 to 20 times upon juicy fruits. The reports of the other two counters did not differ widely from the foregoing report, and probably they fairly represent the food-chewing habits of people who give heed to the duty of mastication.

Derivation of Hurrah.

One familiar English word of ours—"Hurrah"—says Sara Orne Jewett in her interesting work on the Normans, is said to date from Rolf's reign. "Rou," the Frenchmen called out Rolf, and there was a law that if a man was in danger himself, or caught his enemy doing any damage, he could raise the cry "Ha Rou" and so invoke justice in Duke Rolf's name. At the sound of the cry everybody was bound on the instant to give chase to the offender, and whoever failed to respond to the cry of "Ha Rou!" must pay a heavy fine to Rolf himself. Thus began the old English fashion of "hue and cry," as well as our custom of shouting "Hurrah!" when we are pleased and excited.

A Six-Fingered Queen.

Sir Thomas Wyatt, an ardent admirer of Anne Boleyn, left some manuscript notes upon her life, which were privately printed in 1817, and reproduced in an edition (Singer's) of Cavendish's "Life of Cardinal Wolsey," in 1825. In the description of the Queen is this passage: "There was found upon the side of her nail upon one of her fingers, some little shew of a nail, which was yet so small, by the report of those that have seen her, as the workmaster seemed to leave it an occasion of greater grace to her hand, which, with the tip of one of her other fingers, might be, and was usually by her hidden without any least blemish to it."

A Cheap Non-Conductor.

A French engineering firm at Boulogne has begun to use a very cheap and efficient non-conducting pipe covering consisting of a mixture of wood sawdust with common starch used in a thick paste. The mixture is said to adhere perfectly to iron pipes if all traces of grease are removed before applying it, and one inch of this coating is said to be as serviceable as the most costly non-conducting materials. —New York Journal.

ENGLISH IN JAPAN.

Sir Edwin Arnold Speaks of the Ethics in Japan.

Sir Edwin Arnold speaks with authority unquestionably upon the ethics of Japan. Others may know more about its arts and history, perhaps, though it must be remarked that the connoisseurs do not agree with one another much. But when it comes to the usages of the people, we should accept the evidence of a poet and a cultured observer, who loves them enthusiastically, beyond all others. Sir Edwin states that it is usual, for a Japanese shopkeeper in the cities to put up an English translation beside the vernacular upon his side-board. This is certainly curious, and significant. The adoption of our language must be growing indeed when such a custom prevails. The translations are "very comical sometimes," as yet; but that is nothing. In most European ports, those tradesmen along the water's edge who deal in things required by sailors put up an English inscription. The Russians go further; at Cronstadt, for instance, a large proportion of shops throughout the town follow this practice. But Sir Edwin Arnold spoke of Japanese cities in general, apparently, and of tradesmen in general. Furthermore, though this is a slight matter by comparison, "at all railway stations the name of the town or village is written up in both characters." Under such extraordinary circumstances, it is clear that the study of English must be advancing at a great pace. There are not yet so many European residents in Japan, nor so many travelers, that a tradesman should find it really worth while to translate the description of his goods. He must be following a fashion, and in that case we may be sure that he makes an effort to have his children taught English. The result might be grotesque for a generation; but year by year the teaching will improve, if the fashion remain.

HIDING GOLD.

Gold Accumulated in India Never Leaves the Country.

A considerable part of all the gold that goes to India never returns. Having been obtained in the West by the sale of exported productions, it is retained in the East as realized profits, wealth stored up, and, to a moderate extent, for use in the arts; for the rest, as a representative of value on the credit of which traders buy and sell with the bills of exchange they issue and the book credits they open, and settle up the differences with the silver money of the country.

But the vast stock of gold accumulated there undergoes no diminution; there is no ebb and flow under the reciprocal action which commerce enforces in the case of countries trading together on a common metalic basis. The three millions sterling or thereabouts of gold bullion which India annually adds to her store are, under the momentary law of that country, just as much lost to the nations of the West, by being withdrawn from the general commerce of the world, as if the money had been lent to a South American Republic.

Between the years 1835 and 1880 (April) this depletion amounted in value to £130,292,758. Between that date and the month of September of this year a further accumulation to the value of £5,060,272 has taken place, bringing this portion of the gold treasure of India up to a value exceeding £135,350,000.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Edison on Dress.

Mr. Edison has some singular ideas regarding dress. He says: "I wear the same thickness of outer garments the year round. I never wear an overcoat. It is big, heavy, clumsy and of little value as a protector against cold. The air can get in under it in a number of places. I increase or decrease the number of my under-garments, according to the temperature. Every morning when I get out of bed I open the windows of my room and try the air. If it is warm or mild I put on one under-shirt; if cold I put on two, and if very cold I put on three. I was down in the mountains of New Jersey one winter with a number of men and proved that my ideas were good. The thermometer was 15 degrees below zero, and they who wore heavy overcoats almost froze, while I, with no overcoat and a thin summer-weight suit of clothes over three heavy flannel undershirts was as comfortable and chipper as if I had been in some flower garden, in a sunny, warm climate. You see an undershirt hugs you tightly, doesn't allow any heat to escape, and yet doesn't confine you as an overcoat does."

The Racial Odor.

All Indians greatly dislike what they call the white man's smell, and can detect it with perfect ease. "I have," says a Western man, "entered tepees of Utes filled with Indians who had not bathed for a year, and whose aroma rose to heaven, and every one of them would complain of the odor that I brought in with me. The same feeling is manifested by the Chinese, who themselves have a very marked odor that is intensely disagreeable to whites. As a matter of fact, each race has its peculiar odor, which is not perceptible by people of similar origin, but which is plainly noticable by those of different blood."—New York Tribune.

A STRANGE MARRIAGE.

First Mohammedan Wedding Ever Celebrated in England.

The first Mohammedan marriage ever celebrated in England took place recently at the Moslem Institute, Liverpool, where the followers of the prophet in that city regularly assemble. The bride was Miss Charlotte Fitch, eldest daughter of Charles Fitch, J. P., of London, and the bridegroom a Mohammedan barrister practicing in London, whose father is Revenue Secretary to the Nizam of Hyderabad. There was a preliminary marriage at St. Giles', Camberwell. The Vice President of the Moslem congregation officiated, the condition of fitness for such office being a knowledge of Arabic. The Moulvie, as the official is called, was dressed in a long robe of crimson silk, beneath which was a tight-fitting tunic of embroidered black velvet, the whole girdled by a broad gold belt, and wearing a turban of white silk, with streamers which fell over his shoulders. There were two bridemaids. The bride's responses were in English, the bridegroom's in English and Arabic. The lady repeated after the Moulvie the words of the marriage contract: "I stand here, in the presence of God and all who are assembled, to unite my heart to your heart, and my destiny to your destiny, and to be called by your name. Your sorrow shall be my sorrow, your happiness shall be my happiness." The bridegroom made similar promises, after which the Moulvie delivered an address to the newly wedded pair, quoting as exemplars Adam and Eve, and Mohammed and Khadija, Fatima and Ali, as models of conjugal fidelity. After this the bridegroom placed the ring on the bride's finger. The ceremony ended with the inscribing of the names of the contracting parties and their witnesses in the register of the mosque, one of the witnesses being the Ottoman Consul General in Liverpool, and another the Minister of Education for the Armenian Provinces, who had journeyed from Constantinople to assist in organizing the Moslem congregation in Liverpool.

ITS EXCELLENT QUALITIES.
Commend to public approval the California liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs. It is pleasing to the eye, and to the taste and by gently acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, it cleanses the system effectually; thereby promoting the health and comfort of all who use it.

Thoroughbreds
Have "staying qualities." That is, competition does not discourage them. Foremost in the race for popular favor, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters took the lead and kept it. The people of America recognize it as the champion winner in all contests with those vicious nags, malaria, dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble. It always wins.

For pains in the stomach, bowels or kidneys use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment internally.

"August Flower"
"I inherit some tendency to Dyspepsia from my mother. I suffered two years in this way; consulted a number of doctors. They did me no good. I then used your August Flower and it was just two days when I felt great relief. I soon got so that I could sleep and eat; and I felt that I was well. That was three years ago, and I am still first-class. I am never without a bottle, and if I feel constipated the least particle a dose or two of August Flower does the work. The beauty of the medicine is, that you can stop the use of it without any bad effects on the system. While I was sick I felt everything it seemed to me a man could feel. I was of all men most miserable. I can say, in conclusion, that I believe August Flower will cure anyone of indigestion, if taken with judgment. A. M. Weed, 229 Bellefontaine St., Indianapolis, Ind."

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

Grand Rapids has been incorporated as a village by an almost unanimous vote.

A tramp who was employed by Asle Lunde at Albert Lea is missing with a large sum of money belonging to Lunde.

The grocery store of W. H. Bradley was burglarized at Lake Benton and $3 in change and a few goods taken.

E. V. Milton, charged with attempting to shoot Chief of Police Quinlan of St. Cloud was sentenced to pay a fine of $300. W. W. Erwin was Milton's attorney.

The barns and stables connected with the Syndicate house of Beaver Falls were burned, with three valuable horses, cows, cutters, harness, etc. No insurance. The fire was of incendiary origin.

Splendid work is being done getting logs into the Mississippi, most of its tributaries except the Bear river being finished. On Prairie river logs are held up by adverse winds, and cannot get across Prairie lake.

The corner stone of the new high school building at Duluth was laid recently. Ignatius Donnelly delivered an address, and other appropriate ceremonies followed. The building will cost $300,000.

Col. Johnson, of St. Paul, is attending to the passage of the upper Mississippi logs through the Pokegama survey. There is a good outlook for getting nearly all the Mississippi timber.

Mrs. S. E. McConnell has been secured as teacher of voice culture at Carleton college and Miss Flora M. Fay, of Wellsley college, as teacher of piano and organ music in place of Miss Alice M. Heald, who goes to Worcester, Mass.

The Beauford woods, five miles north of Mapleton, have the appearance of winter, the army of catterpillars having taken the leaves off of every kind of tree except the butternut. In some places they are over an inch thick on the trees.

At the election at Madelia for $9,000 bonds for waterworks there was a light vote and seventy-two majority for the bonds, high tower and water main. The well for the water supply was completed and paid for before this election.

Fire Marshal Ryan of Winona has been suspended pending charges preferred against him by the city council of non fulfillment of contract, drunkenness, misappropriation of funds and abuse of his horse. His resignation was demanded and refused.

The directors of the roller mill company, at Little Falls whose flour mill was destroyed by fire recently have decided to rebuild as soon as possible. The new plant will have a capacity of 750 barrels and only the most improved machinery will be used.

The case of Cynthia A. Imeson and James W. Barwise, administrators, against the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railway company, to recover $10,000 for the killing of James W. Imeson in South St. Paul on Nov. 21 last, has been settled for $2,000.

At a meeting of the Worthington council, bids were opened on proposals to put in a system of water works. The contract was let to Harrison and Hawley, of Minneapolis, for $16,000. The work will be commenced immediately and pushed to completion by the last of September.

A Waterville dispatch says: The caterpillars are very thick, taking the leaves all off the basswoods, ruining many gardens and occasionally stopping a railroad train by greasing the track on heavy grades. But nothing serious is anticipated, as the late cold rains have laid them out cold in death.

Ex-Capt. Clements, of the police force, and T. O. Hall, banker, who failed several months ago, were arraigned before John Ensign at Duluth under indictments; Clements, for extortion of money from keepers of houses of ill-fame, and Hall for receiving money knowing that his bank was insolvent.

George Oliverson, a resident of Cook's Valley met with a horrible death the other day. He was sharpening a sickle and the grindstone, which was being run by steam, burst, a piece of which hit him in the head killing him instantly. Mr. Oliverson was a very large real estate owner and prominent in the country.

The Rice County Agricultural society held a business meeting at Northfield, and it was decided to hold the annual fair of this county, Oct. 1, 2 and 3. An interesting programme will be arranged, and a number of races will occur the third day. Northfield is noted for its fast horses, and the events will undoubtedly be interesting ones.

A committee of Norwegians bought the old Bishop Whipple college at Moorehead, more recently used as the Norman home. A college will be opened there next September under the direction of the Norwegian Lutheran church. The price paid was $10,000. This purchase, the building being all ready, will probably absorb the college located at Crookston and later at Grand Forks.

The American Express agent, R. R. Rhames, of St. Charles, has a mare which gave birth to a rare curiosity recently in the shape of a colt with only two legs, the forelegs, shoulders and shoulder blades being entirely wanting. Otherwise the colt appears to be perfectly formed, healthy and vigorous and takes nourishment in the regular way when held up by a couple of strong men.

Bert Rolph, William Grimes, Warren Jenness and Robert Nolan were arrested at Windom, charged with having burned the Grimes barn in March. Rolph is understood to have made a confession of not only burning this property but of having set two other fires, one on the 20th of March and one recently. These parties had an examination and were all held to the grand jury.

State Game Warden Stetson, of Minneapolis, was at Grand Rapids for several days endeavoring to catch persons engaged in violating the fish laws and departed for Douglas county. The boys seem to have laid low till he was gone, but signalized his departure by bringing in several wagon loads of fish, so that the warden's expedition was not a great success. It is openly known that nets and dynamite are being used in many lakes in this region.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown college graduated its first class the other evening. Miss Myra Porter, Gertrude Tilden and Edith Atkinson.

Considerable excitement prevails at Grandin over the violation of the state fish law by farmers using seines to supply the home market. Arrests are expected.

Chas. Wells, while digging a well in North Town, two miles from Michigan City, was knocked senseless by a falling bucket. He will recover.

The trial of Agnes Baldwin for the murder of Jack Kinney last summer will come up at Devils Lake. Attorney General Spencer is here to assist the state's attorney in the prosecution.

Lieut. Patten, of Ft. Snelling, has arrived at Grand Forks with a gatling gun. He will give company F, state militia, a thorough course of instruction in the use of the weapon.

From evidences adduced in the Newberry trial at Fargo there seems little doubt that Newberry is the man who assisted Baily in the robbery of a mail train on the Union Pacific a year ago.

Edward Cunneen, for several years past proprietor of the Devils Lake bus and dray line, has been adjudged insane and sent to Jamestown. His case is an especially sad one. He has always been a hard working and reliable man.

William A. Newberry was placed on trial in the United States court at Fargo on an indictment of three counts charging him with robbing the United States mail on a Northern Pacific through train from Helena on the night of June 7, 1890, at New Salem.

The funeral of Lewis Thompson, late member of the state legislature, occurred at Buxton, and was attended by a number of citizens and Odd Fellows from Grand Forks. His sudden death was peculiarly sad, as his wife died a few days ago. This leaves four orphan children.

An informal meeting of citizens was held in the parlors of Hotel Dacotah at Grand Forks to receive the railroad commissioners. S. B. Richardson presided. General Manager Mahler stated that President Hill has assured him a new depot would be built this year.

Thirteen freight cars were derailed as the result of a tail-end collision in the Great Northern yards at West Superior. A caboose was demolished, the engine damaged and one car of wheat spilled.

Sam Plummer, and Kate Swarts, two popular young people of Waterville, were married recently. The groom is a successful business man, son of Hon. S. L. Plummer, of that town, and junior member of the firm of Plummer & Son.

Frank Jelinek and Herman Blutig, both of whom were awaiting trial for burglary, at Manitowoc had a quarrel in the county jail recently. Jelinek struck Blutig on the throat with a pointed stick, which entered his lung and killed him.

Albert Oliver, a brakeman on the Omaha way freight, fell from the rear end of a box car while switching in the yard at Chippewa Falls and was run over. Physicians think one leg may have to be amputated but hope to save his life. Oliver is a single man.

The corner stone of Lawrence university new observatory was laid at Appleton by Robert McMillan of Oshkosh, the president of the board of trustees. Addresses were made by Rev. John Faville, John Bottensek and Prof. Underwood, after whom the observatory will be named, he having raised $15,000 for its erection.

Wm. Able, son of respected parents of Chippewa Falls, was arrested for reckless driving. While the officer was conducting him to jail in a buggy, the prisoner attempted to escape by suddenly leaping from the carriage. In the act his foot caught in the wheel and he fell heavily to the ground breaking his leg in two places.

The shipments from the Eastern docks in West Superior via. the Northern steamship line for the month of May, exceeds that of May and April combined for the season of 1890. The shipments of flour for May this season were 326,374 barrels; copper matte, 2,830 tons; grain, 100,000 bushels; oil cake, 400 tons. In addition to coal receipts, of 55,000 tons, 7,000 tons of general merchandise were received.

E. Peterson and A. R. Melhem have been arrested at Madison, charged with attempted arson. They opened a restaurant about two months ago in one of the most prominent business blocks of the city, but met with poor success. Fire was discovered in the restaurant at midnight, but fortunately was discovered by a watchman. Investigation then showed that kerosene had been used liberally and that most of the contents of the building had been removed.

The Irish-American priests of the diocese have united in a petition to the archbishop, asking for the elevation of an Irish-American to the bishopric of Green Bay, and that a memorial is being prepared for transmission to Rome. The church dignitaries of Milwaukee say that the dispatch is not genuine, and only part of a scheme to foment church strife. They say it has long been conceded that such a choice for bishop should not be made.

IOWA.

A. Broche, aged 75, residence at Jessup, was instantly killed by being thrown from a carriage by a runaway team.

Burglars stole $200 worth of goods from the store of J. W. Whitter at Sloan. Afterward they spread oil over the entire store and stock and damaged it by fire to the extent of $500.

Archie W. Gowner, a young farmer near Cedar Rapids was killed by a vicious horse pushing him up against the wall of his stall, crushing his body terribly and rupturing a blood vessel.

The fine new hall erected by the Cesko Slavansky Podperijici Spolek (Bohemian benevolent society) at a cost of $18,000, was dedicated at Cedar Rapids with impressive ceremonies.

The North-bound passenger train on the Illinois Central railway at Osage frightened a horse driven by Mrs. Peter Lohr, of this city, causing him to run away, throwing her out and severely injuring her. She was unconscious when picked up.

The strike of the coal miners in Southern Iowa is beginning to be felt in Cedar Rapids. While no trouble has been experienced in getting all the coal needed, yet it all comes from Illinois, and on account of the longer haul it is costing much more. The general public is not effected.

The outlook for the termination of the miner's strike is very gloomy. Browne & Boarso received a fresh importation of colored miners recently, who are now at work. With the exception of this mine and the Phillips mine, the rest are idle and liable to remain so. James Sidden and his miners came to terms recently but are now out worse than ever. Everything is quiet now and no trouble is anticipated.

When the case of Charles Bendell, and Fred Davis, charged with attempting train wrecking came up for trial in the district court at St. Cloud, the defendants asked separate trials, which was granted. The county attorney presented the case to the jury, and called for a witness, when the defendants asked the case to be dismissed on the ground that the indictment did not state facts enough to constitute an indictment. The indictment failed to show how the railway was operated and the court sustained the motion, and ordered the defendants put under bonds to appear before the next grand jury.

An important archaeological discovery has just been announced in Dubuque. Henry Wagner, a gardener, while digging in his field in Hub's Hollow, unearthed a sword of an ancient pattern, incrusted with rust. On scraping off the latter, the blade was found to be of the best tempered steel, richly covered with armorial bearings, and bearing the date of 1580. Above the date is the figure of a mailed hand. The reverse bears the faint outlines of a bishop's mitre. The blade is in possession of Dr. Buete. It is supposed to have belonged to some of the early French explorers. There was no handle attached.

A TERRIBLE SCENE.

Over a Hundred Lives Lost By the Railroad Disaster Near Berne, Switzerland.

Scenes Remindful of the Heart-Rending Features of the Flood at Jamestown Pa.

BERNE, June 16.—The total number of people who lost their lives yesterday by the collapse of a railroad bridge on the Moenchenstein & Bale railroad is now placed at 120, with hundreds more or less injured.

It is feared that many others are dead, whose bodies have not been found.

Shortly after the first horror of the crashing of the engines and cars through the bridge and into the swiftly running stream had died away the survivors of the accident saw a scene which must have rivaled in horror the most heart-rending features of the Johnstown disaster in the United States.

Beneath the bridge, or what remained of it, was a hideous mass of broken car wheels, engines, railroad car upholstery, seats, mats, axles, broken glass and twisted tin work intermixed with still quivering heads bespattered with blood and brains, protruding arms and legs, bloody garments of all descriptions, hats and bonnets, umbrellas and parasols, hands and feet, while floating down the stream were numbers of dead bodies and faintly struggling men, women and children, a few of them uttering horrible cries of terror or emitting those fearful, gurgling, suffocating, moaning gasps peculiar to the drowning.

After the first moment of partial paralyzation which followed the revelation of this horror, the survivors did their utmost to rescue those whose lives were in danger. The work of pulling those who remained in the two suspended cars from the perilous position in which they were placed was one of great danger and difficulty and resulted in a number of instances of heroic conduct. In the meanwhile messengers were dispatched on all sides for medical relief, which was most urgently needed by whose distressing cries for help and prayers to God asking him to relieve them of their sufferings were most heartrending. Then everything possible was done by the survivors, but some time naturally elapsed before the physicians reached the spot. The troops and the firemen were the next to arrive, and they did good service in many ways, so much so that by nightfall about sixty bodies had already been recovered from the wreck and from the mountain stream into which the engine and cars of the excursion train had plunged.

When the relatives of the dead and wounded began to arrive and identified some of the victims there was another most awful series of incidents. The wildest grief was expressed on all sides, weeping and moaning filled the air, and several people were with difficulty retained from casting themselves headlong, rendered half-insane by grief, into the stream which flowed swiftly, unconcernedly, by the river banks strewn with the dead.

As night drew near enormous crowds of country people and citizens of Bale gathered around the fatal spot. There were many hundreds of people who gathered there solely in the hope of finding that some missing dear one had not perished by the crash, or, if such was the case, in the desire to take his or her body home and to prepare it for burial.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

At the point where the accident occurred the river is only four feet deep. All who were killed, from seventy to eighty, were crushed to death, filling the air with shrieks and groans. As soon as possible the fire brigade of Basle and a detachment of artillery arrived, and the search for the dead was begun. Seventeen bodies falling close together were first taken up and laid in an adjacent orchard.

As the wreckage was cleared away the bodies of the dead and dying were found crushed together in ghastly confusion amid the almost inextricable mass of debris.

The whole night long the rescuers toiled, gleaning an occasional survivor out of the ruins. The moans of the injured heard in the early hours of the night ceased as death or rescue reached them.

Most of the bodies recovered were dreadfully mutilated. A dead mother was found holding in her arms her lifeless baby, while another child lay across her body. Several other family groups were seen joined by a common fate.

Relatives of the victims have been crowding the scene of the disaster to-day trying to identify the dead. Forty bodies, which lay in the freight shed were recognized mostly as those of inhabitants of Basle.

An exact estimate of the number of the killed is still impossible. There are several persons missing, and others who are in hospitals are sinking, and will probably have to be added to the ultimate total of the dead.

HAD HIS NERVE.

A Man Asks a Lawyer Whom He Defrauded to Defend Him.

HELENA, Mont., Special Telegram, June 16.—F. J. Ryan came here from St. Paul about the middle of April. He brought excellent letters of introduction, and soon secured employment with McConnell & Clayberg, attorneys, as bookkeeper.

In this capacity he had charge of their check book, and improved his opportunity by issuing forged checks on the firm aggregating $1,000 and succeeded in getting most of them cashed. His crookedness was discovered to-day and he was arrested. He was captured in the firm's office, and his nerve did not desert him. Coolly turning to Judge McConnell, he remarked: "Well, Judge, I suppose you will defend me?"

Ryan had previously worked in Chicago and New York. He lost a good deal of money at faro.

LOST AT SEA.

An Unconfirmed Rumor of an Accident to the Steamer Etruria.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Considerable alarm was created down town this afternoon by a report that the steamship Etruria, of the Cunard line, had been lost at sea. The New York representatives of the company said they had received no information of an accident and they believed the vessel was all right. The Etruria left this port for Liverpool on Saturday last. She had a large complement of passengers.

Three Thousand Men Strike.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The strike of architectural metal workers for a reduction of hours to eight per day and an increase in pay to 30 cents per hour, was inaugurated this morning as arranged. To-night it is estimated that three thousand men are out, and that to-morrow every shop in Chicago engaged in the manufacture of iron or brass ornament material will be shut down. The strike now includes metal workers, pattern makers, brass molders, shopmen and architectural iron workers. It affects forty manufacturing firms beside delaying the ornamental work in many buildings now in course of construction.

THAT SETTLES IT.

No Action to Be Taken by Parliament Regarding the Baccarat Scandal.

LONDON, June 16.—Hon. Edward Stanhope, secretary of state for war, replying to-day in the house of commons to a question put by Mr. Summers (Gladstone Liberal) in regard to the baccarat scandal, said that Sir William Gordon Cumming was the chief person who had broken faith, because he did not report the case to his commanding officer. If an offense was committed by any other person it could only have consisted in advising and pressing him to take a different course than laid down by the army regulations.

Of the three officers concerned, Gen. Owen Williams was a retired officer of the army and was, therefore, not subject to the regulations, but the other two—Field Marshal the prince of Wales and Lieut. Berkeley Levett—undoubtedly were. The former, said Mr. Stanhope, on looking at all the circumstances of the case, had authorized him, Mr. Stanhope, to say that he now saw that an error of judgment had been committed.

Lieut. Berkeley Levett, on the other hand, continued Mr. Stanhope, had written a letter to his commanding officer expressing deep regret that he had not acted in accordance with the army regulations.

Consequently, said the secretary of war in conclusion, it was not proposed to take any further action in the matter.

Mr. Cobb, who had announced his intention of questioning the secretary of war as to what action he intended to take in regard to the prince of Wales, Gen. Owen Williams and Lieut. Berkeley Levett for signing the document which allowed Sir William Gordon Cumming to remain an officer in the British army, although he was believed to have cheated at cards, etc., did not, in view of Mr. Stanhope's statement, put the question he had prepared.

There is a movement to expel Sir Edward Clarke from the clubs on account of his attack on the prince of Wales in the baccarat case. The queen and family are said to favor the movement. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge will take official notice of Sir William Gordon Cumming's accusation of unfairness in his charge. It is rumored that Sir William will be nominated for parliament by his Scottish constituents.

In his explanation of the Tranby Cro't matter, Secretary for War Stanhope said this evening in the house of commons:

> The army regulations in question had undoubtedly never been specially brought to the notice of the prince of Wales, but when they had been, and looking back at all the circumstances of the case, the prince of Wales saw his error of judgment in not requiring Sir William Gordon Cumming to make an immediate report to his commanding officer. In his view I concur, but I should like to express my personal opinion that, had any one else suddenly heard that a friend who had greatly distinguished himself in the service had been accused of such an offense he would certainly hesitate before at once adopting a course that would bring an immediate and irretrivable blight on his whole future.

Interest in the baccarat questions attracted to the house of commons to-day the largest afternoon attendance of the present session. The speakers', strangers' and ladies' galleries were packed. The house, hushed and intensely expectant, listened eagerly to Mr. Stanhope's statement, which had evidently been carefully prepared. The announcement that Gen. Williams was already on the retired list surprised the group of radicals eager to attack him, and the prince of Wales's voluntary admission of an error of judgment on his part astonished and gratified the whole house and was received with slight cheering from the opposition benches.

The bulk of the opposition are averse to any further action and want the matter to rest where Mr. Stanhope left it.

NO QUESTION ABOUT IT.

It Was No Doubt Hot Enough for the Eastern People.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The record has been broken, and to-day will pass into history as the hottest 15th of June ever recorded. At 2:30 this afternoon the mercury indicated 97½ degrees. Reports from the leading cities in this state show that the intense heat is general. At Albany 98 is reported, while Hudson, the coolest place heard from, tells of 95.

BOSTON, June 16.—Heat advices from many towns in New England show a very sultry condition of things. The reports received from Maine points show a range from 82 to 90, the latter at Portland. Of eighteen towns in New Hampshire, but one shows below 90. In Massachusetts 92 is the lowest temperature reported, but the hottest place yet heard from is Providence, R. I., where the top notch of 107 was touched.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 16.—The thermometer here to-day registered 92 in the shade. Everything is dried up by drought.

PITTSBURG, June 16.—At the signal office to-day 93 was registered, though down in the streets 95 and 96 deg. were common. Many cases of prostration by heat are reported, though but two were fatal, an infant and a Slav serving woman. Several iron mills were obliged to suspend this afternoon, owing to the inability of the men to continue work.

QUIETLY SURRENDERED.

One of the Conspirators With Bardsley Returns to Take His Medicine.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Henry W. Yard, the real estate promoter who was arrested in Trenton on Friday last, on the charge of conspiring with ex-City Treasurer John Bardsley, to misuse $20,000 of the city and state money, surrendered himself here to-day, and was released on $10,000 bail for a hearing.

At a meeting of the Association of Depositors of the Spring Garden National bank to-day, the following was adopted:

> That it is sense of this meeting that some arrangement be made whereby suit may be brought against the United States government to recover lost money, as the government is mainly responsible for our loss through the incapacity of its sworn officials.

Action will probably be taken by the executive committee of the association. Another resolution was also adopted instructing the secretary to write President Harrison, and ask him to inquire into the conduct of United States District Attorney Read, with regard to the arrest of officials of the Spring Garden bank.

It is claimed that at the time of the arrest of President Kent warrants were also out for Directors Graham, Pound, Nelson and Phillips, who were shown to be illegal borrowers from the bank. These warrants, the resolution sets forth, are still in the hands of Read, and the association wants to know why they have not been served.

"FRITZ" EMMETT DEAD.

Pneumonia Causes the Death of the Well Known Comedian.

CORNWALL, N. Y., June 16.—J. K. Emmett, the comedian, died here to-day of pneumonia. He had been in poor health for some time, but he had been confined to his bed but a few days.

Fire in the Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Fire was discovered in the forehold of the flagship Philadelphia at the navy yard this afternoon. The fire was soon put out and the hold was flooded with water. It was not known how the fire broke out. Some tar and varnish that were in the hold poured out their fumes so that it was difficult to work. Several men were overcome by the smoke and had to be pulled out. Joseph James, the captain of the hold, was burned. The fore hold is situated next to the magazine and under the ammunition room. The ammunition room and magazine were also flooded with water.

O. H. Peters came over from Stephen last Monday and will spend a couple of weeks with his family.

Fred Anderson, the Crookston wholesale fruit dealer was in town last Monday selling goods.

The late rains have raised the river several inches. It is considerable higher than it was last year.

Justus L. Johnson, our village barber has struck and now taxes suffering humanity fifteen cents a shave.

Tom Harris is expected from Crookston this week with his moving outfit to move E. M. Hoff's building.

Dr. J. L. Hennemuth was at Crookston last Sunday. Doc would make a good "World's Fair" commissioner.

S. M. Hoff has just received a very fine invoice of the very best stoves in the market. Call around and look them over.

Farmer Eickhoff was in town last Monday and reported that crops were looking fine in his section of the country.

It has been determined not to have a 4th of July celebration at St. Hilaire and many of our citizens will go to Thief River Falls.

We think it would be a good idea for the council to have the fire engine put in good shape. There is no telling how soon we may need it.

A magic lantern show held forth in the hall last Monday evening and drew a fair crowd. Some of the views were very fair but the professor was not a success as a lecturer.

The daily mail petitions are nearly all in and will be sent this week to Senator C. K. Davis who has promised to endorse them and forward to the Postmaster General.

It is surprising to see the number of business appointments our citizens profess to have at Crookston the last of this week. They wouldn't think of going to the circus if they didn't have some buriness to attend to. Oh No!

The trains have been from one to two hours late for the past week. They are distributing ties and take from three to four hours to make the run from Crookston here. They have the best of us and know it and we have to stand it—or walk,

Emil Holmes returned last Friday from his visit in Goodhue County. He informs us that he acted as groomsman at a wedding while away. Good idea, Emil. Keep in practice, it may come handy some day.

We now have a good graded road about three miles south of the village. The township and the village have both been doing good work the past week and the new road will prove a good thing for the village next fall.

The boys are practicing up on their base ball and expect to receive a challange to play Thief River Falls on the 4th of July. If they will only get together and do some hard practicing we can have a fairly good team.

J. M. Hanson has received word that his wife's mother, Mrs. Marit Waldum, of Chippewa County Minn., died on June 5th. Mrs. Hanson and Miss Emma Waldum were with her at the time of death. They are expected home this week.

Four employes of the Merchants Hotel at St. Paul have been taken sick with the small pox and a general epidemic is feared. The hotel will be closed to new guests and the building thoroughly renovated. Dr. Hoyt, secretary of the state board of health, is in charge and hopes to stop it spreading.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Peter Bramsness last Saturday night from typhoid fever. Mr. Bramsness was well and favorably known here and his death will be mourned by many. He leaves a young wife and baby to mourn his loss. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon.

The ladies of the M. E. Church will give a social at the church next Thursday evening. All are cordially invited to attend. Ice cream, strawberries, coffee and cake will be served and an entertainment consisting of music and declamations is being prepared. It will be without a doubt an entertaining evening and all should attend.

Dr. Dunlop, of Crookston, was called to attend the Bramsness family last Saturday and pronounced them all sick with typhoid fever. Mr. L. R. Bramsness, Willie and Mary Bramsness are now very sick with the disease. They are now under the care of Dr. Hennemuth who has hopes of getting them through all right.

Register of Deeds Locken—Rea estate transfers have greatly increased in number during the past month, and some pretty heavy deals in agricultural lands have taken place. I recorded during the month of May an average of ten deeds a day, for transfer of farming lands and the total consideration reached nearly $300,000. The income of my office during the past month was about $500, the expenses $300 leaving a balance of $200 to be turned into the county treasury.—Crookston Times.

Crookston Times, Christianson Bros. have purchased the county abstracts of ex-Register of Deeds Eiken and will have exclusive charge of the abstracting of the county in the future. For the present they will continue the office in the court house but it is their intention as soon as they have built a vault to remove their records to their present office where they will be much more convenient. Mr. Eiken will not enter into any other employment for the present; in fact his object in selling the abstracts was to take a much needed rest and recuperate his health which has been impaired from his long confinement in the register of deeds office,

There have been several passages in the history of this country that can be usefully noted by those who would have the carrency expanded on a basis of faith alone. In the formative days of the republic there was a great deal of paper afloat that subsided in value until the synonyme for lack of value took the rude form of a "continental damn." Later the Confederate government made paper scarce in its range, except such as it stamped as currency. ROBERT TOOMBS, of the Confederate government, stated that it kept negroes at Richmond busy all the days printing bills to operate the public machine, and it took them three hours at night to work off enough to pay them for their labor. There is no danger of ever having too much good money, but the experiance is all against floods of cheap stuff.—St. Paul Globe.

Geo. Ralph and crew returned from the reservation last Saturday having completed his contract of surveying. He informs us that the high landing is about nineteen miles east of here and about one mile north and that there would be little trouble in makin a good road there at small expense. He also stated that there was some very fine farming land in that part of the reservation south of the river. He left the same day for Red Lake Falls, the crew stopping here until Monday, taking the train for Crookston.

A woman of Chicago has vindicated her right to a place in politics. She ran for the school board and got six votes. She offered a reward of $20 to each of the men who voted for her if they would come up and confess it. Seven hundred and fifty-nine men called for the reward before the middle of the afternoon. She recorded their names and will contest the election of her male opponent and summon these men to the witness stand to swear that they voted for her and consequently that the judges stuffed the ballot box against her.—The Chicago Sentinal.

Ex-Senator Farwell's celebrated rain theory is about to be tested. Every one knows that the ex-senator implicitly believes that rain may be produced by artificial methods, and that he obtained an appropriation of $2,000 from Congress last winter for experiments in that direction. His theory in brief is that rainfall may be caused by dynamite exploded from baloons and next week a number of Washington scientists accompanied by Mr. Farwell, will proceed to the Great American Desert to put it to proof. The production of artificial rain would solve a difficult problem for the farmers but there is no certainty that Mr. Farwell's plan will be a success.

Contracts amounting to more than $2,000,000 have just been awarded for Indian annuity and other goods and supplies for the next fiscal year. The interesting feature of the proceeding is that though "McKinley" prices were paid, all manufactured goods were purchased as low, or a shade lower, than last year, before the new tariff law had passed Congress. Gen. Bussey who has charge of the contracts, cites for example, the fact that eight pound woolen blankets last year cost the government and the Indians $3.36 a pair, this year they will cost $3.31 a pair. The same contractors who furnished them last year were successful bidders this year and the samples were as good or better than those of 1890.

It is seldom indeed that the following question is answered correctly off hand: A train starts daily from San Francisco to New York and one daily from New York to San Francisco the journey lasting five days. How many trains will a traveler meet in traveling from New York to San Francisco?

About ninety-nine persons out of a hundred would say five trains as a matter of course. The fact is overlooked that every day during the journey a fresh train is starting from the other end, while there are five trains on the way to begin with. Consequently the traveler will meet not five trains but ten.—New York Tribune.

Dispatches from Berlin to the London papers make no concealment of the fact that large numbers of the Jews exiled from Russia in a condition of pauperism are given free tickets direct from the German side of the frontier to the United States. The correspondents mention the fact of assisted passage as a matter of course. The tickets to the United States are given out with the soup' shoes and clothes and the paupers are sent over here to be dumped on our shores to throng the ranks of peddlers that are already a sufficient nuisance and sometimes a positive peril in our streets and to help to bring down the wages of American workingmen.

The only point of interest here is the fact of the free tickets to New York. It is a fact which should receive the prompt attention of the officials at the Barge office, for many of the holders of these free tickets must be on their way here. They should be and doubtless will be subjected to a most vigilant scruteny.

Minneapolis Tribune. The summons to the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott to form a ministry for Canada is something of a surprise. Sir John Thompson, minister of justice, Sir Hector Langevin and Sir Charles Tupper have all been brought into greater prominence in this connection than the gentleman upon whom the honor was bestowed.

There were grave objections to each and all of the gentlemen named not excepting Mr. Abbott himself. Sir Hector Langevin is under the shadow of a scandal arising from corruption in connection with contracts for public works; Sir John Thompson is looked upon merely as Sir Charles Tupper's Man Friday, and Mr. Abbott's long and zealous service of the Canadian Pacific railroad as its attorney, has militated against him.

Mr. Abbott is at the same time a man of considerable ability and long political experiance although no brilliant feats are marked up to his credit. Considering the material at hand the selection was probably as good a one as could have been made.

WORKING THE CORPSE LIKE A MINE.

"John's" Dead Body Turned Into a Bonanza by an Enterprising Coroner.

"The fact of it is," said the coroner of San Diego, as he was paying a fraternal visit to our local morgue the other day, "the cold fact of it is that you coroners up in this section don't really understand your business, and how to make it boom for all there is in it, as it were."

"What do you mean?" asked our newly elected official.

"Why, you don't seem to savey how to get all there is coming to you out of a cadaver, somehow; don't handle 'em scientifically, so to speak. Now, we do that sort of thing better down our way."

"Do, eh?"

"Yes. For instance, there was a Chinaman killed by smoking opium a few months ago down there. Of course I flew around and had a jury sworn in before you could wink—they come to sometimes, you know—and what with summoning witnesses, testimony, etc., before night I had a bill against the county for $95.50."

"More—than the Chinaman was worth, I should say," said the metropolitan official.

"But wait. I dug up the remains from the county burying ground the same night, rushed 'em round to the laboratory and had 'em embalmed all ready for emergencies. Well, about three days after that they had a ghost dance and free fight out at the Digger Indian encampment, and so I had the Celestial's pigtail cut short, a few feathers twisted in it and hid him in the bushes out that way. Then I had him found and reported, and as the jury couldn't agree as to the particular tribe the Indian belonged to, I impaneled another one—doubles the fees, don't you see—and gave the papers a rousing good item. It's a great snap to stand in with the reporters, by the way."

"How much did that make?"

"Well, I was about $240 ahead on the speculation then, so I waited until a lot of emigrants passed up country, and the next day one of 'em was found dropped dead on the road of heart disease—catch on, don't you? Same old corpse with a big felt hat and rawhide boot—pockets full of macaroni. I think I tapped the taxpayers for about $175 more that time. Well, I sorter let up for a week after that, and then had the remains doubled up in a packing box and found among the unclaimed freight down at the railroad station. The papers wrote it up as a 'mysterious murder case' and we had a ten days' examination. Lemme see; I think it was $140.50 the whole thing panned out before we were through that time. How does that strike you?"

"Why, I never heard of" —

"Why, that's nothing, my dear sir; nothing. I haven't got half through with that Chinaman yet. When I left home I had just got him nicely wedged in among the branches of a tree in the woods just out of town, dressed in a suit of complete black, with an old telescope in his coat tail pocket and a pair of big green goggles on his nose, for all the world like one of those observatory cranks. Grapple with the idea, don't you?"

"Can't say I do."

"Why, that's the aeronaut dodge, don't you see? Unknown scientific party fallen out of a balloon. My own design entirely. Splendid, isn't it? The remains are a little worn by this time, I know, but what are you going to do in such an infernally healthy climate as San Diego? I expect to send the old lady and the girls to Europe on that cadaver yet, if I have to wire it together to do it. No, my dear sir, your metropolitan coroners mean well, I know, but what you need is a little more enterprise, ingenuity and—and ginger."

"I'm afraid we do."

"Exactly. But I must hurry up to Bush street and get front seats for this new farce comedy that opens to-night. Great place to study up on anatomy, I hear," and giving a late stockbroker who had just been brought in a punch or two with his cane the doctor drifted out.—San Francisco Examiner.

His Cradle Was His Mother's Shoe.

Boots and shoes have been used by sailors to drink out of and to bale boats. But surely the most extraordinary use ever made of a shoe—since the old woman of nursery rhyme fame lived in one—was the following: A dwarf son of French peasants was so small that at his birth a doll's wardrobe had to do duty for linen on the occasion. At his christening his mother thought he was far too small to carry on the arm, so she made him a little bed in her own wooden shoe, and in this way carried him to church.

The same wooden shoe afterward served him for a cradle till he was 6 months old. Further, we are told that when the child learned to walk, and the village cobbler was ordered to make him a pair of shoes, he found the task so difficult that he had to give it up; and no wonder, for at 6 years old the dwarf was only 22 inches high and weighed 8 pounds.—Chambers' Journal.

Looking Ahead.

Governess—Of course you must take your writing lesson. How in the world will you ever become a business man like your papa if you can't write?

Little Dick—Oh, I've dot that all fixed with Birdie De Pretty. We've talked it all over.

"What has little Birdie De Pretty to do with it, I should like to know?"

"Why, she's doin' to be my typewriter,"—Good News.

How the Stag Changes His Antlers.

With the loss of the antlers the stag changes his disposition entirely and becomes as docile and tractable as a lamb. He shows an inclination to court public petting rather than avoid it. He remains in this condition of temper until the beginning of March, when he shows a disposition to lurk in sequestered spots of the glen and timidly avoid the presence of all, even of his kind.

During this period, on the spot where the late antlers were, a pair of protuberances make their appearance, covered with a soft, dark, velvety skin. These attain a considerable growth in a few days. The carotid arteries of these protuberances enlarge with them in order to supply a sufficiency of nourishment.

When the new antlers have attained their full growth, which is in ten weeks after the old ones have been shed, the bony rings at the base through which the antlers pass begin to thicken, and, gradually filling up, compress the blood vessels and ultimately obliterate them. The velvety skin that surrounds the bone, being thus deprived of nourishment, loses its vitality and is rubbed off in shreds by the stag on the edges of rocks or other hard substances.

As soon as the full size of the antlers is attained the docile disposition of the elk disappears, and he becomes once more for the year the fierce king of the glen.

The age of the elk, according to writers on natural history, is computed by the number of points on the antlers.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Good Time A-Coming.

Men strive for earthly advancement. The poor boy, with scarce a shoe to keep the soles of his feet from contact with the rugged soil, looks forward to the day when he shall sit, enthroned as it were, in the senate of his country; he strives and he strives, and reaches the point; but once there, is he content? No. There is a craving for greater honors—for further advancement. The monarch is restless under the burden of his supreme authority. He sighs for something else—he knows not what. No individual is satisfied with the present; we all regard the future as that which contains increased enjoyment, as that which embodies perfect happiness.

It is so when we reach the bed of death. The vilest of the human race feel, when the time for dissolution arrives, that there is yet something to crave—something to indicate and exemplify progress. It is the spread of the doctrine of the immortality of the soul to which may be attributed the grand results of what is termed "the grand and buoying reliance upon the future"—upon something brilliant yet to be achieved—that proves beyond a mortal doubt that this life is but the inception and the precursor of a longer and better one, in which there are no taxes, no bill collectors, no tight shoes, no boodle aldermen—nothing, in fact, except unalloyed happiness.—Texas Siftings.

A Part That Didn't Need Treatment

"I should like to contribute my tale," said a coffin drummer. "I used to be an undertaker in Cincinnati. One day a German came in with crape around his hat and a woe begone expression upon his face. 'You vos der undertaker?' he asked. I admitted the imputation. 'Mein bruder have yust died, and I would like to send him to his home in New York. Vot vos der besht way to ship him?'

"'You'd better freeze the body and send it on ice,' I suggested.

"'Vot you sharge for freezin' my brudder?'

"'Twelve dollars,' I replied.

"'Twelve dollars? Don't that was a goot deal? Couldn't you done it for ten?'

"I replied that twelve was the lowest price.

"'Well,' replied the German, wiping away a tear. 'I gif you $10 to freeze poor Fritz aber you just freeze him to der feet. Dey don't need it, for dey was been frostbitten last winter anyhow.'"—Exchange.

An Essex Wizard.

It would appear that superstition has not entirely died out in Essex. In the village of Sible Hedingham lives an old laborer who is popularly supposed to be a wizard. Recently he told a man in charge of a load of straw that he would not get far with it, and a little farther on the horse, an old one, fell, and was so injured that it had to be killed on the spot. The men called upon to assist were so convinced the horse had been placed under the influence of the wizard that they refused to move the carcass until a slice of flesh had been cut from the hind quarter of the animal and burned in a bush faggot, the idea being that the person who cast the spell would suffer burning in a corresponding part of his body.—London Standard.

The Magician Time.

Mother—What is the matter, Clara? You look distressed.

Clara (a bride)—George has—has had to go off on a—a trip, and he won't be back for—for two days—boo-hoo!

Same Mother (some years later)—How long will your husband be away?

Same Clara—I forgot to ask.—New York Weekly.

En Rapport.

Mrs. Grumps—If that stranger you were talking to said nothing about his wife, how do you know he is married?

Mr. Grumps—Oh, he looked so sort o' sympathetic when I told him I was.—Good News.

Battlesnake and King Snake.

The rattlesnake sheds its skin twice a year, and at that time it becomes perfectly blind, is helpless, and is easily captured. At this stage they are assisted by a nurse or pilot, who guards and protects them. This guard is the young king snake. The king snake, however, is the first enemy the rattlesnake has, and can easily kill it in combat. I have seen rattlesnakes fleeing from the old king snake to the young king snake for protection.—Cor. St. Louis Republic.

"Beauty without grace is a hook without a bait." That's what the French think. Whether it be true or not, there are many American women who do not even possess the hook—beauty and attractiveness are denied them. Why? Because they're languid, cross and irritable. They know not what it is to be without pain or discomfort half the time.

That's it; suffer in silence—misunderstood—when there's a remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—at hand that isn't an experiment, but which is sold, by druggists, under the guarantee that if you are disappointed in any way with it, you get your money back by applying to its makers.

A signal service to weak womenkind is the finding of lost health—the building up of a "run-down" system. Nothing does it so surely as the "Favorite Prescription." None like it!

For overworked, debilitated women, teachers, milliners, seamstresses, "shop-girls," nursing mothers—one and all are cured by it.

An Injustice Corrected.

In a late issue of a number of Northwestern newspapers there appeared a paragraph headed "Trips of Presidents," a portion of which read as follows: "One of the most bitter insults offered to president Cleveland was the newspaper slander uttered concerning his wife and himself by an irresponsible crank named Alden J. Blethen, while he was in Minneapolis." As will be remembered by many of our readers, this refers to an outrageous attack upon the then President and his wife which appeared in the Tribune of Minneapolis, while they were the guests of that city. At the time the paper was controlled by Mr. Blethen and W. E. Haskell and the authorship of the attack referred to, was for several days popularly accredited to the former. Life was made such a burden to Mr. Blethen that Mr. Haskell in justice to his partner made a personal statement through the editorial columns of the Tribune, completely exonerating Mr. Blethen from any part in or even knowledge of the publication until after its appearance in print and himself assuming the entire responsibility of the affair. From this statement of facts it will be seen that the paragraph above referred does a grave injustice to Mr. Blethen which we have done our best to correct and overcome.

The Precocious Little King of Spain.

Apropos of the sixth birthday of the little king of Spain, the following "instantaneous photograph" has been published: "He is small, very small. He is just 5 years old. Lively, restless, a tease, tres diable, and extremely precocious. He dreams of uniforms, regiments, flags and bugles. He no longer wants toy-horses, but has been asking his royal mother for the last two years to give him a horse with flesh and bones. He says 'thou' to all the world, and calls old generals by the diminutive of their names. Thus, the chief of the military department is 'Juanito,' and Marshal Martinez becomes 'Campitos.' His grey-haired governess is his 'Paca.'"

Let Them Turr-emble.

Willie, said the visitor, what is your ambition?

I'd like, said the boy, putting down his yellow covered story of the plains, to have people tremble like leaves at the mere mention of my name.—Harper's Young People.

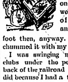
MY APACHE PROTEGE.



NEVER go chumming with an Apache? You smile at such strange advice? Well, I might have smiled at it once myself. But we are all creatures of circumstances, and I was a tenderfoot then, anyway. This is how I chummed it with my little Indian:

I was swinging my red-and-blue clubs under the pepper-tree at the back of the railroad station. This I did because I had a theory that exercise was good for a man living on a desert. The lazy Mexicans and most of the Americans thereabouts had no ruddy glow on their faces. They were all sallow. What I wanted was a ruddy glow.

My red-and-blue clubs circled about very prettily that day, and the ruddy glow came; also a dripping epidermis and a big desire to sit down in the shade of the pepper-tree and blow tobacco smoke. The tree was a small one. When the station tank ran over, which was not often, its roots received a little moisture. So it grew, slowly.

As soon as I dropped my clubs a squeal of disgust went up from somewhere, and, as I turned about, I saw a small brown head dart behind a cactus lined rock.

I said nothing, but leaned back in my seat, pulled my sombrero down over my face and shammed sleep, with one-half closed eye on the rock and the big cactus shrubs. No use. You can not get an Apache out of his hole in that way.

Next day, with my beautiful exercise theory still bristling in my brain, I turned quickly while in the midst of my club swinging, and saw the wide-open eyes and gaping mouth of the cunningest little savage I had ever beheld. He sprang about and fled behind the rock, but not too quickly for me to read "XXX Family Flour" in large red letters on his back. His one short garment was a cotton sack, with holes cut through it for his head and arms.

"Come, Tads," I cried christening him in that fleeting second with a name that stuck to him all his life, "out of that!" And I jumped behind the rock swinging an open hand that did not grasp the flour-sack as I had intended it should.

Where was the wee savage?

Like a lizard, he had darted from sight somewhere in that little patch of rocks and cactus, though there did not appear to be cover enough there to conceal a jack-rabbit.

"The spines must scratch him," I thought, as I looked at the prickly cactus; but I did not know then how Apaches put up with such small irritations. Not wanting to give the boy unnecessary torture, I went back to my clubs. Throwing my eyes about again, I caught another fleeting glimpse of the brown head as it dodged behind the rock.

Tads must have been disappointed next day, for there was no club-swinging under the pepper-tree. The duties of telegraph agent lay too heavily upon me and the sun lay too heavily upon the desert. I saw Tads steal away from his lair about two hours after my usual exercise time and walk down the sand-drifts with a dejected air, his one garment flapping in the hot wind.

A wild nature like his was proof against such snares as the toothsome confection, the golden orange, or the mealy peanut. I found that out by trial in the course of the next week. But an old jack-knife won him over. That was something his Apache mind could grasp. It was a greater delight to him than the red-and-blue clubs. Sworn friends from that day were Tads and I. His talk was a ridiculous mixture of English, Spanish and Apache, and his voice was very throaty. But I understood him. Indian-like, he said little. It was, therefore, easy to get along with him. He would sit for hours on a high stool listening to the "tunk-tunk-tunk" of my sounder. The telegraph was an awful mystery to him at first, and it squelched his imagination; but he solved the problem at last. A man away off in the mountains spoke with his finger to me, and I spoke back to him. That was his idea of it, and it was not a bad one, either. The hummings of the wires overhead were the voices of people with ponderous fingers, but they were not of this world.

How the cowboys laughed when they saw Tads and me at the station.

"That tenderfoot's a queer one," they said of me.

The despised Apache could not crawl into their hearts—not even if he were a 6-year old.

"He'll steal everything the tenderfoot's got," they pleasantly averred. But he did not.

When Tads left the station of an evening, his little brown feet pattered straight over the roads to the wickiups, half a mile away. In time he wore a narrow trail over to the huts.

"Pitty vell," was what Tads would grunt to me every day when he came shyly into the office, and I greeted him with a friendly, "How-de-do?" Then he would shrugh his shoulder in a way that would wrinkle the three X's into such bewildering folds that you could not have read them unless you had known what they were beforehand.

One day while he was meandering about the place, grunting quietly to himself, he upset one of my battery jars.

"Tads," I cried, angrily, for the desert's breath was hot upon me, and was irritating enough, let alone spilled vitriol, "you're a little beast! Skip out of here, or I'll take a stick to you!"

Then arose a great howl from Tads, and he kept on howling until an Apache woman came over from the wickiups and gathered him up in her arms. She was his mother. She eyed me suspiciously, and walked away with her highly demonstrative burden.

Of course I regretted my hot language and wanted the little beggar back again. It was so lonely there on the desert. The wires wailed so heartbrokenly, while the sun beat down so fiercely in the daytime and the coyotes yelled so dolefully at night. How he had crept into my heart.

It was several days before we were on satisfactory terms again. Tads wanted to be a white man. He wanted to make "talk marks" on "pupper" with a feather—I sometimes used a quill pen, be it remarked—and he wanted to speak with his finger. Well, I did manage to teach him a few letters from a railroad poster, and he learned to drawl out "T-a-d-s" in a droll way. With perseverance that was really startling, I afterward took him in an uncertain way through a page or two of "Can you see the fat ox?" and so on, wherefore his heart was glad.

"I'll be w'ite mans, heap sure," he declared in his bull-frog voice, after he had accomplished his wonderful feat.

Great distress racked Tads soul on the fatal day when the wickiups were taken down and the tribe mounted its mustangs to go over the hills. The Apaches had to search all over the station to find Tads. At last they hauled him forth from under my bunk screaming like mad. Of no avail were his screams; of no avail was his cry: "Me yanter stay wid him! Me yanter be w'ite mans!"

Apache papas are unbending and Apache mammas are inexorable. Away they whisked Tads, leaving behind him a tenderfoot with a queer feeling in his throat.

"Well, the boy has the instincts of a white man," I said, for I was proud of what I fancied I had made of him, "and he'll be a shining light among those devilish people of his. If we had a few more like him to put among them, the Apache question would settle itself, and we could set our soldiers to hoeing corn."

Then I took up the restless life of a city man, and a big and busy railroad office claimed a good share of my attention for the next ten years. Yes, it was fully that long before I again set foot upon the desert. Our train stopped at the old station. How the pepper-tree had grown, to be sure. In its shade sat a cavalry Sergeant with a half-dozen of his men about him, and in their midst were three Indian prisoners, who were being taken to the fort to be shot.

They were fierce-looking fellows, those three savages. There was one, the youngest, who was a perfect demon, the soldiers said.

"Killed three women and two babies down at Mustang Wash last Tuesday," said the sergeant to me; "just after one of those had given him breakfast, too. He's a young one, not more than 17, I should say; but he's the worst red devil I ever saw."

Gazing at the boy captive, a strange feeling stole over me. The stolid face was odly familiar.

"His name? Blessed if I know," said the sergeant; "what do you call yourself, young one?" he asked, giving him a not too delicate poke with the toe of his boot.

"Me? Why, my name's Tads!" grunted the boy.

"Talks pretty good English for a wild devil who has been over the Mexican border so long, doesn't he?" asked the sergeant, turning to me.

But I said nothing—Frank Bailey Millard in Argonaut.

A BOY'S CURIOSITY.

It Results Disastrously and Creates a Panic in a Street-Car.

A woman boarded a Crawford-street car the other day with a basket which had an old check apron tied over the top. She sat down near a boy with a bundle, says the Detroit Free Press, and he no sooner saw the basket than he concluded there was a mystery concealed therein. For the first five minutes the woman watched so closely that he could do nothing, but the car finally came along to where a street band was playing, and she half rose up to see. As she did so the boy untied the string and raised the cloth.

"Laud o' massy, but what's that?" shouted a man next to him, as he jumped up.

"Look out!"

"Let her go, Gallagher!"

"Stop this car!"

It was a thumping big cat. The cloth was no sooner raised than out he popped, ran over the man's knees, and during the next half minute he jumped all over everybody in that car. He finally came to the rear door, uttered a "spish!" at the conductor, and made a long jump into the street and ran up a telegraph pole. Everybody looked at the woman and her basket, and she ran out and got off without stopping the car. Then everybody looked at the boy, and feeling that a speech of some sort was demanded by the occasion, he said:

"Who'd a thought of cats? I s'posed it was new maple sugar or popcorn."

The Story of a Little Girl.

A while ago a little girl was lost in New York, and to the editors of a great paper came an appeal for help in finding her.

"We'll get up a picture to show everybody how she looks," said the editor, who has a soft spot in his heart for lost children. So a reporter was sent out, but presently returned to report that he could get no photograph of the girl, but that she was small of her age, always stood with her feet close together, had blue eyes, and wore a Nelly Bly peaked cap.

"Now get up a nice picture," said the editor, and the artist was puzzled, as well he might be, for the facts that the girl had blue eyes and was small of her age were of no use in a black and white drawing, and he had only the feet and the cap to work upon. However, he did the best he could and drew a picture of a real nice little girl.

The resemblance was remarkable. Everybody said so. [illegible] of the little girl came in, turning to the editor, with tears in her eyes, after the girl had been found, and modern journalism entered [illegible] stick.

We Should Complain.

Englishmen who come here complain that we are forever shaking hands. The boot should be on the other foot. It is the American in England who should complain that the people over there do not shake hands. It grows to be a frightful predicament when it has happened twenty times in a day that you have put out a hand to seal an introduction or a meeting with a shake, and have found the other fellow looking at your hand coldly, and not offering to put out his own. We are the ones to complain, not the English.—New York Sun.

HE SNORED.

And Thereby Lost a Wife and a Fortune.

He lives in Buffalo, and is employed in a Main street insurance office at a far-distant salary. I mean by that that he will get $25 per week in the far-distant future. He wears good clothes, however, belongs to the best circle, and a month ago met a Brooklyn heiress who was visiting wealthy friends there. It seemed to be a case of love p. d. q., and inside of a week all other young men in Buffalo had to content themselves with sitting on the fence as she passed by.

The other day the heiress received a telegram to hasten home, as her apoplectic father had received a "shock" while talking to an alderman, and the far-distant young man volunteered to see her safely landed on the home doorstep. The start from Buffalo was made at night, with berths in the sleeping car duly reserved, and the porter sized the young man up as good for a half when he came to apply the whisk-broom in the morning. The train rolled eastward on schedule time, the evening wore away, and the lovers finally squeezed hands, bade each other a fond "good-night" and retired to their respective sweat-boxes to dream of the joys of the future.

Half an hour of western New York time rolled away to be heard of no more forever, and the porter turned down the lights and reported everything all O. K. and everybody asleep. Then, as suddenly as a tailor makes out a bill of $25 against a debtor seen going towards a depot with a grip in his hand, there came a sound to arouse the 20 sleepers. It was not the shrill scream of an elephant hunted to his death, nor yet the warning growl of a tiger as the hunter faces him in his lair. No; it was something different—something cut, made and trimmed after the latest Paris spring style. Everyone understood the meaning of that wild and unearthly sound before he had listened a moment. The far-distant young man from Buffalo was lying on the broad of his back, his mouth was open, his palate had dropped down like the half of a cellar door, and he was sailing wing-and-wing to the tune of—

"Porter!" called a dozen voices at once.

"Yes, sah!"

"Choke him with a shoe! Jam a pillow into his rat-trap! Tie his lower jaw up to his nose!"

The porter went to the berth and shook the sleeper, but he missed just one note and went ahead on a down grade with:

"Bur-whup! Bur-whoop! Ah-ha-a-a-a! Hi-h-o-o-o! Whoop-e-e-e!"

"Blast his eyes!"

"Put him in a hog car!"

"Shoot him with a boot!"

And all night long, with only brief intervals, that far-distant young man from billowy Lake Erie tried to sing his soul away through mouth and nose, and the unsympathetic passengers consigned him to Halifax, Texas, Cincinnati, Chicago and other desirable places of residence for small families. He awoke in the morning innocent and refreshed, and after the use of a palace car currycomb and a patent towel he went to meet his charmer with:

"Let me hope that you slept as sweetly as I did last night."

"Sir!"

"Why, Miss Blank—Ida—what is the matter?"

"Sir!"

"Why, Ida, I"——

"Sir! you have made a mistake! I do not know you! Go away, sir, or I shall call the conductor!"

And thus he gained and lost her, and now, as the apple-trees put forth their verdure and the bluebirds sing among the lilacs, he smileth not and is not glad. Earth's happiness is not for him.—New York World.

Steering an Army.

When General Wolseley decided to attack the Egyptians' stronghold at Tel-el-Kebir, he marched his army, at night, across seven miles of sandy desert. It was a dark, clear night; there was no moon, but the stars shone out. A naval lieutenant, Wyatt Rawson, had been detailed, because used to navigating by the stars, to guide the army across the desert to the enemy's entrenchments. With his eye on the stars he steered the force as he would have steered his ship. So accurately did he lead that the first gleam of the breaking day revealed to the British troops the long line of solid earthworks, 300 yards ahead. The assault, within half an hour, put the earthworks and the Egyptian army into the possession of Wolseley's troops. The skilful "steerer," charging with the men he had led, went across the ditch, up the embankment, and over the first line of earthworks. Then he fell, shot through the body. "Didn't I lead them straight, general?" he asked, as the commander-in-chief bent over him. "Those words should find an echo in the hearts of all true soldiers," writes Chaplain Male, in "Scenes Through Battle Smoke." "Every man is a soldier if he live truly," adds the chaplain, "and before each stern duty stands to lead him forward to things higher and nobler."

Two Were Enough.

There is always something to be thankful for, if a man has a grateful disposition.

"It is very kind of you," said a lady to her husband, as he knelt before her to put on her rubbers.

The rubbers were a pretty close fit, and the husband was out of breath, but he managed to answer:

"It is a—a pleasure, my dear. Still, I am glad you are not a centipede."—Katie Field's Washington.

Perplexed.

Toper (gloomily)—"Faithfully promised my wife never to drink more than three pints except on special occasions. Well, Monday was my birthday; on Tuesday our visitors took their departure; yesterday, Wednesday, we had fine weather after a long spell of rain; today, hang it I can think of nothing special!"—Humoristische Blatter.

DISCOVERY OF MAHOGANY.

Carpenters Tried to Repair a House With It, Then Threw It Away.

The discovery of the beautiful and costly timbers known as mahogany was purely accidental. The first mention made of it was by Sir Walter Raleigh, who used it in 1597 at Trinidad for repairing his ships.

About the beginning of the eighteenth century a small quanity of it was taken to England by a West India captain named Gibbons, who sent a few planks to his brother, a physician residing in London. This gentleman, at the time of the receipt of the wood, was having a house built, and placed the planks in the hands of the carpenters.

They attempted to cut it, but because of its hardness very quickly threw it aside. The doctor expostulated but the workmen remained fixed in their determination to have nothing to do with lumber which so successfully resisted their attemps to saw it.

The planks were then taken to a cabinet-maker named Wollaston, who was directed to make a candle box with a portion of the wood. The same objection was advanced by this workman; but, being a persevering individual, he persisted, and finally made the box. When polished it so outshone anything previously made that it very quickly became an object of curiosity, and the people flocked to see it.

As a consequence the wood became quite popular, especially after a portion of the physician's treasure was employed in the construction of two bureaus, one for himself and the other for the Duchess of Buckingham.

These specimens of cabinet work caused the rejected wood to become a prominent factor in the construction of luxurious pieces of furniture. Thus Wollaston was amply rewarded for his perseverance in fashioning it into the candle-box, and his name, together with that of the physican and his nautical brother, became inseparably connected with the history of the introduction of this wood into civilized lands.—Detroit Free Press.

Important Trade Name Decision.

Judge Thayer of the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis, has recently handed down an opinion and granted a perpetual injunction against the defendants in the case of The Hostetter Co. against the Bruggeman Reinert Distilling Co., ALIAS "Gold Spring Distilling Co." prohibiting the advertising, manufacturing or selling of any article of stomach bitters either in bulk, by the gallon or otherwise, or in any way making use of the name "Hostetter" except in connection with the sale of the genuine bitters, which are always sold in bottles securely sealed, and also prohibiting the sale of any bitters in bulk, though the name "Hostetter" be not used, but the suggestion made to the purchaser that he can put them in the empty Hostetter bottles and purchasers would not discover the difference. His decision supports the Hostetter company in the extensive use of the name "Hostetter" in connection with either the manufacture or sale of stomach bitters in any manner or form whatsoever, and firmly establishes its ownership in the same as a "TRADE NAME."

Curiously Addressed Letter.

A curiously addressed letter lately passed through the postoffice at Madrid, which was deciphered and correctly delivered, notwithstanding all difficulties. The address was a perfect rebus. At the left hand side was the figure of a lady; it was clear, therefore, to which sex the recipient should belong. Over the lady's head the sun was rising; hence her name was inferred to be Aurora. For her surname stood a hill with a castle at its foot which gives us "Montesty Castillo." Next comes the town, for which the plan of a city was drawn, on which the Alhambra was visible. This indicated Granada, but in order to leave no doubt possible, a pomegranate was drawn beside the plan. To complete the address a number was indicated in one of the streets of the city plan. The postal authorities took three days to study this curiosity and then triumphantly delivered the letter to "Senorita Aurora Montesty Castillo, Azacayas, No. 20, Granada," and so far from censuring the sender, they had the envelope photographed and a copy printed in the Madrid papers as a proof of the intelligence of the department.—Detroit Free Press.

A Man Who Handles Rattlesnakes.

The Valdosta, Ga., Times says there is a man in that city who can catch a snake in his hands and it will not bite him. He has repeatedly offered them an opportunity. You may chase a rattlesnake in a hollow log and this man can run his hand in and pull it out and the snake will not bite him. Dime museums all over the country are hungering and thirsting for just such a man. A fortune awaits him.

Gold on a Mountain Peak.

A curious discovery has been made on Cedros Island, Mex., in the form of a bed of white sand, extending along the top of the mountain. It is believed to be the remains of an ancient quartz ledge, pulverized by intense heat, and in some places is so fine as though it had been run through a battery of stamps. It varies from three to eight feet in thickness, and is asserted to be rich in gold.

"The Quality of Mercy is not strained," neither is the relief afforded by that incomparable medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Its genial effects are thorough. Very conspicuous is this quality when it is used for malaria. The poison of that malady in the system it entirely expels. Equally effective is it in dyspepsia, constipation, bilious and kidney trouble and rheumatism.

They go the rounds of the press—cider apples.

The Long and the Short of It.

Out of the two million Union Soldiers in the last war three-fourths were American by birth. Of the remainder 175,000 were Germans, 150,000 Irish, 50,000 English, and 50,000 Canadians. The average height was 5 feet 8¼ inches. Out of one million recorded heights, there were 3,600 men over six feet. The tallest man in the service was Capt. Van Buskirk of the 27th Indiana, who stood 6 feet 10½ inches in his stockings. The shortest soldier was a member of the 192d Ohio, whose stature was only 40 inches. In the matter of railroads "the long and the short of it" is that the LENGTH of the Burlington lines is over 7,000 miles, and it is the shortest, quickest and best route for reaching all the larger places in two states west of Chicago. For tickets by this line apply to any ticket agent or for further information write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

The temperance people are making another raid on the saloons at Cedar Rapids, and in the past few days nearly every saloonkeeper has been served with a warrant of arrest. Some have already appeared before justices, plead guilty, and paid their fines. About thirty-five cases have not yet been disposed of, but they will be attended to the first of the week. Selling of liquors go on, however, the same as ever.

The body of Prof. I. H. Bunn, who disappeared from Shell Rock recently was found floating in a little lake near that town. Prof. Bunn was one of the best known musicians in the state, but was somewhat eratic in his movements, and when he disappeared it was supposed he had gone to some of the neighboring towns. It is thought to be a case of suicide.

A special from Mt. Pleasant says: Grandfather Theodore Schreiner celebrated his 80th birthday at the Masonic hall by a large reception. Over two hundred invitations were sent throughout Iowa, and a goodly number of guests were present. He is well known throughout the state, having been the grand tyler of the grand lodge A. F. and A. M. the past 35 years.

The police of Ottumwa captured two burglars in the act of blowing open a safe in Jim Githers ax and tool store. They gave their names as Frank Johnson and John Small. Two other alleged crooks, C. A. Bostwick and E. W. Reynolds, were detected with a gold brick made of copper, which they were evidently planning to use on some sucker, and a search of their quarters disclosed a whole outfit of burglars tools. They are supposed to be the gang who blew open a safe at Grand Rapids.

WORKING UP A DRINK.

The Hotel Clerk Was Onto the Little Game.

It was exactly midnight the other night when a stranger walked softly into a Broadway hotel and whispered to the clerk, who whirled the register around at him:

"Will you please tell me if Admiral Beaumont is stopping at this hotel?"

"He is not," was the reply.

"Thanks—exceedingly thankful," whispered the man as he tiptoed out.

Ten minutes later he returned with the same soft step and mysterious air to whisper.

"I was mistaken. His name is not Admiral Beaumont, but General Thomas."

"No such man here, sir."

"Thanks—many thanks."

This time it wasn't over five minutes before he returned, and he walked on tip-toe to the counter and whispered:

"Sorry to trouble you again, but it is neither Admiral Beaumont nor General Thomas I want. It's Jones—Z. Jones."

"No Z. Jones here."

"No such man."

"Very well; I'll call again."

"No, you won't! Here—take it and go!"

The clerk handed out a nickel, and the man took it, bowed his thanks, and said as he softly tiptoed away:

"Yours until death! You know how to keep tavern, and you are onto the racket! Good-night!"—New York World.

A Delicate Question.

Revivalist—Have you got religion, my friend?

Hardened Sinner—Well, I've got some kind of a pain on my insides, but I dunno whether it's religion or a return of my old liver complaint.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PUT OUT OF THE WAY

One of the Czarowitz's Special Messengers Mysteriously Disappears in the United States.

The Man Last Seen Near Denver, Where He Had Been Delayed by a Wreck.

Chicago, June 23.—A royal messenger bearing important dispatches sent from Tokio by the czarowitz to the czar of Russia has mysteriously disappeared, it is said, while en route from San Francisco to New York.

The fact has been kept a secret, and it is not certain that the Russian government is yet aware of it.

G. Naterman, a member of the firm of Grosser & Co. of Yokohama and London, was on the same Pacific Mail steamship which brought the messenger to this country, and told of the disappearance for the first time at the Palmer house, where he and a number of well known German and English merchants of China and Japan registered on their way from Yokohama to Europe.

According to Mr. Naterman's account the messenger intended making no stops, leaving San Francisco for the East on the day of his arrival there. Near Denver, however, a wreck delayed his train and he stopped over night in that city.

He never resumed the journey and has not been since seen.

There are many reasons causing his steamer acquaintances to believe that the young Russian has met a violent death at the hands of Japanse enemies of the czarowitz. The most important of these is the hitherto unpublished truth regarding the attack upon

THE LIFE OF THE CZAROWITZ.

Mr. Naterman was in Tokio at the time and states that the truth was never made known because it showed too plainly the vicious character of even the highest class of the Japanese people.

The attack was not made, he says, because the Russian had desecrated a sacred temple. The czarowitz had accepted an invitation to visit a great noble at Tokio. On the way there he yielded to the importunities of another noble to visit him before reaching Tokio. His host at the latter city received this as an insult, and his desire for revenge stopped at nothing, it is alleged, not even the murder of his royal guest. An assassin was therefore hired to kill the czarowitz, and the resulting attempt was given to the world as the work of a religious fanatic.

From every stopping place the czarewitch sends duplicate dispatches to his father by three trusted messengers, who take the most opposite routes. One of these immediately after the attempted assassination was sent to St. Petersburg by way of the United States.

The theory advanced by Mr. Naterman and his friends is that the authorities, in a weak attempt at continuing the deception regarding the affair, have intercepted and put out of the way all the messengers supposed to bear news of the truth.

A RACE RIOT.

Italian Workmen Driven From a Laborers' Camp.

St. Louis, June 23.—A race riot between laborers employed by a contractor at Workly camp, at the chain of rocks five miles up the river where the new water works are being constructed, occured early Sunday morning, in which one Italian was dangerly stabbed, twenty-two of his fellow countrymen driven from the camp, their valuables and money confiscated by the gang of American and other laborers making the attack, and a race war inaugurated.

The riot was primarily caused by the admittance into camp of a lot of Italian laborers and the report that Contractor Workly had gone to Chicago for more. All Saturday a feeling of revolt against the employment of Italian labor had been gaining in strength and bitterness. As soon as the laborers were paid off in the morning they congregated as usual at a saloon just outside the city limits, where bad whisky is sold.

About 1 o'clock Sunday morning the sixty or more drunken men went to the camp and sprang into the tent amidst the sleeping foreigners armed with clubs, knives and everything they could lay their hands on.

The fight did not last long. The Italians were at a great disadvantage, and after a brief resistence they fled in terror, leaving behind all their belongings. They carried away one of their comrades named Catalizo Francisco, dangerously wounded by a cut in the breast which threatens to result fatally.

The Italians made their way to this city where they reported the matter to the police. Their departure was followed by a scene of pillage. Their valises, bundles and packages were broken open and their contents taken charge of. The police investigated and made seven arrests.

THEY'RE AFTER MARSH.

Bloodhounds Will Be Put on the Trail of the Fugitive Philadelphian.

Spring Lake, N. J., June 23.—Several detectives arrived here to-night with hounds which are to be used in the search for the fugitive bank president, Gideon W. Marsh.

Marshal Leeds, District Attorney Graham and the detectives had a consultation to-night as to the best means to pursue to capture Marsh. The hounds will be let loose if it is possible to track the fugitive in that way.

Detective Freeman, who was slugged at a cottage near Como, while trying to arrest a man supposed to be Gideon W. Marsh, fugitive president of the Keystone National bank, of Philadelphia, is very slightly improved this morning. Hundreds of men are searching the woods for Marsh.

The identity of the injured detective was disclosed to-day. His name is T. H. Garside, at one time a well known labor agitator, who two years ago conducted successfully the strike of the Russian and Hebrew cloakmakers in New York. For the past year Garside has been engaged in reportorial work on one of the daily newspapers in this city. His ability and acuteness became known to the government officials here, and some days ago Marshal Leeds commissioned him to search for Marsh.

Flags at Half-Mast.

Indianapolis, June 23.—The flags on public and private buildings are at half-mast to-day in respect for the late Joseph McDonald. The funeral will occur Wednesday, and promises to be one of the most imposing events occurring in Indiana. Telegrams of condolence are pouring in from all sources. The following was received from President Harrison at Cape May Point: "Mrs. Harrison joins me in offering to you and the family a most sincere sympathy in the great affliction which has fallen not only upon you and them but upon the community in the death of Mr. McDonald, and I regret that I am unable to unite with other home friends in the last office of respect and honor."

TRULY A TYRANT.

Many Acts of Cruelty and Oppression Caused by Balmaceda.

New York, July 23.—Many startling facts in connection with the revolution now raging in Chili which throw light upon the ferocity and despotism of Balmaceda are given to the public by three gentlemen who are Chileans, who arrived last week.

They have witnessed the conduct of the revolution from its inception and speak from actual knowledge. The stories of the three would seem to show Balmaceda is well termed the tyrant.

In Santiago, where his headquarters are, no one dares to utter a word against him. He has caused a cross of red to be painted on all the houses of people whom he suspects are not wholly in sympathy with him and into these marked houses his police and soldiers go at any hour of the day or the night. The people in these houses are forbidden to lock their doors. No one is allowed to ride out on horseback through the streets after 5 o'clock in the afternoon. No three persons are allowed to walk the streets in company at any time of the day and no two persons can stand and converse on the streets.

It is a veritable reign of terror for those who have failed to cast their lot with Balmaceda. One of the gentlemen referred to was walking along the street past a jail yard. He heard some terrible shrieks from some one in the other side of the wall. He inquired of a soldier the cause, and was told that some of Balmaceda's soldiers were punishing a man who had refused to work for him by driving tacks into his hands and fingers.

He saw a horrible punishment meted to a Chilian who had been heard to say he was willing to work his hands off for the revolutionists. The poor fellow's hands were placed on a block and his fingers pounded to a jelly by a big hammer in the hands of a soldier. He was then told that he could go and work his hands any way he wanted to and for any one.

MURDERED BY A BOY.

A Youth Charged With the Murder of Little Annie Brunder Near Montrose.

Delano, Minn., June 23.—The coroner's jury at Montrose, which has been investigating the murder of little Annie Brunder, the school girl found bound and dead in the woods, returned a verdict to-day, holding John Mazure, an eighteen-year-old boy, guilty of the crime.

Mazure has been spirited away by Sheriff Nugent, as lynching was feared.

The pipe and handkerchief found with the little one's dinner pail were recognized by his associates as belonging to Mazure.

Mazure had been fishing and was seen on the road a little in advance of his victim. He can give no account of himself from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until after 8 in the evening, during which time the deed was committed. The ground was all torn up and leaves scattered about, showing that a struggle had ensued.

The supposition is that the fiend first outraged the girl, and then, fearing that he would be complained of, added murder to his already dastardly crime.

The parents of little Anna are old settlers here and are highly respected and feel deeply the loss of their little girl. The whole family idolized her and are broken hearted.

The boy is a brutal looking fellow, and lives on the adjoining farm. When visited in his cell he was in a sullen and disagreeable mood and would not speak. He shows no remorse or sorrow for the death of the little girl.

DROWNED TOGETHER.

Three Boys, One a Millionaire, Die in One Another's Arms.

Washington, Pa., June 23.—While bathing in Doak's pond near here to-day John McKeown, Walter Jones and John Chanlis, boys ranging in age from eight to thirteen years, were drowned.

Young Chanlis dived from a plank, striking the bottom, and was drowning when John McKeown bravely dived to aid him. The half unconscious boy grasped McKeown tightly, fettering his arms.

Heroic little Walter Jones did not hesitate a moment, but leaped in to save his two little friends, but was himself overcome and all three, clasped in each others arms, sank to the bottom.

Young McKeown was a son of the late John McKeown, the ten times millionaire, and the boy was worth in his own right $4,000,000, being his father's favorite son. Chanlis was a nephew of the dead millionaire, and Walter Jones, son of Rev. J. F. Jones, presiding elder of the Washington district of the M. E. church.

This is commencement week of Washington and Jefferson college, and the sad affair will greatly modify the programme of celebrations.

CAUSED BY JEALOUSY.

A Desperate Man Does Terrible Work With a Revolver.

Beverly, Mass., June 23.—Warren A. Shaw, whose wife keeps a boarding house entered the house to-night and shot Henry L. Roberts, one of the boarders, in the back.

He then shot Arthur C. Morgan, another boarder, in the breast, and one of his daughters who interfered was beaten over the head with a revolver. His other daughter, Lizzie, who came upon the scene at this time, was shot in the leg by the infuriated man. Shaw then ended his list of crimes by blowing out his brains. The cause of the shooting was jealousy. Morgan will probably die but the others are not fatally hurt.

A BAD BREAK.

Convicts Get the Worst of It While Trying to Escape.

Cole City, Ga., June 23.—Seven convicts attempted to escape from the stockade today.

One of them was killed, and Ward and Palmer, white, and Jackson, colored, were wounded fatally. They were all armed, having overpowered the guards and secured guns, and in the fight killed Pat Rowland and Jack Rankins, guards, and wounded Capt. Moreland, foreman, seriously.

Three of the convicts escaped, but one has been captured. Those at large are negroes.

Pensioned.

Washington, Special Telegram, June 23.—Pensions granted to-day: Minnesota—Original, Thomas Sharp, John W. Baxell, John J. Wilkins, William H. Dodge, W. A. Dillman, Ira P. Ferrin. Increase, Samuel Karvar, Daniel Podvin, Norman U. Beden, Warren E. Fairbanks, Andrew B. Myers. Original widows, Esther Horren, Augusta Leuscher, Carrie F. Mowery. North Dakota—Original, Henry C. Where will you spend the glorious Fourth?

We have had all the rain we need for several weeks.

The village council held a special meeting last evening.

The village school will close for the summer vacation next Friday.

Mrs. Andrew Sture, of Crookston, is visiting Mrs. C. G. Rapp this week.

If you want to insure your buildings against fire, call at this office.

J. C. Mathews went down to Crookston today with the assessor's books.

The North Star Lung and Throat Balsam issure cure for coughs and colds.

S. M. Dainard has been investing in rolling stock in the shape of a baby carriage.

Frank Kratka, of Thief River Falls, was in town today on his way home from Crookston,

The village council acted as the board of equilization last Monday very few changes were made.

The appearance of the Norwegian Lutheran Church has been greatly improved by a coat of paint.

August Chelin has purchased from W. E. McKenzie, of Crookston, his building and lot on Broadway.

Thief River Falls is preparing for a big celebration on the 4th and a number of our citizens will attend.

S. M. Dainard and wife drove down to Crookston last Friday to do some business, and, of course, attend the circus.

We learn that Crookston has given up their St. John's day celebration and will celebrate the glorious 4th instead.

Wm. Fowles, the master builder of Meehan Bros'. steamboat, was in town yesterday on his way to Red Lake Falls.

Tom Harris is expected to come up from Crookston next Friday with his moving apparatus to move E. M. Hoff's buildings.

Messrs. Robbecke, Zeh and Porter of Thief River Falls, were in town last Thursday on their way to Crookston to attend the circus.

Wild strawberries and mosquitoes are ripe and fairly plentiful. You may think they don't associate together, but go out and try it.

All who have been in the country lately report that they never saw grain look so fine and predict that we will have the largest crop in years.

Our boys have been anxiously awaiting a challenge from Thief River Falls to play a match game of base ball on the 4th but have so far been disappointed.

Dan'l Patterson, Dr. Hennemuth, C. W. Peters, Fritz Eikhof, S. O. Huseth and Oscar Post were down to Crookston last Friday attending the circus.

Our machinery firms report an exceptionally large demand for binders and mowers this year, This would indicate that the wheat acreage has greatly increased.

The Bramsness family are all doing nicely and will recover. The disease has been checked as no new cases are reported. They have been seriously afflicted and all hope for their speedy recovery.

Meehan Bros. have finished their steamboat at the high landing and have started for Red Lake, which they expect to reach with out any trouble. They have considerable towing to do on the Lake.

Dr. J. L. Hennemuth informs us that he will leave here next Friday for California where he expects to make his future home. Dr. Hennemuth has made many warm friends here who regret to see him depart.

Agent McKallor's son Willie got into a wagon of William Warner's, of Thief River Falls, while at the depot last Friday and the team of bronchos started to run away. They ran about a block throwing the boy out. He was seriously injured about the head but is recovering nicely. It is very fortunate that the accident was not more serious.

King Humbert of Italy has knighted Dr. T. S. Verdi, of Washington, an Italian barber who talked very stalwartly against Mayor Shakespeare of New Orleans and Governor Nicholls at the time of the Mafia lynching.

The ladies of the M. E. Church gave a social at the church last Thursday evening which was attended by many of our citizens. Ice cream and strawberries were served and a pleasant evening was reported by all who attended.

Mrs. J. M. Hanson and Miss Emma Waldum returned last Saturday from Chippewa county. Mrs. Hanson, while at Grand Forks, had the misfortune to have her pocket picked of a pocketbook containing railroad tickets and considerable money.

Upwards of 300 of the most prominent business men of St. Paul dined together last night at the Merchants hotel, in order to show their contempt for the "smallpox" scare. The fact that such a large number of leading citizens should sit down to a banquet in a hotel which only a week before had been declared to be affected with smallpox, was a striking demonstration of the absurdity of the alarm.—Dispatch.

Street Commissioner Harris has been doing good work on the streets the past week. The council has ordered Water street and Third and Fourth streets graded and the work is progressing rapidly. They have also decided, to plank the gutters on Broadway and a gang of men are now at work. When the work is completed we will have our streets in first class order. Considerable of the work is being done by poll tax.

Fisher Bulletin: Our farmers are greatly agitated over the potatoe outlook. What a few days ago promised a large yield of tubers now present a blighted waste. The dreaded cut-worm has appeared in countless numbers and is creating sad havoc not only with potatoes but with every species of vegetables. Cabbage and tomatoes being the favorite food. It is feared that if the worms keep at their work next week, that a replanting of potatoes and other vegitables will be necessary.

When the war closed in 1865 there were 2,700,000 Union soldiers. The census returns shows there are now living 1,200,000. In 25 years 1'500,000 have passed away, dying at the rate of 60,000 a year. A great deal is said about the enormous number of soldiers who are drawing pensions. The pension rolls shows there are 300,000. This is but one soldier out of every nine who was living at the close of the war. This fact should put a stop to the howl about pensions.—Ex.

Crookston Times: Among the cases tried this week by the district court were a couple that grew out of the campaign last year. Three of the Republican candidates were assessed for campaign funds. They gave their checks to A. D. Stephens, chairman of the county central committee for $150 each, with the understanding that they were to be paid after election. These checks were discounted at the Merchants bank and after the campaign was over the parties refused payment claiming that the money had not been spent under the direction of the candidates as agreed. The bank thereupon brought suit and a judgement was rendered this week in each case. Verily, the lot of a Republican politician is not a happy one in this county.

The Democrats are howling with joy over what they call the "bankruptcy of the treasury." The treasury will be all right in a few weeks if cash is somewhat low now. And it should be remembered that the reason cash is low is because the last congress appropriated $102,000,000 in pensions more than the Fiftieth congress did, because both parties advocated liberal pensions. It appropriated $23,000,000 more for postal service and nearly $7,000,000 more for the Indians to open more lands for settlement And it made some heavy extra appropriations for great public works like the "Soo" Canal. These are some of the extras. The country is in good financial shape. Before the year is out the natural progress of industrial and commercial development will place a good surplus in the treasury. We have no need for an enormous surplus. The country is better off without it.—Minneapolis Journal.

Warren Sheaf: Natural gas was struck on the farm of Mr. J. H. Huggard, about a mile west from this city, on Friday afternoon last, while drilling for water at a depth of 96 feet. The gas escapes with considerable force, and with a terrific roar that may be heard for some distance around. The gas was accidentally ignited from a lantern in the evening on the same day it was discovered, the flame rising skyward 80 feet or more, partly burning the derrick and endangering the barn and out-door buildings of Mr. Huggard Pebbles have been thrown 50 ft. in the air, and particles of mud are ejected with great force. The gas is easily ignited by a match and burns with a whitish light slightly tinged with blue, and since the first great outburst, the flames has kept at an average height of 5 ft. More water is being emitted now than at first, so the well will, it seems, serve a double purpose. The two great opposing elements, fire and water, are here intimately blended both proceeding from the same aperture, and presenting an exceedingly novel and fantastic scene. The Huggard premises have been besieged daily by eager throngs of visitors from the city and also from afar, viewing the truly wonderful well.

The Dispatch has made it a point to diligently record the movements of the aggressive and lively grasshopper in this state. Three weeks ago we published a report that a vast host was playing havoc with the grain in the northern part of the state. Later it was ascertained that the visitation was confined to about forty acres. At regular intervals since then the grasshopper has loomed up as having resumed his maurading habits and on each occasion modifying reports have been sent in. Now comes the news that the neighborhood of Pellican Rapids is being "ravaged" by the undaunted and indestructible and with it a suggestion that legislation and an appropriation—especially the latter—might be effectual to their extermination. The grasshopper is the latest device so far for extracting funds from the state coffers. An appropriation for the prevention of mildew will be next in order.—St. Paul Dispatch.

The Alliance executive committee of Kansas is considering a scheme which practically places the sub-treasury plan of the National Farmer's Alliance in the hands of private capitalists. J. C. Hopkins, who was a delegate from the New York economic club at the Cincinnati convention, is the originator of the scheme. The plan is to establish a bank in each county of the state under the direction of the local Alliance exchange. The capital stock is to be furnished by private subscription. In connection with each bank an elevator or storehouse is to be built. A farmer may then dump his grain corn or cotton in the storehouse receiving for it a check for 80 per cent of the value of the grain deposited by paying a small percentage for storage and insurance. He will be allowed to keep his grain in the depository until such time as he may deem best to place it upon the market. The amount of produce deposited in this way must not exceed the amount of stock subscribed for the bank. The checks to be issued by these banks are peculiarly devised and are printed in colors. These checks are made payable in gold or silver at any of the banks run in this manner. It is intended that they shall be circulated as money.

In two weeks the flag of the American Union will be flung to the breeze with 44 great stars gleaming upon the blue field Only a few days ago occurred the anniversary of the adoption by resolution of congress of the original flag of the then infant union. During the 114 years which have since passed from a little fringe of commonwealths upon the Atlantic, the union has expanded by magnificent advances across the continent. New star have been added as the wilderness blossomed with the energies of an unconquered and unconquerable people. Stars reflected in the Pacific from the ample folds of the Union flag and in the waters of the Gulf of Mexico. The stripes broadened, the blue field widened, the stars came out as on a summer night, as the flag of Spain, of Britain, of Mexico retired before it. And when the slave states of the transient confederacy had temporarily dishonored the splendid symbol of indestructible union, prouder than ever fluttered the flag over the Southern people. It could not be put away by rebelious children.

Four flags have disappeared before the stars and stripes. And others are yet to dissappear before it. For it is the flag of destiny and it will wave one day over the whole boundless continent. It is the only flag worthy to wave over such a possession.—Minneapolis Journal.

Council Proceedings

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The following bills were allowed. Holmes Bros. for hardware $26.75; D. Patterson for work on street $22,75; M. Hendrickson for work on street $35: M. Williams for work on street $35. The bill of J. C. Mathews was laid on the table until the next regular meeting.

It was resolved to have the village hall and jail insured for $300 in the St. Paul Fire & Marine Insurance Co, at the rate of 3½ per cent per annum and the recorder was instructed to issue an order on the village treasury for $9.75 for the first payment.

Moved to adjourn till next regular meeting.

WITHOUT THE KINK.

A Discovery That Produced a Sensation in Boston Colored Society.

The colored women of this city have learned that it is possible to take the kink out of their hair, and there is quite a sensation over the discovery. The rush to have crisp locks straightened is becoming general, although but few of those who have successfully been smoothed out are willing to admit that their hair was ever otherwise than straight and glossy. The fad as yet has not reached the male sex, and at the Sunday evening meeting of the A. M. E. church one of the deacons warned the sisters against their sinful pride in attempting to improve on the Lord's handiwork. He was followed by a sister, who said:

"If God had intended us to have straight hair he would have given it to us in the beginning. God never intended it, and I, for one, shall be content with what I've got. It's a sin before the Lord, and a vanity to have your hair straightened."

The idea was introduced by a young colored woman from Virginia. She herself has a glossy bang and black hair as straight as that of the late Sitting Bull. She says her own hair was formerly crisp and kinky, but that an old Canadian woman told her how to make it straight, and this information she is now imparting for a consideration. The customer is told first to wash her hair and come with it well dried. She does so, and then the operation begins.

A preparation that is amber colored and of the consistency of cream is taken from a large jar and rubbed thoroughly into the hair, and where it was entirely lusterless before it begins to assume a gloss. This is rubbed so thoroughly into the scalp that none of the hairs can fail to have received a portion. Then vigorous brushing is resorted to, and the short hair begins to lengthen.

If it were an inch long before, it is now fully two inches long, and if before it had been done up in what old fashioned southern people term "plaits," it is now ready to be rolled into a loose twist or a loose coil at the back. The operation takes about four hours and is permanent in its effects. It gives the colored woman a very Indian like appearance, and the few who will admit having been treated claim they did it merely to make the labor of combing their hair so much the easier. One of them said:

"One thing I know, and that is that it is terribly convenient to have straight hair. I never before realized what a blessing it was. Before I dreaded the task of combing it, and now I don't mind it at all."—Boston Globe.

Funny Things at a Theatre Door.

All the funny things don't happen on the stage. Lots of them occur at the door. The other night two young people presented themselves at the door for admittance. The man at the door asked for their tickets, when one of them said, "We want to see the show before we give up our tickets." This was a new one on me, and I undertook to explain to them that they couldn't see the show unless they gave up their tickets first. Then the one who had made the break said: "We are strangers from the country. Ma said to us when we were leaving that Chicago was a great place for country people to get swindled, and for us not to pay for anything that we didn't get first, and we ain't got the show yet."

I undertook to explain to them that they had disregarded their mamma's advice in buying the tickets, but they couldn't see that, and as they persisted in seeing the show before they gave up their tickets I had to refund them their money.—Interview in Chicago Tribune.

Still the Old Books Hold Their Own.

"Did you ever ponder over the unstable fancy of the average fiction reader?" inquired a prominent Washington bookseller recently. "It is certainly astonishing how a book, by some trick of style or singularity of plot, will suddenly leap into the pinnacle of popularity, and after holding the position for a few months it will sink into obscurity just as suddenly as it became famous. The book which had the greatest run in its day from my counters was 'Lorna Doone.' For a long time everybody who came into the store wanted it, and I could not begin to supply the demand. Nowadays nobody seems to want it, and I seldom sell a copy, but the youthful contingent of the novel readers still cling to the older romances, such as 'Monte Cristo,' 'The Three Guardsmen' and books of that stamp. I sell a copy of Victor Hugo's 'Les Miserables' every ten days regularly."—Washington Post.

Weird Mountain Scene.

A Montana prospector, while traveling along a mountain bridle path, was attacked by an elk. The animal first engaged his pack horse, and getting his antlers under him tossed him off the path and down a precipice 300 feet deep. He then attacked the miner, who shot him dead. His carcass was found at the bottom of the gorge, not twenty feet from the horse. Both were mashed into a pulp.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Monstrous Hog.

One of the largest hogs in America, if not in fact the largest in the world, was reared by a Junction City (Kan.) man. The length was 8 feet and 9 inches; girth of neck, 6 1-2 feet; girth of center of body, 8 feet; width across the hips, 30 inches; weight, 1,532 pounds.—St. Louis Republic.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

He Has Very Much More Control Over the Army Than Over the Navy.

The president of the United States is made by the constitution commander-in-chief of the army and navy. Curiously enough, his control over the two branches of the service differs materially. So far as the navy is concerned he has comparatively little executive authority, but his power in army matters is very great.

For example, he might, if the senate did not object, take any fresh graduate from West Point, and make him the general of the army. In fact, with this condition granted, he can turn Gen. Schofield out of his place of command, drop him from the list altogether, and replace him with whomsoever he chooses. Indeed, more, implying no contradiction from the upper house in congress, he has the power to take any private in the army, and make him the general.

The law in this regard seems to be a curious one, inasmuch as no like power is vested in the president with regard to the navy. The president, however willing the senate might be, could not take a sailor in the service and make him an admiral. Neither could he promote a midshipman just out of Annapolis to such a position. Nor would it be possible for him to advance to the dignity even a captain, for it is only the senior commodore on the regular list who can legally become an admiral, and throughout the entire navy promotions must follow this invariable rule of seniority.

That is one advantage possessed by the navy over the army. A midshipman entering the service at a given age has the absolute and comforting assurance that, with reasonably good conduct, he must arrive at a certain time in the future, supposing that he survives, at a definite rank. If he is graduated with high rank in his class he may count upon being at the head of the service before he is retired, as if it were a mere matter of mathematical calculation.

On the other hand, after the grade of colonel has been reached, appointments are made by the choice of the president, only restricted by the senate's indorsement. Greely was made a brigadier general over the heads of a considerable number of those atop of him on the list. In like manner the chief executive turns things about as he desires beyond the rank of the colonels, though he usually picks out for preferment the men whom he considers best qualified for command. But it will be seen that the young soldier in the line has no certainty to anticipate such as is held by the junior naval lieutenant from the start.

It has been maintained in contention that has been carried as far as the supreme court that the president is granted authority by the constitution to appoint anybody to any place.—Washington Star.

Orthodox Hard to Find.

A Scotch elder, who did not believe that his own minister held strictly orthodox views, wished to have his babe baptized, but would not risk its spiritual welfare by having him perform the rite in any heterodox manner. So he walked to another town only to find the minister he sought was away fishing. The next one he was directed to had gone hunting. Filled with indignation he said to his companion:

"We'el gang to Maister Erskine. That godly man will no be fishing or hunting."

So he found the house, but as he approached it he heard the sound of music. When the servant lassie opened the door he remarked to her:

"Ye have company the night. I hear the fiddle going."

"Na, na," she answered, blushing, "Robin could na play like you, but the minister aye fiddles a bit afore he goes to bed."

The good man went away without making his errand known. No minister who played the fiddle could baptize his bairn, so he went back to his own, who neither fished, hunted nor played forbidden music, and let him name the child.—Detroit Free Press.

Cautious.

There is such a thing as being too cautious about taking cold.

Mr. Simmikins was in the room lately when Mr. Longbow, a gentleman from the Black Hills, began an account of an encounter which he once had with an unfriendly Indian.

Mr. Simmikins rose and prepared to go.

"Why do you go?" he was asked.

"I never read or listen to stories of adventure," said Mr. Simmikins.

"Why not?"

"Because they might make the cold chills run down my back, and in that case I should be likely to take cold, you know."—Youth's Companion.

Not Easily Disturbed.

Mrs. Sanso—I trust that we shall see a great deal of your friend when he comes to the city. My daughter will be back from Europe by the time he comes. She is a wonderful pianist, you know.

Mr. Rodd—Oh, my friend won't mind that. He is as deaf as a post.—Harper's Bazar.

Managing Mamma.

Smart Boy—Mamma, I want to go to sea.

Fond Mamma (with a jump)—What?

Smart Boy—I want to go to see—the minstrels this afternoon.

Fond Mamma (with a gasp of relief)—Very well, dear, I'll take you.—Good News.

Rattlesnake and King Snake.

The rattlesnake sheds its skin twice a year, and at that time it becomes perfectly blind, is helpless, and is easily captured. At this stage they are assisted by a nurse or pilot, who guards and protects them. This guard is the young king snake. The king snake, however, is the first enemy the rattlesnake has, and can easily kill it in combat. I have seen rattlesnakes fleeing from the old king snake to the young king snake for protection.—Cor. St. Louis Republic.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date June 30th 1886 made by Ferdinand Poulin and Rose Poulin his wife mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 10th day of July 1886 at 10 o'clock a. m. in Book 26 of mortgages, pages 120, 121 and 122.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum so secured due and payable; and default having been made, the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred ninety four dollars and twenty cents, and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

LUCRETIA BORGIA.

Some Interesting Facts in Connection With That Historic Personage.

The distinguished art critic and historian of renaissance, M. Charles Yriarte, has attempted in the Figaro what may be called the rehabilitation of Lucretia Borgia. Thanks to Victor Hugo and Donizetti, the public in general has not a very high opinion of the daughter of Pope Alexander VI. and the sister of Cæsar Borgia. But all through so-called history runs a strong current of legend, which is apt to sweep away the facts and leave a substratum of fancy. "Was Lucretia Borgia really a Messalina and a Julia?" asks M. Yriarte, "holding the cup of poison with one hand and the poniard with the other?" If we study the annalists of the period—Gregorovious, for instance—we find no trace of poison or poniard; no more than of improper love—at most seven love letters, written to Bembo, poet and cardinal, which English misses may read without the use of a fan, in the glass case of the Ambrosiana of Milan, where also is preserved piously the lock of hair before which Byron went into ecstacies. Lucretia Borgia was married at 13 to a nephew of the Sforza, Giovanni, lord of Pesaro, who was 26. Owing to the irruption of the French into Italy, soon after their union in 1493, the course of politics caused an annulment of the marriage, to which the vatican lent itself with the cynical morality of the epoch.

To revenge himself the outraged husband launched against Lucretia's father a frightful accusation, which may be regarded as the foundation of subsequent legends. The young beauty became henceforth the shuttlecock of politics. Being in need of the alliance of Aragon, who was reigning at Naples, the people made a union between his daughter and a natural son of Alphonse II., king of Napler. He was reputed to be the handsomest prince of his day in Italy, being at that time 17 and his wife 18 years of age. Owing to the jealousy Lucretia's brother Cæsar Borgia, the handsome Alphonse was strangled in the apartments of his father-in-law, Alexander VI. In 1500. Lucretia wedded for the third time another Alphonse, son of Hercules duke of Ferrara. At that time she was 20, and remained to her death, seventeen years later, the "pearl of spouses." Apart from the fleeting breath of scandal, which attributed to the princess two lovers at the court of Ferrara, the chroniclers find nothing whereof to accuse the golden-haired beauty. So (says M. Yriarte) that we are forced to the conclusion that all her manifold wickedness must have been committed between the ages of 13 and 20, a supposition not easily credible even in that precious epoch.

"August Flower"

What Is It For? This is the query perpetually on your little boy's lips. And he is no worse than the bigger, older, balder-headed boys. Life is an interrogation point. "What is it for?" we continually cry from the cradle to the grave. So with this little introductory sermon we turn and ask: "What is AUGUST FLOWER FOR?" As easily answered as asked: It is for Dyspepsia. It is a special remedy for the Stomach and Liver. Nothing more than this; but this brimful. We believe August Flower cures Dyspepsia. We know it will. We have reasons for knowing it. Twenty years ago it started in a small country town. To-day it has an honored place in every city and country store, possesses one of the largest manufacturing plants in the country and sells everywhere. Why is this? The reason is as simple as a child's thought. It is honest, does one thing, and does it right along—it cures Dyspepsia.

A WOMAN'S WAY.

"Do you love me, dear?" she asks
In her soft and gentle way,
Deep into her eyes I look, and—
What do you suppose I say?

Why, what lovers always say:
Swear I love her—as I do—
Swear I always shall till death,
Cruel death, shall part us two.

What does she do then? Indeed,
Her proceedings seem quite queer,
For again in gentle tones
She asks: "Do you love me, dear?"

Love her? Why, of course, I do!
I am never slow to tell
All my passion, and I'm sure
She must know I love her well.

And I'm quite sure, too, she asks
Not because she doubts, you know,
But because the little fraud
Likes to hear me tell her so.

THE BALL DRESS.

"You are invited to the regiment ball, my dear," said Mrs Ackland, as her daughter entered the room, her dripping waterproof and umbrella giving evidence of a sturdy battle with the storm that could be plainly heard even through closed shutters and dropped curtains on the upper floor "The most polite letter from Col. B——, and knowing that I forsook society long ago, Mrs. Col. B——will take you with her own girls; it is really charming of her. Here is the ticket."

The elderly lady's frail fingers drew two elegant squares of pink and gold paste-board from an envelope as she spoke. But the girl, having hung the waterproof in an adjacent kitchen and perched her umbrella where it could drip harmlessly into the stationary tubs of said kitchen, did not even pick them up.

"It would be better to publish the fact that I have retired from society also, mamma," she said, a little sadly.

"You!" cried her mother. "At twenty, Effie?"

"It comes to that when one has one black frock," said Effie, "and that patched at both elbows."

"You could go in white," said her mother. "You look very girlish. Gentlemen admire white, or used to. White and a few flowers and no jewelry—no one could find fault with that style. The greatest heiress in Boston when I was a girl was known for her simplicity—always white."

"I fancy I should be if I went in a sheet and pillow-case costume," said Effie. "Really, that would be the only white one I could manage. That poor, old white dress that still exists in your memory is short in the waist, shorter in the skirt, won't meet in the belt, and has a sleeve that would not go over my wrist. I've grown a good deal in five years, mamma."

"Is it five years since you went to your cousin Jennie's wedding in it?" cried Mrs. Ackland. "Dear, dear, how time flies! Couldn't you make over one of my old silks?"

"I should be a laughing stock mamma," said Effie. "Well, I can live without going to the ball, though I should enjoy it very much."

"The daughter of Captain Ackland ought to have opportunities," said the widow. "How are you to marry if you never meet any one, I can not think. A pretty girl like you was never meant to be a spinster and work for her bread."

"Things point in that direction now," said the girl. "Typewriting is not a lively amusement, and I am as likely to marry as I am to go to China. Don't sigh so bitterly, Mamma. It would only make you lonelier if I went to the ball, and I should be up late and make mistakes next day—lose my place, perhaps. I'll write a very polite regret when I get some fine note paper. Now let us have tea."

The little brown teapot, the two blue cups and plates to match, were soon on the table. Effie Ackland had a way of making excellent little dishes out of next to nothing—it was very convenient under the circumstances—and though the girl pined for something besides the daily routine of typewriting and evenings spent in listening to her mother's reminiscences of former grandeur—for Mrs. Ackland had been a belle and a beauty, and an expectant heiress when she married the dashing young captain—it was the mother who bemoaned herself.

At last tea being over, it was discovered the storm had passed, and that the moon and stars were shining, and Effie declared that she would run down to the little stationer's and get some paper of the proper sort on which to reply to the kind invitation and offer of the colonel and his lady.

It was a quiet neighborhood and very late, and Effie wrapped herself in a thick cloak and tied a little blue hood over her head and ran lightly down stairs and down the street toward the stationer's shop. However, when she reached the shop she found it closed. The old woman who kept it had expected no customers and had retired early. Effie knew of another shop of the same sort a few blocks farther on which was always open late, and turned her steps that way—at least she intended to do so. But there are still portions of New York city where it is very easy to lose one's self, and besides, Effie was not an old resident of that part of the town. Somehow she missed the right corner, crossed the street at the wrong angle, and shortly discovered that she was lost.

It was a gloomy and unpleasant street in which she found herself, and the girl was somewhat frightened. However, she decided that the best thing she could do was to keep on walking until she came to a decent shop or met a policeman, of whom she could ask the way. She acted on this resolution with her usual promptitude, but for a long while she went on seeing nothing but liquor or cigar shops and meeting not a solitary guardian of the peace, and came at last to an old building with a blank wall, in the center of which an arched gate stood open.

Just as she stood opposite this gate two drunken men came howling down the street, and in terror of them she stepped beneath the arch. They passed without seeing her, but before she dared to venture out a light shone in her face, and turning she saw a figure in black with red shoes, a red cap, horns, hoofs, a long tail which he carried over his arm, and in his hand a great paper parcel—in fact, Satan as we see him portrayed in ancient pictures, acting for the nonce as messenger boy.

Startled beyond expression, Effie was about to fly, when the demon spoke.

"Well, mamselle, I've been waiting for you a long while," was his characteristic remark. "I came so far so as to save time. Won't you get a roasting!"

Then he tossed the parcel into her arms, turned and fled.

Effie fled also. What the demon had given her she did not know, but she quite mechanically clutched at it as she flew along the lonely street, and by mere accident took the right direction and found herself at the corner of an avenue she knew. She arrived at her own door just in time—at least her mother declared—to save that lady from going out of her mind with terror. She had no paper, but she had the parcel which the demoniac personage had crammed into her hands to prove that she had not merely imagined the meeting with him, and now she unfastened the many pins that held it, unfolded the paper and sundry muslin wrappings within, and behold—a dress—the lovliest ball dress of golden satin and black lace that could be imagined!

The demon had presented her with a dress in which to attend the ball.

"What does it mean?" she ejaculated. "Really, I feel as if I were out of my mind!"

"It must be providential," said the mother! "Try it on, my dear."

Effie obeyed. The costume fitted her perfectly.

"You look like an angel," said the mother.

"But the demon said I should have a good roasting," said Effie.

"It was only a man in some queer dress," said the mother.

"Of course," said Effie. "At least I suppose so.

"And now you can go to the ball," said the mother.

"Shall I dare?" Will I not find my costume vanished, like poor Cinderella's, in the midst of my dance with whatever stands for the young prince at the officers' ball of the regiment? I doubt if it will be here in the morning, besides I ought to advertise it. 'If the fiend who presented the young lady with a black lace ball dress, in a dark alley, on the night of—th, will kindly call, or something of the sort."

"Oh, we will look into the papers, of course," said the mother. "But I don't believe we will find anything—fate intends you to go to the ball."

So it seemed indeed.

Effie went to the ball, and her dress was pronounced charming. In passing I will mention to the reader that it was there that she met the gentleman who afterwards became her husband, and that much happened and all good fortune came to her through the demon's gift of the ball dress.

No one ever advertised for the dress, and it hung in Effie's wardrobe until her wedding day. She never wore it again, and never expected to solve the mystery that surrounded it.

Effie had married a rich man and lived in very elegant style, and a man servant was one of the necessaries of the household. Mrs. Ackland; who lived with her daughter, suggested a Frenchman, and having advertised for such a person, a candidate presented himself. He had but one reference, but that was a good one.

"I will tell you the reason I have no more, madam," he said. "I have had my ambitious—desired to go upon the stage. I even obtained a position—I played a demon in the last act of a great spectacle at the—theater. There were seventy-five demons—it was glorious. But, alas! I got into difficulties there through my good nature. The renowned Senora V——had been playing at the theater, and left behind her a lace dress. She telegraphed that she would send her maid for it, as she was to wear it that night. Every moment was precious, and the old lady who had charge of it had sprained her ankle. 'My friend,' she said to me, 'if you would go down the long stairs and to the end of the passage, and wait with the parcel until Mlle. Fanchon, the senora's maid, comes for the dress, you will save us all much trouble. You will not be wanted for an hour?

"I obliged her, of course. I even went into the damp alley or the back entrance and waited there. I was kept a tremendous time, and when at last a young woman rushed in, I gave her the parcel like an idiot—without asking who she was. I gave it to the wrong woman. Fifteen minutes after the real maid arrived. Oh, there was a row! All I was worth would not have paid for the dress. But I was dismissed at once. I deserved it. It was the act of an idiot. How well do I remember what I said to her—'You'll get a roasting, mamselle.' At first they accussed me of stealing the dress, but——"

"I am sure you tell the truth," said Effie, and engaged the man at once.'

That day Senora V—— was astonished by receiving a box containing the long lost dress, uninjured.

A letter which was inclosed told the story in full, but without giving any name, and Camille, the new waiter, never guessed that the liberal gift he received at Christmas time was offered, not to the accomplished waiter, but to the demon who had brought about so much happiness by the gift of a ball dress.—Mary Kyle Dallas in Fireside Companion.

King Otto's Crazy Ways.

Poor crazy King Otto of Bavaria is still very troublesome. Every now and then he obstinately refuses to take food of any kind, and the doctors in attendance are sometimes at their wits' end to circumvent his stubborness. His general health, however, when he can be induced to take nourishment, is excellent, though he is subject to the strangest hallucinations. A few weeks ago he was possessed by the idea that the carpets in the apartments were made of thin glass, and that it was dangerous to tread on them, and he was not satisfied until they had all of them taken up. Another of his hallucinations is that the walls of his apartments are hung with newspapers, and he will sometimes occupy himself for hours in sitting in front of the walls in his room and reading out aloud what he imagines he reads upon them. Occasionally those who listen say there is an almost pathetic coherency in the imaginary extracts which the busy brain of King Otto composes.—London Figaro.

SWEATING BY ELECTRICITY.

Japanese Rogues Who Can Steal From Gold Eagles.

The methods of the Japanese, who for the purpose of defrauding the government, will spend days on the scooping out of a small silver coin, which he eventually fills with baser metal, are much improved on in these progressive days. A large number of short weight coins are in circulation, and the frequency with which they are met with has led to investigations which show that there has been for some time a systematic scheme for robbing the government by stealing metal from the coins.

Some years ago a series of tests were made by the government for the purpose of defining the actual loss by abrasion in the moving of gold coins. It was found that $5 was lost by abrasion every time $1,000,000 in gold coin was handled. Bags containing $5,000 each were lifted to a truck to be removed to another vault and the mere lifting of 200 bags causes the loss stated, and their transfer from the truck made a second similar loss.

This shows how readily gold can be removed from the coins, but this method is much too slow for the clever rogues, who realize the value of scientific appliances. The work of abrasion is now done by electricity, after the manner of the electroplating of gold. An ordinary galvanic battery and some cheap acid is procured. The coin is placed in the fluid and attached to it are wires from the poles of the battery, leading to another piece of metal, prepared to receive, in the form of plating, the metal to be removed from the coin. Sufficient gold to form a plate is quickly transferred, and, as it is removed uniformly from all parts of the coin, the liability of disfigurement is reduced to a minimum, the only effect being to blur the characters slightly.

In this way about fifty cents, worth of gold can be removed from a ten-dollar gold piece without a very marked change in the appearance of the coin. The eye of an expert, however, detects the alteration at a glance. One of the employes in the New York sub-treasury is said to have become so skilled in this branch of the work by years of experience that he can tell by the mere touch, with closed eyes, whether a piece is spurious metal or has been tampered with. It is stated that the sweating of gold by electricity in this country is practiced almost entirely by foreign swindlers, who have been driven from their own country for similar offences.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

New Abbreviation.

A lady tells a story how a young man who had come from the country to the city in which she lived, and in a short time fancied himself quite equal to any social emergency. He never asked advice upon questions of etiquette, and in consequence he made many mistakes. At one time the lady issued cards to a dancing party, and among the invited guests she included this rather conceited and exceedingly awkward young man.

He was to be out of town at the date of the party, and so was unable to accept the invitation. At the foot of the card he read the letters R. S. V. P., and was much perplexed as to their meaning. However, he was nothing daunted by his ignorance, and wrote a note declining the invitation in as formal and stilted terms as he could command, and after signing his name, added the letters, M. S. C. C.

On his return to the city, after the party, he went to call on the lady, and in the course of the conversation asked, "By the way Mrs. Clapp, what did you mean by R. S. V. P. at the end of the invitation you sent me?"

"Why," replied the hostess, without a note of surprise in her polite voice, "they stand for the French phrase, Repondez, s'il vous plait—Answer if you please."

"Oh, yes! Well I was all right, then!" said the young man, in a tone of much satisfaction. "I thought I should hit it in my answer!"

Now that you speak of it," said his courteous hostess, "I do wish to ask you what M. S. C. C. stands for. I can't imagine, and I can't find any one who has seen the abbreviation used!"

"Oh," replied her visitor, airily, "that meant 'Mighty sorry couldn't come.' I should think that was plain enough!"

The Revival of Bleeding.

To those accustomed, as most now are, to regard loss of blood, from whatever source, as an unmitigated evil, the suggestion to follow up an extensive bleeding from the lungs by a further bleeding from the arm is startling. Nevertheless, at a recent meeting of the Royal Medical Society of London one of the speakers favored its adoption in cases in which the patient is in urgent danger of suffocation from the reflux of blood into the bronchi. It is, however, peculiarly open to the objection brought against the operation of venesection is generally—that, in the present state of public opinion as to blood letting, the discredit of a fatal result is too likely to be hastily assigned to the venesection.

Other physicians recommended it for various diseases, though considerable difference of opinion existed as to the cases most likely to be benefited.

A Professional Lock-Picker.

There is a man in New York who only a short time ago opened the big vault in the Sub-Treasury building where $22,000,000 was kept without knowing the combination of the lock and without a tool of any kind, in five minutes. This man's name is Sipp, and, notwithstanding the fact that Inspector Byrnes knows of the occurrence and knows also who the man is, he has not been arrested. As a matter of fact the same man was taken on to Washington and with an ordinary mallet opened the big vaults in the mint where a greater amount of money is stored. He is not a thief, but a hard-fisted mechanic who has made a study of locks and safes, and makes more money in doing repairing than he could if he stole. He opened both vaults at the request of the authorities simply to show how wretchedly insecure the Goverment money is while locked behind old fashioned doors and poor locks.

IT TAKES A STEADY HAND.

Steering a Hook and Ladder Truck Not Easy Work.

"Perhaps you think it an easy thing to steer a fire truck; so it is—when you know how," said a gray-haired fire laddie the other day, as he nimbly vaulted out of his lofty seat on the tail of the truck after returning from a false alarm a few blocks away.

"There are practically two men on the truck, the man who drives and the man who steers," continued the veteran. "I've done both duties now for more than ten years and flatter myself that I know something about them, but I think that the steerer has the harder job of the two."

It is probable that any one who has thought of the matter at all has come to the same conclusion, for the deftness with which a hook and ladder truck is swung around sharp corners, in its mad race to a fire, is something to be wondered at by the onlookers.

The truck itself is about forty feet long and carries from six to eight extension and several life-saving ladders, the longest of the former projecting out behind about ten feet. The truck is drawn by three strong and fleet horses, which are driven by a man sitting on a high seat in front. The members of the company find standing room on the low platform which runs along either side of the truck below the body of the coveyance, while at the extreme end sits the steerer away up in the air. You scarcely see the men between for looking at the driver and his coadjutor at the other end. The latter has his hand on a big wheel like an enormous brake on a freight car, on which he keeps his hands firmly closed. Meanwhile his eyes are on the driver. He sees the driver turn a corner, and he is ready in an instant. If his eye was not true and his hand brawny and steady the unwieldy vehicle would be dashed into a lamp post or even into a building in a twinkling.

But the steerer knows his business At just the critical moment he turns his iron wheel this way or that way, and the heavy wheels of the truck, which answers to his touch, as the ship answers her helm, barely touch the curb and in a moment swing into a direct line with the forward wheels, and the machine dashes on until the same dangerous maneuver is repeated at the next corner.

Every fireman connected with the several hook and ladder companies is taught both how to drive and to steer, but in some way the duties are apt to devolve upon the most competent in the company, and so it is that one man comes to do the same work year after year, and good work gains for him a reputation for his specialty. Beginners are taught their duties in that direction by handling the truck on the returns from fires, and little by little learn skill from experience.—New York News.

The Milkman's Horse.

A certain milkman had to deliver his milk every day in the week, Sundays included. After he had made his rounds he would drive with his family to church on Sunday. On this particular Sunday he left his horse before the house of one of his cstuomers in Rockville; when he came out of the house his horse and milk cart were gone. When found, the horse and cart stood in the accustomed shed at the church, some four miles away, all safe and sound.

Now how should that horse know that that particular day was Sunday? for he was performing his accustomed duties daily and there was nothing to remind him that that particular day was for him to attend church.

Even birds can count. The jackdaw will count as far as three. Let four men enter a bower where he feeds and then one of them go out these birds will not go to the feeding place. Or let two come out—it is the same. But let three go out, leaving the fourth concealed behind in the thicket, and the jackdaws will fly down for their feed. They can't count beyond three.—Hartford Times.

Possesses Marked Business Ability.

A youth in West Ninety-first street, New York, displays an aptitude for business rather remarkable for one of his years. "He visits stationery stores and solicits the privilege of taking home all the second-hand paper-covered novels the shopkeeper may have for the purpose of covering them with manilla paper. Then," reports the Recorder, "he canvasses the neighborhood stores along Columbus and Amsterdam avenues and secures advertisements from butchers, bakers, grocers, bell-hangers and so on at 50 cents each. These he places inside the covers, writing them with a pen in a bold hand and making them conspicuous by novel arrangement of the lines and the oddity of the lettering. He charges the stationer nothing for the binding and places the title of each book on its front cover in attractive style. He is doing a thriving business, making money enough to purchase his own clothing, pays for his modest amusement and has a bicycle besides. The lad lives with his parents and attends school regularly. The business instinct is so largely developed in him that he can canvas for 'ads.' with all the assurance of one old at the business. The storekeepers readily see that the announcement of their wares on the covers of these books repays them, as the books are, after covering, loaned on the circulating library plan by the stationers and in constant demand by the ladies of the neighborhood."

Wilder's Latest Story.

"Once upon a time," said Marshall P. Wilder to a group of interested Englishmen in his hotel, "a little nigger sat at a table pounding his thumb nail with a hammer," and the famous story-teller screwed his face into comical grimaces expressive of recurring pain, while his hands went through the motions suggested by the story. "Presently," he continued "a man asked him what he was doing that for?"

"'Cause,' whimpered the negro, "it feels so good when I stop!"

Scourged to Their Graves.

So subtle and tenacious is the poison of malaria, that many persons afflicted with it never, through life, get rid of the venom in their systems. Such people are not to be found among those who use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which completely eradicates it. Most benign of anti-malarial specifics, it is also a sovereign remedy for biliousness, kidney troubles, costiveness and dyspepsia.

Kept up for years—the offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's addressed to you, if you have Catarrh. It's a reward of $500, if they can't cure you, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing—an offer that's made in good faith by responsible men.

Think what it means! Absolute confidence in their Remedy, or they couldn't afford to take the risk. A long record of perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases—or they couldn't have faith in it. It means no more catarrh—or $500. If you fail to be cured, you won't fail to be paid.

But perhaps you won't believe it. Then there's another reason for trying it. Show that you can't be cured, and you'll get $500. It's a plain business offer. The makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will pay you that amount if they can't cure you. They know that they can—you think that they can't. If they're wrong, you get the cash. If you're wrong, you're rid of catarrh.

AN EASY WAY OUT

Of your difficulties, if you are a sufferer from contagious blood poison, or any of the results of an unscientific treatment of that disease, such as follow mercurial and potash poisoning is to take Swift's Specific S.S.S. You will not only find relief, but a permanent cure. In thousands of cases that have stubbornly resisted all other treatment, S.S.S. has been found effectual. This great remedy not only makes short work of blood poisoning, but drives out all traces of mercurial or potash poisoning. It is a purely vegetable remedy, compounded of nature's most active agents, and it has been known as a Specific for blood poisoning for fifty years. But the easiest way out of such difficulties is to promptly begin the use of S.S.S. Mr. George Stewart, of Shelby, Ohio, writes: "As soon as I discovered I was afflicted with the disease I commenced taking S.S.S. and in a few weeks I was permanently cured."

The queen, the prince and princess of Wales, the duke and duchess of Connaught and nearly seven hundred guests were present.

IN the house of commons Hon. Edward Stanhope, secretary of state for war, in replying to a question by Mr. Cobb, Liberal, said the government would consider whether it could grant a return of all non-commissioned officers and others of the army who had been reduced to the ranks during the last three years for conniving at card-playing or other gambling or partaking therein with official inferiors. He saw no necessity for calling the attention of officers to the gambling regulation, as he did not believe they had been broken.

JAY EWING, the American consul at Vancover is now completely ostracized. No Canadian with any regard for his social standing will have anything to do with him, except what in a business way he cannot avoid. The latest feature is the preparation and circulation of a petition to the Ottawa government asking it to insist on his immediate removal. Canadians and Americans here recognize that Ewing is not a type of an American gentleman, and they take the utmost pains to show that they know just where to place him.

A searching party was organized and the body of the unfortunate woman found laying near the Illinois Central track near Tara. She had been struck by a train and fatally hurt.

First Edition of Robinson Crusoe.

It is not every day that we have to chronicle the sale of a complete and perfect copy of the first edition of De Foe's immortal romance, "Robinson Crusoe." By a "complete" first edition is understood, of course, not only the "Adventures" themselves, which were first published in 1719, but the "Farther Adventures," which appeared a few months afterward, and also the "Serious Reflections During the Life of Robinson Crusoe," dated 1720. It is very unusual for the three volumes to appear in the market together, each of the premier impression, and we only remember of one instance during the last four seasons. In the Perkin's sale, July, 1890, a set was knocked down for £45. Recently Messrs. Sotheby sold a set, handsomely bound in morocco by Bedford, for the considerably enhanced figure of £55.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Saved by a Rat.

A gentleman, who modestly prevents our publishing his name and whose [illegible] following: "I had been picking cotton in my field very hard all the morning, and when dinner time came I lay down in the gin house, and must have dozed off to sleep, when all at once I felt a sharp prick on the end of my finger. I jumped and saw a large rat looking at me intently, and he kept running backward and forward but coming back at the same place each time. I picked up a nut and threw it so accurately that I killed the rat. About that time I discovered some cotton on fire, which I believe caused the strange actions of the rat, and I believe that I, as well as the gin-house, would have been burned had it not been for the timely bite of the rat."—Gordon [Ga] Press.

A Chinese Magistrate's Decision.

A remarkable decision is reported from Kiuklang in China. A gambler forged a large number of notes for a thousand each on his brother's bank and put them into circulation. When these notes were presented at the bank the forgery was discovered and payment was refused; whereupon the enraged holders, storming the building, dragged the manager before the magistrate. The latter held that, since the writing and marks of the false notes were so like those of the regular bank notes that ordinary people could not distinguish between them, the bank would have to honor them, and he accordingly made out an order to this effect. As a result of this decision the bank has been forced to suspend payment, while the author of the mischief escapes punishment.

Big Funnels on Steamers.

Few people have any idea of the size of the funnels on the great ocean steamers. If you ask the first half-dozen people you meet for their estimate it is not likely that one of them will name a figure one-half the actual size. Most persons would say the diameter of funnels on the largest steamer is four to six feet and would want to wager that it was not more than eight feet. How far from the actual size such guesses are may be understood when it is stated that the funnel of the Etruria measures a little over eighteen feet in diameter. At even a short distance away this can hardly be believed. It gives an idea of the enormous size of the big steamers. We have grown so accustomed to them nowdays that we accept them as a matter of course.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Marriage in Japan.

"Your marriage laws are loose, but I don't think the question is of such grave import as the magazines make it out to be. Your people marry in too much of a hurry. They mix business principles with their love affairs. In Japan the principle underlying our marital relation is that the affection which makes marriage happy is not the love which precedes the union but the respect, esteem and sense of mutual helpfulness which arises afterward. But this way of trying to secure a good wife by first testing her sometimes fails. Some men marry thirty or forty girls in trying to get the right one. When a wife doesn't suit the husband he just sends her back to her mother with a kiss and his blessing. Then he marries another."—From an Interview with Prince Yanasi.

A PITCHED BATTLE.

Fatal Fight Between White Strikers and Negro Miners, Assisted by Pinkerton Men.

Two of the Strikers Killed and Several on Each Side Seriously Injured.

SEATTLE, Wash., Special Telegram, June 30.—Since the bringing of 600 colored miners from the East a few weeks ago to take the place of white strikers in the Franklin coal mines near Seattle, the labor unions have evidenced great dissatisfaction and late authetic news from Franklin, makes known that the negroes and Pinkerton guards had a pitched battle with the white strikers at daylight Sunday morning with the result that the whites were routed and driven back into the woods with a loss of two men killed, several others wounded and two women, wives of the white miners, were shot in the limbs but will recover. One negro was probably fatally shot.

It is estimated that at least 1,000 shots were exchanged, but owing to darkness most of the men fired at random.

The white strikers precipitated the battle by making the attack. After the fight, and when daylight came, the negroes were crazed with a desire for revenge, and threatened to go down on the flats, blow the mines and kill all the white miners, who number 125, and their families. The guards, assisted by Chief Sullivan, had all they could do to keep the negroes from carrying out

THEIR DIRE THREATS.

At 1 o'clock this morning two companies of militia were sent to the scene to protect the mine property and keep the negroes and whites from shedding more blood. One of the white miners named Robinson, who has been working with the negroes, shot and killed two of the strikers. This morning he was taken to Seattle by a detachment of rifles from Company B and was put in jail.

At the Gilman and New Castle coal mines mines, also in this county, the white strikers are causing much trouble. At the latter place the home guards, consisting of about fifty miners, are drilling daily, not to uphold law and order, but to keep non-union men from working in the mines. The Pinkerton guards are hourly expecting an attack.

The sheriff will leave for Gilman to-night and will endeavor to stop bloodshed, but this is hardly thought possible. The county officials and mine owners do not regret so much what has happened as they fear what will transpire within the next twenty-four hours.

USED GOVERNMENT MONEY.

Serious Charges Made Against the Collector at Port Townsend, Wash.

[illegible] gram, June 30.—Nearly $100,000 of government money has been taken from the safe in the custom house here and used for private purposes by Collector of Customs Charles M. Bradshaw between March 1, 1890, and June 6, 1891. On the 6th instant there was a deficit of over $8,600 still due the government, and which Bradshaw had not replaced in the government safe.

Special Treasury Agent C. J. Mulkey has been employed in investigating and looking up the latest customs scandal. Charles B. Wood, late special deputy collector of customs, has submitted evidence and affidavits to Mulkey, corroborated by records in the custom house and certain banks, that prove beyond all reasonable doubt that Bradshaw allowed Morris B. Sachs, judge of the superior court, who was tried at Olympia last winter on impeachment proceedings, to take from the government safe at one time $1,396, with which Sachs purchased opium at the United States marshal's sale and which was afterwards sold at a profit of over $400. At several other times Bradshaw gave to Sachs, from the government safe, large amounts of money.

When the special agent examined the custom house accounts Bradshaw made affidavit that the amount which he was deficient was in transit from various subports on the sound. Last week Bradshaw sacrificed a valuable piece of business property for $8,000, with which he endeavored to square himself with the department by making the deficit good.

Every endeavor has been made to smother the investigation by Port Townsend Republican politicians and give Bradshaw an opportunity to resign.

BULLETS FOR A BRUTE.

A Tough Illinois Citizen Filled Full of Lead.

SPARLAND, Ill., June 30—About twelve years ago an esteemed citizen named John Carver died, leaving one daughter and three sons.

Subsequently his widow, whom he had left some $15,000, married a mere boy named Royal Frisby. Frisby at once developed into a first-class tough, and began spending the money in debauchery.

The citizens have for a long time been in arms against Frisby, and on Saturday a "white cap" circular was sent to him, and several sent to heads of families with an attached prayer "Help us for humanity's sake," and signed by the widow Carver and her three sons. The original circular detailed how, while yet the husband of Mrs. Carver, Frisby ruined her thirteen-year-old daughter, and how she bore him a natural child in the house of his wife, her mother. The father buried the child in the yard within sixty feet of the house. Mrs. Frisby was compelled by threats to witness the grossest of outrages by her husband until her daughter's shame and the shame of her household became public property. Then she secured a divorce, and immediately thereafter her husband compelled her daughter with a second natural child only two weeks to marry him.

Yesterday not having heeded the warning of the circular, he stepped out of his house and before he had gone twenty feet he was filled full of buckshot and instantly killed. The coroner's jury held Gip Culver, of Henry, Mrs. Laura Frisby and her son, John Carver, for the killing.

The killing meets with the approval of the community, and hundreds of citizens have offered to go on the bonds of the prisoners. It is said the first child born to the daughter was strangled by Frisby.

American Tin Manufacture.

LONDON, June 30.—The Times to-day, referring to the fact that sixty delegates from the tin plate working districts of Wales are going to the United States in order to inquire into the prospects of profitable employment there, says: "Should the delegates report favorably upon the prospects for tin plate workers in the United States it is not unlikely that there will be so large an exodus to America as to lead to a great portion of the trade hitherto monopolized by Wales being transferred to America, as there is nothing except the want of skilled labor to prevent the successful manufacture of tin plate in that country."

AT THE VATICAN.

The Pope Considering Objections to the Catholic Emigration Scheme.

ROME, June 30.—Under instructions from the Holy See an exact report of the comment made and the impressions produced in the United States by the project of Herr Cahensly regarding emigration to America has been drawn up and is now under consideration at the Vatican. The future action of the pope will largely depend on the impression created by the report, unfavorable or otherwise. The opposition of the American hierarchy to the scheme will not tend to smooth the path of Herr Cahensly or his colleagues, who, however, show no signs of discouragement and evidently intend to do their utmost to secure their ends.

The Catholic world here is endeavoring in order to mitigate the economic crisis, to promote a scheme in the European capitals' Catholic banks, which, working in connection with each other, would form a kind of international syndicate. In order to attain this end the argument of Boutoux is advanced, alleging the necessity of withdrawing the capital, resources and finances, of the Catholic world from what is practically an absolute Jewish control. This proposition was made once before, but fell through because it was not based on business principles. In spite of this, the present promoters have issued an appeal, in which they ask the co-operation of Catholic capitalists, and state that Catholic banks will be organized in London, Paris and Boston. It is affirmed that efforts will be made in New York to obtain support to the scheme.

The Holy See has been approached with a view to obtaining its support, but it has formally declared that it will have no connection with any combination of this kind. Cardinal Rampolli has formally made known this decision of the Holy See to the pontificate diplomatic corps.

BOTH WERE FOOLED.

A Laughable Incident Growing Out of a Diamond Robbery.

CHICAGO, June 30.—It was a case of diamond cut diamond to-night at the corner of Sangamon and Monroe streets.

Mrs. George Moergenthau, whose residence had been robbed of $700 worth of diamonds, was at the corner named to keep an appointment made by an anonymous letter received in answer to an advertisement from her offering $100 reward and no questions asked for the return of the jewels.

Several high police officials and well known newspaper men to whom the facts had been made known were also in the vicinity of the corner hiding and watching for the bold diamond robber to come out in the glare of the electric light and get himself captured in the most approved style.

When Mrs. Morgenthau nervously alighted from a car, dismissed the vehicle and presently gave the agreed upon signal sure enough a well dressed young man stepped briskly forward, handed her without a word the tiny package of supposed diamonds and received in return a bundle of supposed currency. Half a minute later the young man was under arrest. Then it was discovered that the package exchanged by nervous Mrs. Morgenthau and the blithe young man contained neither greenbacks nor diamonds, but

The prisoner, C. Burchard, who is following the races, declares he knows nothing of the missing diamonds, and was simply trying to capture the reward. He is intensely chagrined at the outcome, as indeed is also his very shrewd captors.

A SITE CHOSEN.

The Place for Sioux Falls' Public Building Duly Designated.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, June 30.—Secretary Foster to-day approved the recommendation of Special Agent McLean for the public building sites at Sioux Falls and Fargo. Thirteen sites were offered at Sioux Falls. The site approved is situated at the northwest corner of Phillips avenue and Twelfth street. The price is $8,000. Thomas H. Brown is the owner. Special Agent McLean looked over the thirteen sites offered at Fargo, and then decided to make a choice outside of any of these. The prices for the different locations ranged from $1 to $10,000. The site selected is situated on Robert street and First avenue, and the price to be paid is $4,000.

The report of the commission that visited Mankato, Minn., to settle the difficulty over the public building site in that city was examined by Secretary Foster this afternoon. He decided not to give his approval to-day. It need surprise no one in Mankato if the Holbrook property at Second and Jackson streets is selected. This lot will cost $5,000 and certain interested citizens will donate $4,125 of this amount, so that in case this site is selected the government will only be obliged to pay $875 for it. The commission examined eight sites offered in Mankato.

DYING OF HUNGER.

Russian Crops a Failure and People Are Starving to Death.

LONDON, June 30.—The Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent declares that the harvest in Russia this year is likely to be the worst on record.

Famine is already visible in the faces of the peasantry of Kostroma. Disease has already broken out. The only food is oat meal mixed with tree bark or similar ingredients.

In Kazan among indigents receiving meats gratis are 146 noblemen and 76 priests. In other districts similar conditions are reported. In the Jewish colony at Rovnopol many people are dying of hunger and hundreds have to huddle together. Several families live in one room often for the sake of warmth. Some papers contain advertisements of children of sale.

On Meredith's Trail.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The fight of the Knights of Labor against Capt. Meredith, chief of the bureau of engraving and printing, has assumed increased interest in view of the fact that it has been taken up by the executive committee of that order. Messrs. Powderly, Devlin and Hayes have left Columbus, Ohio, to visit Washington in connection with the matter. The Knights, in a former interview with Secretary Foster, made the threat that they would use the power of that organization to defeat the election of Mr. McKinley for governor this fall if their demands for the reinstatement of certain Knights of Labor from the bureau of engraving and printing at Washinton were not complied with. It is with this object, in view that the principal officers of the Knights of Labor are on their way here accompanied by two of Mr. McKinley's close friends.

The Dreibund Prolonged.

HAMBURG, June 30.—The emperor, conversing with Herr Nissen, chairman of the Hamburg-American Steamship company, announced that the dreibund was yesterday prolonged for six years. The emperor and empress landed in Heligoland this evening and were received by Commandant Geisler, Admiral Von der Goltz and other high officials.

ROME, June 30.—Twenty-five radical deputies attended a demonstration against the driebund in the Quirinal to-day. Signor Bovio and others made speeches notable for their eulogistic references to France which were received with the greatest of enthusiasm.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Wheat is 82 cents.

Where will you spend the glorious 4th

School closed last Friday for the summer vacation.

E. M. Hoff was at Crookston last week on business.

Haying will commence in about two weeks more.

J. M. Hanson went down to Crookston today on business.

K. O. Gigstad went down to Crookston last Monday on business.

Mallory & Spafford received several cars of lumber last Monday.

If you want to insure your buildings against fire, call at this office.

The weather the first of the week was rather cold for the last of June.

It looks now as if harvest would commence about August 1st this year.

We can get along very nicely now if it would only stop raining and let the sun shine.

C. G. Rapp's baby has been dangerously sick the past week but in now much better.

Hall Bros. are building a large addito their store to accommodate their increasing business.

Our machinery firms estimate that fully one hundred binders will be sold here this season.

Messrs. Falk, Wright and Evenson were the Thief River Falls representatives in town to-day.

Dr. J. L. Hennemuth left last Friday for California where he expects to make his home in the future.

Sam Dainard reports a big demand for lumber. The farmers are doing a large amount of building this season.

are all recovering slowly and there is little doubt but that they will all recover.

Street Commissioner Harris is deserving of considerable praise for the good work he has been doing on the streets,

The prospects for the largest crop in years, grows brighter every day, and the farmers and business men are all feeling good.

Wheat is already commencing to head out in many fields and gives evidence of an early harvest and a big crop.

L. K. Kolstads new dwelling is being painted and will soon be ready for occupancy. He will have a very neat dwelling.

Mr. John Robertson, of Thief River Falls, commences today on his contract of running a daily stage between here and Thief River Falls,

Mrs. John Malberg and Mrs. Charles Holmes, of Grodhue county, were here last week on their way to Marshall county to visit Bennett Malberg.

The dedication services of the Norwegian Lutheran Church occurred last Sunday and was attended by a large number of farmers from the surrounding country.

Thief River Falls has at last come to the front and offers to play our boys a match game of ball on the 4th. At present the boys are undecided whether to go there or to go down to Red Lake Falls.

The village council held a special meeting last Monday evening to pass on applications for saloon licenses. M. E. Bjerk and Fred Eikhof were each granted a license to sell intoxicating liquors for one year from July 1st,

Dr. Wattson, of Red Lake Falls, was in town on professional business yesterday. The Doctor evidentally believes in going prepared for a change in the weather as we noticed he wore a buffalo coat and a straw hat.

There is no doubt but that the grass hoppers are doing considerable damage in some parts of the country. Some damage has been done near Crookston in Grand Forks county and in Marshall county. The state and county officials should take prompt action in the matter and see that they are exterminated. So far. none have been reported in this vicinity but if they are not taken care of the country will be overrun with them next year.

C. A. Johnson was in town last Monday and says that he has found an infallible remedy for cut worms which are doing considerable damage this year. He says to saturate rags with kerosine and put in the garden and the pests will leave. It is worth trying,

General Manager Mohler, General Supt. C. W. Chase, Chief Engineer N. D. Miller, and Division Supt. James of the Great Northern, accompanied by representatives of the leading elevator companies of the state were here yesterday on a special train looking over the crop prospects.

The demand for farm land in this vicinity was never better and we have acquired a large number of good settlers in the past six months with more to follow, Cheap land with plenty of timber and water and good crops assured is the attraction and a good farm for sale will soon be hard to find.

Mrs John Lundeen has been taken sick with typhoid fever and Dr. Dunlop of Crookston was up today. He says that the rest of the family are all doing fairly well but that Mrs Lundeen is very sick. The Doctor also attended C. G. Rapp's baby and Anders Kolstad's daughter while here.

Polk County Journal: Tom Harris goes to St, Hilaire tomorrow to move the old Utzinger building. That building has not been moved for about a year now and needs limbering up. It was originally built on Crocker's Addition adjoining Thief River Falls and has been moved about once a year ever since.

Tom Harris and crew arrived from Crookston with his moving apparatus last Friday and commenced work on E. M. Hoff's building which he has moved south twenty-five feet. He has commenced work on the Utzinger building and will move it onto the lot just vacated. Mr. Hoff intends to move his general store into it as soon as it can be put in shape.

D. E. Hatlestad came up from Crookston last Friday to act as attorney for C. A. Bergstrom in the case of Bergstrom vs Hendrickson. The case came up last Saturday before Justice Hanson and was taken upon a change of venue before Justice Ives. J. C. Mathews acted as attorney for the defendant. Judgement was found for plaintiff for $10.75,

Fisher Bulletin: During the past week rumors to the effect that grasshoppers are devasting wheat fields in [illegible] insects themselves are during swarm time. The Bulletin representative made diligent inquiry as to the truth of the rumors and visited several of the reported devasted fields but was unable to meet with a hopper.

The case of the man who stole a mile of fence and was caught the next night when he went to get the post holes is paralleled by Boodle Alderman De Lacey of New York. He ran away to Canada to escape criminal prosecution for bribery and corruption in 1886 and remained until the storm blew over. He has just presented a bill for $1,500 salery for the time he was absent in Montreal —Pioneer Press.

People should always be careful about criticising the police force of any locality lest injustice should be done to a very worthy body of men. Still it seems to us that the police of Hrabin Austria, ought to be atleast mildly censured for their carelessness. On the 28th day of May they collared a deaf and dumb vagrant and put him in the prison. The man was to blame, of course, for not taking to the cell with him a base drum or a clarionet, in view of the fact that he could make no vocal sounds calculated to attract attention. The consequence of this neglect on the part of the prisoner was that the police forgot him and did not visit the cell again until June 15, at which time they were considerably chagrined to discover that the fellow had starved to death and that his bones had been artistically picked by the rats, of which there were a great number in the prison.—Pioneer Press

A large force of men have been at work on the streets the past week and considerable good work has been done Water street has been broken from the ditch to Main street and will be graded, Several low places on Broadway have been filled and the gutters deepened. Second Third and Fourth streets have also been graded. The work is all being well done and adds greatly to the appearance of the village.

Minneapolis Journal: There is no use in alluding to "the long bearded Peffer" any more. Like Jerry Simpson he is becoming dudish and has parted with much of his rough beard and uses oil and cosmetics. Peffer has all his clothes made by a fashionable New York tailor and there seems to be little doubt that he is departing widely from the arcadian Alliance simplicity. Whether the stalwart Alliance farmers of Kansas will stand this sad change in Peffer's tastes is questionable.

Saloonkeepers and others who deal in cigars would do well to closely study the law enacted at the last Congress in regard to the sale of cigars, remarks an exchange. Section 2,692 of the revised statutes says that cigars must be sold to the customer direct from the properly stamped box. A dealer who takes out a handful of cigars and lays them before the buyer to choose from, or a saloonkeeper who brings a customer a cigar on a plate or in a glass makes himself liable to a fine of $100.

People who are complaining that the country is suffering for more currency ignore the fact that we have at least $80,000,000 more in circulation this month than we had in June 1890, and $110,000.000 more than in June 1889. The country is not suffering at all from lack of currency. The men who are calling loudest for "more money are silver mine owners and demagogues who would bring about the kind of "flush times" they have been having in Argentine for the past year or so— tremendous inflation and then a plunge into bankruptcy.—Journal.

A movement which, if successful, will terminate in the building of the Duluth & Winnipeg Railroad into the Red River Valley has been set on foot at Crookston during the past week. The leaders of the movement are deeply interested in securing a shorter and more direct rout from Crookston to Duluth, and with this idea in view they will shortly make a proposition to the county by which they hope to secure the much desired boon. Although the movement is yet in its infancy and the proposition has not yet been made public, we are reliably informed that a special election will be called for the purpose, if possible, of bonding the county in the sum of two hundred and twenty thousand dollars, to aid in the construction of the road which will be built from Crookston east to connect with the main line of the Duluth & Winnipeg a few miles north-west of Grand Rapids. In return for the bonds the company proposes to issue at equal amount of stock, at par value, to the county, and also to shorten the rail route between Crookston and Duluth not less than eighty seven miles, with a corresponding decrease in freight, and complete the line within one year.—McIntosh Times.

Ada Minn., Special Telegram June 27 —The persons who placed the obstructions on the Great Northern track near Lockhart, a station about ten miles north of this place, have been discovered and placed under arrest.

The deed was committed on the evening of June 16. The Great Northern east-bound express from Montana passed Lockhart at 9:25 that night, an hour late. The train was running forty five miles per hour, when the engine struck a couple of ties which had been laid across the rails.

The ties were thrown aside without damage and the engineer instantly applied the brakes with full force. He was none too soon for the engine before the train stopped struck another pile of ties. Some of these were dragged along the rails by the forward trucks and became wedged under the pilot so that it was necessary to chop them out.

The railroad company put the case in the hands of the Pinkerton Agency of St. Paul, and Thomas F. Cleary assistant superintendent of the St. Paul Agency, was detailed to work up the case. Mr. Cleary soon found a clue to the perpetrators of the deed, with the result that they are now under bonds to answer to the grand jury.

The parties arrested are Fred Schumacher, Henry Klusmann Albert Schilling. They are only about sixteen or seventeen years old, but are full grown men. It appears that on the day in question there was a wedding at the house of a German named Julius Bartz, John Wiechern and Bartz's daughter being the contracting parties. As Bartz is a prominent man in the comunity which is composed largely of Germans, the neighbors for miles around were invited to attend the festivities, which lasted all day and far into the night.

The three young men named were among the invited guests and were proceeding on foot along the railroad track to the Bartz farm, when they conceived the idea of placing the ties on the track They apparently had no other idea than that of pure deviltry, as there were no attempts to rob the train.

They have confessed to the crime and are now under bonds of $500 each. —Pioneer Press.

At a meeting of citizens of Grand Forks held last week resolutions were adopted relative to the sale of pine lands on the Red Lake reservation. The citizens of Grand Forks want the timber put on the market at once, They claim that the supply of logs for the mills and extensive lumber manufactures of that city, which supply a large tributary territory, will be practically exhausted after another year. The preamble of the resolutions recites that the immense tract of prairie country including northwestern Minnesota and North Dakota, is dependent upon the pine lands of northern Minnesota for its lumber supply; that the region is rapidly developing and being settled by a class of people who need lumber in large quantities; that the mills have nearly exhauted their supply; that shutting down these mills will work hardship to these settlers, and that there is an immense quantity of pine land on the Red Lake reservation in northern Minnesota which land congress has authorized to to be surveyed and a portion placed on the market every year. The resolutions urge the survey of the said Red Lake pine lands, and that the portion authorized by congress to be placed upon the market, if possible, the present year.—Mississippi Valley Lumberman.

Marshall County Leader: The destructive army grasshopper has appeared in many places all through the northwest, and in some places in alarming numbers. On Wednesday we visited a farm about three miles northeast of Crookston on which an eighty acre field of fine grain has been so thoroughly taken within a few days that not a vestage of greenness remains. There are a great many other spots in Polk county as bad and the hoppers have only commenced their work. The situation in Otter Tail county this state and in North Dakota where Gov. Burke has given orders to spare no expense in destroying the pests. known to everyone who reads the papers. We have them in many places in this county and in view of the fact that it is quite possible to subdue them it would be nothing less than criminal to ignore the fact that they are at this moment a menace to the finest crop that ever grew in Marshall county. We have no sympathy with those who are trying to laugh this thing down without investigation or advocate keeping quiet for fear of its effect upon the reputation of our country abroad. Such men whistle to keep their courage up in the dark. To remain inactive is to permit the possible loss of the crop. We would urge upon our county commissioners the need of investigation without a moments delay, and the adoption of most energetic measures for exterminating the pests wherever they are found in large numbers. Prompt action if any is imperative.

Council Proceedings

Special meeting of the council Monday June 29th to decide in regard to issuing licenses to Fred Eikhof and to M. E. Bjerk to sell intoxicating liquors in the village of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn. It appears that notice to the council was duly given and published for three weeks in the St. Hilaire Spectator. On motion the bonds of Fred Eikhof and of M. E. Bierk were duly accepted. On motion it was resolved to issue licenses to sell intoxicating liquors, to Fred Eikhof and to M. E. Bjerk when proof was shown that the sum of $500 was paid into the village treasury by each of the above named persons.

Moved to adjourn till next regular meeting.

REFLECTIONS.

A stretch of water, motionless and gray,
Far as the eye can reach a boundless deep
Tinged by the leaden clouds that o'er it sweep,
Still, in the hush of the departing day;
In shadows wrapt, save where in bright array
The crimson banners of the sun outleap
The enfolding mists that ever upward creep,
And cast a track of glory o'er the way.
So am I, love, who give to you the whole
Of this slow brain to touch to life divine,
Of this dull heart to thrill to ecstasy,
The while the golden glory of your soul
Is flung athwart this somber life of mine,
Which only asks to mirror it for aye.
—Helen Martin in Drake's Magazine.

Puzzled Her.

There is in one of the big dry goods stores a weighing machine which is similar in outward appearance to a nickel-in-the-slot machine, but which works without the preliminary dropping in of a nickel. It was the means the other day of calling attention to a very honest old lady. She had her arms full of packages, and she held them all while being weighed, evidently fearing to lay them down lest some one should walk away with them. When the weighing process was over she laid them all down, however, fished out a nickel from her pocketbook, and then began a vain search for the slot into which to drop it. She looked the machine all over, in front, in back, on the sides and on top, and even when her closest scrutiny failed to discover the slot, she did not grasp the idea that the machine was a free laborer, but laid the nickel on its top and walked away, apparently in the hope that the next person who came along might know how to feed the money to the machine and drop it in for her.—New York Times.

The Parks of London.

Who knows or ever could think of the fondness of the London people for swimming or bathing, or of the means they have for enjoying their baths? In one of the great parks in the heart of London an ornamental sheet of water, more unsecluded than the lake in Central park, is made all but alive with bathers between 5 o'clock, or earlier in the morning, and 8 o'clock a. m. As many as 20,000 men and boys have been known to bathe in that pond in one day. That is the same park, by the way, wherein, if you should go on a summer night, you would see the sward literally dotted, peppered with the black forms of sleeping men—homeless and unemployed, or luxurious men, who prefer the grass to crowded tenement quarters. There is no too nice objection to this by the law or its blue clad myrmidons.—Julian Ralph in Harper's Weekly.

Rediscovered and Reinvented.

Some of the processes used in ancient times have been lost, or are not clearly understood, but we can produce like or better results by different and less laborious means. Many of the useful and elegant arts, which have long been held as indispensable to our modern comfort and civilization, were not unknown to the ancients, but we may be said to have invented them, as we knew not how they were produced formerly. In plain words then, we have rediscovered and reinvented very largely. Laborers' tools, implements of agriculture and manufacture and the weapons of war have been used from the earliest times. We have improved upon them all.—Thomas J. Bowditch in Troy Times.

He Had Rung Up One.

He was a large, fat person, who came running out of a side street and landed on the platform of a Fourth avenue car all out of breath. He had just settled himself comfortably against the brake rod when he apparently remembered something, jumped off the car, and hurried back up the avenue.

"That gives me a pain," said the conductor.

"What was the harm?" ventured a man standing on the platform.

"Well, no harm," replied the conductor, "but it wasn't fare, see?"—New York Times.

Alabama's Capitals.

When Alabama was a territory its capital was at St. Stephens, in Washington county. The convention that framed the constitution under which it was admitted into the Union was held in Huntsville; where the first legislature met in October, 1819, and the first governor was inaugurated. Cahaba became the seat of government in 1820. In 1825 the capital was removed to Tuscaloosa, and in 1846 it was again removed, this time to Montgomery.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

An early Greek writer on arithmetic says that "Agamemnon was so ignorant of the names of numbers as not to know that he had two feet." This statement was, no doubt, too strong, but it is clear that the idea of number came slowly to the Greek mind as compared with the idea of form.

Amber comes from the shores of the Baltic sea. It is fossilized gum, and, as it is only found in that one small locality, it is very expensive. It usually comes in 10 and 20 pound bags, although sometimes we get it in smaller ones.

In Justice Brown's bedroom in his Detroit home stands two fifteen pound dumbbells, which he has been accustomed to use every morning. A pair of scales near by are used daily to tell the justice of any variation in his weight.

The national powder mill at St. Medard-en-Jalle, in France, has recently been lighted by incandescent lamps, and is believed to be the first mill of its class on the Continent to use electric lighting.

EVILS OF EXAGGERATION.

It Is a Serious Fault That Many People Have in Their Conversation.

One of the common vices in ordinary conversation, as well as in written speech, is the habit of making a recklessly exaggerated statement of facts or circumstances. Its long affiliation with coarse and cheap humor has given it a currency among us beyond its deserts—if any merit it really has. There is so much to be said against it—as a stale device of provincial buffoonery or coarse waggery—while there is so little to recommend it, except perhaps as a wand in the hand of a genius like Rabelais—one is inclined to wonder that it has not been long ago banished utterly, at the least from all well bred intercourse.

First, to practice it without specific design or as a vehicle for humor, usually betrays a frivolous disposition, an irregular imagination or a slovenly inattention to important details. Next, it indicates an almost reckless disregard of moral accuracy and a carelessness of the effect of language upon another, which, to say the least, are by no means respectful to one's auditors. Again, although it may not even suggest the notion of a willful perversion of actual fact or any intent harmfully to deceive another, yet it insensibly begets, when accustomed to hear this sort of talk, a habit of hearers of paying but little attention to such a speaker's statements.

It dissociates all seriousness from what he may say, and finally they regard him as a common laugher, whose speech does not deserve ordinary notice. Moreover it produces a bewildering effect upon the general listener, which is quite incompatible either with a serious interest in or a care to remember what is thus said, and in the end is likely to cheat the speaker of more than half his due because of his common discredit as a narrator or reporter.

Perhaps it is sometimes not inexcusable in an earnest advocate or a real humorist, whose reputation for good sense is unclouded, who seeks to produce an immediate effect, and is not supposed to be limited by an obligation to speak with an impartial accuracy. Nevertheless its habitual use tends in most cases to destroy the capability for judicial impartiality, where such a faculty exists—precisely as a contrary habit of conscientious accuracy of statement usually runs with fairness of judgment.

"When Rufus Choate, who habitually reveled in hyperbole, was asked to accept a judicial office, he declined emphatically, saying truthfully, "It would destroy my powers of exaggeration."—Home Journal.

His Revenge.

A tired man with a berth ticket climbed wearily into a Pullman in the Washington depot at 10 p. m. The train was scheduled to start in half an hour.

"Make up my berth right away, porter," he said, "for I'm dead tired." Then he went in the forward car to smoke and chat with some friends a while. One hour later he returned. Every berth in the car but his own was made up.

"What's the matter?" he asked testily.

"Ain't had time, boss," and then the tired one hung around for another half hour. He woke up in Jersey City. His shoes were polished, and after he had washed he made the porter follow him around with a wisp broom for twenty minutes.

"Give me a lift with my bag," he said, and the porter shouldered it and carried it 100 yards to the entrance to the ferry.

"That'll do now," he said, as he took his bag. Then he dropped four cents into the black palm, and when the porter saw the pennies his eyes rolled as if he was going to have a fit.

It was a fine revenge.—New York Evening Sun.

The Giving of Christmas Gifts.

The overdoing of Christmas giving has reached its height. The most beautiful festival of the year must return to more of its former simplicity in the very nature of things. The little girl who counts her presents and boasts of receiving thirty or forty will have to give way to the little girl who plans to see how many presents she can give to the sick and the poor. The small daughter of at least one well to do family here in Boston is brought up to get the best good of Christmas in this way. Her mother even checks thoughtless friends who ask the child, "What do you expect for Christmas?" with the words: "She is dressing paper dolls for the little sick girls. I think she will give a great many presents."—Boston Transcript.

Since the close of 1887, according to the estimates of leading New York bankers who are connected with British financial institutions, English capitalists have invested between $300,000,000 and $375,000,000 in the United States.

How Gen. Butler Aided the Girls.

Gen. Butler was 22 years of age when he was admitted to the bar. As a law student he had been a hard worker as well as a quick scholar, and his memory and application were equally great. Before his admission to the bar he had practiced a little in the police court at Lowell, conducting suits brought by factory girls against mill corporations for wages withheld on one pretense or another, and glad enough to earn an occasional fee of $2. The advice which the aspiring limb of the law gave to the mill girls of Lowell on the occasion of a strike was an incident of his early legal days which made him well regarded by the mill owners.

Two or three thousand of the mill girls assembled in a grove to discuss their grievances. The young lawyer accepted an invitation to address them, and gave them sound advice, admitting the justice of their claims, but advising them to return to work and strive, either by remonstrance or appeal to the legislature, to secure shorter hours and better pay. This advice caused the girls to return to work.—Boston Advertiser.

WHY HE WAS FEELING SO BLUE,

He Was the Life of the Party the Night Before, but Something Went Wrong.

"What's the matter old man?" he said as they met the morning after. "You look blue."

"I feel blue."

"But last night you were the jolliest member of the party."

"I felt jolly.

"You acted like a boy just let out of school."

"I felt like one."

"You said your wife had gone away for the first time in three years, and there wasn't any one to say a word if you went home and kicked over the mantel clock."

"I remember it."

"You said that if you staid out until 4 o'clock there was no one to look at you reproachfully and sigh and make you feel mean."

"Yes, and I staid out until 4 o'clock, didn't I?"

"You certainly did."

"And I gave an Indian warhoop on the doorstep?"

"Yes, you sang a verse from a comic opera song and tried to dance a clog."

"And my wife had missed the train. Now go away and leave me. I want to kick myself a little more for not taking the precaution to get an affidavit from the conductor that she went with the train."

Would Grow Unpopular.

Customer (to photographer): "I don't think the photograph does me justice."

Photographer: "My dear sir, if photography did justice to everyone who has his picture taken, the art would soon grow unpopular."

SOUND VERSUS SENSE.

How a Child's Mispronunciations Color Many of His Ideas.

"I was calling the other day," says a philosophic woman, "on a lady whose 7-year-old son prefers his books to his baseball, and finds the joys of his new safety bicycle less than the joys of a new book of fairy tales.

"Master Charley lay face downward on the wide window seat deep in the mysteries of the 'Arabian Nights,' when without looking up, and unconscious of the fact that we were talking, he broke in upon our conversation with, 'Mamma, how much is a squeen?'

"For a moment mamma was puzzled; then it dawned upon her that 'sequin' was the word called 'squeen' by Master Charley.

After he had discovered by consulting Webster that a sequin in Venice is worth $2.50 and in Turkey $1.85, the talk fell upon the curious impressions often left upon a child's mind by his mispronunciation of a word. I remember quite well reading the account of a shipwreck where the narrator said: 'My very vitals were frozen with terror.' This I pronounced as if spelled 'vittals,' while the signification to my mind was as if the word had been 'victuals,' and I could not comprehend how terror could freeze food.

"Long years ago, when my little brother and I were saving all our pennies to buy the New York Ledger, which we did quite surreptitiously with the connivance and financial aid of the nurse, we eagerly devoured the fascinating tale of 'Carmel the Scout,' discussing the while the amusing peculiarities of a certain character named Peleg, whom, with childish artlessness, we called 'Pelge.' I have forgotten every detail of that marvelvelous story except this wonderful name.

"Hotel I called hot-el asking mother what a 'hot-el' was. Supposing from my separation of the syllables that the word was 'hovel' she replied that it was a poor miserable hut, and I read all through the story trying to reconcile the elegant description of my 'hot-el' with my idea of a poor, miserable hut.

"The little girl has been celebrated in song and story who after hearing the ministers read; 'For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea and all that in them is,' asked her mother 'What is miz?' and as she happened to be a little girl of my acquaintance I can vouch for the truth of the story."

"German Syrup"

Asthma. "I have been a great sufferer from Asthma and severe Colds every Winter, and last Fall my friends as well as myself thought because of my feeble condition, and great distress from constant coughing, and inability to raise any of the accumulated matter from my lungs, that my time was close at hand. When nearly worn out for want of sleep and rest, a friend recommended me to try thy valuable medicine, Boschee's German Syrup. I am confident it saved my life. Almost the first dose gave me great relief and a gentle refreshing sleep, such as I had not had for weeks. My cough began immediately to loosen and pass away, and I found myself rapidly gaining in health and weight. I am pleased to inform thee—unsolicited—that I am in excellent health and do certainly attribute it to thy Boschee's German Syrup. C. B. STICKNEY, Picton, Ontario."

Gentle, Refreshing Sleep.

ASK ME NOT.

Ask me not why I should love thee;
Loves the breeze the graceful flower?
Loves the storm the surging ocean,
And the heart, love's own hour?

Ask me not what chains now bind me;
If they be of tress or brow;
Ask me not, I cannot tell thee—
Cannot give thee reasons, now!

Love would reason not, it seizes
On the moment's bliss supreme;
Rocks not what cold caution pleases,
Glows beneath the sun's warm beam,

Ask me not! I know thy presence
Holds my heart within its thrall;
Fills my being with a languor,
Oft my spirit doth appall!

Yea, appall! for love's completeness
Rests not on the thing of earth;
And the heart that longest treasures
Love hath no mere earthly birth!

Ask me not! I know I love thee
With a fire and force today,
That may wreck my bark's fond venture,
But shall never know decay.

INEZ.

In one of the ancient Moorish towers near Soria stood a young girl, gazing forth at the landscape spread out as a picture before her. Away in the east were beautiful gardens and orchards, between whose green foliage a river was seen winding, like a silver ribbon, in the distance. In the north rose the lofty mountains, one point high above the others, known as the Spirits' mountain, the pride and delight of Soria—the source of its cool breezes and perpetual freshness, of its bubbling springs and never drying brooks—while in the west, behind the lake, now gleaming like a golden sea, the sun was setting, the evening glow covering the entire landscape like a royal mantle.

As she stood gazing with enraptured eyes upon the enchanting scene, her soul completely subdued by the murmuring of the crystal fountain upon the marble paved courtyard, by the exquisite harmony of the nightingale, and by the intoxicating perfume of the roses, she seemed transported to another world, and half expected to see the white arm of some princess beckon from a neighboring gallery, or see a pair of bright eyes flash through the bars. As she was standing there lost in reverie a voice suddenly exclaimed:

"I regret, cousin, that I am obliged to break the charm which seems to hold you, but within a short time the chapel of the Temple Knights will ring to prayer, and then the spirits of the departed will ring their bell in their chapel upon the mountain.

"In that ruined chapel? You are trying to frighten me."

"No, my cousin, you are as yet ignorant of what takes place in this country, as it is not yet a year since you arrived from foreign lands. On our homeward journey I will relate the legend to you."

The girl gave a last, lingering look on the landscape and, with a deep sigh, slowly turned away. Did a prophetic feeling at that moment warn her that this was the last time she should look upon this beautiful picture?

They descended by means of a narrow, circular stairway, but upon this same stairway had many of the proud, haughty kings and queens ascended to watch the defeat or the victory of their army. Suddenly the pair started, for, from one of the dark nooks in the wall, flew an owl, circling around their heads with its evil-boding cry, seeming doubly weird by its gloomy surroundings.

After passing through the deserted courtyard they mounted their horses and proceeded on their journey homeward. After pointing out some old towers and houses and relating bits of romantic and tragic history attached to them the young man related the following legend:

"This mountain, which is called the spirits' mountain, was formerly owned by the Temple Knights, an order composed of both monks and knights. Their chapel you see situated on the shore of yonder river. After Soria was taken from the Moors they were given possession of the country by the king, with the order to defend it. The Castilian nobles were thereby sorely insulted, as they could as easily defend the country as they had conquered it. Between this new order and the other noblemen sprang up a deep hatred, [illegible] their full and exclusive right to this mountain, where they could hunt, thus supplying themselves with food and affording themselves amusement. But the latter determined to arrange a great hunt to be held upon the mountain, notwithstanding the strict injunctions sent out by the 'monks with spurs,' as they were called by their opponents.

"The news of this arrangement spread, and nothing could repress the courage of one party to arrange for the hunt and the endeavors of the other to prevent it. The much talked of event came at last, though it was not the wild animals who were to remember that day; but many a day not quickly forgotten by those parents left to mourn their sons. It was not a hunt, but a slaughter. The mountain was left strewn with corpses and the wolves, who were to have been exterminated, enjoyed a bloody feast.

"The government authorities arrived at last and separated the combatants. The mountain which had caused so much trouble was declared to belong to no one, and the chapel, in whose church-yard both monks and nobles were buried, fell in ruins.

"Since that time, it is said, on All Saints' night the chapel bell is heard to ring and the spirits of the departed, wrapped in their torn garments, push forward between the rocks and the bushes as they did in the fierce fight. The deer flee in terror, the wolves howl, the serpents hiss, and on the next day the snow exhibits the footprints of the skeletons fleshless feet. Therefore it is called the Spirits' mountain and for that reason, cousin, I wish to leave them in full possession of their hunting grounds."

At the conclusion of the tale, after passing the mountain and crossing a bridge spanning a struggling stream, they neared a gloomy and somber chapel. As they approached they heard an organ play the rolling, muffled music of the funeral service. No one could be less superstitious than Inez Comiers, but as she listened to the rolling as of muffled drums a shudder stole over her. "If I believed in evil omens I should certainly say this is one," she thought, shrugging her shoulders.

Bernino also grew suddenly silent, and only a few words were exchanged between the cousins during the remainder of their journey, which led through green fields and in drives once beautiful, but now grown with weeds and so arched with trees they looked dim and cavernous in the dusk.

* * * * * * * *

A few hours later the entire household of the count of Comiers was gathered about the huge fireplace, relating, as was the custom on All Saints' night, horrible tales and legends, wherein ghosts and goblins played the chief part, while, far away in the distance, was heard the dreary, monotonous ringing of the church bells.

There were two persons who did not participate in the general conversation. These were Inez Comiers, who was gazing thoughtfully into the fire, and Bernino, who was watching the reflection of the light in her beautiful dark eyes.

"My beautiful cousin," he suddenly exclaimed, breaking the long silence, "we will soon part, perhaps forever. I know that those lonely districts with their rough, warlike habits, and their simple, old customs, do not please you. I have often heard you sigh, perhaps at the thought of a lover in a foreign land."

Inez made a movement of cold indifference, while her lips curled scornfully. A whole character could be traced in those lines.

"Perhaps you miss the gay life you have heretofore led," the young man hastened to add. "The cause may be one or the other. I fear I shall soon lose you. Before we part I wish you would accept this jeweled diadem from me as a memento. How lovely would it adorn your dark hair. Today is a day for gifts, so will you not accept this?"

Inez bit her lip and silently reached out her hand to take the proffered gift. The pair became silent, and again were heard the voices relating weird tales of witches and spirits, the wind's howling and the church bells' slow ringing.

"And before All Saints' day is past will you not also give me some souvenir of yourself?" Bernino asked, earnestly searching his cousin's countenance.

This suddenly lit up with a strange light?

"Why not?" she cried, and passing her hand to her right shoulder, she seemed in search of something, and, adding with an air of childish feeling: "Do you remember that jeweled butterfly I wore today."

"Yes, certainly."

"Well—but I have lost it—it is gone, and I thought to give it to you as a memento."

"You have lost it, and where?" asked Bernino, springing up with hope and fear blended in his countenance.

"I do not know—perhaps upon the Spirits' mountain."

"Upon the Spirits' mountain," he muttered, paling and sinking back in his chair. "Upon the Spirits' mountain."

He then continued in a low broken voice:

"You know, for you have certainly heard it innumerable times, that I am called the king of hunters. As I have not had the opportunity, like my ancesters, of earning an imperishable name upon the battlefield I have turned my attention toward the hunt, a small likeness of the battle. To that I have given the strength of my youth, all the courage and fearlessness of my race. The rug at your feet was the covering of wild animals slain by my hand. I know their haunts and habits. I have fought with them by day and by night, on foot and mounted, alone and with companions, and no one can say that I have ever shunned danger. Another night and I would speed away to find this trinket with a light heart; but this night—this night—why should I seek to hide it—I am afraid. Hark! The bells sound. It has now rung to prayer. The spirits of the mountain are now lifting their yellow death skulls from their graves—the spirits—the sight of which causes the blood of the bravest to freeze in his veins, and turn his hair white, if they do not tear him in the whirl of their wild flight, as a leaf is dragged by the wind, without knowing where."

As the young man spoke a smile hovered upon Inez's lips, and when he had finished she remarked in a careless tone:

"O, I pray you do not think of it. What foolishness to go to the mountain for such an insignificant thing such a dark night—the ghost's night, and the road infested by wolves."

The bitter sarcasm did not escape Bernino, and, passing his hand swiftly over his brow, he sprang to his feet, but not in his heart, [illegible] to his feet and in a steady voice, turning toward the young girl, who was bending over the fire:

"Farewell, Inez, farewell till we meet again."

"Bernino! Bernino!" she cried, and turned quickly, but when she wished, or feigned that she wished to detain him, the young man had disappeared. In a few moments the galloping of a horse was heard in the distance. With a look of gratified vanity, which caused her cheeks to flush, the beautiful girl listened attentively to the sound, as it grew fainter and fainter until it finally died away.

Meanwhile the others continued their ghost stories, the wind howled without, while the city church bells rang in the distance.

One, two, three hours had passed; midnight had arrived, and Inez returned to her boudoir; Bernino did not return—he did not come, although he ought to have been back in less than an hour.

"He must surely have been too cowardly to go!" cried the girl, as, closing the book she had in vain endeavored to read, she went to her couch.

After turning out the lamp and drawing the heavy curtains she fell into a slumber—a light, uneasy slumber.

The clock struck 12 in the tower. Inez heard in her sleep the slow monotonous strokes and half opened her eyes. She thought she heard, [illegible] very distant, and by an anxious, stifled voice. The wind was howling without the windows.

"It was but the wind," she thought, and with her hand pressed upon her heart she endeavored to calm herself. But this beat louder and louder. The oak doors to her chamber seemed to turn upon their hinges with a creaking, piercing sound. First one, then those more distant, all in order, some with a faint, short sound, others loud and long, hair-raising—then silence—a terrible silence, filled with strange sounds; the silence of midnight, with the monotonous rush of water far away, the distant bark of dogs, strange voices, unintelligible words, the echo of steps that came and went, the rustle of sweeping draperies, stifled sighs, together with painful shudderings of horror, all indicating the presence of something which can not be seen, but whose presence is known notwithstanding the deep darkness.

Trembling, Inez put her head out of the curtain and listened an instant—she thought she heard a thousand different sounds. She passed her hand over her forehead and listened again—nothing, deep silence.

She thought she saw shapeless figures move in all directions; but when she fixed her attention upon one point—nothing—deep, impenetrable silence.

"Bah!" she exclaimed, and again placed her fair head upon her pillow. "Am I as easily frightened as those poor fools, whose hearts quicken when they hear a ghost story?"

She again tried to sleep, but in vain. She lifted her head from her pillow, paler, more uneasy and fearful than before. Now it was surely no longer a fancy. The heavy brocaded curtains had surely rustled as they parted and slow steps were heard approaching upon the carpet. The sound of these steps was muffled, almost inaudible, but continued; and together with them was heard a rattling, as of wood or bones. They approached nearer, nearer—almost at the side of the couch. Inez gave a shrill shriek, threw herself under the quilt, hid her face and held her breath.

The wind howled upon the balcony, the water, in the distant fountain fell, and fell with the same monotonous sound; the bark of the dogs was brought to her ears by every blast, and the city's church bells far and near rang, with their deep sound, for the souls of the departed.

Thus passed an hour, two, the night, a century, for this night seemed to Inez an eternity. At last day broke, and Inez, calming her fears dared to open her eyes as the sunbeams entered the room. After a whole, long night of watching and horror the clear and bright light of day is very beautiful. She stepped upon the floor and was ready to laugh at her fears when, suddenly, a cold sweat broke out over her body, her eyes stared wildly, and a deathly paleness overspread her countenance, for, out of the window she saw, lying at the gate, covered with blood, with the trinket in his hand, Bernino—dead.

When the frightened servants a little later entered to inform her of the death which her cousin had met with his fight with the wolves, they found her crouching—motionless, griping with both hands the ebony bedpost, with white lips and stiffened limbs, dead.

FRAUD IN DIAMONDS.

Considerable attention has been directed to the tricks of the diamond trade in Paris by the investigation of the charge that a firm of diamond dealers had "doctored" yellowish diamonds from the Cape so that they could be sold as gems of the first water. The illegimate proceeds of the firm from this practice are estimated at $5,000,000. The Paris professor of chemistry, Berthelot, has shed this light on the matter:

"The 'painting' of diamonds is a trick known to all dealers in diamonds. I am surprised only to learn that these men allowed themselves to be caught so easily. To give yellowish Cape diamonds the appearance of white Brazilian or Indian diamonds a man has only to dip them in aniline. The process resembles the bluing of clothes by the washerwoman and discovered about ten years ago. The operation is so simple that now a few Parish women practice it. They buy cheap diamonds and touch them up just before wearing them out in an aniline bath. The appearance of the doctored diamonds deceives at first glance even the experts. The layer of aniline wears off quickly, however, and the fraud is then quite evident. Diamond dealers are on the alert against frauds of this kind and I doubt that any house could market $5,000,000 worth of the doctored goods. The difference between Cape diamonds and the Brazilian or Indian diamonds, which is the basis of the fraud, consists in the greater beauty and clearness of the latter, as well as in their greater durability. Yellow diamonds break easily."—New York Sun.

Know His Name.

The New York Tribune prints a highly improbable story about an aristocratic young lady of that city and her two fox terriers. The dogs, as the story runs, are of lofty pedigree, but bear the not very high-sounding names of "Rags" and "Tatters,"—from their fondness for tearing things.

The trio—the young woman and the two dogs—had been out for an afternoon walk, and while they were on their way back an Italian ragpicker happened along, trundling his cart rapidly down the street, and calling at short intervals, "Rags, rags, rags!"

The puppy pricked up his ears, and before his mistress could stop him, he was at the Italian's heels, following him in the most confiding manner. The young woman hastened after him, but was unable to coax the truant back, every partial success being thwarted by another cry of "Rags, rags, ra-ags!"

At last, when the owner of the dog was almost in despair, she overtook a policeman, who soon recovered her pet.

The story reads well, but it will be hard for most people to believe that any rag-picker ever called "Rags" distinctly enough for a dog to understand him.

OSTENTATION AT FUNERALS.

Customs That Seem to Be Opposed to the Teaching of Christianity.

It is a sad commentary on a christian community, which takes that distinctive title from a religion whose founder is called the Consoler, because his word plucks the sting from death that it surrounds death with every circumstance of woe and gloom, writes George William Curtis in Harper's Magazine. The distinctive ministry of the faith seems to fall at the very point to which it is especially addressed. The natural christian tone at the burial of the dead would seem to be the cheer that springs from the thougut of immortality—a sublime hope, a tender resignation. The christian thought in that hour should instinctively dwell upon the soul, not upon the body, and the simplest and most unostentatious rite of burial would seem to be the most truly christian. But the ostentation of christian funerals has become so great that burial reform associations are formed, both in this country and in England, to relieve the poor of the painful and needless cost which, from mistaken respect for the dead, they will not spare so long as ostentation is the custom.

He Secured Lodgings at Last.

Allen Wilson, an old college man of St. Louis, says: "While I was at Yale an incident occurred that furnished amusement to the police for weeks. Some of us were at the station house one winter's evening for the purpose of bailing out two of our comrades who had been arrested for skylarking. While we were waiting a great hulking tramp came in and asked the lieutenant in charge, a rather dudish fellow, to give him a night's lodging. Not satisfied with the refusal he received, he persisted. The lieutenant soon lost patience and said: 'No one can sleep here unless he has committed some crime.' 'Is that so?' said the tramp; 'that's pretty hard, but I suppose I can help it; how will this answer?' As he spoke he shot out his fist and knocked the lieutenant from his stool into the spittoons near the stove. 'I hope I didn't hurt you more than was necessary,' he said, as his victim slowly picked himself up, his nose streaming blood; 'give me as good a cell as you have, for I'm tired and want to go to sleep.' The unfortunate lieutenant did not hear the end of it for months."

A Very Modest Girl.

Speaking of legs and arms suggests to me one of the most inexcusable pieces of prudery possible to conceive, which is the avoidance of the good, honest, and clean old Anglo-Saxon word leg, to describe that member of the body. I take a malicious satisfaction in using it in the presence of the ultra-nice people, who tell about some one having broken his 'limb' leaving less sensitive persons to guess as to whether it was an arm or a leg that met with the mishap. When I was a good deal youger than I am now I was making a stay at a country house and trying to catch any simple-minded fish there might be in the neighborhood. The farmer with whom I boarded had a daughter who taught school, and was certainly the most painfully proper young person it was ever my misfortune to meet. One evening we were playing cards, when she suddenly looked up from her hand and said: "I beg your pardon." "For what?" I asked. "Didn't I touch your foot?" "No." "O, it must have been the limb of the table."—Detroit Free Press.

A Metallic Diet.

The London Lancet has just recorded a remarkable case. The body of an Arab, who was a stowaway on a ship which had just arrived, was found in the hold and was conveyed to the Seaman's hospital at Greenwhich, where a post mortem was made. The physicians noticed that the body was greatly emaciated, and on opening it there were found in the alimentary canal twenty trouser buttons, three cog-wheels, apparently portions of a watch, a two-inch steel screw which was bent double, a one-inch screw, six pieces of a lock, the largest half an inch long and half an inch broad, a circular piece of brass, several pieces of iron wire, some bits of brass and lead, and two key tallies on a ring an inch long. The man had eaten these things when starving.

Truly blessed is the man who finds life too short to cherish a grudge.

A Gambler's Streak of Luck

Harry Romaine, of the National theater here, tells a story of an astonishing streak of luck that he had while at Fredericksburg with his regiment during the war. There was an enormous deal of high gambling going on those days, and for about a fortnight his winnings averaged nearly $5,000 a day, without a loss. The last night that he played he left off $2,000 winner, after holding at least a dozen fours-of-a-kind against full hands, and so forth. One of his opponents, who had lost heavily, offered him $100 for the pack of cards they had been playing with, which happened to be the property of Romaine. The latter thought the proposition an astonishing one but accepted the money, upon which the purchaser, declaring that he did the thing deliberately for the purpose of breaking Romaine's luck, tore the cards into small pieces and scattered them to the wind. Romaine was just superstitious enough himself to fear that his luck had been broken in this way, and he swore on the spot never to touch another card; nor has he done so since.—Washington City Letter.

Some one planted the British flag on the school house at Barnesville, and, the board of education making no move to resent the insult, about two hundred citizens gathered and tore down the John Bull ensign. The stars and stripes were hoisted amid cheering and firing of muskets. People are indignant at the apparent connivance of the school board in that matter.

An Alexandria special says: There is no longer any danger to horses from glanders. The town boards of health, aided by the county commissioners, have done everything possible to stamp out the disease, and with great success. All horses found with the glanders have been killed and suspicious cases quarantined. Hitching posts and other places have been disinfected so that there is no longer any danger that the trouble will spread. No case has occurred in the village itself. Horsemen may therefore now visit town without fear

A meeting of ministers was held at Eau Claire and a committee appointed to wait on Mayor Ure and request that he forbid Sunday base ball playing, and liquor selling on that day.

A young man named Jack Whalen, of Buffalo, while intoxicated, broke a pane of glass on a St. Paul & Duluth train at West Superior, cutting his wrist so badly that he nearly bled to death.

A special term of circuit court was convened at West Superior by Judge Marshall for the purpose of trying the case of the state vs. Jack Richardson. The defendant is accused of the murder of Charles Allen, a gambler and professional partner of defendant.

At a public meeting at Eau Claire called by Mayor Ure, it was resolved to present a formal application to the board of normal school regents to have the sixth normal school located here, a committee was appointed to receive local propositions for donations of sites and present the same to the board at its meeting, July 8.

Prof. H. C. Howland, principal of the Alexander school at Eau Claire, connected with schools here since 1865, member of the first board of education and president of the public library, is dead, in consequence of an operation for strangulated hernia. Eighteen inches of the intestines were removed. He leaves a family.

An accident occurred at the Fifth Ward school building in Janesville, resulting in the death of three men, Patrick Hageney, John Flaherty and Richard T. Bennivitz. The men were at work tearing down the old building and clearing the ground for the new building when the walls fell in, burying the men. All three men were taken out dead.

IOWA.

Grundy County, was visited by a severe hail storm.

Gov. Boies issued an appeal for aid for the flood sufferers.

At Des Moines, Frank Pierce shot and mortally wounded E. H. Wishart.

During a violent rain storm lightning killed 10 head of blooded cattle and two horses belonging to Cottrell Bros. of Mason City.

Frank Pierce was lodged in the city jail at Des Moines, having been denied bail. The crowd of citizens which had gathered in the afternoon immediately dispersed. Wishart's death was reported. There is no fear of mob violence.

Robert Nix, the 16-year-old son of Geo. M. Nix, the well known railroad man, was drowned in the river at Dubuque. He had gone in swimming and was taken with cramps. The body was recovered.

Chas. Isenour, a married man, living at Laporte, eloped with Bertha Good, the 16-year old daughter of Mrs. Lucas. They were arrested at Clinton and put in jail in that city in default of $300 bail, but were released later when bail was furnished.

Frank Evans, of Bloomfield, was arrested for stealing cattle, but was released by telling a neat, plausible story. Later more criminating evidence was found, but he had disappeared. He was found at Drakesville, when he confessed to having stolen cattle at various times for the past two years.

Two men employed on the gravel train of the Chicago, Burlington & Northern road at Dubuque boarded the cars one morning to cross the river. They were standing on a high furniture car, and in passing under a bridge were struck and knocked down. Both men will probably die as their skulls are fractured. Their names are Max Gillis and Rhinhart Peters. They reside in La Crosse.

CONVICTS CRUSHED.

Louisiana's Penitentiary at Baton Rouge Partially Demolished by a Terrible Cyclone.

Ten Convicts Caught Beneath the Falling Walls and Instantly Crushed to Death.

Baton Rouge, La., July 7.—A terrible cyclone struck this city this morning, passing from southwest to northeast. It entered the city at the Garig brick yard, passed up through Catfishtown and struck the hill just to the east of John Johnston's residence.

Its path continued in a northeasterly direction, crossing North Boulevard, a hundred yards to the east of the governor's mansion. It then went north striking the penitentiary building. Ten convicts were killed and thirty-six injured. The following is a list of the dead:

Whites—Isaac McClelland of Calcasiu, J. A. Waggoner of Claiborne, Fred Cace of Ouachita, James Van Metter of Latchitcher, John Gibson, who was one of the Mealey murderers, and William Willow of Orleans.

Colored—Nathan Chancey of East Feliciano, Henry Calestine of Orleans, Beauregard Hardon of Rosser, Edward Buckner of Caddo.

The list of wounded follows:

From New Orleans; all white: Louis Claire, M. J. Finean, Henry McKay, James Mondo, John Duffy, John O'Leary, Charles Summerfield; L. H. Durley, James Vallare.

Colored, from New Orleans: Jake Jones, Samuel Jackson, Major White, William Gibson.

From various other parishes: Joseph Powell, C. M. Young, T. B. Stewart, Gus Block, A. L. Gurnett, D. A. Campbell, J. P. Bolan, Phelix Richards, Marion Perkins, Walter Douglass, John Foley, Frank Aaron, John Farland, Melle O'Neal, Alexander Ferrell, all white, and Oscar Philips, William Perry, Henry Dorson, Borie Peterson, Robert Comeaux, Harrison Allen and William Scott, colored.

OTHERS MAY DIE.

Of the number wounded six are expected to die, and the recovery of several of the others is extremely doubtful. The total damage to the penitentiary buildings is estimated at $30,000.

There were forty prisoners at work in the pants factory at the time of the crash, and of that number six were killed and twenty-two wounded and horribly crushed. On the second story or central floor was the hospital, where twenty sick prisoners lay undergoing medical treatment, of which four were killed and fourteen seriously it not fatally injured.

The fire alarm was sounded and the entire fire department was summoned to the scene of the dreadful catastrophe, and, together with the citizens and prison officials, aided by the uninjured prisoners, worked vigorously for the rescue of the unfortunate souls who lay, some dead and others dying, confined under the great heap of debris that was strewn over every quarter of the premises.

Scenes of the greatest imaginable horror greeted the eyes of those engaged in the rescuing work, and the pitiful wails and death groans from the men buried out of sight by massive heaps of brick and mortar could be heard arising from every part of the wreck imploring help, and altogether the scene was heartrending. The storm was attended by a most violent rain, in which the rescuers worked and toiled for several hours, or until both the living and the dead were extricated from the ruins.

SEVERAL CITIZENS INJURED.

The southern portion of the city, styled "catfish town," suffered great loss and damage of property. In this section of the city several persons were seriously hurt and bruised by flying timbers from falling houses and fences.

The drug store of B. A. Day was completely demolished and gutted of its contents, the loss amounting to $5,000. Several of the small groceries in this vicinity were destroyed. The brick yard of Garry, Reddy & Co. was damaged, but the loss is covered by insurance, which is the only storm policy held by those damaged.

The damage throughout the city cannot accurately be estimated at this time, but it can be said that it is the greatest loss this town has ever sustained from a cyclone or from a fire. The cyclone did not make a straight sweep through the city, but would strike the ground and bound forward like a bouncing ball. It would pass over several houses at a time, and descending again tear its way for hundreds of feet. The trunks of large oaks were popped off like pipestems.

In the city fifty houses at least were unroofed or destroyed. J. H. Young and members of his family were seriously hurt by the collapse of their house. Mrs. Cotton, son and two daughters, living in a brick house, were injured in the falling of the building. Mrs. Cotton received a dangerous blow on the back of the head, and also internal injuries, while one of the girls was cut on the limb. Mrs. Cotton, it is thought, will recover.

POSSIBLY A MURDER.

An Unfortunate Affair at an Alliance Gathering.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Special Telegram, July 7.—The village of Herning, where W. W. Erwin spoke on the Fourth of July, was the scene of an exciting fracas in which C. W. Brandborg, the well known Alliance man, was a participant, and which may result in the death of Hans Monson, a young man.

While Mr. Erwin was speaking an Alliance man, a little drunk, began to disturb the meeting and Brandborg ordered his arrest. After he had been put in the lockup the crowd surrounded Brandborg and wanted him to release the prisoner. Brandborg struck one of the men and knocked him senseless.

When Brandborg started for his home in the country a big crowd of Norwegians followed him. A short distance out of town they overtook him. He seized a stick and ordered them to stop. As they advanced he struck the leader on the head a fearful blow, from which he is still unconscious. The crowd then turned and fled. The doctors are afraid the blow may prove fatal.

SUNK AT SEA.

An Accident in Which Seventeen Lives Are Thought to Be Lost.

London, July 7.—During a fog early this morning off Dover the steamer Kinloch collided with the steamer Dunholme, bound from Middlesborough to Rio Janiero.

There was no time to lower the boats, the Dunholme sinking two minutes after the collision.

Seventeen of the persons on board at the time of the collision are missing. The captain, mate, two sailors and three firemen of the Dunholme are saved.

American Rabbis.

Baltimore, July 7.—The central conference of American rabbis was in session here to-day. The deliberations were concluded at night. It was decided to meet next year in this city. A resolution was adopted stating that the conference heartily reciprocates the fraternal greetings of the Jewish ministers' association of America, and expresses the hope that in the near future a platform may be formed on which all the Jewish ministers of America can agree. The conference adopted this much, but refused to recommend the creation of Southern and Western rabbinical conferences.

DREW BOUNCED.

The Philadelphia Bank Examiner Given His Walking Papers.

Washington, July 7.—The controller of the currency to-day sent a letter to Bank Examiner Drew of Philadelphia, dismissing him from the service, the department having lost confidence in him.

On June 29 Controller Lacy wrote to Bank Examiner Drew asking why Mr. Drew did not, in his report Jan. 6 of the condition of the Keystone bank, state that the bank was indebted on account of clearing house certificates $514,081.

To this Mr. Drew replied that the omission was purely an accident, which he deeply regretted. Controller Lacy's answer to this letter, under date July 2, is as follows:

> I have placed your communication, together with all other facts bearing upon the transaction, before the secretary of the treasury, and the same have had very full and careful consideration. As a result, the conclusion was reached that so important an omission, after fifteen days' investigation of the bank, is not consistent with the confidence which must necessarily be reposed by the department in the reports of those appointed to make examination of national banks.
>
> By direction of the secretary I have therefore to request that you forward to this office your resignation as an examiner of national banks. I cannot close this communication without assuring you of my sincerest regret that anything should have occurred which would render necessary the severing of your official relations with this bureau.

No response has yet been received to this last note. Bank Examiner Shepard of Pittsburg was at the treasury department to-day in conference with Controller Lacey, and he and Bank Examiner Betts of Cincinnati will continue to conduct the affairs of the office in Philadelphia until a successor of Dr. Drew shall have been appointed.

THE EMPEROR AT ETON.

Germany's Emperor Visits England's Most Popular College School.

London, July 7.—The emperor of Germany arose early this morning, and after a light breakfast he left Windsor Castle on horseback, accompanied by the duke of Connaught and a brilliant staff, with the intention of visiting Eton, England's most popular college school.

After enjoying a nice bracing ride, the emperor reached Eton's parade ground and there found a well equipped, bright looking body of collegians, about 350 in number, drawn up in line for his inspection. As soon as the emperor arrived near the head of the line the young Eton volunteers presented arms in a most soldierly, precise manner, causing the emperor to smile with approval.

The young amateur soldiers were then put through the manual of arms and other exercises. The youngsters then marched past the emperor, who sat on horseback surrounded by staff officers. The lads' marching was worthy of high praise and evidently greatly pleased the imperial guest of England. After the march past, the Eton volunteers again formed in line and at a preconcerted signal gave three ringing cheers for the emperor, in which greeting they were joined by everybody present, among whom were a crowd of Etonians of the past and present. The emperor was evidently much pleased with this portion of his day's enjoyment.

When the cheering had subsided the emperor rode to the front of the line, and, bowing to the young volunteers, praised the manner in which they had gone through their drill, which, he said, was performed very creditably. The emperor added:

> I am very pleased with what I have seen of you. If you are ever called upon to draw sword in earnest I hope you will do so in a good cause and that you will show the same pluck and spirit which has always distinguished British soldiers.

ROBBED AND MURDERED.

Thugs Get in Their Deadly Work in a Suburb of Chicago.

Chicago, July 7.—An unknown man was robbed and then deliberately murdered in Milton, near Chicago avenue, this morning.

A little past midnight Officers Reynolds and Reddy were patroling in that neighborhood and noticed a group of men engaged in what they took to be a friendly scuffle. They paid no attention to the disturbance until a shot was fired, when they both ran to the scene. They found a man lying on the sidewalk with a bullet hole over the heart.

Reynolds remained with the dying man while Reddy gave chase to the murderers. He fired four shots at them, but none of the bullets took effect, while they returned the fire each time. All but one made their escape, and he was locked up. He gave the name of Joseph Wright, and asserted that he had no knowledge whatever of the affair. Edward McCabe, an iron worker, who was walking on Milton avenue during the chase, received a bullet wound in the back, and is in a serious condition.

The body of the murdered man has been identified as that of Alex Lund, a clothing cutter.

SHOT BY INDIANS.

Two Men Killed in the Mojave Desert, California.

Bakersfield, Cal., July 7.—July 3 Constables John Powers and Sam Gann, with Mr. McCoy, a liveryman of Lemocco, went out into the Mojave desert, near Coyote Holes, to arrest some Indians charged with firing a hay stack. A fight ensued, and Powers and McCoy were killed; also the Indians and two horses.

Gann's moustache was shot off, but he managed to get Powers' horse, his own having been killed, and rode to the south fork of the Kern river for help. Twelve men went back with him. The two Indians who were killed were found buried in the sand, and the body of Powers was found with the throat cut from ear to ear, and the flesh was torn from McCoy's face in threads.

It was just at dusk when the Indians, who were in ambush, opened fire. The Indians are well mounted and armed, and it is feared more blood will be shed. There were six Indians in the first party, but there are perhaps a hundred more in the vicinity, and several hundred between there and the Inyo country.

A Trusted Treasurer in Jail.

New York, July 7.—Henry C. Adams, for many years the trusted treasurer of the Universalist relief fund for disabled ministers of the Universalist church, was arrested to-day on an order issued in a civil suit for the recovery of about $17,700, which is the alleged amount of his deficit as treasurer of the fund. The suit was brought at the instance of the board of trustees. Adams' bail was fixed by the court at $15,000, in default of which he was committed to jail.

A Boniface Dies.

Northfield, Minn., Special, July 7.—Samuel William Cushman, aged seventy, died yesterday at Millersburg. He was an old resident of this county and proprietor of the Millersburg hotel. Until a few years ago he lived in Northfield. He leaves a son and two daughters.

Salvationists Convicted.

Red Wing, Minn., Special, July 7.—The Salvation army was tried here to-day for marching on the streets with musical instruments. A verdict of guilty was rendered, but the case will go to the supreme court.

HAUNTED BY HIS WIFE.

Her Spirit Follows the Drunkard Who Made Her Life Miserable.

Out near the power house of the East Seventh street cable line, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press, there lives a man who is haunted by the ghost of his dead wife. At least this is the story he tells, and he is corroborated by his children, who say they also have seen the spirit of their mother.

The name of the man is given as Gordon, and it is said that he has been a hard drinker for a number of years. About a year ago his wife brought suit for divorce, alleging, among other reasons why the matrimonial knot should be severed, that her husband was an habitual drunkard. Previous to this time entreaties and threats had been tried upon the man, but without avail. The prospect of a separation from his wife, however, brought him to his senses, and he promised that if she would only live with him he would certainly reform.

In order to make the promise of more effect he sought out a priest and took a solemn oath that he would not drink any more intoxicating liquor as long as his wife should live. Relying upon this solemn promise of her husband to reform the wife once more forgave him, and divorce proceedings were stopped.

For a time all went well. The man stopped drinking, and it really began to look as if the wife was at last to realize some of the comforts of home life, of which she had been deprived for so many years. But her fond hopes were soon blasted. Love for liquor proved stronger than his love for his wife, and the man was soon following his old life of drunkenness.

The wife seemed to be utterly discouraged by her husband's action, and after lingering for a few weary weeks she sank down in the sleep of death, and found the peace she had long looked for in vain. After her death the man continued to indulge his evil habit, and it is said by his acquaintances that of late he has seldom had a sober moment of existence.

Recently, however, his drunken enjoyment has been interrupted, and he claims that the ghost of his dead companion continually haunts him and upbraids him for breaking his oath. At first he only plunged deeper into dissipation, if that were possible, but he could not free himself from the woman who had died in grief for his neglect and abuse. Her face appeared before him continually during the still watches of the night, wearing a look of reproach that nearly rendered him insane. At last he pleaded with the spirit to leave him alone. To a friend he afterward said that in response to his entreaties the spirit said she would haunt him until he should die. Becoming angry at her refusal to leave him, he seized a gun and fired at the ghost, but, with a mocking laugh, it disappeared, only to come again on the succeeding night.

The children say they also have seen their mother. There are two of the children, a girl of 12 years and a boy of 9, and both stoutly maintain that they have seen their mother in the house since she died.

Why Man Is the Superior Being.

"There, I've come away and forgot my gloves," said Mrs. Buxom to her husband as they started to make some calls the other evening. "You were in such a hurry that I don't suppose that I'm more than half dressed."

"That's just like a woman," said Buxom, "always something left behind. Now you see a man has an orderly and disciplined mind, and always does one thing at a time and doesn't get left. But I'll go back and get your gloves. Great Scott! I have left my door key in my other pocket, and the girl has gone out."

"No, you took 'em out and left 'em on the bureau by my gloves," said Mrs. Buxom, "I remember seeing them."

"Good gracious, woman, you are enough to drive one wild. Why didn't you tell me? You might have known I laid them there so as to be sure to put 'em into my other pocket. Of course I did; that's the only way to do a thing; have some system about you; but of course a woman would never guess what I laid them down there for."

The Weight of a Dollar Bill.

Do you know how many one-dollar bills it takes to weigh as much as a twenty-dollar gold piece? Driving out to White Bear recently, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press, one of those walking compendiums of useful information sprung the above query, and the opinions that it elicited show a remarkable range. One member of the party, whose business it is to handle money in large sums, after profound thought, suggested that the number would be from 1,000 to 1,200. Others guessed down the line to 500, but no one less than that number. After all had placed themselves on record, the compendium stated that the number of bills was thirty or thirty-one, according to their condition as to dirtiness and age.

Couldn't Help Herself.

Watts—"So she refused you, did she?"

Dumley—"Yes, said she wouldn't even be a sister to me. That made me mad, and now she's got to be one to me."

Watts—"How is that?"

Dumley—"I proposed to her sister and was accepted."—Boston Herald.

His Little Joke.

"I feel like a wood-pile after a hard winter, your honor," he murmured, as he rose from the bench and faced his accusers.

"How's that?" kindly inquired the judge.

"All used up, your honor."

"Sixty days to recuperate," smiled the court, and it came to pass.

Martin Bjerk has been fixing up his new saloon building and will have an attractive place.

Rev. Leaning and family left last Friday for Willow City N. D. where they will reside in the future.

Miss Annie Cliffgard returned last Friday from Grafton N. D. where she has been spending several weeks visiting friends.

Levi Stranahan left yesterday for Stephen Minn. where he will enter the railroad office to learn telegraphy with his brother-in-law E. J. Kellogg.

Hall Bros. are at work on the new addition to their store. It will be 20x24 two stories high and will make a first class store building when completed.

E. M. Hoff will we learn fix the Utzinger building up in first class shape and will move his stock of goods in as soon as completed. He will have a fine large store building.

A large number of our citizens went up to Thief River Falls to spend the ever glorious fourth, there being no celebration here, and small change has been scarce in town ever since,

Mrs. J. M. Hanson was taken sick last Sunday and Dr. Dunlop, of Crookston telegraphed for. He arrived last Monday and pronounced her dangerously sick with typhoid fever. She is now doing as well as could be expected

Mr Kincaid, the new owner of the unfinished hotel building at Thief River Falls was in town last Friday on his way up there to examine his purchase. He informs us that he will complete the building and start a sample room and a large dry goods store there.

Thomas Hennesey who has been section boss here this spring has resigned his position and the place will be filled by Tom Oidne who has been here for several years past. Oidne is a good man and has many friends here.

Conductor Harry Norrie who has had charge of the St. Hilaire train for several years past has been promoted and will hereafter run to St, Vincent. All will be glad to hear of his good fortune but will regret to see him leave. His place has been supplied by Conductor McCormick.

Tom Harris and crew went down to Crookston last Monday to spend the 4th, returning on Friday, They already have their work completed here and will leave today. The town is getting so close together now that Tom is afraid his business will suffer in the future.

T, O. Moe, the Thief Lake merchant was in town the first of the week after goods. He reports that the country is settling up fast there and that over thirty families have moved in that neighborhood this spring. His store is about forty miles north of here near Thief Lake.

Mr. L. R. Bramsness was in town last Monday having fully recovered from the typhoid fever. He informed us that the family had all recovered except Mrs, John Lundeen who is still very sick. Mr, Bramsness is looking rather thin having lost over forty pounds of flesh during his sickness.

The council have determined to make some repairs on the muskeg road. It needs filling up in several places and the bridges will be lowered. This will about complete the street work for this year. Nearly $500 have been spent this season in grading streets and fixing up bad places, and the money has been well spent.

The school district is $500 richer by receiving 50 per cent of the liquor license money from the village. The money will come in handy as the school needs repairing and it is likely that the up stairs will have to be finished as one room will hardly hold the children the coming winter, This matter will probably be determined at the annual school meeting which occurs July 18th.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Rapp wish to express their sincere thanks to their friends who so kindly rendered assistance during the last sickness and at the funeral of their infant son.

Our county Commissioner C. P. DeMers was in town yesterday on official business. He went out to the township of Sanders to look over some road work making there. The county has appropriated $100 for the road leading to the sand ridge and the township officers are doing considerable work there this summer.

The Great Northern Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from St Hilaire to Minneapolis and return at one and one-third fare for the round trip to attend the convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held in that city from July 9th to 12th,

The wonderful gas well is still a center of attraction. People from long distances come to view the sight. There is no abatement in the flow, and no signs of it giving out. There is a strong flow of water from the well a portion of the time, The gas burns with a clear white light, showing its purity. What the owner intends to do with it we do not know. There ought to be money in it somewhere.—Warren Register.

The property burned up in this country from January 1 to June 20 this year amounted to $61,312,000, At this rate the loss for this year in the United States will exceed that of any other year, except when the Chicago and Boston conflagrations occurred. Our fire losses are increasing more rapidly than the volume of building improvements, notwithstanding the great increase in the use of iron and terra cotta and the increased stringency of building laws.

Litchfield News Ledger: If there is any truth in the saying that "coming events cast their shadow before" James G. Blaine will be the next Republican nominee for president, and will be elected by a majority never before equaled. The public seems a veritable volcano of admiration of his wonderful ability and true American statesmanship, and the mere mention of his name in any public gathering is a signal for an eruption of applause and fealty that resounds to the uttermost corner of the land.

DIED.

On Saturday July 4th, of inflammation of the brain, Ernest Fernando, aged eighteen months, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Rapp. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Rapp in their bereavement. The funeral took place last Monday afternoon and was attended by a large number of friends. Rev. Chapman preached an excellent funeral sermon and a number of little boys and girls acted as pall bearers. The church was be very tastefully decorated by friends. The interment took place in the Swedish Lutheran Cemetery across the river.

The new Spanish reciprocity treaty will go into effect September 1st and it promises great things for American business. Our big tow line is now hitched to Spain, Brazil, Venezuela, while Columbia and Peru, Guatemala and Costa Rica are waiting their turn. We should, by all means, have a reciprocity treaty with our neighbor Mexico. It should have been the first to come in: but an arrangement is inevitable, although a few years ago when Mexico was ready to act liberally, the old anti foreign trade element in congress killed off the negotiations.—Minneapolis Journal.

A Stockholm dispatch to London papers says that the government of Sweden has ordered an inquiry as to the conditions in all parts of that country that are said to be almost denuded of young men by emigration to America. Young women in domestic service are also very scarce, and the wages demanded by servants have raised to double the figure of a few years ago. The supply of conscripts is running short, and the burden of military service falls more heavily on those that remain. As the aged and crippled are generally left behind, while the young of both sexes emigrate, and the country in many places looks as if the effective population had been carried off by war, leaving only the physically worthless.

I went up to Thief River Falls last Saturday to take in the fourth of July celebration. I went up there mainly because there was no celebration at St, Hilaire and I understood the St. Hilaire boys were to play a match game of base ball for a purse of $10. The day was fine and I enjoyed my ride looking over the prosperous farms between here and there. Upon arriving I was met by a prominent citizen of the Falls who immediately came forward with his hat in his hand, Thinking he was excessively polite and not wishing to be outdone I immediately did the same; but my illusion was soon dispelled for he said "Chip in twenty-five cents to see the Indians dance." He got the quarter and I started for the grove where I found about forty Indians fantastically dressed prancing, around a big drum. Here I was invited some thirty-five or forty-five times (more or less). to chip in and see the Indians dance, and think I was accosted by nearly every citizen of the place with the exception of Editor Mussey, and, come to think of it, did you ever hear of an editor being allowed to pass the hat? I then went over to see the horse races and found the selfsame citizens with the same old hats saying ',chip in and see a horse race." After we had had about a dozen races and the crowd was pretty well skinned of small change we went over to see the ball game, Our boys were playing good ball and the Falls club, which was composed mostly of Mud Lake boys, were not in it from the start. The Falls club succeeded in making five scores in five innings while the St, Hilaire club succeeded in pounding out thirty seven scores in four innings. The boys, I learn, were promised ten dollars if they could win but they got badly fooled and didn't get a cent. I then went over to see the foot races and found the same men, same hats. I had the satisfaction of seeing the St. Hilaire boys carry off all the prizes in in the running races, however. I also chipped in and made up a purse to see Martin Williams throw their champion wrestler. In the evening I saw the fire works from a safe distance, fearing the everlasting hat, and also took in the dance, supped sumptuously on cove oyster soup, ham sandwitches and lemonade. I learn that every one made money and they will try it again next year. I also hear that they intend to apply for letters of patent on their entirely new and novel "drop a nickel in the slot and see a celebration,', scheme.

Astronomers are watching with great interest the convulsions now visible upon the surface of the sun. The spots are more numerous than ever, and form ragged groups against which the surrounding surface shine with increased brilliancy. Great explosions are hourly occurring in which enormous clouds of metal vaporized by the intense heat are being thrown out to a height of thousands of miles. It is a favorite theory that solar disturbances produce atmospheric outbursts on the earth. We shall have an opportunity to test belief pretty thoroughly before the summer leaves.—Ex.

The 4½ bonds maturing in September are to be extended at 2 per cent. This extension will add about $25,000,000 to the national bank currency as the banks will issue that much against the new bonds and prevent it from going out, by the taking up of the 4½'s. As the secretary will probably issue certificates against the fractional silver in the treasury and the trade dollar silver, there will be added over $50,000,000 to the circulation from these sources alone. There never was a greater absurdity than the talk about deficient circulating medium. Within this fiscal year, too, there will be added $60,000,000 in treasury notes issued against the silver bullion purchases. Every sound business man knows that there is no lack of money for business. When business starts up in earnest the money will start on its trevels out of the banks also,—Minneapolis Journal.

Now that there again commences to be a demand for farming lands throughout this section there has been considerable speculation as to the number of acres of land in this land district that has not yet been filed upon. Hugh Robertson of the U. S. Land Office has been looking the matter up and gives us a statement of the appropriate area of land, both surveyed and unsurveyed, being vacant in each of the counties in the district.

Warren Sheaf. There is no question but that dangerous species of grasshoppers have appeared in many places in this county as well as in the adjoining counties and on the Dakota side. Last week there were so many conflicting reports as to their being the genuine kind, but a letter from Otto Lugger the state entomologist, dispels that doubt. Whether they are found in sufficient numbers to seriously damage this years crop cannot be told yet. We think not. But the fact that they are here is enough to cause anxiety, and prompt measures should be taken at once to exterminate them. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. If they deposite their eggs here, the country would be devastated by them next year. Even if they should be carried away by the wind as soon as their wings are grown, other localities will suffer from their ravages through our neglect. The county commissioners should meet at once and organize the war. One consolation is that the Red River Valley has never been a congenial place for hoppers, They have been here before but did no damage and their stay was of short duration.

LATER:—Prof. Otto Lugger arrive in Warren this morning to investigate. The Sheaf reporter had a long interview with him and what the Prof. don't know about bugs and insects is not worth recording. He said that three different species of hoppers are found in our fields. The most abundant is the two striped grasshopper, now mostly winged, and badly infested with parasites which either destroy them or render them incapable to reproduce. The next abundant is the eastern migratory grasshopper, whose native home is the White mountains and from there they have scattered to different parts of the United States. This is the dangerous species and is more to be feared than the Rocky mountain hopper which it very much resembles. This species will exist under different climatic conditions and possesses great staying qualities. About 25 per cent have already wings. The third species is the native red-leg grasshoppers all without wings. Mr, Lugger says that a swarm of hoppers passed over this section of the country Aug. 14th last year from the northwest going in a south easterly direction, The greater portion of these were drowned in Rice Lake in the White Earth reservation, and by their decay such a stench was made that hunters were unable to remain at the lake. Stragglers from this swarm decended and laid their eggs in favorable localities especially in in stubble fields, producing our present hoppers. The task of exterminating them will be an enormous one unless aided by favorable conditions. By the aid of specially constructed machines of sheet iron, called "hopper-dosers" and the use of coal tar, it is possible to reduce the number. Deep plowing is the most effectual remedy, and Mr. Lugger explained the philosophy of that The grasshoppers deposite their eggs in the ground in a kind of a sac with an opening upwards and when the eggs hatch in the spring the young will crawl out through this opening the only exit they have. By deep plowing the little sacs containing the eggs will be inverted and the young unable to reach the surface. It is highly important therefore that every inch of broken land be plowed this fall. The eggs will be laid toward the end of July and during the month of August. The professor said that the black potatoe beetle, which is said to be very numerous this year, is, in the larva state, a great destroyer of grasshopper eggs and hence should not be killed. Of two evils choose the less Mr. Lugger does not think the grasshoppers will seriously harm this year's crop but that the real danger lies in their propagation next year. The Polk county authorities, under the direction of Mr. Lugger, have commenced a war of extermination, and it seems to us that something ought to be done in this county.

Mr. John Cooper, of Red Lake Falls, has been hired by the band to give them music lessons. Mr. Cooper is an excellent musician and the band will undoubtedly do well under his leadership.

The Music of Chinese Speech.

There is in China not only an intimate association between music and poetical speech, but also between music and speech generally. The Chinese being a monosyllabic language, it depends to a great extent upon musical intonation to convey meaning. If you listen to the conversation of your Chinese laundrymen you will discover that their ordinary speech is almost as musical as the recitativo secco of the Italian opera.

Many words in the Chinese language take from three to six different meanings, according to intonation. These intonations, as Dr. S. Wells Williams forcibly urges, have "nothing to do either with accents or emphasis." They are distinctly musical, and it is much to be regretted that Dr. Williams was unable, for obvious want of the musical talent, to study them from a musical point of view, as it is all but impossible to convey a clear understanding of their nature by description.

There seem to be many variations, but generally there are four of these intonations, or shing, named and defined as follows: 1, ping shing, or "even tone;" 2, shang shing, or "rising tone;" 3, k'eu shing, or "declining tone," and 4, juh shing, or "entering tone."—H. E. Krehbiel in Century.

Red Pepper at a Church Social.

The small boy worked off a stock of fun at the parish social of Holy Innocents church, which was held at the rector's residence one evening. The boy in question was on hand early, and was demurely seated in a corner when his elders arrived. One by one, as they approached the amiable rector and his wife, to extend the greetings of the evening, they were seized with a violent sneezing and coughing. Finally the whole room was in an uproar. A general panic of influenza seemed imminent. It was only when a suppressed giggle from the corner was heard that suspicion pointed in that direction. The urchin was hastily summoned before a judge and jury, and, amid a burst of sobs and tears, that showed his pleasure to be at low ebb, he confessed to having sprinkled the floor with red pepper.

After a lengthy lecture from the pastor he was handed over to the members of the church who were present as a special subject for prayers.—Indianapolis News.

Both Were Ungentlemanly.

Half a dozen men were waiting in line to get to the stamp window at the postoffice. In walked a woman, and the usual thing happened. She coolly stepped in ahead of the others, as if her letter to ma was of more importance than all the business communications that could be put into the mail. But the man whose place she had taken had had that trick played on him once too often. With more of justice than gallantry he took her by the shoulders and forced her out of the way. If looks would have killed, that man would never have lived to buy his stamps.

"Well, I must say you're no gentleman!" she exclaimed, choking with indignation.

"Beg pardon, madam," he replied, politely touching his hat; "but neither are you."—Buffalo Express.

Bald Men in Demand.

The following advertisement appeared in The London Tit-Bits:

Wanted, Eight Men Who Are Completely Bald.—They are to sit on Boxing night in the third row of the stalls at Drury Lane theatre, close together, and upon the head of each man will be painted one large letter, so that the whole row will show the word

TIT-BITS.

A dress suit will be provided for each man, and a guinea will be given to him for his trouble. It will be asked why we want eight men when there are only seven letters, but one will be required to impersonate the hyphen. Apply Burleigh street, Strand.

SOME SECRETS OF MAKING UP.

If a Woman Must Use Artificial Color She Can Do It Without Rouge.

The idea of "making up" is extremely distasteful and suggestive of the ballet to the woman of refined taste, and yet such is the delicacy of coloring in most American faces that in the blaze of brilliant lights their beauty seems faded, or is lost altogether. Particularly is this noticeable in boxes at the theater or opera, where the glare of the footlights increases the pallor of delicate women, and dims the coloring even of the freshest and fairest youthful faces.

The great beauties of bygone ages owed much of their triumph to the secrets of the toilet, but, unfortunately, so jealously were these secrets guarded that they were buried with their owners. But since it is every woman's bounden duty and privilege to make the best of the beauty which she possesses, whether the Creator has endowed her with a greater or lesser share of charms, a little chapter on the "makeup" for ladies may interest some fair reader.

Some one wise in the arts suggests that the appearance of the neck and arms is always most pleasing in evening dress when they have been sponged with perfumed tepid water, thoroughly dried, and then bathed with a lotion composed of equal parts of glycerine and rose water. While this is still damp a thick coating of powder is applied with a puff and left on till the last moment. If it is then rubbed in thoroughly but gently, the skin will seem beautifully white, and all traces of powder will have disappeared.

The scarlet tint of the lips is intensified by wetting them with perfume, and when that has dried touching them with cold cream to soften them. This treatment should not be applied very often, as the delicate membrane of the lips may become hard and dry.

Powder on the face shows less if applied with a bit of chamois rather than a puff, or if a puff is used the powder should be rubbed gently into the skin with a hare's foot or a small soft brush such as is used on babies' heads.

Eyebrows are wonderfully improved by rubbing good brilliantine into them, and then coaxing or training them into proper curves with a fine tooth comb or the fingers. The brilliantine does away with the need of the actor's pencil, as it darkens the hair.

There was once a famous lady who tinted her cheeks with mashed strawberries washed off with milk, but the inexpensive and easily obtained garden beet will give the cheek as fair and natural a bloom, and can in no sense be construed as rouge or paint. Just why it is so much more shocking to use a bit of color on the cheeks than any amount of powder on the face and arms and shoulders is a bit difficult to comprehend, but such seems to be the prevalent opinion among conservative women.

The homely vegetable is simply cut with a knife, and left to drain its juice out for beauty's use. The liquid should be applied with a camel's hair brush, and toned down after it dries with a coating of powder. But the woman who uses it must have such artistic inspirations and nicety of execution that even her most intimate friends will never imagine that she is "made up," or the whole process will result in disastrous failure.—New York Sun.

Adding Insult to Injury.

The other day a negro stole a pair of yellow shoes from a merchant on Decatur street and carried them home with him.

When he reached his house and tried them on he found they were No. 11, when he wore the small size of No. 13.

He very kindly carried the shoes back to the merchant from whom he had stolen them, and offered to exchange them for a size which would fit him.

The merchant recognized the shoes, a policeman was summoned, and the negro was soon in the lockup.—Atlanta Journal.

The First Advertiser.

Having a newspaper of his own, Franklin advertised everything that he bought or sold with the greatest amplitude and profusion—books, pamphlets, paper, rags, lampblack, ink, wine. He was the man who discovered the mighty power of advertising, and the first who perceived what an important thing it is that an advertisement should be written and printed in just the right way.—Youth's Companion.

Across the Dark Continent.

The dark continent has been crossed from coast to coast just sixteen times. Here, according to a writer in the French magazine Exploration, is a complete chronological list of the crossings:

1802–11, from Angola to Tete on the lower Zambesi, by the Portuguese, Honorate da Casta.

1838–48, from Mozambique to Benguela, by the Portuguese, F. J. Coimbra.

1853–6, from Benguela to the mouth of the Rovuma, by the Portuguese, Sylva Porto.

1854–6, from San Paulo de Loando to Quillimane, by Livingstone.

1865–6, from Tripoli to the Gulf of Guinea, by the German G. Rohlfs.

1873–5, from Bagamoyo to the Benguela, by Lieut. Cameron.

1874–7, from Bagamoyo to the mouth of the Congo, by Henry M. Stanley.

1877–9, from Benguela to Port Natal, by the Portuguese, Serpa Pinto.

1880–2, from Suakin to the mouth of the Niger, by two Italians, Matteuci and Massari.

1882–4, from San Paulo de Loanda to Saadani, by the German Maj. Wissman.

1882–4, from Port Natal to Benguela, by the Scotch missionary Arnat.

1884–5, from Mossamedes to Quillimane, by two Portuguese, Capello and Ivans.

1885–6, from the Stanley Falls to Bagamoyo, by the Swedish Lieut. Gleruff.

1885–7, from the mouth of the Congo to Quillimane, by the Austrian Oscar Lenz.

1887–9, from Angola to Mozambique, by the French Capt. Trevier.

1887–90, from the mouth of the Congo to Bagamoyo, by Stanley.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date August 16th 1889 made by Cornelius O Lawton and Ina M. Lawton, his wife, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 17th day of August 1889 in Book 43 of mortgages page 68.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable; and default having been made in the said mortgagors failing and neglecting to pay the sum of One hundred twenty dollars interest due on said mortgage debt on the First day of December 1890; and the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of seventeen hundred thirty dollars and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the lands described in and secured by said mortgage to-wit: The south half of the north east quarter and the south east quarter of section nineteen, and the north half of the north east quarter of section thirty in township one hundred forty-nine north of range forty three west situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 8th day of August 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of fifty dollars stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure of the same.

IS THE LOTTERY LAW VALID

A Cogent Argument Against Its Constitutionality—An Exhaustive, Learned and Logical

Presentation of the Case Against the Law—It is Argued That Congress Transcended Its Constitutional Powers in Passing It.

Honorable James C. Carter, the eminent jurist of New York city, has filed a very able, learned and interesting brief in the supreme court of the United States on the question of the constitutionality of the lottery law. Mr. Carter's client, George W. Dupre, was indicted Feb. 19, 1891, in the circuit court of the United States for the eastern district of Louisiana, for mailing a newspaper containing an advertisement of a lottery, contrary to the provisions of section 3894 of Revised Statutes of the United States. He demurred to the indictment, and his demurrer was, upon argument, overruled, and he was ordered to plead thereto, and was thereupon surrendered by his bail and committed to the custody of the United States marshal to be held until discharged in due course of law.

He thereupon filed his petition in the supreme court praying for a habeas corpus and certiorari to the end that he might be discharged from his imprisonment. The ground of his petition is that the statute under which he was indicted is unconstitutional and void.

The provisions of the lottery law are so well known to the public that they do not need to be repeated here.

In his first point in presenting the case to the court, Mr. Carter defines the power of congress as limited in two ways: First, it can exercise no power which has not been conferred upon it by the constitution. Second, it cannot exercise the powers which have been thus bestowed in ways or for purposes which the constitution forbids.

His first proposition is that the statute in question (R. S., sec. 3894) is invalid, as being an attempt to exercise power not conferred upon congress.

In support of this proposition Mr. Carter says:

It is not denied that congress, in the exercise of the power conferred upon it by the constitution to establish postoffices, and post roads, is clothed with the full incidental power of regulating such offices and roads; in other words, mail service. Nor is it denied that this incidental power of regulation embraces the power of so limiting the carriage of matter by mail as to render that service practicable; and consequently embraces a power of excluding matter from the mails for that purpose and to that extent. What we do assert is that any incidental powers which congress may thus exercise must be such only as, in the

LANGUAGE OF THE CONSTITUTION,

"are necessary and proper" for carrying into execution a general power expressly conferred; and that whether any such incidental power is "necessary and proper" must be, as this court has always considered it, a judicial question.

The last above-stated proposition was early settled by one of the most celebrated judgments of Marshall.

The first form which the judicial inquiry assumes is whether the means employed by congress in executing its admitted powers are appropriate, and apparently conducive to the legitimate end. If they are so, it matters not whether or not they are the best and most effective means. Congress may, all in the effort to select these. But they must be means. In other words, they must have some relation to the end—some tendency to accomplish it. Applying this test, the statute in question is plainly invalid. This seems scarcely to admit of debate.

The legitimate end is to furnish mail facilities to the people of the United States; and this means to all the people of the United States. No argument will be expected from us to show that the power thus bestowed upon congress was not one to furnish mail facilities to such persons as congress might, from caprice or favor or any arbitrary motive, choose to grant them.

The attempt in 1836 to procure the enactment of a law to prevent the delivery from the postoffices of alleged incendiary publications on the subject of slavery called forth an earnest debate in the United States senate. Webster at once seized upon the essential vice of such legislation. He declared "that congress had not the power, drawn from the character of the paper, to decide whether it should be carried in the mail or not."

The same view was supported by Senators Davis of Massachusetts, Calhoun of South Carolina, Clay of Kentucky and others. There was no pretence made by any one participating in the debate that the measure was in any way conducive to the end of establishing a mail service.

Mr. Carter cites innumerable decisions of the court in support of his propositions, and then goes on to say that no one will assert that congress has power to suppress lotteries any more than it has to suppress any other employment or pursuit. If congress had enacted a law directly forbidding under penalties the carrying on of the lottery business in any state, there would be no hesitation in any court in declaring it to be unconstitutional.

Inasmuch as a denial of mail facilities to persons wishing to carry on any particular pursuit must, of necessity, so far impede it as to greatly abridge the extent to which it may be carried on, and in many instances render it impossible, and as the argument under notice asserts the absolute right of congress, in its uncontrollable discretion, to refuse the facilities in any case (and such was Mr. Buchanan's view), it involves the assertion that congress has the right, by such action, to break up or impede any business or employment.

What power did congress really exercise when enacting this exclusion? Not certainly a power of regulating the mail service in order to make that service practicable, convenient and efficient.

The real power which congress attempted to exercise was to hamper and impede, and, if possible, to destroy the lottery business, in order to protect the people of the United States from the assumed demoralizing and dangerous tendencies of lotteries. Inasmuch as no one pretends that congress may pass a law directly suppressing lotteries on the ground that they have an immoral tendency, or, indeed, on any ground whatever, the question is whether it can pass a law, not directly suppressing them by declaring them to be crimes, but harassing and obstructing them by withdrawing from them facilities which are under its control, for no other reason than that it deems them crimes which it would suppress if it had the power.

This question must be promptly answered in the negative, for the power thus attempted to be exercised is a power to suppress lotteries and that alone. No such power can be derived from any express language in the constitution, nor by any just implication from any language in it. More than this, the possession of any such power by congress is utterly inconsistent with the whole theory of the between the general government and the states.

Nothing is clearer than that the carrying on of a lottery, or the dealing in the lottery business, or with a lottery, is, in every instance, an act done within a state, and the power to declare such acts crimes, or to punish them as such, or to obstruct or impede them because they are crimes, is lodged exclusively with the state governments. They possessed this power before the adoption of the constitution. They did not part with it by that adoption. Indeed, nothing was more sedulously guarded against by that instrument than the notion that the states had parted with any of their governmental rights over the conduct of their own citizens upon their own soil, except in respect to such concerns as were expressly intrusted to the federal government.

In respect to all rights other than those thus excepted, that government was to be as absolutely powerless as if it were a foreign state. To borrow the language of Mr. Chief Justice Waite in the United States vs. Cruikshank (92 U. S. 542, 550): "Within the scope of its powers, as enumerated and defined, it is supreme above the states; but beyond, it has no existence."

Whether a citizen of Louisiana, or of Maine, may carry on the lottery business, or do any act in the transaction of any business with a lottery, must therefore depend on the laws of those states respectively.

DIRECT LEGISLATION OF A STATE.

If congress may disfavor one occupation or business by withdrawing from it the benefit of the mails, it may another. Should those who favor the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating drinks obtain a majority in the national councils—and, perhaps, that is now within their power—they may forbid the carriage of mail matter relating to that business. And what limit could be set by this court to such an assumption of authority?

But the statute in question is invalid, not only for the reason that none of the powers conferred upon congress were sufficient to authorize it, but also because congress was by an express restriction upon the exercise of those powers, prohibited from making such a law. It is a law "abridging the freedom of the press" within the meaning of the first amendment.

At this point Mr. Carter reviewed at length the history of English jurisprudence on the liberty of the press, explaining its evolution from the period when it was in utter subjection to the state through its various trials and vicissitudes until it reached a condition of unquestioned freedom. He then took up the inquiry as to whether the statute under consideration is a law abridging that freedom. That such is its character is very clear, he said.

That freedom, he continued, includes not only the liberty of printing but the liberty of publishing. The former would be empty, indeed, without the latter. And the liberty of publishing must be co-extensive with the liberty of printing. And what is publishing? It is the communication to others of what is printed; in other words, it is circulating. Publishing and circulating are admitted to be synonymous. And what was the liberty of publishing which existed at the time of the adoption of the constitution? It was the liberty of circulating printed matter in all practicable and permissible forms, of which that by mail was by far the principal mode. It included letters, newspapers and packets.

The statute forbids the carriage by mail of any newspaper, circular, pamphlet, or publication of any kind containing matter concerning, it may be, a thousand subjects, if it also contains any "advertisement of any lottery or gift enterprise of any kind offering prizes dependent upon any lot or chance or containing any list of the prizes awarded at the drawings of any such lottery or gift enterprise." Thus, no man can circulate a newspaper in any state except upon condition that he consents to forego the benefit to be derived from any such advertisement, although in such state. Of course the conditions may, if this be allowed, be extended to any other advertisement relating to any business or subject; and thus the power is directly asserted by this legislation of congress to control the character of the whole newspaper press; for no one will pretend that the publication of newspapers is possible, on any large scale, if the benefit of the mail service is denied to them. If this power exists, what stands in the way of excluding newspapers which contain matters advocating the tariff or free trade, or the doctrines, or the candidates of a particular party?

And still further: The statute creates a censorship. Had it forbidden only the depositing in the mail of the matter described, it might be urged that every one was at liberty to make such deposit, subject to the hazard of being indicted and punished, and, therefore, that there was no previous restraint. But the prohibition forbids the postmaster from delivering any such newspaper, circular, pamphlet or publication. It arrests publication, for it arrests the communication of the matter to the public, or to those for whom it is intended. And whether publication should be thus arrested is submitted to the judgment of a postmaster! This is a perfect restoration of the censorship. That, indeed, as formerly existing, was interposed a stage earlier. It forbade the printing until the imprimatur was given. But this is interposed before publication, which is the essence of the censorship. It is previous restraint. The withholding of the tradatur of the postmaster is as effective as the withholding of the imprimatur of the censor.

One learned judge, startled by the sweeping scope of the language, which as clearly embraces the mailing of the prohibited matter to lottery dealers as by lottery dealers, has declared it incredible that congress could have intended to punish a man for a criminal offense who had simply written a letter to a lottery dealer, even if it were to order a ticket, and has cut down the statute so as to limit its prohibitions to lottery dealers. (United States vs. Clark, 22 Federal Reports, 708.) If a statute embraces provisions, some of which are within and some beyond the legislative power, the former may be saved if they can be read separately from the latter; but the separation cannot be effected by a heroic construction. Courts must untie knots, not cut them. "It would certainly be dangerous if the legislature could set a net large enough to catch all possible offenders, and leave it to the courts to step inside and say who could rightfully be detained and who should be set at large. This would, to some extent, substitute the judicial for the legislative department of the government." (United States vs. Reese, 92 U. S., 214. 221.)

CONGRESS HAD NO DIRECT POWER WHATEVER.

That congress has power to exclude from the mail any publication or letter tending to promote murder, arson, burglary, larceny—anything which is malum in se—or anything which tends to facilitate the commission of acts which it has power under the constitution to declare to be crimes and punish as such—piracy, and counterfeiting the coin, for instance, is not questioned.

Hence it has the power to forbid the mailing or delivery of obscene books or pictures. The publication or circulation of these was a perfectly well known offense to common law.

There are, as there were at the time of the adoption of the constitution, two methods by which printed matter might be circulated; one public and the other private.

The former was the principal one upon which the whole public mainly relied. It was constant, regular, abundant and sure; and, moreover, it had the capacity by law of excluding the other from the field, if not absolutely, at least for the most part, and of thus increasing its own efficiency. There was, and is, a similar, if not as great, difference between the methods as between the sending of merchandise by railroad and by private conveyance. This principal method of circulation is denied to certain printed matter, and yet it is declared that the freedom of circulation is not abridged!

It is quite evident that this conclusion proceeds upon the view—it can stand upon no other—that the freedom of circulating, admitted to be tantamount to freedom of publishing, is not abridged so long as the citizen has the right to circulate printed matter in any private manner which he alone, or with the assistance of others, may contrive, and has reference only to the right to circulate, and no reference to any right to enjoy the usual public means of circulating which his fellow citizens enjoy, and for which he is taxed and made to pay in common with them.

Against this view it seems to us more in accordance with sense and reason to say that the emphatic declaration of the constitution made to forever preserve the that congress should not pass any law abridging the freedom of the press, is violated by any law which takes away any of the ordinary methods of circulating printed matter.

There are two principal questions in this case, and none more important have ever been submitted to this tribunal. The first is whether congress may, in virtue of its authority to make laws necessary and proper in order to carry into execution the powers expressly granted to it, pass a law manifestly and avowedly for the sole purpose of suppressing a business within a state, which that state has the right to authorize, and over which congress has no direct control. The second is whether a law prohibiting the circulation of certain written and printed matter open to no objection save that it relates to a certain business not criminal in itself, and permitted by the laws of some of the states, by the ordinary and usual means of circulation provided by law for the public generally, abridges the freedom of circulation, and, by consequence, the freedom of the press.—[Boston (Mass.) MARY JANE'S BAKER.

Mary Jane, servant at Cowslip Villa, 7, Sunnybank Terrace, was in most things a perfect gem, but as Mr. Rollit, proprietor of that establishment and Mary Jane's master, declared, she was at times "confoundedly cheeky." Mary Jane herself, in her calmer, unruffled moments, did not deny the soft impeachment, but, with characteristic candor, readily acknowledged its correctness. "She knew it," she said "It was her failing."

Now, Mary Jane was such a sweet, good-tempered-looking girl that no one but those who knew her intimately would ever have suspected that her failing, as she put it, was a propensity for giving back as much as she received and a little over; but, although this one failing, to which she confessed, was hidden from the outside world, Mary Jane had another weakness which, taking a decidedly more tangible form, was clearly visible to other eyes than those of her master and mistress. Failing No. 2 was Joseph Tubbs, the baker.

Strange to say, just as Mary Jane's weakness No. 1 was known but to the Rollit household, so as regards failing No. 2 they were the last people to discover that it existed. For months the baker's man—for Joseph Tubbs was not yet a master—came and went, passing in flowery speeches with the half-quarterns of whites, compliments with the cottage loaves, and blandishments with the brown; and yet Mrs. Rollit, wide-awake woman as she was, never noticed how Mary Jane pricked up her ears when he knocked at the door, nor remarked what a surprising amount of time can be consumed in the delivery and receipt of two households and a tin.

But, in accordance with the principle that lookers-on see most of the game, the people across the road—the Jobsons, at No. 10, in particular—were not long before they perceived it. They soon noticed that the diurnal visits of the baker's man to Cowslip Villa were marked by various little distinctive features not to be observed in any of his calls at the adjoining houses. Never by any chance had he to knock a second time at that door, which was invariably opened almost as soon as he stepped up to it; and yet, strange to say, no such time-saving celerity was to be remarked in the subsequent proceedings, which seemed always to be spun out to the greatest possible length; so much so, that, as she bestowed on him a last parting glance, Mary Jane sometimes lingered so long it seemed as if she must shut her own saucy nose in the closing door.

But even with her movements thus narrowly observed, all would have gone well with Mary Jane had not Master Tommy Rollit taken it into his head to fraternize with Master Bertie Jobson, and thus paved the way for the bringing together of their respective mammas, who, once acquainted, soon progressed to calling upon each other; and, friendly relations being thus established, what was more natural than that, one day, Mrs. Jobson, after making sundry purchases of surprising cheapness at a sale, should send over to Mrs. Rollit to pop in and inspect these bargains?

Now it so happened that that day was a foggy one; but whether it was the knowledge that this being so his movements would be the more effectually concealed, or whether, after his long round in the dismal streets, Joseph Tubbs was overcome by the sight of Mary Jane's beauty, cannot be accurately ascertained. Certain it is, the audacious baker made an attempt to seize one of the housemaid's hands that supported the tray, with the result that in the struggle a loaf fell to the ground. And, what was more unfortunate still, Mrs. Jobson, over the way, keeping an eye on the opposite house as she waited for Mrs. Rollit's coming, was a witness of the whole transaction; and, feeling satisfied that she was only doing a neighborly action in putting Mrs. Rollit upon her guard against what was taking place, faithfully recounted all that she observed to that lady when she arrived.

Mrs. Rollit not a little angry with Mary Jane for her perfidious conduct, on her return at once descended into the lower regions of her establishment to interview the culprit.

Mary Jane, with the aid of a bad pen a penny bottle of ink of doubtful color, was busy writing a letter to her aunt.

"Mary Jane!" commenced Mrs. Rollit, severely, "what is this that I hear about you and the baker's man?"

Mary Jane started, and her face went crimson. Then she gave a little sniff, which Mrs. Rollit knew from experience meant war.

"What is it that you hear, ma'am?" she asked, when her cheeks had almost resumed their natural hue.

"I have heard," said Mrs. Rollit, fixing Mary Jane with as stern a glance as she could muster, "I have heard that when that man——"

Mary Jane dashed her pen upon the table. She stood erect, and with hands by her side confronted her mistress. When people took to calling her Joe "that man" it was more than she could stand.

"I know who told you," she said defiantly, "Mrs. Jobson. She's envious 'cos she can't get her own scarecrows of daughters married."

"Mary Jane!" cried Mrs. Rollit. "How dare you? I would have you speak respectfully of persons who visit this house. Remember that."

"The truth ain't disrespectful," retorted Mary Jane. "And as for this house—I won't stop in it any longer. Joe will soon have a shop of his own, and, thank goodness, I can go and live with my aunt till we're married. It don't matter to me whether I go or stay. So perhaps, ma'am, you'll accept a month's notice."

And with this she flounced out of the kitchen, leaving her mistress standing looking at the kitchen door dumfounded by this sudden outburst.

And so it happened that Mary Jane, after many happy years spent with the Rollits, came to give notice to leave. All on account of the baker.

But about a week before Mary Jane's month's notice expired a dire calamity befell the Rollits that eclipsed all other troubles. Mr. Rollit's partner had, unknown to him, been speculating heavily, and a series of disastrous losses soon brought him to such a position that he was seriously meditating whether he should face his creditors or disappear to foreign parts.

It was a terrible night for them when Mr. Rollit first brought home to his horrified wife the news of this disaster. And next morning, determined, if possible, to weather the impending storm, he proceeded to negotiate a mortgage on his house and raise money on all that it contained, in the hope that sufficient would be forthcoming to meet the bills as they fell due.

But as fast as the cash was procured it was again swallowed up, until at last there remained no further way in which he could obtain a single penny. If the firm could only hold on for another fortnight, it would be saved. Two hundred pounds would do it. Alas! it would be impossible to find another two hundred pence.

Of course Mary Jane, as she went about the house, could not but notice that something was amiss; but the enstrangement that had sprung up between mistress and maid forbade her making any sympathetic overtures, though on this, the last day of her stay, she would dearly have liked to do something to comfort the disconsolate woman sitting upstairs alone with her sorrow.

"Ah! here is master. He will soon cheer her up!" said Mary Jane, as she heard the familiar knock at the door. But when Mr. Rollit entered Mary Jane started in surprise to see the look of careworn dejection that was upon his haggard face, and trembling to hear him ask in a hollow voice, "Where is she?" as he tottered up the stairs.

When Mary Jane stood upon the hall mat, rooted to the spot. What ever could have happened? Then, unable longer to contemplate the prospect of leaving them without knowing if she could be of aid, she did a thing she had never done before. She crept upstairs and listened.

The door was not shut, only pushed to; and as Mary Jane overheard the wretched husband telling his wife of the failure of all his efforts to raise the required two hundred pounds, she began gradually to comprehend the situation.

"They're in debt," she whispered to herself. "That's why master took to having the cheaper butter!"

"Never mind, little woman," she heard Mr. Rollit say, courageously trying to render the trial easier for his wife to bear. "We have had many worries and troubles before, and borne them successfully together. Let us fate this one, great as it is, and I'm sure it will all come right in the end."

"It shall!" declared Mary Jane, as, suddenly possessed by a brilliant idea, she stole down stairs again, put on her hat, and noiselessly left the house, And as she ran along the streets, clutching the door-key in her hand, "He will do it for me. I know he will. He must!" she kept repeating.

Twenty minutes later she returned and let herself in. And behind her entered Joseph Tubbs.

Mary Jane once more crept upstairs and listened. Still the same low sound of voices from the room where husband and wife, in their misery, were yet striving to find some means of averting the ruin that to-morrow would bring with it.

"No. We are powerless. Two hundred pounds to-morrow would save us, but in this world you don't find people ready to lend their money merely on the security of an honest man's word."

The door opened suddenly. Mary Jane's voice was heard, whispering vigorously, and husband and wife leapt to their feet as a broad-shouldered man stumbled in and stammered. "Yes, you do."

Startled by this intrusion, Mrs. Rollit hurriedly turned up the gas, revealing the desolate-looking room, with its empty grate, before which they had been sitting. "The baker's man!" she cried.

Mary Jane gave her sweetheart a violent nudge. And his face became very red as he awkwardly began:—

"Yes'm. I am the baker's man. Mary Jane said you were in trouble, and that a couple of hundreds would put you on your feet again. I know all about what you've done for her, took her from the orphan school, and made the woman of her, that's going to be my wife. I've got a bit saved and had a few pounds left me that I shan't want till we get married and start a business of our own, I can manage two hundred. Will you take it?"

Mr. Rollit leapt forward. "Do you mean it," he cried, hardly able to believe that he should yet preserve his credit and his home.

"I do mean it," said the baker sturdily. "I ain't got it in cash, but you can have the bits of paper that represent it first thing in the morning.

Unable to speak, Mr. Rollit seized him by the hand; while his wife, with tears running down her cheeks, hung on their preserver's every word spellbound. And behind them, Mary Jane, her eyes glistening, watched the face of the baker as if it were that of a god.

"I don't want no security," continued he, rather huskily, visibly affected by their gratitude. "What you've done for Mary Jane in the past is good enough for me. But by way of interest—perhaps you'll be able to let her stay on here till we're married!"

The Bully and the Butt.

The recent resignation of his chair in the Senate by Mr. Reagan, of Texas, has served to recall the incident which led him to leave Tennessee, where he was born, and settle in the Lone Star State. It appears that one day he went to mill with a grist to be ground, and after he had waited in line until his turn came, he was rudely addressed by a man who proposed to step in ahead of him, and threatened to throw him out of the window unless he would yield his place. Mr. Reagan, the story goes, like all the rest of the people in the neighborhood, was more or less terrorized by this desperado, and in fear of his life rushed for him, butted him in the stomach with his head, and literally lifted him off his feet and flung him through the window. When the desperado disappeared, the consequence of his act flashed upon young Reagan's mind. He instantly supposed that he had killed a man, that he would be hanged for it, and scared almost to death, he rushed downstairs, unhitched his horse and lit out across the country for Texas. The man was not killed, but got a good shaking up. He soon moved to Texas, and was a friend to Reagan in after life.

NOT ALWAYS TO THE SWIFT.

A Man Who Got Along in the World by Attending to Business.

"This is my first regular trip on the South Side line," said the loquacious passenger to the driver of the night car. "I've been a West Sider for a year. Before that I lived on the North Side. Before that I lived in half a dozen suburbs. 'Move every May' is my motto. A man wants a change.

"That's so," said the driver.

"Same way with my business," continued the loquacious passenger. "I've just gone into the real estate business. Before that I tried the Board of Trade, Before that I was ticket broker. Oh, I've been most everything—a regular jack-of-all-trades. 'Twon't do for a man to stay too long in a thing and get rusty."

"That's so," said the driver.

"Sometimes I'm up; sometimes I'm down. I've had my carriage and pair, and I've tried walking. I'm down now. But I ain't kicking. 'Variety's the spice of life you know."

"That's so," replied the driver.

"Driving must be mighty monotonous. 'Tis, ain't it?"

"Oh, so-so."

"Any money in it.

"'Bout $75 a month."

"Got anything laid by?"

"House and lot."

"What're they worth?"

"I've been offered $7500."

"Got a family?"

"I've raised eight—five boys and three girls."

"Been driving for the company long?"

"Oh, 'bout twenty-two years."—Chicago Tribune.

Just Her Spite.

Minnie: "Ach, Elsie, have you heard that Herr Floitmaier proposed to me last night?"

Elsie: "If I didn't think he would!"

Minnie: "What! Did you expect it?"

Elsie: "Certainly; for when I rejected him, only the day before yesterday, he declared he would go and do something desperate!"—Tagliche Rundschau.

"More Circulation!"

Is a cry that has frequently been heard in the newspapers and on the stump recently. Money is a very powerful affair, but it is not as important as health. Men who lack health are willing to give a good deal of money for a stronger and purer circulation of the blood; and yet not much money is required to secure this ground work and basis of vitality. To the weak, the feeble and the debilitated Swift's Specific S.S.S. insures a plentiful circulation of rich and pure blood. This means, of course, that this powerful vegetable remedy destroys the germs and drives out the seeds of disease. Wherever the blood is to be purified and the system built up it may be depended on to do the work promptly and effectually. Mr. John O. Rogers, of Dana, Illinois, says: "My wife was for years an invalid from a blood trouble, and suffered terribly at times from erysipelas. A few bottles of S.S.S. cured her. She considers it the best blood purifier and tonic she ever saw."

Atty.-Gen. Spencer has revised a former decision given to the effect that the new law allowing $200 exemptions from personal property assessments would be operative this year. He now holds that no exemptions can be made.

Olaf Johnson, a boarder at a Scandinavian hotel Grand Forks was taken suddenly ill and carried to the county hospital the other evening. He was found dead the next morning in the water closet. A post mortem revealed pericarditis. His heart weighed 21 ounces.

Peter Nelson, a Scandinavian about 30 years old, committed suicide by hanging, in the barn of County Sheriff Peter Christianson, 15 miles northeast of Forman. He has been managing Sheriff Christianson's farm for the past two years and was always steady and sober. No cause is assigned for the act.

The executive board of the new Lutheran college at Grand Forks has extended a call to Rev. A. C. Anderson, of Albert Lea, Minn., for the presidency of the college, and Prof. A. M. Hove, of Augsburg seminary, Minneapolis, to the chair of mathematics. Other members of the faculty will be elected later.

Harry Morrison, "Kid" Stiles and Jack McGregor were arrested and placed in jail at Fargo charged with having stolen or aiding and abetting in stealing furs from the store of C. G. Schulz. The police think an organized gang are working Fargo and Moorhead, the principals of which are all residents of the two cities.

The St. Anthony & Dakota elevator burned at Crystal. The fire when discovered was bursting through the sides of the building. Two thousand five hundred bushels of grain, two horses and two colts were burned. No other damage except the burning of 60 ties of the side track and bending of the rails. The loss is $12,000; insurance unknown.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

A cold wave is now sweeping over St. Lawrence from the northeast. It is cool enough for fires.

Gunderson, the wife murderer, has been found insane by the jury at Aberdeen and committed to the county jail pending orders of the court.

St. Lawrence has relet her artesian well contract to a new man, the first contractor having failed to show up. The price is $3.25 per foot, complete.

Pete Buttler was arrested charged with the murder of James Cassidy recently assassinated at Richland. On being interviewed he stated he would reveal some sensational secrets after the examination.

The farm house of W. G. Packer, seven miles south of Doland, burned. None of the household goods were saved. The fire originated from a kerosene stove. There was no insurance.

So far the state has failed to secure convictions in liquor cases at Aberdeen and all untried cases have been continued until next term. Attempts will be made to get a new trial in the case of the state against O'Toole, for attempt to rape.

A young man named Chris Krindler was slugged by a negro hanger-on at King & Franklin's circus at Hot Springs. He was inveigled out behind the tent and an ugly cut made in the left temple, a terrible gash on the left side of the head, also his arm broken.

The First National bank of Mitchell is one of four banks in this state where the surplus and undivided profits are in excess of the capital. The officers of this institution are John D. Lawler, president; A. M. Bowble, vice president; J. Gilbert, cashier; H. R. Kibbee, assistant cashier.

Supt. Wilbsie, of the Harney Peak Tin Mining company at Rapid City, denies that there is any discord between the English and American directors of the company. The men are working night and day, he says, sinking five shafts, and arrangements have been made for the erection of the reduction works.

Mrs. Ruff, wife of John Ruff, near Armour, was found dead at her home. When her husband left in the morning for his work on the farm she was well and engaged in her household duties. He returned at noon to find her lying on the floor, dead. Heart disease is the supposed cause. Mrs. Ruff was a bride of but 26 days.

WISCONSIN.

The Northwestern fuel company's boarding house was partially consumed by fire at West Superior. The damage is estimated at $1,000.

Mrs. J. S. Briggs, of Stockholm, a prominent teacher in Pierce county, was taken to the state hospital at Mendota for treatment recently.

The school board of Eau Claire has adopted the plans of Thurman D. Allen, of Minneapolis, for a new high school building to cost about $35,000. A number of plans were submitted.

The work of placing buoys at the entrance to Superior bay has been completed. Vessels bound for Superior harbor may now arrive via the natural entry if preferred.

Arrangements have been consummated at Ashland among some of the leading capitalists for an extensive sanitarium to be located at Prentice park, in the suburbs of Ashland.

While Chas. Cewans and Clarence Waite were celebrating the Fourth in cowboy style at Waukesha, the latter shot the former in the back, inflicting a dangerous wound.

Fire destroyed O. R. Schiffen's two-story hotel in Rice Lake. Loss, $3,000; insurance, $700. Part of the furniture was saved. This is the third time this hotel has been on fire in the last few weeks.

A little 2-year-old child of John Dubinski was smothered to death at Ashland between two feather bed ticks. The parents were summoned before the coroner, but their testimony discredited all belief of wilful murder.

Judge Bundy decided adversely to the Mississippi river logging company in their suit with the town of Frankfort and Pepin county in regard to the payment of personal property tax levied by the town last winter. Their defeat before Judge Bundy sends the case to the supreme court.

A young man was arrested at La Crosse for wrecking a train on the Dubuque division and causing the death of Engineer Todd, two others were in it, and, as they are yet at large, the officers decline to give any names or other information. The party arrested is only a boy.

Fred Douvanell, a day laborer about thirty years old, fell in an epileptic fit at Chippewa Falls, and before medical aid could reach him, expired. Douvanell, who was known to be subject to fits, was also a hard drinker, which may have been one of the causes of death.

The Burlington train arriving at La Crosse from the north brought the body of an elderly well dressed man, who was run over four miles west of Trempealeau. The train came upon him sitting on a trestle as though he had fallen and hurt himself and was not able to rise. His whole appearance shows that he was not a tramp or vagrant, but there is nothing to identify him.

IOWA.

The Iowa miners have decided to continue their strike.

Marshal Conrad of Calliop has arrested George Lake and Riley Berry for burglarizing a hardware store at Wood River, Neb.

Two brothers by the name of Wallace, who have been carrying on the auctioneer business at Dubuque for some time, were arrested on the charge of impersonating United States revenue officers.

The Sheriff endeavored to arrest two men for burglary at Oakley while they were hiding in a box car. One was caught and the other got away. They are thought to belong to a gang that has of late committed numerous depredations in this vicinity.

Louis A. Sirovey, a well-to-do farmer living in College township, near Cedar Rapids, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. It is supposed he committed the act during a fit of temporary insanity.

As a large crowd was standing in J. H. Colver's grocery store, at Mason City, some thief went to the safe and secured in drafts, checks and cash $890. Stephen Hammond, of Meservey, is under arrest, and there is strong evidence against him.

D. W. Wood, an attorney of Kingsley, one time famous as the prosecutor of saloons in Sioux City at the time of the Haddock murder, was arrested under an indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses. Bail in the sum of $1,000 was furnished.

The extensive clothing house of Platt Bros., one of the oldest clothing firms in Dubuque, gave a chattel mortgage for $32,000 to secure the First national bank of Dubuque and others. Their embarassment is caused by dullness of trade and loss by fire sustained a year and a half ago. They have been in business in this city for nearly 30 years. It is thought that arrangements may be made by which the firm will be enabled to continue in business.

LOVE'S RUGGED PATH.

Mary's Lover Imprisoned in the Coal Cellar.

The late Dr. Wightman, sitting up later than usual one night, sunk in the profundities of a great idea, imagined he heard a sound in the kitchen inconsistent with the quietude and security of a manse; so, taking his candle, he proceeded to investigate the cause. His foot being heard in the passage, the housemaid began with earnestness to damp the fire, as if preparing for bed.

"Ye're late up to-night, Mary."

"I'm just rakin' the fire, sir, and gaun to bed."

"That's right, Mary, I like timeous hours."

On his way back to the study he passed the coal cellar, and, turning the key, he took it with him. Next morning at an early hour there was a rap at his bedroom door and a request for the key to light the fire.

"Ye're too soon up, Mary; go back to your bed yet."

Half an hour later there was another knock, and a similar request in order to prepare breakfast.

"I don't want breakfast so soon, Mary; go back to your bed."

Another half hour and another knock, with an entreaty for the key as it was washing day. This was enough. He arose and handed out the key, saying:—

"Go and let the man out."

Mary's sweetheart had, as the doctor shrewdly suspected, been imprisoned in the coal cellar, where, Pyramis and Thisbe like, they had breathed their love to each other through the key-hole.

When Playing Cards Were First Used.

The French are believed to be the first people in Europe to use playing cards, and, as first made, cards were supposed to represent the different classes of persons in the kingdom. The heats were the "choir-men," or ecclesiastics, and early cards of this suit have a cope which, in form, somewhat resembles a heart. The figure by us called a spade was originally a pike head, and typified the nobility and soldiery; the artisans were represented by a stone tile, now known as diamond, while the formers were symbolized by the trefoil or clover leaf, by us called a club. The four kings were originglly David, Alexander, Cæsar and Charlemagne, representing the four great monarches, while the queens were Argine, Esther, Judith, and Pallas, typical of birth, piety, fortitude and wisdom, Argine being an anagram of Regna. The knaves were either knights or servants to knights, but which is uncertain, though the former conjecture is the more probable, from the fact that on cards of an early date appear the names of famous knights. The French cards of the present day retain the names already mentioned of the kings and queens.—Globe-Democrat.

A Bull-Fight With Fun in It.

In ordinary accounts of bull-fights you hear of the sickening sight of disemboweled horses, and bleeding men, and butchered bulls. This went on with ever-changing fun, shouts, and laughter, but no one was either hurt or got the cocardes. Whoever thinks it is merely a joke to go down into one of these enormous arenas and snatch the tiny rosette from between the horns of a beast who has been trained all his life to keep him from getting it, will find that he has a large piece of work cut out for him. For fun a Provencal bull-fight beats a pantomime. For danger and expertness it is far ahead of anything I ever saw. As it goes on every Sunday in the summer time all over Provence, Frenchmen regard it as too common an affair to be worth description. Foreigners never going there at the proper season,—the summer and autumn,—never or scarcely ever see it. And even down in La Camargue, on the banks of the Rhone, in little towns, all of which save Aigues-Mortes are unknown, the courses, like base-ball matches, are held every fete-day. They are the sport of the people, and have much more character in the small towns.—Century.

DEEP IN THE MIRE.

Startling Disclosures Made Before Various Committees of Inquiry in the Canadian Parliament.

Many High Officials in Public Departments Susceptible to the Wily Boodlers.

Ottawa, Ont., July 14.—There is great excitement in political circles over the startling disclosures made before various parliamentary committees of inquiry during the past few weeks.

The evidence adduced thus far goes to show that the public officials are corrupt, and that an utter state of demoralization prevails in all public departments.

The opposition feel very jubilant over the progress made from day to day in unearthing fresh scandals. It is confidently predicted that before the session closes the government, already reduced to a majority of twenty, will find itself sitting on the opposition benches. The various charges have aroused the entire country, and the independent newspapers do not hesitate to declare that the administration is drifting into a state of chaos.

It remains to be seen what defense Premier Abbott and his associates will make at the proper juncture. They discussed the situation at an all-day sitting of the cabinet Saturday.

The decision was reached that prompt measures will be adopted in purging the various departments. Wholesale dismissals will follow in a few days. The government is all the more embarrassed owing to the approach of the bye elections. These constitute at least fifty in number, and will be held within six months or probably at an earlier date.

Public opinion is setting in favor of the Liberals, who also propose to make as much capital as possible with the farming element out of the hopelessness of looking to Washington so long as the present administration remains in office. Sir Richard Cartright and the Hon. Mr. Laurier, the Liberal leaders, have already laid out a vigorous plan of campaign. They propose to stump the country at the earliest opportunity, and will call into the service all their powerful speakers. Indications point to a clean sweep for the Liberals in Quebec. The Hon. Mr. Mercer, the Liberal premier, has promised to co-operate with all his forces at his command. Tory corruption and misrule will be the watchword in Ontario, where the wholesale extravagance of the government is seen in its worst forms. Meanwhile the opposition continue to weave the fatal web, which promises to drive from public life Sir Hector Langevin and Sir Adolphe Caron.

FOR A RECIPROCITY TREATY

At the parliamentary committee various witnesses have given damaging evidence against the defence. Witness Owen E. Murphy, a contractor, who by the way is the fugitive ex-treasurer of the New York school board, swore that he personally paid Sir Hector Langevin the sum of $15,000 for awarding Murphy's firm a $1,000,000 contract. The witness, although told a straight story, which seems to be well supported by other circumstantial evidence. Nicholas K. Connelly, an Irish-American, who had an interest in the boodling contracting firm, denies the correctness of Murphy's allegation to Henry, one of the counsel of the public works department. Witness said there was no truth in the statement made by Murphy in his evidence here, that witness had reported a payment of $10,000 to Sir Hector Langevin and his son La Force. He had never made any such payment and never said he did. He also contradicted all the statements made by Murphy with respect to payments by or on behalf of the firm to Sir Hector Langevin or his son or son-in-law.

Mr. Tarte, M. P., a former government supporter, who is now conducting the prosecution, says that more damaging revelations are yet to come. Both Sir Hector and Sir Adolphe Caron, the minister of militia, he says, will be glad to seek retirement within a few days. The scapegoat thus far is H. F. Perley, chief engineer of the public works department. Witness Murphy testified that he gave Perley jewelry and diamonds valued at $1,685. Mr. Perley, who hitherto has enjoyed an unblemished reputation, gave evidence the following day to the alarm and consternation of the government. He CONFESSED THE WHOLE TRANSACTION.

He is now under suspension, and his resignation will be accepted as soon as the inquiry concludes. Although the government has a majority in the committee the evidence is so damaging that a report favorable to the prosecution is likely to be submitted to the house. There is no other alternative.

The scandal in the interior department is no less serious. The evidence adduced upon oath goes to show that many clerks signed checks under assumed names and drew pay for extra work. This is a direct violation of the civil service act. Mr. A. M. Burgess, deputy minister of the department, is also involved. It was proven that he drew a balance due his father-in-law by doubling a check payable to another clerk. He has already tendered his resignation. Several other public departments will be overhauled next.

The Liberals propose to arraign Postmaster General Haggert, who is a member of the administration. They say they can prove that a lady employed in the department went to Europe and drew her salary during her absence. Mr. Haggert says the story is untrue and that he can offer a full explanation. All in all the situation for the government is a serious one, and stirring events may be expected shortly. If the cabinet holds together long enough a reconstruction will take place after the session.

Poisonous Dried Beef.

Huron, S. D., Special Telegram, July 14.—Fred Liepold is the only one now sick of the nine persons poisoned here Saturday evening from eating dried beef containing some poison matter. Physicians to-night say he is out of danger and will be all right in a few days. It is thought the meat was diseased before being dried. It was purchased from a local dealer, who bought it in Chicago. Only those who partook of this particular piece were made sick.

Driven to Her Death.

Yankton, S. D., Special Telegram, July 14.—Katie Kratz, a girl recently employed at the Merchants hotel, committed suicide to-day by jumping into the Missouri river. The cause is said to have been the persecution of the girl by her parents on account of certain rumors involving her chastity. The body cannot be found.

A Sunday Stabbing Affray.

Algona, Iowa, Special Telegram, July 14.—Herman Rantzow, Mike Hubbard and Seymour Allen indulged in too much booze yesterday. As the result of it they got into a fight. The two first named attacked Allen with knives, seriously wounding him. They are under arrest.

CAMPBELL OR KLINE.

Anti-Campbell Men Combine Under the Cry of "Anything to Beat Campbell."

Cleveland, Ohio, July 14.—The delegates to the Ohio Democratic convention are rapidly congregating from all sections of the state, and as the decisive day draws nearer interest in the event deepens with every passing hour.

It is now conceded by all the neutral and unprejudiced that Gov. James E. Campbell will be renominated for governor on the first ballot. His opponents are Lawrence T. Neal of Chillicothe and Virgil P. Kline of Cleveland.

Up to this time Neal has been his principal competitor, the only apparent following of Kline being the Cuyahoga county delegation, which was instructed for the Cleveland lawyer largely as a matter of city and county pride. But the leaven of politics works queer results, and the boom in a few brief hours has assumed a proportion which makes that gentleman apparently the only formidable opponent of Gov. Campbell.

The logic of the situation has caused all anti-Campbell men to combine under the battle cry of "anything to beat Campbell," and the question with them is no longer which of the governor's competitors has the most votes, but which is the most available candidate and the most likely to succeed as a dark horse? To this query there is little division of sentiment. Kline is absent on his way to Europe, too far away to give pledges and promises, and his pronounced low tariff convictions and eminent campaigning qualities mark him as the most available candidate of the opposition, since the feud engendered between the Neal and Campbell factions gives the former little hope of increasing his strength in the convention. Mr. Kline has managed his campaign

WITH CONSUMMATE DIPLOMACY.

When his home county instructed for him he received the news jocularly and gave no evidence of being an earnest aspirant for gubernatorial honors. On the contrary, he was on terms of warmest friendship with both Campbell and Neal, the leading competitors, and one of the most serious charges which the absence of the Cuyahoga county candidate makes it impossible for him to answer is that he recently on separate occasions pledged his support to both Campbell and Neal. He has left a letter, however, with Maj. W. W. Armstrong of Cleveland, which will be read in the convention on Wednesday, declaring his willingness to serve his party if selected by the convention as the candidate for governor.

It now looks as though the anti-Campbell delegates, when nominations are declared in order on Wednesday, will ask for an informal ballot, but that the governor's friends will oppose this and demand business and a formal ballot. In this event Campbell will be found before the roll is called to have three-fifths of the votes of the convention.

A MURDER IN THE WOODS.

Pat Ryan Killed and Mutilated North of Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., Special Telegram, July 14.—News has been received here of a cold-blooded murder which was committed at George Barclay's lumber ranch, thirty-five miles up the river from this place. The details are very meager as yet. Phillip Provost, the courier who brought the news, stayed only long enough to notify the coroner, and Sheriff Spalding has gone to the scene of the bloody tragedy.

The murdered man's name was Pat Ryan, well known in Brainerd and along the river, where he has worked for some years. His body was found behind Barclay's barn cut almost beyond recognition.

Several stories are afloat as to who committed the deed, one being that a man named Ellis and Ryan were on a drunk; that in a fight Ellis murdered him, to substantiate which it is said that Ellis' knife was found sticking in his body. Another story is that Bunga Buck, a notorious Indian in these parts, enticed Ryan into the woods behind the barn and stabbed him to death. The sheriff will return tomorrow, at which time the mystery will probably be cleared up. The body of Ryan arrived from Barclay's, and was buried tonight on account of decomposition, having laid since Friday night. An inquest has been held, but no news of the decision.

Fred Ellis and his squaw wife are under arrest; also three Indians. The party will arrive in Brainerd by daylight to-morrow.

BOTH WRONG.

Washington's Governor Talks About the Nicolay-McClure Controversy.

Olympia, Wash., Special Telegram, July 14.—Gov. Ferry, who sat in the first Republican convention in Illinois and was an intimate friend of Abraham Lincoln, has been interviewed relative to the controversy between John G. Nicolay and Editor McClure. Gov. Ferry says both Nicolay and McClure are wrong in some points.

"I was a delegate myself to the convention of 1861," he said, "and on my way from Illinois to the Monument City I called on Lincoln in Washington. One of the primary motives was to obtain from Lincoln an expression regarding his choice for vice president. I brought it up during my call upon the president but he gave an evasive answer. Later on I again expressed the desire to know whom he desired to see nominated, and again he answered evasively. Just before leaving the White House I again brought the question to his attention. This time he said, 'It is sometimes advisable to leave things as they are.'"

HURT IN A RUNAWAY.

Six Persons Severely Injured, Two Probably Fatally.

Aspen, Colo., July 14.—Frank Ellis, the eighth victim of the Midland disaster at Aspen Junction, died early this morning. Leonard and wife cannot live, and Thomas O'Donnell's principal injuries are from inhaling the scalding steam, he not being so badly burned about the face as the others. It is also now reported that none of the injured can survive, the loss of cuticle and the shock to their nervous systems being too great.

Miss Mary O'Donnell, the ninth victim of the accident, died this evening. Her brother, Thomas O'Donnell, is alive, but may die at any moment. The rest of the injured are in a fair way to recovery. The coroner began the inquest over the dead this afternoon. Conductor Miller, of the excursion train, was the only witness called. He said he did not know how the accident occurred, as his train was backing down very slowly and all precautions had been taken.

The Truth Will Be Known.

New York, July 14.—The body of Harris Smiler, one of the four murderers who were executed at Sing Sing last Tuesday, will be exhumed to-morrow at Woodlawn cemetery by Coroner Levy and an autopsy made by Dr. William T. Jenkins, the coroner's physician. The inquest will be held next Monday. The coroner says he will have a jury composed of intelligent medical men and electrical experts to sit at the inquest. Subpœnas will be served on the witnesses who were present at the execution at Sing Sing and Warden Brown will be summoned during the week.

According to Bradstreets' the wheat reserves are the smallest they have been in nine years. On July 1st there was a total of 33,035,759 bushels of wheat in sight. On the same date in 1888 the total was 77,442,416 bushels, while in 1886 the total was 169,000,000, This looks as if there might be good fair prices for wheat for some time to come.—Lumberman.

Did you see the notice I gave you? said the editor to the grocer. Yes, and I don't want another. The man, who says I've got plenty of sand, that the milk I sell is of the first water, that there are no flies on my sugar, and that my butter is the strongest in the market, may mean well, but he is not the man I want to flatter me a second time.—Harper's Bazar.

The school board has decided to have the lower part of the school house plastered and repaired. They are also thinking of having the upper story finished. This is a very necessary step as the number of scholars in the district has greatly increased and the lower room will not be large enough to accommodate them next term. The matter will be brought up at the annual meeting on July 18th.

Now comes Prof. Wiggins with a new weather theory, submitting that telephone wires and wire fences are the cause of drought. they get in the way of rain clouds and break them all up. It would seem to the common mind that any rain cloud that got so low down as a barb-wire fence ought to be able to sink a few feet lower and go under. May be Prof. Wiggins has not reflected that wire fences over half a mile high are very unusual.

HARVEST TRIPS.

The Great Northern Railway will run Harvest Excursions from St. Paul Mineapolis, Duluth and West Superior, to this and other points north of Fergus Falls, Breckenridge and Wahpeton, to Buford inclusive, on July 21st and August 4th, at ONE FARE for round trip, good for 30 days. Our citizen are urged to write friends in the east to come and help us gather our abundant crops, visit us, and then make their home in this country.

White Earth, Minn, July 6.—A party is searching for the remains of an eighteen year old girl, at the agency, six miles south of here and should they be found a lynching may break the monotony of this quiet neighborhood.

Christina the daughter of Peter Teuscho, has been missing since last Wednesday morning. On Tuesday evening she attended a a dance against the wishes of her mother and brothers. When she returned her mother tried to kill her with a knife, but was prevented by the father, whereupon the old woman got a club and beat her senseless, and Joe, the brother, belabored her with a chair, and Antoine, another brother, struck her with a good stick cutting a frightful gash in the cheek. He then fell upon her and chewed both her arms until the blood ran in streams, The poor girl then in a semi-unconscious condition, crawled out of doors and into the brush, since which time she has not been seen. The facts of her terrible treatment were obtained from her sister Mrs. Redlatte, who was an eye-witness of the affair. The trio have been placed under arrest.

A party of government surveyors under charge of Surveyor Jackson have gone out to the Indian reservation on government work. Their work is to survey and take outlines and elvations of the Red Lake and upper Mississippi rivers so as to ascertain the possibility of building dams to be used as reservoirs. This work is done under act of congress to ascertain whether the lakes at the heads of these rivers can be dammed and used for reservoirs without overflowing the surrounding country. The party works under the direction of Engineer Jones, of the corps of U. S. Coast survey.

Ludwig von Delcke, of Iceland, has arrived in this country with a proposition to remove the entire population of frozen island to Alaska. Iceland has been gradually growing colder for many years, and the time is at hand when it will be entirely uninhabitable. Sweden might object to such a proceeding but the Icelanders apparently have no choice if they would continue to live. It is claimed that many parts of Alaska are capable of cultivation, and it is certain the thrifty and frugal Icelanders would be a vast improvement on the present mongrel native element in our far-off territory.—Thirteen Towns.

The state authorities killed four men successfully and quickly on July 7th at Sing-Sing. N. Y., by the new method, electricity. The daily papers say that death was instantaneous and much preferable to hanging, or the older method of be-heading. The men were James J. Slocum who killed his wife at No 7 Cherry street on December 31st, 1889; Harris A. Smiler, ex-salvation army captain and bigamist who murdered his second wife on April 3, 1889; Joseph Wood, a negro aqueduct laborer who murdered a fellow laborer, an Italian named Carlo Ruffi, in May 1889; and Shibya Jugiro, an ignorant Japanese sailor who brutally killed his fellow countryman Mura Cauni, in a James street boarding house.—Polk County Review.

"With british tin and Welch workmen our native industry hopes to make American tin plate," says a free trade contemporary. "British tin" is imported almost wholly to England from the Straits of Malacca, and can be imported to the United States as cheaply as to England. It constitutes only 1 to 4 per cent. of tin plate the balance being sheet iron or sheet steel, which we make or can make in unlimited quantities. But "the tin plate liar" has no hesitation in making it appear that Great Britain is a great tin producing country, or using any other deception to cry down the movement to establish an industry in America that will save us from paying $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 annually to English iron, steel and tin manufacturers.—N. Y. Press.

Hulukulu, one of the South African envoys sent by his king to England, will go home, change his name to Dennis and prepare for death. He was induced to talk into a phonograph in London the other day, and a few hours afterward he was brought into its vicinity again and the machine put in motion. A pale brindle hue spread itself over the deep mahogany of his visage as his words and voice were duplicated, and his countenance took on an expression of settled melancholy as he gasped: "I can lie no more; my words are recorded." As Mr. Hulukulu is a prominent pollitition in his own tribe, the full force of this declaration can be well understood.

Toledo Blade: Not a week rolls around that a new political organization or secret political society does not come to the front. The latest one is in Warren county, middle Tennessee. It is an association of farmers, with the title, "Farmers' Reliance." Its platform is one we can heartily indorse, and it possesses the merit of extreme brevity. Here it is:

Work hard ten hours in the day.

Work 300 days in the year.

Never go to town without carrying something to sell, and never buy anything without paying for it.

We submit to those farmers of the west who seem to think a printing press can turn out all the money that we need, and therefore, it is superfluous to work.

Secretary Foster's monthly report shows the government debt to be $1,545,000,000, with $53,893,000 cash balance in the treasury. The decrease in the debt since the administration began is about $135,000,000. In twenty-five years the debt has been reduced nearly one-half. The average annual reduction is nearly $50,000,000. Every year approximately this sum of indebtedness is knocked off the total and a corresponding lump of interest is saved. At this rate, another generation will see the books square, with not a dollar of liability.

Compared with other nations in size of debt, the United States is eight in the list. France leads the procession of debtors with a debt of $6,427,000,000, or over four times our own. Italy's debt nearly trebles the American and amounts to $4,362,000,000. Russia, with a debt of $3,731,000,000, and Great Britain with $3,449,000,000, are not far behind. Contrary to the cries of demagogues, the United States is one of the most economical governments on earth. In wealth, population, extent of territory and low rate of taxation we are in the front rank of nations. Yet few eclipse us in the minimizing of expenditures and in the liquidating of debts.—Minneapolis Tribune.

THE ILL STARRED OPAL.

Experiences of a Detroit Physician with the Unlucky Stone.

The opal is said to be an unlucky stone, and even at this day many people refrain from wearing this little gem on account of their belief in the old time superstition. A prominent Detroit physician, who does not desire the publication of his name, is a firm believer in the balefulness of the opal, and a few days ago he told the following story to a party of friends:

"Some years ago," said the doctor, "I had presented to me a pretty opal and I prized it very highly. The popular superstition concerning the stone did not worry me in the least, and the gem at once adorned my shirt front Shortly after this I met with an accident, followed by several others, and while none was serious they annoyed me a good deal. Some of my friends attributed the bad luck that seemed to follow me to the opal, and finally I threw it aside, vowing never to wear it again. Several years passed. One day I received a telegram from a friend of mine at Toledo, O., stating that he would be in Detroit that day, and asking me to meet him at the Russell house and take dinner with him. In making my toilet I found that I had no ornament for my shirt front, and desiring to appear at my best I resorted to the opal.

"I met my friend and he accepted an invitation to take a drive with me. I sent up home for my horse and buggy, and at the conclusion of our pleasure trip around the city my Toledo friend was in love with my horse and offered me $400 for him. I thought a great deal of the animal, and decided to think over the matter until the next day. That night I was awakened from my sleep by the sound of fire engines, and on looking out of the window I beheld my own barn going up in smoke, together with my $400 horse and the rest of the contents. The story of the opal again occurred to me, and my misfortune was laid at the door of the harmless stone. It was again discarded for some time. One day I was at the house of Mr. George Hatt, No. 887 Twelfth street, whose residence was robbed two weeks ago by Grace Reynolds, when the story of the opal came up in conversation.

"Miss Hatt said she could wear the unlucky stone, as she had been born in October, at the same time quoted these familiar lines:

"October's child is born of woe,
And life's vicissitudes must know;
But lay an opal on her breast
And hope will lull those woes to rest.

"She admired the ornament and I gave it to her. Now comes the end of my story," said the doctor to his interested listeners. "When Grace Reynolds robbed Mr. Hatt's house, among the valuables taken was this very same opal. It has certainly been unlucky for Grace, for I see that she has already been placed behind the bars. You see, gentlemen," concluded the doctor, "I am superstitious about the opal, and have good reason to be."—Detroit Times.

TRUE TALE OF A CAT.

Has Many Accomplishments, but Is an Epicure and Dislikes Whistling.

Broady is a big Brooklyn cat. He is a Maltese of the deepest dye. Seven years of life have passed over his shapely head, but each year has added to his store of intelligence. Now he is probably the best informed cat in the block in which he prowls.

Broady is very regular in his habits. When meal time rolls around he is always found meowing in front of the refrigerator in which his food is stored. And there he stays, crying and scratching, until somebody attends to his wants. This he does three times a day.

Although particular about the hour at which he is fed he is more so in regard to what he eats. Calves' livers, raw, too, is the only thing he indulges in. Nothing else, not even chicken, fish or other tidbits dear to the feline heart can tempt him from the liver.

His memory is strong, for he never forgets a friend or forgives a foe. When his master returns from business at the usual hour Broady is at the front door to greet him with his deep, musical purr. If his master is not on time Broady slinks away to his favorite place on a chair near the kitchen range, but when his master returns he is all animation and springs up to receive a caress.

Outside of occasional incursions into the precincts infested by rats and mice he seldom absents himself from home. And there he receives every attention. Nothing is too good for him, although his wants are few. When he wishes a drink of water he climbs upon the sink and mews. Two plaintive cries notify the household that he is thirsty, and water is soon forthcoming.

At the dining table he is a favored guest. His chair is placed beside that of his master regularly, but he will not take it until it has been nicely cushioned with a newspaper. And the louder it crackles the better he likes it. There he sits, quietly gazes upon each member of the family in turn until the meal is concluded, and then he leaves the table promptly with the diners. Having been well and carefully trained he is able to participate in conversations like these:

"Hello, 'Broady,' are you feeling well this morning?" somebody asks.

"Meow," he will respond.

"That means "Yes."

"Want some liver?"

"Meow." This is always uttered with emphasis.

Two cries are taken for a negative reply, and three, accompanied by the same number of scratches, signify that he desires to have a door opened. He dislikes whistling, and if any one does so he "meows" twice and stalks out of the room in which his tormenter is. He sleeps in the same apartment as his master, is almost as valuable as a watchdog, and, taken all in all, is quite a remarkable cat.—New York Herald.

Most Important.

Says the author of "Recollections of a Private:"

One comrade, whom I will call Jack, had been saying last words to his mother, a little woman with a sweet, care worn face. At the final moment, though she had tried hard to preserve her composure, she gave way, threw her arms about her boy's neck and said between heavy sobs:

"My dear boy, my dear boy; what will your poor old mother do without you? You are going to fight for your country. Don't forget your mother, Jack. God bless you, God bless you!"

There was a touch of nature in his homely sorrow which drew tears of sympathy from all our eyes. One warm hearted comrade actually sobbed, and his eyes refused, as he expressed it, to "dry up," until, as we were moving off, Jack's mother came rushing after us, with a bundle tied like a wheat sheaf.

"Jack! Jack!" she called, in a pathetic voice. "You've forgotten to take your pennyroyal!"

We all laughed, and so did Jack, and I think the laugh helped him more than his tears.

A Coincidence.

Coincidences happen frequently, but are always difficult of credence. Darwin, in his "Voyage of a Naturalist," mentions one of the same kind, though different in degree. One of the party was speaking of the earthquake of Talcahuano, in northern Chili, where his father had lost all his property, and he himself had barely escaped with his life in the earthquake at Valparaiso.

He mentioned a curious coincidence which then happened. A German, one of the party, got up, and said he would never sit in a room in these countries with the door shut, as owing to his having done so he had nearly lost his life at Copiapo. Accordingly he opened the door, and no sooner had he done this than he cried out, "Here it comes again!" and the famous shock commenced. The whole party escaped.

A Minute Padlock.

A curious padlock, probably the most ingenious ever made, was constructed in England the twentieth year of Queen Elizabeth's reign by a blacksmith named Mark Scarliot. It consisted of eleven pieces of iron, steel and brass, all of which, together with the key and chain to which it was attached, weighed less than one grain and a half. The gold chain which fastened lock and key together had forty-three links, and when complete Scarliot put the chain about the neck of a common flea, and the little insect drew it over a silver plate with perfect ease.—New York Ledger.

Adventures of an American in Tibet.

If any other animal gives out it is still possible to make it travel a few miles by a judicious use of patience and a club; but not so with a camel. When he lies down he will get up only when he feels like doing so. You may drag at the string which is fastened to the stick through his nostrils till you tear it out, he will only groan and spit. It was my first experience with camels, and I vowed that it should be my last, for, taking them altogether, they are the most tiresome and troublesome animals I have ever seen, and are suited only to Asiatics, the most patient and long suffering of human beings.

Besides their infirmities of temper, resulting, I believe, from hereditary dyspepsia, as evidenced by such coated tongues, offensive breaths and gurgling stomachs as I have seen with no other ruminants, they are delicate in the extreme. They can work only in the winter months, for as soon as their wool begins to fall, Samson like, their strength abandons them.

They can travel only over a country where there are no stones, for the pads of their feet wear out, and then they have to be patched, a most troublesome operation. The camel is thrown, and a piece of leather stitched on over the foot, the stitches being taken through the soft part of it: in this condition it may travel till the skin has thickened again or, what is more likely, until it refuses to take a step.—W. Woodville Rockhill in Century.

The Everlasting No.

An enterprising Woburn News reporter solicited a "signed editorial" from a tramp confined in the station house, and received the following:

It seems to be ordained that I must endure what in others would be styled unbearable. Even in my School Days I offended Juvenile Honor, not by my direct fault, but thro' the vile machinations of my Relatives and Teachers, and was isolated, shunned, and made a cowardly victim of the Many's spleen. Yet I evolved therefrom chastened and the better therefor, a sort of prelude, as it were, to what I am now undergoing in behalf of American Honor, Right and Truth.

I believe no other man living could stand the terrific persecution I've undergone in the last ten months. Everybody, Everyplace and Everything seemed as if allied to do me an Injustice. Wealth, Office, Bigotry, Malice, Hate and Brute Instincts prompting cruel adversaries to down me. Still I stand, undismayed, unawed by what others would deem an Aggregation Insurmountable, and calmly wait my time. Cause—I put my trust in God. —C. R. Locke.

Banking Checks.

A check should be banked with a reasonable diligence after it comes into the receiver's hands. Business men are sometimes very careless about this matter, and suffer loss by the failure of the party on whose account the check is drawn. A Maine firm recently lost $1,000 by holding a check one day. If they had banked it on the day they received it they would have been all right. A check came to the Norway National bank which had been out ten years. The signer had long since gone out of business, and closed his account with the bank. His attention was called to the check, and notwithstanding that he was not legally held for its payment, as it had become outlawed, he passed out $20, and took it up.—Lewiston Journal.

Plenty of Practice.

Small Boy—Pop wants to know if you'd like to buy some layin' hens?

Rural House Keeper—Are they good layers?

"Yes, indeed. They know all about layin'. They've been layin' fer years an' years."—Good News.

Air and Breathing.

Of the many sources of atmospheric impurity we mention four.

First—Normal breathing. The air which we inhale to oxygenate the blood is exhaled loaded with carbonic oxide. No harm results from this where there is a free circulation of air. But it is far otherwise in closed rooms and ill ventilated places of public gathering. In such places the oxygen is rapidly exhausted and its place is filled with noxious carbonic oxide.

Second—Exhalations from the surface of the body. It is this that makes the air of unventilated sleeping rooms so disagreeable, and that rendered the Black Hole of Calcutta so fatal.

Third—Dusty occupations, such as those of coal heavers, black lead grinders, copper and iron filers, cotton spinners, etc.

Fourth—Noxious microbes. Though these are microscopic plants they are so small that they float in the air like the finest dust. They are now believed to be the cause of most epidemic diseases. They flourish in filth. They may enter the system through the lungs or through the stomach.—Youth's Companion.

Judge Virgin, of Maine.

Judge Virgin was an Oxford county boy, and for many years stood at the head of the Oxford bar. He was not only considered a smart lawyer, but as an athlete he had few equals. Like most men of practical common sense he always has discarded frills and useless formalities. While holding court at Paris he, in accordance with long established customs, was accosted at his hotel by the sheriff, who inquired if he wished to be escorted to the court room.

"No," bluntly replied the judge. "I know the way, and can lick any man in Oxford county and always could."—Lewiston Journal.

A Neat Slur.

At whist a gentleman loses the odd trick, upon which the rubber turned, through the bad play of his partner, who failed to respond to his call for trumps, and so ruined a magnificent hand and good game. "Hard lines," said a friend who was looking on, sympathetically and significantly. "Yes," was the reply, "but what could one do against three such adversaries?"—All the Year Round.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date June 30th 1886 made by Ferdinand Poulin and Rose Poulin his wife mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 10th day of July 1886 at 10 o'clock a. m. in Book 26 of mortgages, pages 120, 121 and 122.

DID NOT KNOW HIM.

Amusing Incident Caused by a Board.

A writer in the New York Star comments upon the bewildering change in a man's appearance which is often brought about by shaving the beard or letting it grow, and cites a story related to him by a lawyer. The lawyer was then wearing a heavy beard, which he had been cultivating, as he said "since last October."

"The other day I was riding on the front platform of a street-car, as I was smoking, when I saw a cousin of mine, with her husband and baby, get aboard. I had not seen her since the day she was married in the summer of 1888, and had never met her husband except on the night of the wedding. At that time I had only a moustache.

When they were seated in the car I nodded to her, but she did not return the salution. I repeated it, but still there was no response. Evidently she did not recognize me, but for the fun of the thing I kept on nodding and smiling.

She began to be disconcerted, and pretty soon I saw her whispering to her husband, who at once rose and made his way to the rear platform, where he spoke excitedly to the conductor. That worthy came through the car, and, opening the front door, said to me:

"You must either stop insulting the lady in the car or get off. Her husband has complained of your conduct."

I assured him that I had no wish to insult any one, and as he began to get excited I passed into the car, and, taking hold of a strap, leaned over the lady and said:

"Why, Minnie, how are you?"

She looked at me for a moment, and then exclaimed.

"Cousin Eddy! How do you do? I didn't know you with your whiskers."

The car was pretty full, and as all hands had understood that I was complained of, there was a general laugh at this unexpected turn of affairs.

Some Curious Legal Nuisances.

The following are some of the alleged nuisances for which injunctions and damages have been asked from sympathetic courts and juries: In a recent English case an enthusiastic amateur played daily eight hours on a violoncello and on Sundays a little longer some times. To add to the misery caused, the player lived in a flat. The judge before whom the case came decided that three hours was long enough for any human being to play on a violoncello and the injunction issued.

In a case before the Court of Common Pleas some time ago in New York a person was brought up for trundling in a carriage over-head his teething baby, both by night and day. The judge, who must have been a married man, held that the noise was not unreasonable and refused to interfere.

In another English case a chime of bells at Deptford was not allowed to ring because the noise was offensive to a majority of the property-owners in the vicinity.

The newspapers recently mentioned the sad case of a discharged chorister who took a horrible revenge on the congregation by sitting in a pew and purposely singing out of tune. Whether he was indicted or not for disturbing public worship does not appear.—Medical Journal.

Ready for the Next.

Two Yankee sailors strolled into a show in Guatemala, where a prestidigitateur was entertaining the audience. A parrot perched on the back of the bench where they sat. After every surprising feat one sailor would turn to the other with the remark: "That was pretty good? I wonder what will come next?" This was repeated till it made the parrot tired. Presently one of them threw down a burning match with which he had lighted his pipe. It fell through a crack on the floor and into a powder magazine. Biff! went the whole building, people and all, and nothing was left but a hole in the ground and the parrot, which was uninjured, though badly shaken up. The bird pulled itself together, straightened out its feathers, flapped its way to a heap of ruins and croaked. "That was pretty good! I wonder what will come next?"—New York Telegram.

ANSWER TO THE CHILD'S QUESTION.

Fair child, I see no answer
Coming from mother dear,
So list to your sister Mary,
And hear her words with care.

You ask where are the angels,
And are they near to thee;
And why they bring no playthings,
Nor speak in tones of glee;

Nor look with eyes as lovely
As thy dear mother's own.
And why they stay not with thee,
When thou art alone?

Thy sister she will tell thee,
And a true answer give—
The angels they are minist'ring
To all the good that live.

They're with them in their journey,
Along the path of life,
To keep them from the evils
With which that path is rife.

Thou canst not see the zephyrs,
That blow thy curls about;
Yet of the wind's existence
You never raise a doubt.

And do not God's good spirits,
By keeping thee from ill,
Speak loud of their existence,
And all thy doubtings still?

A BURGLAR'S STORY.

My profession isn't a very popular one; there is considerable prejudice against it, I don't myself think it's much worse than a good many others. However, that's nothing to do with my story.

Some years ago me and the gentleman who was at that time connected with me in business—he's met with reverses since then and at present isn't able to go out—was looking around for a job, being at that time rather hard up, as you might say. We struck a small country town. I ain't a-goin' to give it away by telling where it was or what the name of it was.

There was one bank there; the manager was a rich old duffer—owned the mills, owned the bank, owned most of the town. There wasn't no other officer but the cashier, and they had a boy who used to sweep out and run errands. The bank was in the main street, pretty well up one end of it—a nice, snug place, at the corner of a cross street, with nothing very near it.

We took our observations, and found there wasn't no trouble at all about it. There was an old watchman that walked up and down the street at night, when he didn't fall asleep and forget it.

The vault had two doors. The outside one was chilled iron, and had a three-wheel combination lock. The inner door wasn't no door at all. You could kick it open. It didn't pretend to be anything but fire-proof and wasn't even that.

The first thing we done, of course was to fit a key to the outside door. As the lock on the outside door was an old-fashioned Bacon lock, any gentleman in my profession who chances to read this article will know just how easy that job was and how we done it.

I may say here that the gentlemen in my line of business, having at times a good deal of leisure on their hands, do considerable reading, and are particularly fond of a neat bit of writing; in fact in the way of literature, I have found among 'em—however, this being digression, I drop it, and go on with the main job again.

This was our plan: After the key was fitted I was to go into the bank, and Jim—that wasn't his name, of course, but let it pass—was to keep watch on the outside. When anyone passed he was to tip me a whistle, and then I doused the glim and lay low; after they got by I goes on again. Simple and easy, you see. Well, the night as we selected, the President happened to be out of town; gone down to the city, as he often did. I got in inside all right, with a slide lantern, a breast drill, a small steel jimmy, a bunch of skeleton keys and a green-baize bag to stow the swag. I fixed my light and rigged my breast-drill, and got to work on the door right over the lock.

Probably a great many of your readers are not so well posted as me about bank locks, and I may say for them that a three-wheeled combination lock has three wheels in it, and a slot in each wheel. In order to unlock the door you have to get the three slots opposite to each other at the top of the lock. Of course, if you know the number the lock is set on you can do this; but if you don't you have to depend on your ingenuity. There is in each of these wheels a small hole, through which you put a wire through the back of the lock when you change the combination. Now, if you can bore a hole through the door and pick up these wheels by running a wire through these holes, why, you can open the door. I hope I make myself clear. I was boring that hole. The door was chilled iron, about the neatest stuff I ever worked on.

I went on steady enough; only stopped when Jim—which, as I said before, wasn't his real name—whistled outside, and the watchman toddled by. I heard Jim—so to speak—whistle again. I stopped, and I'm blowed if they didn't come right up the bank steps, and I heard a key in the lock. I was so dumbfounded when I heard that that you could have slipped the bracelets right on me. I picked up my lantern, and I'll be hanged if I didn't let the slide slip down and throw the light right on the door, and there was the manager. Instead of calling for help, as I supposed he would, he took a step inside the door and shaded his eyes with his hand and looked at me. I knowed I ought to knock him down and cut, but I'm blest if I could, I was so surprised.

"Who are you?" says he.

"Who are you?" says I, thinking that was an innocent remark, as he commenced it, and a-trying all the time to collect myself.

"I'm the President of the bank," says he, kinder short; "something the matter with the lock?"

By George! the idea came to me then.

"Yes, sir," says I, touching my cap; "Mr. Jennings, he telegraphed this morning as the lock was out of order and he couldn't get in, and I'm come on to open it for him."

"I told Jennings a week ago," says he, that he ought to get that lock fixed. Where is he?"

"He's been a-writing letters, and he's gone up to his house to get another letter he wanted for to answer."

"Well, why don't you go on?" says he.

"I've got almost through," says I; "and I didn't want to finish up and open the vault till there was somebody here."

"That's very creditable of you," says he; "a very proper sentiment, my man. You can't," he goes on, coming round by the door, "be too particular about avoiding the very suspicion of evil."

"No, sir," says I, kinder modest-like.

"What do you suppose is the matter with the lock?" says he.

"I don't rightly know yet," says I; but I rather think it's a little wore, on account of not being oiled enough. These 'ere locks ought to be oiled about once a year."

"Well," he says, "you might as well go on now, I'm here; I will stay till Jennings comes. Can't I help you—hold your lantern, or something of that sort?"

The thought came to me like a flash, and I turned round and says:

"How do I know you're the President? I ain't ever seen you afore, and you may be a-tryin' to crack this bank for all I know."

"That's a very proper inquiry, my man," says he, "and shows a most remarkable degree of discretion. I confess than I should not have thought of the position in which I was placing you. However, I can easily convince you that it's all right. Do you know what the President's name is?"

"No, I don't," says I, sorter sirley;

"Well, you'll find it on the bill," says he, taking a bill out of his pocket; "and you see the name on these letters," and he took some letters from his coat.

I suppose I ought to have gone right on then, but I was beginning to feel interested in making him prove who he was, and so I says:

"You might have got them letters to put up a job on me."

"You're a very honest man," says he—"one among a thousand. Don't think I am at all offended at your persistence. No, my good fellow, I like it—I like it!" and he laid his hand on my shoulder. "Now, here," says he, taking a bundle out of his pocket, "is a package of £2000 in bonds. A burglar wouldn't be apt to carry those about with him, would he? I bought them in the city yesterday and stopped here to-night on my way home to place them in the vault, and I may add that your simple and manly honesty has so touched me that I would willingly leave them in your hands for safe-keeping. You needn't blush at my praise."

I suppose I did turn sorter red when I see them bonds.

"Are you satisfied now?" says he.

I told him I was, and so I picked up my drill again and gave him the lantern to hold so that I could see the door. I heard Jim, as I call him, outside once or twice, and I like to have burst out laughing thinking how he must be wondering what was going on inside. I worked away and kept explaining to him what I was trying to do. He was very much interested in mechanics, he said, and he knowed as I was up in my business by the way I went to work. He asked me about what wages I got, and how I liked my business, and said he took quite a fancy to me. I turned around once in a while and looked at him a settin' up there as solemn as a biled owl, with my dark lantern in his blessed hand; blamed if I didn't think I should have to holler right out.

I got through the lock pretty soon, and put in my wire and opened it. Then he took hold of the door and opened the vault.

"I'll put my bonds in," says he, "and go home. You can lock up and wait till Mr. Jennings comes. I don't suppose you will try to fix the lock to-night?"

I told him I shouldn't do anything more with it now, as we could get in before morning.

"Well, I'll bid you good night, my man," says he, as I swung the door to again.

Just then I heard Jim, by name, whistle, and I guessed the watchman was a-coming up the street.

"Ah," says I, "you might speak to the watchman, if you see him, and tell him to keep an extra lookout to-night."

"I will," says he, and we both went to the front door.

"There comes the watchman up the street." "Watchman, this man has been fixing the bank lock, and I want you to keep a sharp lookout to night. He will stay here until Mr. Jennings comes."

"Good night, again," says he, and we shook hands, and he went up the street.

I saw Jim, so called in the shadow on the other side of the street, as I stood on the step with the watchman.

"Well," says I to the watchman, "I'll go and pick up my tools and get ready to go."

I went back into the bank, and it didn't take long to throw the door open and stuff them bonds into the bag. There were some boxes lying around, and a safe I should rather have liked to have tackled; but it seemed like tempting Providence after the luck we'd had. I looked at my watch and see it was just a quarter past 12; I tucked my tools in the bag on the top of the bonds and walked out in front of the door. The watchman was on the steps.

"I don't believe I'll wait for Mr. Jennings," says I. "I suppose it will be all right if I give you his key?"

"That's all right," says the watchman.

"I wouldn't go away very far from the bank," says I.

"No, I won't," says he. "I'll stay about here all night."

"Good night," says I, and I shook hands with him, and me and Jim—which wasn't his right name, you understand took the 12:30 express, and the best part of that job was we never heard anything about it.

It never got into the papers.—New York Dispatch.

Cost at Least a Thousand a Day.

Representative Limberchin—"Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill because I consider it an unwise measure and a piece of buncombe. I condemn it, both as a piece of buncombe and as an unwise measure; and, believing it to be not only an unwise measure, but a piece of buncombe as well, I feel myself called upon, Mr. Speaker, to record my vote against this measure on the sole ground that it is an unwise measure and a piece of buncombe, it being my unalterable conviction that neither a piece of buncombe nor an unwise measure should be crystalized into a law."

And yet people wonder that the legislative session is so long.—Boston Transcript.

FISH AS FOOD.

The Idea That the Eating of Fish Produces Brain Power Erroneous.

Though "fish days," as they were once understood, are now optional, the question discussed by a writer in Temple Bar under the above heading, is still a very important one. Regarding the properties of fish as food there is still much to learn. The working classes entertain usually an utter contempt for it, and very few of them go beyond "a bloater for breakfast," or "two pennyworth of shrimps or winkles" as a supplement for their Sunday afternoon tea. "One popular fallacy," says the author, "in connection with fish may be noticed—namely, the oft-repeated assertion that the eating of that particular food increases brain power! No one who has studied the subject can possibly believe the assertion. A man might eat a huge portion of fish every day of his life, and on the day of his death, if the quantity of phosphorus (the brain invigorator) consumed were to become visible, it would not amount to more than might suffice to tip a couple of lucifer matches. Communities have existed that lived almost solely on fish, but these Ichthyophagists were certainly not famous for intellectual attainments. Nor are our fisher villages, in many of which much fish is presumably consumed, the seats of any great amount of brain power. None of our fisher folks are remarkable for genius, or even for what is called common sense; their views of life and its responsibilities being shrouded in a haze of superstition, which they lack sufficient strength of mind to see through." It is interesting, too, to note that in this expert's opinion "fishing is a profitable occupation. The sea is vast, no seed or manure is required to force the great harvest, which brings to the fish captors at first hand a sum of six millions sterling, and in all probability costs the consumer thrice that sum. No toll is exacted for leave to fish, no rent is required for permission to gather the harvest of the sea; the teeming waters of the mighty deep are free to all who choose to cast their lines of nets into them."

ARSENIC AND AMMONIA.

Remarkable Contrast in the Effect of Two Poisons on the Complexion.

The slow absorption of many poisons changes in some more or less modified form the complexion, but arsenic and ammonia show their effect about as quickly as any. The popular belief that arsenic clears the complexion has led many silly women to kill themselves with it in small, continued doses.

It produces a waxy, ivory-like appearance of the skin during a certain stage of the poisoning, but its terrible after effects have become too well known to make it of common use as a cosmetic.

The effects of ammonia upon the complexion are directly the opposite to that of arsenic. The first symptom of ammonia poisoning which appears among those who work in ammonia factories is a discoloration of the skin of the nose and forehead. This gradually extends over the face until the complexion has a stained, blotched, and unsightly appearance. With people who take ammonia into their systems in smaller doses, as with their water or food, these striking symptoms do not appear so soon. The only effect of the poison that is visible for a time is a general unwholesomeness and sallowness of the complexion.

Many people are slowly absorbing ammonia poison without knowing it. The use of ammonia in the manufactures has greatly increased of late, and it is unquestionably used as an adulterant in certain food preparations. Official analysis have plainly showed its use even in such cheap articles of every day consumption as baking powders. The continued absorption of ammonia in even minute quantities as an adulterant in food is injurious not merely from its effect upon the complexion, but because it destroys the coating of the stomach and causes dyspepsia and kindred evils.

Professor Long of Chicago, is authority for the statement that, in fifty million parts of water there is one part of ammonia, the water is dangerous.

A King's Ambition.

The little King of Spain, Alfonso XIII, has his boyish ambitions, it seems, even though he is a king. He is now five years old, and is no longer a "baby king." Recently, it is related by a correspondent at Madrid, the celebrated sculptor, Senor Querol, was engaged to make a statue of the young king.

The sculptor had great difficulty in finding a pose for his subject which should be at once spirited and natural, and sat one day in a brown study, regarding the boy as he looked out at the window.

All at once the sound of a band of music was heard on the street. The king sprang up, and brought his hand to his forehead in the military salute.

"The flag, sir! the flag!" the boy exclaimed, "Salute it!"

The sculptor had found the pose he sought, and made his statue represent the king in the act of saluting his country's flag.

As he was at work, the boy asked the artist:

"Are you going to make me big?"

"The statue will represent your majesty a little larger than you are," said Senor Querol.

"Well," said the five-year-old, "I want you to make me very big, with a long moustache!"

A Kind-Hearted Tramp.

"Madam," said the tramp, respectfully, "are you alone in the care of this house?"

"Well, sir, I'm almost alone. I have only the assistance of this dog and this double-barreled shotgun. Do you want anything?"

"Only to inform you, madam, that there may be suspicious characters about. Good evening, madam."—Delmont Wave.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, and the Tontine Hotel, Brunswick, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he often coughs enough to make him sick at his stomach. Whenever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? Listen! "I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market." ⓘ

SILLY AND COSTLY.

The Unfortunate Outcome of a Desire to Shine.

Many wise and carefully considered schemes have been brought to naught by a few thoughtless words. A tragical illustration of the text is furnished by the New York Tribune. At an entertainment last winter a gentleman well known in financial circles happened to sit at a dinner next to a very talkative and sprightly young lady.

As it fell out, they were not introduced to each other, but on reading the card by the young woman's plate, the gentleman became interested, and promptly engaged her in conversation.

He found her talk more interesting than she dreamed of, and as she ran on about a new pair of ponies she intended buying, a proposed trip to Europe to fit herself for her Newport season, and more of the same sort—the whole being nothing but a lot of imaginary nonsense begotten of a desire to shine and dazzle.

When the ladies rose to go, and her neighbor drew back his chair, he said, gravely, "I am very glad to have met you, Miss A——. I know your father; pray tell him I have had the pleasure of making your acquaintance."

Pleased with her supposed conquest, Miss Vanity returned home, and at the breakfast-table the next morning told her people about the dinner and Mr. ——'s message. Her father, who had seemed pale and careworn of late, looked up with sudden interest.

"Mr. ——, do you say?" he asked quickly. "I hope you made a good impression. That man's opinion is worth more to me today than any other man's in New York."

The poor man had been struggling through great financial difficulties, and had finally all but effected an arrangement which would once more set him on his feet; but alas! the "impression" which his daughter had produced upon the one man whose action would complete the pending negotiations was such as to upset the entire plan.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

A Little Bit of Surprising.

WHAT KIND OF BIRD WAS IT?

Two Men Made a Bet in City Hall Park and Didn't Find Out.

There was a new bird in City Hall Park recently. Its first notes were heard about 4 o'clock, just as the lucky dogs began to get away from the banks and law offices and to ride uptown in the Broadway cars along with the nice girls that had been downtown to "see papa" or "brother George." Opinions varied among the pedestrians along Broadway as to the nature of the bird. The chirping was shrill but rather faint, and when one man pointed to the bough of the Ulm domesticus and insisted that the little songster was there, another was equally insistent that the piping came from the leafy boughs of the Fraxmus excelsior further on.

One by one a crowd gathered, only to disintegrate and go off with a rush when their patient eyes failed to discover a feather or a wing, scarlet, yellow, or dingy brown. At last there were left only the two who first heard the chirruping, each still with an ear aloft.

"It's a sparrow," said one.

"It's an oriole or I'll eat my hat!"

"Impossible," said the first.

"I was born within four feet of an oriole's nest. I'd orter know," said the second.

"Why, an oriole goes 'chip-chip-chirrip!'"

"I beg your pardon. An oriole goes chirrp-chirp-ch-ch-chirrp.'"

"Why, my dear man—"

"Excuse me, sir!—"

"I'll bet you a box of cigars."

"I'll take it. An oriole goes 'chirrp, Just then the oriole came into view—a tawny head, with a long beak, black body, and lavender legs.

"Chirrp, chirp, ch-ch-chirrp! Here's de fina bird wistle, fiva centa piece. Ch-ch-chirrip!"

Weak and Weary

In early summer the warmer weather is especially weakening and enervating, and "that tired feeling" is very prevalent. The great benefit which people at this season derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood, creates a good appetite.

Part of the clothes belonging to Wm. Williams, who lost his life two years ago, while working on a log jam, at Chippewa Falls have been found by river men.

Michael Gallagher, 30 years old, lately married, freight conductor on the Wisconsin Central road, was killed at Oshkosh while walking over the cars.

Ole Olsen, living on Forest street, Eau Claire, was drowned at Ashland while bathing. He worked for the Keystone Lumber company.

No further arrests have been made at Ashland for government pine stealing, although the United States marshal is still ferreting out all trespassers. He promises to make more arrests soon.

Attorney Smith, of Oshkosh, is at Ashland looking up matters preparatory to having the life sentence of Murderer French revoked. The latter has gone insane, he claims, at Waupun, where he he is serving his sentence.

J. Francer Wood, J. G. A. Leblanch. Martin Bignan and Samual McMahon have instituted quo warranto proceedings at West Superior against John Housen, a member of the school board from the Third ward. The complainants claim that Mr. Housen has not qualified and charge him with exercising the rights of that office without legal authority. They ask the court to exclude him and fine him.

The Wisconsin underwriters held their annual meeting at Madison and elected A. H. Main, of Madison, president; T. W. Briggs, Appleton, vice-president, and C. E. Northauk, La Crosse, secretary and treasurer. The new executive committee is composed of S. Tuttle, Oshkosh; J. N. Warner, Milwaukee; John McClur, St. Paul; G. Hegbunt Milwaukee, and W. L. Steel, Madison.

G. F. Hurd, secretary of the Sunday observance committee, of Eau Claire, called on District Attorney Trawley to make complaint against the members and manager of the Eau Claire baseball team, but Mr. Trawley declined to prosecute. He said that suppression of Sunday baseball in the city was a matter in which the rest of the county was not interested. The members of the county board had objected to the possible expense of prosecution, of which the result would be doubtful, and that if there was no city ordinance under which Sunday baseball could be suppressed, the council had it in their power to make one.

IOWA.

A serious malady has broken out among the cattle in Des Moines county.

D. W. Barnum was convicted at Mason City of forgery and bound over without bail to await the action of the grand jury.

W. C. Reynold's one of Ottum wa's most prominent citizens, was kicked by a horse and killed instantly.

A heavy storm recently did great damage to crops in the vicinity of Fairfield. Oats were laid flat and will have to be cut by hand.

Anthony Brunsman, a young merchant of New Vienna, died while undergoing a surgical operation at the Jefferson house, Dubuque.

The Fourth district veteran association, augmented by all of the old soldiers in Northern Iowa, met at Mason City for a three-days' reunion.

J. McKinnon, of 1121 Washington street, Boston, a traveling man cut his throat on a Burlington train near Savannah. He was taken to Milledgeville, Ill.

W. W. Wheeler, a brakeman on the Illinois Central, fell between the cars west of Ft. Dodge, and was instantly killed. His home was Lyde, where he leaves an aged mother. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

The corner stone of Ottumwa's new $600,000 Y. M. C. A. building was laid with impressive ceremonies. W. E. Blake, of Burlington, delivered the address. The building when completed will be the finest in the state.

Herman Rantzow, Mike Hubbard and Seymour Allen indulged in too much booze at Algona. As the result of it they got into a fight. The two first named attacked Allen with knives, seriously wounding him. They are under arrest.

Elias Doty, who runs a small pleasure steamer on the river, at Ceder Rapids was arrested for failure to comply with the requirements of the law providing for the taking out of licenses each spring by all steamboat men, owners and pilots. Doty declares the law unconstitutional and will fight the case.

Deputy United States Marshal Francis arrested Tony Lasso at Cedar Rapids for violation of the internal revenue law. During the past year he has been conducting business on a revenue stamp made out in another name. Several people have been victimized by the old picture frame dodge.

Mr. Wambsgans, living south of Burlington, attempted to light a fire in the gasoline stove. The affair exploded, sending the burning fluid all over the room. Mrs. Wambsgans came to help her husband subdue the flames, when her dress was ignited and she was so badly burned that the skin dropped from her body.

An unknown man was run over and killed on the Rock Island track in East Des Moines the other night. His body was found next morning horribly mangled. In a small memorandum book found on his person was written "J. H. Kelly, 3321 Laurel street, Chicago. He appeared to be about thirty years old.

How the Sailors Got Their Medicine.

Curious yarns are spun about the method of dispensing medicines followed by divers captains at sea. Each bottle of the medicine chest bears a distinguishing number. An illiterate shipmaster, having consulted his book of medical instructions, found that a strong dose from No. 6 bottle was the proper remedy for a sick sailor standing before him. No. 6, however, had been in great request during the passage, and not a drop remained.

For a moment the amateur doctor was at a loss. An inspiration opportunely caused his corrugated brow to smoothen. He mixed together portions from bottles No. 2 and No. 4, on the arithmetical principle that two and four make six! Deponent sayeth not what effect, if any, the dreadful decoction had upon the seaman.

Another story tells equally against the service. It is related that a lieutenant, in command of one of Her Majesty's gunboats, deemed the responsibility of the change of a medicine chest too much for him. Immediately she was off soundings, the gallant officer mustered all hands, and divided the contents of the chest equally among the crew.

How Arizona Was Named.

Here is the true way by which the Territory of Arizona was named: During the time that Hernan Cortez traveled through this country, over 300 years ago, there lived a tribe of Indians in the country around Casa Grande, near Florence that were named by Cortez himself, "Los Narizones," or the "Big Noses." The women were called "Las Narizonas." Now the query is: Did that Territoty derive its name from that tribe of indians, now extinct? The supposition is that it did. The country was named by Cortez "El Paris de las Narizonas," preferring, through politeness the feminine to the masculine. After the years the Mexicans dropped all that preceded the word "Narizonas," and in speaking of this country, then almost a terra incognita, they would say, "enNarizonas." In the course of time they eliminated the "N" at the beginning and the "s" at the end of of the word, and it became Arizona, as we now have it.—Los Vegas (N. M.) Optic.

Sea-sickness on Shore.

Coincidences are among the oddest things in life. The other day I tried to dine at a restaurant where they had a lot of fan things hanging from the ceiling and swinging slowly back and forth to keep the air and the flies moving. The fans, all gilt and glitter, kept up their long swell motion so steadily that soon I felt that I was on board ship and without an appetite for food, and the feeling so grew upon me that finally, to avoid an unseemly exhibition, I was forced to make my exit to terra firma and fresh air. Just as I was about restored to an even keel I came pop upon a full page picture in one of the illustrated papers of dinner hour on an ocean steamship, and off again went my stomach. It was only a coincidence, but it served the purpose of a conspiracy.—Detroit Free Press.

He Was an Adept.

She—Yes; but when he's with me he catches those few with one arm and one hand.

COWED BY STRIKERS

Tennessee Militia Surrender to a Mob of Striking Miners and Sympathizers.

Together With the Convicts They are Put on a Train and Sent to Knoxville.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 21.—The crisis came at Briceville to-day about 11 o'clock, when the miners and a crowd of sympathizers from the surrounding country gathered around the camp of the state militia and captured the troops and convicts, marched them off to the depot and put them on a train and shipped them to Knoxville.

The camp was on a little knoll in a hollow and surrounded on all sides by mountains. The miners and their friends to the number of twelve or fifteen hundred were divided into four equal squads and approached on the four sides of the square which the camp was formed in. The miners sent up a flag of truce and sent in a committee to the officer in command. The committee notified the officers that they had come to take the convicts peaceably if possible—by force if necessary. The officers parleyed a while and then agreed to surrender.

The troops were allowed to keep their arms and ammunition and they, with the convicts, were marched to the train. They were loaded in box cars or whatever could be had, and to this city. They arrived here about 4:30 o'clock. The troops, to the number of 107 all told, went to the armory of the Knoxville Rifles, where they now remain awaiting the orders of the governor. The miners made them promise not to return to Coal Creek. The convicts were taken to the jail, locked up and fed.

The city is now intensely excited. Leading men of all political parties say the law must be upheld. Sympathy, which had been entirely on the side of the miners, is now against them for their lawless act at a time when everything was being done to relieve the situation.

Gov. Buchanan's administration is that of the Alliance, and some of the politicians are discussing what the Alliance will do, but the great mass of citizens say the law must be observed and that Gov. Buchanan must enforce the law regardless of cost.

The sentiment here is that he must send all the state troops, who are few and poorly organized, to the front at once and put experienced men and officers in charge. If he has not force enough he MUST CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS.

A report has been circulated here that he asked the president for 500 regulars, but the truth of this cannot be verified.

It is known that the leaders of the mob were not miners either last week or to-day. One Eugene Merrill led them in each instance. He is a small merchant at Briceville, but said to be a determined man. He spoke in reply to Gov. Buchanan last week and really treated the governor with indignity. Other leaders are known, and sentiment here is that they must be arrested and taken to Nashville as the law provides and punished.

The miners have appointed a committee to say what dispatches shall be sent out, and this committee or some one of it is in the telegraph office all the time and reads all the matter sent out by the newspaper men. The committee, whether self-appointed or by the miners' organization, is so acting, and told the operator on duty at the key that if he did not let them read the messages they would cut the wires. The wire is a private one and does all business, including railroad and train dispatching.

ANOTHER VIEW

of the situation is the danger to capital invested at Coal creek. Large sums of money have been invested there by men in New York and other places, and the great development of the properties is largely due to this money. Costly machinery is exposed to the fury of the mob. Citizens say such high-handed outrages as that of to-day will destroy public confidence and money will cease to come in for developments just started.

Yesterday many of the militia were allowed to go outside to get food and they mingled freely with the miners. These troops told the miners that they did not want to guard the convicts and to come and get them at once, that they would not fight them for the convicts. A Chattanooga company, whose members largely belonged to trades organizations, has especially acted badly and made the statements to the miners.

The mob to-day is celebrating its victory by cheering, carousing and shooting. It should be stated that a force of 500 men properly equipped and led could subdue the entire party, for they have no idea of openly facing a good force. They knew to-day from statements made them yesterday that the troops would not fight, but every one feels that the mob has made a bad mistake, and that they will be subdued. In other words, they have lost public sympathy. It is reported here that ten companies of state militia are en route, with a Gatling gun, and that they will be taken to Coal Creek at once.

The report also comes from Coal Creek late this afternoon saying the miners declare that no troops can be landed there. There are threats that they will wreck the trains or burn railway bridges.

The miners, it should be stated, are getting the best wages ever paid them, and make from $80 to $150 per month, according to how expert a man is and how steady he works.

ALL MILITIA CALLED OUT.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 21.—When Gov. Buchanan was advised of the situation at Briceville he at once decided to call out the entire military of the state. Each company was ordered to secure three days' rations, and tents and blankets were issued from the capitol and sent down by special train. The train pulled out at 6 o'clock with three Nashville companies, a Springfield company and one from Franklin on board, and they will pick up along the line companies from Murfreesboro, Shelbyville, Tullahoma and Sewanee. Clarksville and Lebanon companies passed through later, and four companies from Memphis and one from Jackson are also en route by special train. There are fourteen companies in all, comprising 450 men, and 100 will be taken on at Chattanooga. The Nashville train will arrive at Briceville in the morning and the Memphis train at noon.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 20.—The Chickasaw Guards, Hibernian Rifles, Bluff City Zouaves and the Rosier Zouaves left this city at 9:30 to-night via the Memphis & Charleston road for Briceville. The companies are small, the four turning out about 150 men, under the command of Gen. Sam Carnes.

CHIPPEWA CRANKINESS.

It Causes Considerable Trouble and Does No Good.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, July 21.—Gov. Merriam's letter in reference to the disturbances of the Mille Lacs Indians was received at the Indian department to-day, but owing to the illness of Commissioner Morgan and absence of Assistant Commissioner Bell no action was taken.

Agent Schuler or Chairman Hall, of the Chippewa commission, have made no report as yet upon the Mille Lacs disturbances. Agent Schuler informed the bureau to-day that the Indians said they would accept no portion of the $100,000 appropriated to pay them for damages on account of overflows of the reservoirs in anything but cash. He was immediately directed by telegraph to ascertain what the Indians needed in the way of implements and clothing or any other goods and report, as the commissioner would follow the law and make the payment in such way as he deems best.

Henry M. Rice has recommended that no payments be made in money, as the distribution of money has had a demoralizing effect upon the Chippewas. The office is allowed to furnish goods per capita to each Indian and will accept that method of making the payments. The demand for cash payments has been worked up by traders, who have incited the Indians to make this demand, as it will benefit those having goods to sell. All the petitions for payment in money have been in the same handwriting, indicating that there was "inspiration" in this latest Chippewa revolt.

The Indian office is determined to be no longer bulldozed by the Indians or the "squaw men" and traders, and if the Indians prefer trouble to what the government decides is best for them they will get it.

A HORRIBLE CHARGE.

A Rice County Man Accused of Incest by His Wife.

NORTHFIELD, Minn., Special Telegram, July 21.—A case of human degradation almost past belief was brought to light today. A frightened little woman hurried into the office of a justice of the peace and entered complaint against her husband on the charge of incest, his victim being his little twelve-year-old girl Mary. The man's name is William O'Mara, a farmer living about three miles south of this place.

The complaint states that he has been guilty of the fearful crime with which he is charged for some time past, just how long is not known, but specifies last Friday as the time when he last compelled his daughter to submit to his wishes.

His wife says that she did not become aware of the state of affairs until Friday, when her daughter Mary, who had so long been kept silent by the threats of her father, finally confessed to the thing and begged for protection. The young girl is but a child and immatured. When the mother heard her daughter's tale she at once told her husband that she would see that he was punished, whereupon, it is alleged, he threatened to shoot her, but she was firm, and escaping from him, entered the complaint.

PROTECT OUR BREAD.

The machinery of the law has not been put to work too speedily against the fraudulent use of ammonia and alum in Baking Powders. Both health and the pocket of the people are demanding protection. The legislatures of New York, Illinois and Minnesota have taken this matter of adulteration up, and especially that of Baking Powders. It will be in the interest of public health when their sale is made a misdemeanor in every State in the UNION, and the penalties of the law are rigidly enforced. There is no article of human food more wickedly adulterated than that of Baking Powder.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is the only pure cream of tartar powder having a general sale that is free from ammonia, alum or taint of any kind of impurity. It makes the sweetest and lightest bread, biscuit and cake that are perfectly digestible whether hot or cold. It costs more to manufacture Dr. Price's than any other baking powder. It is superior to every other known and the standard for forty years.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is reported by all authorities as free from Ammonia, Alum, or any other adulterant. In fact, the purity of this ideal powder has never been questioned.

St. Paul entertained the National Editorial Association last week, and horse racing and a prize fight are on tap there this week. It would seem that associating with editors had a deteriorating influence on the inhabitants of the Saintly City.

The little port of Pembina N. D. took in $30,000 as duty on potatoes that were imported from Manitoba during the month of May. This information was gleaned from Hon. N. E. Nelson, the collector of customs at that point by a St. Paul Globe reporter.—Winnipeg Free Press.

The common house fly, so scientists tell us, is the patriarch of a family of 2,000,000 decendants during one summer. And it only takes about four flies out of this army and a bald headed man to produce language that tests the recording Angel's stenography.

The National Editorial association assembled at St. Paul last week to hold their annual convention. They were very liberally entertained by the citizens and the editors have undoubtedly carried away good impressions of St. Paul and the State of Minnesota which will do much to advertise the resources of the state.

Warren Register: The gas well on the Huggard farm has been put to use by the owner. A pipe now conducts the subtle fluid into the fire box of the cook stove in Mr. Huggard's residence and furnishes all the caloric necessary to do the family cooking. Saturday morning the first trial was made and it worked to a charm, furnishing the necessary heat to cook the family breakfast, and not one-tenth of the volume of gas used, either.

Washington Special Telegram July 19—Blaine's health is still the topic in Washington, as well as elsewhere. Today's New York World (Democratic) devoted a page to an illustrated account of the state of the secretary's health and pronounces him practically all right. That his health has been shattered from overwork is acknowledged, but that he is rapidly recovering is asserted. It is now the general belief of people here that Secretary Blaine's condition has been intentionally misrepresented for political purposes.

The Duluth & Winnipeg railroad have asked Polk county for $220,000 worth of bonds to build into the county. The proposition has been submitted and a special election will be called in a few days. They propose to give an equal amount of railroad stock to the county in exchange for the county bonds and promise to reduce the cost of carrying wheat to Duluth 8½ cents per bushel. The company has not as yet filed their plat and no one knows where they would run. We are unable to state at present whether the railroad stock would be worth anything or not.

The annual school meeting for school district 102 was held last Saturday evening. S. M. Dainard was elected Moderator and J. L. Johnson, Secretary. The meeting then adjourned until Monday evening. At the meeting Monday evening about twenty voters were present. J. C. Dahl was elected school treasurer for a term of three years. The school board was authorized to have the school house fixed up the expense being limited to $250. It was decided to have eight months school the coming year commencing Sept. 14th. It was voted to raise $600 for the coming year.

The wail of "Ananias" in last week's St. Hilaire Spectator in regard to the unjust treatment he received in this place last Fourth from a poor old hat is simply heartrending, and the fact that so large a city as Thief River Falls should allow so many "horrid men" to assail, hat in hand, so demuntive a person as little Ananias is terrible, still we must extend the hearty thanks of the village to Ananias for paying so much respect to that hat and dropping a nickle so often. Few men, and especially editors, have such deep pocket books nowadays. There is no doubt that if it had not have been for Ananias the thing would have gone busted.—Thief River Falls Press.

Pioneer Press: The rye, barley and winter wheat are being harvested around Albert Lea, and the crop of each is excellent. Farmers will commence to cut wheat and oats this week around New Ulm. Wheat has attained a remarkable growth at Travare S. D. The farmers in the vicinity of Detroit Minn., are disturbed by the appearance on the wheat heads of a small parasite resembling the common weed lice. It seems to be general and in large numbers on some heads with only a few in others. no damage has been done as yet though it is liable to be serious. With this exception the crops are all that could be asked for.

Peter Andersonand Halvor Koidal two farmers living west of here got into trouble with M. Hendrickson last Sunday evening and gave him a very severe pounding. The trouble occured about ten o'clock and Hendrickson was found soon after lying on the ground with his head covered with blood. He was either cut with some weapon or kicked with coarse shoes. Anderson and Koidal were arrested by Marshall William and brought before Justice Hanson last Monday. He fined them twenty dollars and costs each. Mr. Hendrickson is still in a very precarious condition it being feared that the cuts on the head may yet prove more dangerous than at first supposed. We learn that Mr. Hendrickson will bring a suit for damages in a short time. The assault was a very cowardly one and the parties should have been more severely punished.

Lindgren's Oil Liniment is the best remedy for sprains, bruises, rheumatism, neuralgia, swellings, burns, scalds sores, bites, cuts, boils and contraction of the muscles. For Sale at Johnson's Drug Store.

Warren Sheaf. The grasshoppers have nearly all dissappeared from those sections of the county that were infested with them. They are found dead in quantities. The little parasite which attaches itself to their bodies has put in its deadly work and the weather has not been favorable for their general health. May they all perish. But we will advise farmers to plow up all their land this fall and make doubly sure, that they shall not trouble us next year. It is questionable whether it is well to leave any land for summer fallowing next year.

HARVEST TRIPS.

The Great Northern Railway will run Harvest Excursions from St. Paul Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior, to this and other points north of Fergus Falls, Breckenridge and Wahpeton, to Buford inclusive, on July 21st and August 4th, at ONE FARE for round trip, good for 30 days. Our citizen are urged to write friends in the east to come and help us gather our abundant crops, visit us, and then make their home in this country.

A country newspaperman, says the Printer's Album has three stages of development. At first he runs a newspaper for glory, dissatisfied with results he then runs it for spite, and then he runs it for revenue. Some editors assume the role of public reformers. A man who attempts to regulate the morals of his neighbors has his hands too full to run a newspaper. He is like a new preacher who started out to reform the world. At the end of the year he concluded to confine himself to the United States. Then he restricted his territory to Indiana; then he concluded that Jenkinsville was all he could handle and encountered so much wickedness that he finally despaired of saving his own soul: and eloping with a member of his choir has not been heard of since.—Exchange.

Crookston Times: Judge Montague went to Stillwater, on Tuesday, bearing with him a pardon for Benj. F. Clayton who was serving a five years sentance in the states prison for horse stealing. Clayton is the man who, in the fall of 1888, stole a team of horses from A. N. Hixon on whose farm he had been employed. After a hot chase of three or four days he was finally captured down in Becker county just as he was about to dispose of the horses. He was brought back to Crookston for trial and at the December term of court was convicted by Judge Mills to five years in the penitentiary. On the trial it was developed that the man was drunk when he took the horses and as he was a very young man and had previously born a good reputation the sentance was considered a severe one but it was the mildest the law would permit for the crime. Judge Montague was his attorney and a short time ago set to work to secure a pardon for the prisoner. He got up a petition to the governor setting forth the above facts and had it signed by Judge Mills, Frank Ives, prosecuting attorney, and A. N. Hixon the complaining witness. On the strength of this petition and the additional fact that Clayton had behaved himself well at the prison, Governer Merriam granted the request to take effect on the 15th instance, and Judge Montague's mission was to deliver it to the prison authorities and secure the young man's release.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

The Northern Pacific Wonderland embraces a list of attractions simply unequalled.

The Twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis at the head of navigation on the Mississippi, Duluth, Ashland and the Superiors at the head of Lake Superior; to the westward the Lake Park region of Minnesota, the Red River Valley wheat fields, Valley of the Yellowstone. Yellowstone National Park, Bozeman and the Galletin Valley Helena and Butte, Missoula and the Bitter Root Valley, Clarks Fork of the Columbia, Lakes Pend d'Orille and Cœur d'Alene, Spokane city and falls, Palouse, Walla Walla, Big Bend and Yakima agricultural districts, Mt. Tacoma and the Cascade Mountains, Tacoma, Seattle, Puyallup Valley, Snoqualmie Falls, Puget Sound, the Columbia River, Portland and Willamette Valley, Gray's Harbor and city, Willapa Harbor and city of South Bend. Victoria on Vancouvers Island, Alaska on the north and California on the south.

The Northern Pacific runs two daily express trains with Dining car and complete Pullman service between St. Paul and Tacoma and Portland via Helena and Butte with Through Tourist and Vestibuled Pullman Sleepers from and to Chicago via the Wisconsin Central and first class through sleeping car service with the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry.

Passengers from the east leaving St. Louis in the forenoon and Chicago in the afternoon, will make close connections with the morning train out of St. Paul at 9:00 a. m. following day: leaving Chicago at night connection will be made with Train no. 1, leaving St. Paul 4:15 the next afternoon.

YELLOWSTONE PARK SEASON, JUNE 1ST TO OCTOBER 1ST.

District Passenger agents of the Northern Pacific Railroad will take pleasure in supplying information, rates, maps, time tables, etc., or application can be made to Chas. S. Fee, G. P. A., St. Paul Minn.

Write to above address for the latest and best map yet published of Alaska—just out.

R. J. Montague has just bought the N. P. Stone residence property for the N. P. railroad for $2,000, and has also paid Frank Jerome $1,050 for a corner of his land crossed by that company's railroad. This makes $44,000 the Northern Pacific has paid out in this city for right-of-way and there is more to pay for. It seems that there must have been a paying investment only to fetch that company in here to buy real estate and as the city has paid the company in bonus the sum of—nothing, the city is $44,000 ahead, and an accommodating railroad thrown in on the bargain. Pretty good for Crookston.—Crookston Tribune.

RAILROAD JOTTINGS.

The double tracking of the Delaware and Hudson railroad from Albany to Whitehall, about fifty-two miles, has been completed.

The Chattanooga Southern road, from Chattanooga to Gadsden, has been completed. From Gadsden an extension is planned to Columbus, Ga.

The Canadian Pacific has secured terminal facilities in Seattle, Wash., from the Oregon Improvement company, and will run steamers from there to Whatcom.

Months ago nine women were appointed station agents on the elevated railways of Brooklyn. They have been so successful that the managers will appoint more.

It is 223 miles from Terre Haute to St. Joseph, Mich., and the new train put on covers the distance in seven hours, which is high speed for a north and south line and a partly new road.

The Burlington is running a Sunday morning train out of St. Louis for Quincy and intermediate points, returning in the evening. This opportunity to visit neighboring cities is substantially appreciated.

C. F. Wilson, for some time general master mechanic of the Rock Island railroad, has been appointed superintendent of motive power and equipment, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Verbryck.

The cars of the Long Island and Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg roads are being equipped with the De Kalb window by the Martin Car Heater company of Dunkirk, N. Y. The De Kalb window is so devised that ventilation can be secured when a car is moving in any direction.

The use of kerosene lamps for illumination in passenger cars on the Central Railroad of New Jersey is a thing of the past. The company is now using gas on all trains, and the illumination given is so clear and light that persons can read in any part of the cars without detriment to the sight.

One of the best known railroad men in the west was the late B. K. Verbryck, for the past twenty or more years identified with the mechanical department of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific road, and ex-president of the Master Carbuilders' association. Mr. Verbryck was one of the most expert carbuilders in this country.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

Miss Louise Moelsen, of Washington, has become very popular as a singer in Europe, where she is known as "Nikita."

Baron de Grimm, well known as a newspaper artist, is rapidly making a fortune by designing costumes for comic operas and spectacular shows.

The late Mrs. Catherine Sinclair, widow of Edwin Forrest, refused for many years before her death to accept free tickets to the New York theaters.

Martha Morton, author of "The Merchant," bids fair to win as great a success as any of our male American playwrights. She is a clever conversationist and a thoroughly womanly woman.

It is said that there will be a concerted movement among the New York theaters next winter to abolish Wednesday matinees. This is to be done out of consideration for the actors and actresses.

Actors James A. Hearne and Charles S. Dickson are both enthusiastic followers of Henry George and advocates of his single tax theory. Actors seldom interest themselves in politics or social reforms.

"The Nautch Girl; or the Rajah of Chutneypore," is the new opera by Solomon and Dance recently produced at the Savoy in London. Its Indian setting allows many fine stage pictures, and the music and book are both pleasing.

It has been pretty generally forgotten that Ella Dietz Clymer, the woman reformer and one of the founders of Sorosis, was once an actress. She was very successful in Shakespearean roles, but failing health forced her to give up the stage.

TURF TOPICS.

Mr. C. H. Nelson's horses will trot on the American Trotting association tracks this year.

The new West Side Racing association at Chicago will probably be known as the Garfield Park club

M. F. Dwyer paid $25,000 for Potomac, and the horse more than paid for himself by winning one race—the Realization.

The American Derby has been won four times by California horses, viz., [illegible] and [illegible]

It is reported that the Woodburn farm has been offered $15,000 for the Axtell foal, either out of Miss Russell or Russia, the minute it stands up.

Guy is being trained in blinders this season, and is going better already, showing miles in 2:15. Mr. Gordon is having him specially prepared to lower the gelding record, Jay-Eye-See's 2:10.

Another plow horse phenomenon has turned up at Jeffersonville, Ind., and it is that a half interest in him has been sold for $4,000. It is reported that on the first day of training he trotted a half mile in 1:12¼.

Reports from Palo Alto are to the effect that the horses under Marvin's care are doing wonders. Sunol is the chief attraction. Recently she trotted down the quarter on the homestretch in the phenomenal time of 29¼ seconds, and it is now considered almost a surety that Sunol will this year reduce Maud S's record of 2:08¾.

WHISPERS ABOUT WOMEN.

Miss Elaine Goodall, a beautiful young woman, full of philanthropy toward the red man, was recently wedded to Dr. Charles Eastman, a highly educated and refined Sioux.

The mother superior of the order of Sisters of Mercy at St. Mary's hospital, in San Francisco, is a sister of Sir Charles Russell, who was counsel for the defendants in the famous baccarat scandal case.

Mrs. General Grant is aging rapidly. There has been a marked change both in appearance and in her manner within two years. Her hair is silvered and her slow and uneven step betoken her advanced years.

Mrs. Charlotte Smith, of Troy, N. Y., celebrated recently the one hundred and first anniversary of her birth. All of her living descendants were present, including six children, thirty-four grandchildren and thirty-one great-grandchildren

Georgia Kilbourne, the wife of Gen. Schofield, is not beautiful, but her face has a refinement of expression that is more attractive than beauty. She is besides a young woman of unusual mental accomplishments and is a clever musician

Mrs. Caroline Rosecrans Wade, now living at Jefferson, O., relict of the late Senator and Vice President Benjamin F. Wade, was the daughter of Depew Rosecrans, who was a drummer boy and one of five brothers who "fit in the Revolution."

One of the twenty-three widows of the Revolution whose names are on Uncle Sam's pension roll is Mrs. Meridy Smith, who lives in Newnan, Ga. She is a garrulous old lady with a remarkable memory for her country's history, and despite her great age and decrepitude her mind is vigorous.

The native women of the island of Ceylon have founded a woman's educational society for the promotion of the education of their sex, and engaged Mrs. M. M. Higgins, of Washington city, to assume direction of the work. She receives only her expenses, as the labor she has chosen is one of love.

CHATS ABOUT MEN.

Governor Russell, of Massachusetts, at the recent state encampment proved himself to be a great shot with the rifle.

Dr. John Wahl Queen, of Princeton, class of 1877, has been appointed to the chair of history and sociology in the Kansas State university.

Schuyler Schieffelin, the canoeist, is over 6 feet in height, fair complexion and slight build. He is an expert canoeist and popular with his friends.

Professor Hugo G. Schilling, professor of modern languages at Wittenburg and one of the best linguists in the country, has accepted the chair of professor of German at Harvard.

Dr. J. A. Ouchterlony, of Louisville, has been elected a member of the Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences. The society was founded by King Gustavus III, and membership is rightly esteemed a great honor.

Herr Schmalfeld, who was Prince Bismarck's antagonist in his recent electoral contest, was a cigarmaker. Association has brought him eminence, and he has gained a notoriety which makes him the victim of the autograph fiend.

Judge J. M. Barker, who has been elevated from the superior court to the supreme court bench in Massachusetts, lives in Pittsfield and is fifty-two years old. He is a Republican, and was a delegate to the national convention in 1880.

Charles W. Van Vleet, of Rochester, is the owner of the medal presented by Andrew Jackson to the warrior Black Hawk. It is of solid silver, and bears the legend, "Andrew Jackson, President of the United States, A. D. 1829." On the reverse are the words "Peace and Friendship."

Cunliffe Lister, one of the new English peers, laid the foundation of his great wealth by mechanical inventions. His first great hit was a wool combing machine, and his second was a device for utilizing silk waste, which had previously been sold at a cent a pound, in making silk plush.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Fully four times as many people speak Chinese as speak the English language.

The Tay bridge in Scotland is the longest bridge in the world, being 10,780 feet in length.

The first gloves, so far as known, were made of bysus, known otherwise as the "silkworm of the sea."

The one part of the world in which no native pipes and no native smokers have been found is Australia.

The annual product of salt throughout the world is estimated at 7,800,000 tons, the larger share coming from English works.

There are now 19,373 newspapers printed in the United States and Canada. New York is in the lead of the states, having 1,958 papers.

It is said that the clay compound from which the Japanese make their best china is frequently twenty years getting into a state for baking.

Probably the rarest stamp in existence has just been sold in London for £250. It is an American five cent stamp issued at Brattleboro, Vt., in 1840.

In some German schools, owing to the dangers of spreading the germs of tuberculosis, the dust is removed from the floor and furniture with wet rags.

Any person is eligible to membership in the National Guard of California who is a resident of the state, able bodied, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five and neither a Chinaman nor Indian. Citizenship is not a requisite qualification.

In the Parisian cemeteries it is now customary to place metal boxes on the tombstones. Each box has a slit on the top, and in it visitors drop their cards. The relatives can thus see the names of persons who cherish the memory of the deceased.

Fishes That Sing.

The scievia, a little six-inch chub variety of the lagoons of Italy, sticks its head above the water and sings a dainty song equal to that of some species of warbling birds; trigla hirundo (the sea swallow) is known to every fisherman of the Danube and the Rhine by the peculiar grunting noise it makes. Trigla nolitans make a whining noise like a young puppy, while scivena gathers in bands to hold regular concerts, no doubt originating the fable of the sirens.—St. Louis Republic.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date June 30th 1888 made by Ferdinand Poulin and Rose Poulin his wife mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 10th day of July 1888 at 10 o'clock a. m., in Book 26 of mortgages, pages 120, 121 and 122.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum so secured due and payable; and default having been made, the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable: and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred ninety four dollars and twenty cents, and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof.

Can't be found —the equal of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If other medicines of its class were like it, they'd be guaranteed. This is. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case for which it's recommended, you get your money back. It isn't a "cure-all," but it does cure all diseases arising from a torpid or deranged liver, or from impure blood. For all Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases, it's a positive remedy. Even Consumption, or Lung-scrofula, is cured by it, if taken in time and given a fair trial. That's all that's asked for it—a fair trial. Then, if it doesn't help you, there's no pay.

We claim it to be an unequaled remedy to purify the blood and invigorate the liver. We claim it to be lasting in its effects, creating an appetite, purifying the blood, and preventing Bilious, Typhoid and Malarial fevers, if taken in time. The time to take it is when you first feel the signs of weariness and weakness. By druggists.

ROBBING THE SHOPKEEPERS

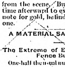
A Trick That Is Very Often Successfully Practiced In Paris.

The shop front trick is more skillful than any played off upon the poor shopkeeper in Paris, says the New York Herald. A man in the garb of a peasant may be seen making his way along the street, carrying with difficulty a heavy bag upon his head. Just opposite the shop of a linen draper or milliner he staggers beneath the burden and falls heavily against the shop window, allowing his bag to crash through the large plate of glass. The proprietor, of course, rushes out and energetically demands that the damage be paid for on the spot. The rustic, with equal vehemence, protests that he cannot and will not pay, and an altercation ensues, in which the shopman seems to be getting anything but the best of it.

At this juncture there steps out from the crowd which has collected a well-dressed man who intervenes in the discussion and asserts that he knows the peasant and is quite sure that he can afford to pay. The latter, with many oaths and much reluctance, gives in before this evidence, and at length produces grumblingly from his pocket a Bank of France note for 1,000 francs. The shopkeeper, overjoyed at the sight of it and nothing loath to settle the business and get rid of the concourse of people, quickly pockets the note, gives the man his change after deducting the full value of the glass, and with thanks to the stranger, withdraws from the scene. But on going some time afterward to exchange the bank note for gold, he finds that it is a bad one.

A MATERIAL SAVING DEVISE.

The Extreme of Economy In Wire Fence Building.



One-half the usual number of Fence Posts, one-half the number of staples, and one-fourth the time and labor is saved to the farmer by a very simple and strong device, patented to John B. Cleveland, a practical farmer and fence builder of Indianapolis, Ind., on the 24th of last March. It holds a 60 rod stretch of any make of fence wire, is a wire stretcher, tightener, tension adjuster, and a common wrench operates it. It has been named the LOYAL FENCE WIRE LOCK, and has been christened by a sale of over 60,000 in less than 90 days, through the hardware trade. Mr. Cleveland is letting his contract for sole manufacture and exclusive sale, exacted a heavy bond limiting the retail price at ten cents, so that the Loyal Lock might become generally used, and every farmer build his own Patent Fence at a great saving in material and cost.

AT Denver five workmen employed at the electric works, in blasting, desired to open a can of giant powder. One of the men struck the head of the can with a pick and a terrible explosion immediately followed. All five of the men were fearfully burned and torn, one of whom will die.

"YOU'RE NEVER READY."

Last winter, frilled with silvery fur,
I vowed that she was the daintiest, neatest:
But, oh, what matters dress to her?
She's always sweetest.

Yet, no! I'd have her robed in white,
In garden hat and belted jacket;
And certainly her fingers light
Should hold a racquet.

She leaves me here to yawn and stretch
And pace the walk in turns unsteady;
Then comes, exclaiming, "Lazy wretch!
You're never ready!"

She mocks my play with lip and eye—
Oh, scorn enow she makes me suffer!
Yet well she knows the reason why
I am such a duffer.

It is not that my skill is small.
But hopeless odds her rival plays at;
For who on earth could catch a ball
With her to gaze at!

"Game—love," she cries; "go hide your shame!"
"True words," I answer, sadly witty;
"With me it's love, with you it's game—
And more's the pity!"

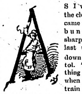
A NOVEL WAGER.



As I was saying, the closest I ever came to being buncoed by sharpers was the last time I was down to the capitol. The first thing I heard when I got off the train was: "Well I be blamed if there haint Senator Redburn,' and the next thing I knowed there were two of the slickest looking chaps you ever see a pullin and a haulin' me around like a shock of stacks in a cyclone. I knowed I was looking purty smart, but I was ready for them durn fools and I thought I would play them a bit. So I says: "Why really gents, I didn't expect to meet any of my people down here; this is a joyful surprise,'

"You ought to see them fellers drop my hand. You'd a thought I had the smallpox. My little joke seemed to stun 'em a bit, but they got over it purty quick and one of em' says: We beg your pardon.'

"Oh," says I, don't mention it; but gents I'm too keen, I'm on to your little game; bunco! See?'

"Well, sir, you never see two fellers more completely squelched than them. But, by jingo they were game, and don't you forget it. One of them speaks up and says:

Say, "Willie, you'll have to admit that our friend's too fly for us.'

"Well, I'll admit,' says Willie,

"Now, gents,' says I, I'll tell you what I propose: Let's all adjourn to the nearest lickory and have something on me.'

"Oh no," speaks up the little fellow, (Willie was the biggest of the two), 'we couldn't think of insinuatin' ourselves into your hospitality.'

"Certainly we can't, says Willie, 'but if our friend will join us at the club we will do the elegant won't we?'

"'Well gents,' says I, let's understand each other. Now I've tumbled to your little game, and you don't want to try it on no more with me, cause, as I told you I'm too keen.'

"'Why cert,' says they, both speaking at once, 'we'll let that little matter drop, fur you are a cute one, sure.'

"'So I am," says I, 'and you'd better believe it.'

"'We do, we do,' says they.

"Everything being settled in a satisfactory way, and they understandin' that they had no hecker to fool with, I consented to go round to the club with them. And a mighty fine place it were, too, with its electric lights and lookin' glasses all over the walls, and as fine a lot of nigger waiters as I ever see.

"Nuthin' must do but wine. Willie insisted on drinking wine and wine we drinked. But I was keepin' my head, and wasn't drinking no mor'n my share, expectin' all the time that them fellers would propose a little game or somethin' of that sort. But they see I were on, and they weren't trying no more funny business with me. Them fellers is mighty good at readin' human nature, and it kind'er tickled me, so I ordered a bottle just for sociability's sake.

"We got purty confidential over this bottle, and there was a good deal of talk back and forth as to which of us was the sharpest. The dispute got purty hot, and the little feller allowed he'd bet an even $500 that Mr. Cullins—I could never fathom how he got hold of my name—could work a hay-seed slicker than Willie. Willie got purty mad and said he'd just take that be.

"Well,' says the little feller, 'money talks.'

"I know it, but there ain't no way of provin' it,' says Willie.

"The little feller says that's a fact.

"I speaks up and says, "Well, gents, says I, 'I enter into the spirit of this little joke, and with your assistance I'll just try my hand at a little "steerin,'" and I hain't counted no slouch when it comes to shrewdness neither. I'll just settle this little wager.

With that they both says done, and calls a man by the name of Tom over to our table and hands him two beautiful $500 bills, and I begun to see there weren't no bluffin' in it, and after some further dilly dally, we started out for our man.

"We hadn't gone mor'n a block, I reckon, when I see what I thought a very likely chap and I says to my friends: "Gents there's my man.'

"'Great Scott, man' says Willie 'don't tackle that fellow; he's one of the flyest detectives in this village., But that didn't have no effect on me' for I began to see that he were a gettin' a little shaky. He'd bet his money again my nerve an' I was showing a little too much nerve for his comfort. So thinks I to myself, I'll have a little fun with these here fellows anyway, and I made up my mind to tackle the feller in spite of all Willie or anybody else might say.

"The little feller 'lowed he liked my grit and said the money was as good as his, and he guessed he'd divide with me anyhow. I didn't want any of the fool's money, but I was on my nettle. So I spurted out and before either of them could stop me was alongside my man, and says I in a purty neat way, 'How do do, Longbottom? How's my old friend?'

"By jimmy, you oughter see that feller. Quicker en lightin' he grabb'd me, and as he done so I see under his coat, glistenin' like fire, his badge, and I knowed I was in fur it. But I put on a mighty bold front and says:

"I guess I've made a mistake; you don't seem to be the man I'm lookin' for.'

"'You can just bet your boots,' says the officer, 'you've made a mistake. But it's all right. You're the man I'am looking for.'

And with that two more officers appeared on the scene and quicker than Jack Robinson had Willie and the little one in tow.

"I see we were in a pretty bad mess and I began to feel purty blue; but the little feller was game and no mistake.

"He says to the officer: "Say, my friend, can't this little matter be fixed up? Mr. Cullins here was only trying to settle a little bet. We don't want to get ourselves into no trouble. We're perfectly willing to pay for our folly.' But the officer couldn't be moved.

"'No,' says he, 'this is a states prison job. I know you all, and I won't have no monkeyin.' Willie were a looking purty bad, but the little fellow were true blue, and he says: 'See here, officers, if you will come around the corner a minnit, I think we can fix up this little affair. I know where we can put our hands on a cool thousand, and its yourn if you'll let Mr. Cullins and us go.'

"I thought Willie would faint, but it seemed to have the proper effect, and the officers consented to go around to the club, and around we went.

"I was thinking purty hard all the time and concluded that my foolishness had gotten us all into this fix. So when we got to the club I speaks up and says:

"'Gents, I won't stand this, I'm no gol darn skinflint, and I'm willin' to bear my share of the expenses and if you put up your good money I put up mine,' but they wouldn't have it.

"I was beginning to feel purty mean, when the officer said the only way it could be fixed up were for each of us to hand over $500.

"I felt better, and as I happened to have about that sum on my person I planked it down. Willie and the little feller does likewise, and we are free.

"It were a mighty close call, but I had the satisfaction of feeling like a man, and I wasn't going to be outdone by them darn city sharpers though it did come purty high."—Philadelphia Call.

MEN WHO WEAR CORSETS.

More of Them Than the Public Has Any Idea of, Says a Dealer.

A good looking young man who dropped his cane on Sixth avenue a few evenings since, experienced great difficulty in stooping to pick it up. "That fellow wears corsets," remarked a gentleman. Inquiry at a store where such things are sold showed that the gentleman's remark was probably true. "A large number of young men in this city wear corsets," said the clerk in charge of that department. "Indeed you have not the slightest idea how many wear them. They are worn for various purposes. Stout men wear them to reduce corpulency, stoop-shouldered men, so that they will walk erect and widen their chests, and other men in the hope that they will thus gain a handsome figure.

"Men's corsets can be had from $3 to $25, according to the means and inclination of the purchaser. They are made of the same material, except that whalebone is substituted for steel, as a woman's corset, but are somewhat different in shape, being like a ten-inch belt curved to fit over the hips. They lace in the back and are tightened in front by means of elastic bands. They are much easier than bracelets and hence are more popular. Indeed, I believe, it is only a question of a few years when corsets will be commonly worn by men."—New York News.

Monkeys as Money Testers.

It is said that the great apes of Siam are in great request among the Siamese merchants as cashiers in their counting-houses. Vast quantities of base coin are known to be in circulation in Siam, and, according to advices from that scorched-up little Oriental kingdom, no human being can discriminate between the good and bad coinage with as much accuracy as these apes. The monkey cashiers possess the faculty of distinguishing the rude Siamese counterfeits in such an extraordinary degree that no trained banker can compete with them in their unique avocation.

In plying his trade the ape cashier meditatively puts each coin presented to him in his mouth and tests it with grave deliberation. From two to five seconds is all the time this intelligent animal requires in making up his decision. If the coin is all right it is carefully deposited in the proper receptacle; if base it is thrown violently to the floor, while the coin tester makes known his displeasure at being presented with the counterfeit by giving vent to much angry chattering.

"Let Jeems Go."

A simple argument stated in simple language with sincere feeling behind it, is often more effective than anything which orators practise under the name of eloquence. A good example is furnished in the memoirs of Jefferson Davis. A young woman wrote to him:

"Dear Mr. President—I want you to let Jeems C. of company oneth, fifth South Carolina regiment come home and get married. Jeems is willin', I is willin', his mammy says she is willin' but Jeems' captain he ain't willin.' Now when we are all willin' 'ceptin' Jeems' captain, I think you might let up and let Jeems come. I'll make him go straight back when he's done got married and fight just as hard as ever."

Mr. Davis wrote on the letter: "Let Jeems go."

Jeems went home, married the affectionate correspondent of Mr. Davis, returned to his regiment, and did fight as well as ever.

CURIOUS FACTS ABOUT ICE.

Why It Floats—Why It Sometimes Begins to Form at the Bottom.

Did you ever wonder why it is that ice, being formed of congealed water, floats? says the St. Louis Republic. And why, on some still lakes, it begins to form at the bottom before it does on the surface? Scientists explain these enigmas this wise: Ice is specifically lighter than water just about to freeze, and therefore floats in it. This is one reason why the formation of ice usually begins at the surface. Another is the peculiar law of expansion. The general law is, that cold induces expansion; this law holds good with water only to a certain point. When water has cooled down to within 7.4 degrees of freezing it ceases to contract as before with increase of cold and begins to expand till it freezes.

This expansion causes the colder portions of the water to rise to the surface. The formation of "ground ice," or "anchor ice" as it is sometimes called, is the only exception to the rule given above. The whole body of water is at the same time cooled to below the freezing point, and the substance at the bottom, the stones and gravel of the river or lake-bed, serve as a point of congelation or crystalization for the water. Ground ice may be the lowest stratum of the once completely frozen mass of water, retained at the bottom by the natural cohesion to the rough substance of the river-bed, during the thawing and melting of the ice on the surface; or it may even be formed under favorable conditions beneath briskly flowing water, probably by the action of eddies, which draw the surface water down through the warmer but denser liquid, thus cooling the rocks at the bottom, forming a base for its formation. This remarkable species of ice usually gathers on a clear, cold night, when the surface of the water is not frozen.

AN IMPORTANT BILL.

The Royal Baking Powder Condemned in the New York Legislature.

[New York Press.]

Last Monday Mr. Kelly introduced the following bill in the assembly. A careful reading of it will show that it is a very important one.

AN ACT to prevent the use of poisonous and injurious ingredients in baking powders.

WHEREAS, Baking Powders manufactured in this state, known as the "ROYAL" alum and other Baking Powders are advertised for sale as absolutely pure; and,

WHEREAS, Official examination show them to contain ammonia and other injurious ingredients; therefore THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1.—Every can or package of baking powder containing Ammonia offered for sale in this State shall have a conspicuous label thereon with the words "Contains Ammonia" printed thereon in plain type, not smaller than great primer and any person who shall sell, or offer for sale, any such can or package of baking powder without such label thereon, shall be guilty of misdemeanor.

Who Knows Whom He Will Marry

Young men think they know just what kind of a woman they will marry, and they are sure that they will marry no other. The result is apt to prove them very much in error as to what they think they will do and will not do. They marry—most men marry some time—but two chances to three they marry a very different lady from the kind they have always dilated upon. A young man who has pertinaciously insisted that he will only marry a brunette will, in the end marry a blonde. A young man who has always felt and said that he would marry only a blonde is very likely to marry a brunette. Such things come out very funnily. A pug nose has been the horror of a youthful sprig of fashion, and he has been heard many times to express his sentiments on that subject. Five years after, he is seen proudly escorting a pug-nosed wife! Another could never bear a "dumpy" woman. He, after all, selects for a wife the fattest little woman he has ever known. A third likes robust women, and always has a dislike of the lean-and-lank order. By and by, the tallest woman in the town has his surname, with a "Mrs." prefixed to it. You can tell better about the weather afterwards than before; so you can tell better after marriage than before what kind of a woman was to be your wife.

Pearls in Oysters.

The pearl oyster is a valued member of the family. Some produce pearl for buttons and ornamentation, and some the gem. The latter is simply a result of the oyster's attempt to protect itself from some foreign substance. Thus, if a minute grain of sand finds its way into the shell, the animal will immediately envelope it with a nacreous of pearly coating, which if continued results in a perfect gem. The pearls attached to the shells and layers of nacre heaped up to prevent the onward march of a boring parasite seeking entrance from without. In Ceylon 17,000,000 pearl oysters were destroyed lately to produce $80,000 in pearls.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A String Band.

A vocalist of some New York renown was to sing in a concert in a western city not long ago. One of the best of the metropolitan string quartets had a number or two on the programme also. A week before the concert the singer wrote to one of the quartet, begging that it would play an accompaniment to his songs. Incidentally he asked; "What instruments are included in your string quartet?" This was the answer: Dear Sir:—Our string quartet consists of trombone, French horn, accordion, and cymbals. It will be impossible for us to accompany you as you request, as the instruments are scarcely fitted for that line of work."—Boston Post.

IN A NEW BOARDING HOUSE.

First of All, Be Sure the Servant Girl Knows Your Face.

"The other day Colonel Nat McKay referred me to a very nice boarding house on Madison square," said a newspaper friend, "and I went over, secured the rooms and sent my trunks up. That was on Saturday. I had a late assignment and didn't go home Saturday night. Got wet on Sunday, and finally turned up about Sunday evening, looking, I confess, somewhat soiled and bedraggled. I had a friend with me to whom I had been bragging about my new rooms. Not yet having been provided with a night key I rang the bell.

"'Well, now—what do you want?" was the greeting of the maid who opened the door.

"My friend laughed, but retreated down one step. I was too much taken back to reply promptly. The girl had the floor.

"'Go 'long away with you!' she snapped, and slamed the door in my face.

"Here was a dilemma. My friend suggested that perhaps I had mistaken the number, but I was certain I had not. The girl had never seen me before. But to be taken for a tramp was funny. So we sat down on the steps and laughed in unison. Then I went up and yanked the door bell some more.

"'I tell you you can't get nothin' here! Go 'way you lazy, good for nothin' —'er I'll call the—here's an officer now!

"The only case I ever knew where a policeman was on the spot. He must have been under the stoop. But there he was, and I said with all my reportorial diplomacy, 'I live here.'

"'He don't!' exclaimed the excited girl.

"'Come, come, now, you fellers, move on, move, on,' said the bluecoat, coming threateningly up the steps.

"'Will you be good enough to call the landlady?' I inquired, laughing in spite of my self. 'I moved in my trunks yesterday—the girl doesn't know me.

"'All at once a gleam of intelligence came into the girl's face. 'Oh! is this Mr.——? why goodness gracious! Why didn't you say so?" said she, throwing open the door. Now, what do you think of that for a reception?"—N. Y. Herald.

Fashion's Cruelty to Children.

"Speaking of these fads," said a bystander, "the yatchtsman business seems to have the pull this summer. Every woman who has a youngster and any money goes out and rigs the kid up in a full naval uniform. I saw one woman dragging an unhappy bit of progeny not over 4 years of age along State street and the little one was made up in all the magnificent of an admiral of the British squadron. He had anchors on his cap, anchors and bars on his sleeve, and more anchors and stars and things on his collar. His pants were wide enough at the bottom to pull him through them, and he had long, yellow hair, a relic of last season's Fauntleroy craze, which I suppose his dear mother couldn't bear to cut off. I pitied the kid—I did, indeed. They're afraid to leave 'mamma' for an instant, for a make-up like that is to a good, healthy street gamein as a red flag to a bull, and one of these sailor boys takes long chances if he's left unprotected.—Chicago Times.

Where parents should send their sons to college next year is a question it is about time to decide. Many things must be considered, economy is a very important one, there is a great difference among colleges in this respect. We know of one college (Macalester, between the twin cities) where several students boarded themselves on $1.25 a week and lived well. They were among the best students in the college. This is mighty cheap and Macalaster is a fine institution.

99 per cent. of those investing in Real Estate make money. 87 per cent. of those investing in Business lose money.

A commercial center is the safest place to invest in real estate, especially when such place is a great railway center; has good river transportation and large foreign and domestic shipping. Portland is that place.

Portland, Oregon, is now preeminently the commercial center of the Pacific Northwest. No other city in the United States is so well situated in respect to natural resources as is Portland, and it leads all other cities west of the Mississippi River in its phenomenal growth in population. Located at the confluence of two great rivers, and being the terminus of more transcontinental railways than any other city in the United States. In fact, every advantage which insures the solid growth and prosperity of a city is abundantly enjoyed by Portland.

These Advantages Guarantee Constantly Increasing Values in Real Estate.

"The Ruthless Sex"

Is a term applied to women by a Boston writer. It is a slander, of course, but it is an unfortunate fact that the women are the victims of nervous disorders and troubles which "The Brutal Sex"—the Bostonese term for the men—do not understand or appreciate. For these troubles and many others that are peculiar to women Swift's Specific S.S.S. is the most potent remedy that has yet been discovered. S.S.S. It restores tone and strength to all the organs, Builds up the system, imparts luster to the eyes, clearness to the complexion, and urges into bloom the roses of health. Mrs. Alexander Vaughn, wife of a prominent merchant of Prescott, Arkansas, writes: "I owe the preservation of my life under Providence, to S.S.S. For four years my health was wretched, ruined—my life S.S.S. one constant pain, misery and torture. Two doctors treated me faithfully these four years, but did me no good. In 1887 I began taking S.S.S. Five bottles of this truly wonderful medicine worked S.S.S. the miracle of my complete and permanent recovery."

A TERRIBLE TRAMP.

A Bloodthirsty Kentucky Negro Attempts to Annihilate an Entire Family.

He Kills Two and Fatally Shoots Another and Then Is Himself Laid Out Cold.

Louisville, Ky., July 27.—Near Paris, Ky., this morning a tramp attacked a farmer's family and attempted to murder all of them. The farmer and his wife were killed and one son fatally and another son dangerously hurt. The murderer was only beaten off by neighbors coming up, from one of whom he received a fatal shot.

Five miles from Paris lived Nathan Sconway, sixty-one years old, his wife, about the same age, their sons Charley and William, thirty-three and twenty-eight, respectively; William's wife wife and three children and two nieces, Miss Florence and Lucy Leager.

As they were all sitting on the veranda this morning a negro named Craig, who had no fixed home, came up and asked for a drink of water. It was given him. He thereupon lifted a rusty scythe blade and asked if it was not a good knife. Charley Conway nodded assent, and the negro, throwing down the cup of water, struck him with the knife, splitting his skull. The rest of the family ran into the house. Craig continued to hack the young man till he thought him dead.

He then attacked the father, who had returned, and killed him. Then the mother coming up had her head split open and instantly died. After the negro had insanely hacked her body in a dozen places he attacked William Conway, cutting him in the head and body as he ran. He had just struck Conway to the ground when G. W. Barley, a neighbor, attracted by the screams, came up and shot Craig twice with buckshot. This seemed to have no effect, but other neighbors had come up, and a young man shot Craig with a pistol. Craig ran, and falling beside a haystack, died in a few minutes from the effects of the buckshot wounds. The pistol ball had glanced around his head.

The Conways were from Maysville originally, but came to Bourbon eighteen months ago from T. G. Meggin's farm near Cynthiana. They were orderly citizens and were held in the highest esteem. Craig said he had killed seven persons and intended to kill that whole family. He is known to have killed his mother-in-law. He has always been known as a desperate fellow, and was a brother of Charlie Craig, now under sentence of death in Cincinnati.

Craig Friday morning had escaped from the Cynthia jail by bullying the jailer's wife. He had been incarcerated for killing his mother-in-law.

AN AVENGER.

A Michigan Man Kills the Murderer of His Brother.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Special Telegram, July 27.—Six weeks ago Dan Dunn of Seney, in an altercation with a man named Harcourt at a house of disrepute in that town, pulled a revolver and shot Harcourt dead. Dunn was brought up at the circuit court at Manistique Saturday for trial, and acquitted of the charge of murder.

Harcourt's brother started from Seney for Manistique when he heard Dunn was acquitted, determined on having revenge for his brother's death. He did not have to go to Manistique. Dan Dunn, who started to go to his home in the southern part of the state, was obliged to await connection with the southern train at Trout Lake Junction, thirty miles from here. Harcourt's brother, who was also obliged to change cars at Trout Lake, met Dunn at that place, and immediately on controntiug him pulled a revolver and shot Dunn dead. Harcourt was arrested by Sheriff Dan Hefferon o Manistique, and will be brought here tonight for safe keeping.

A JEALOUS HUSBAND.

He Shoots His Wife Three Times and Ends His Own Career.

Rapid City, S. D., Special Telegram, July 27.—This afternoon J. W. Saultery, a mechanic, shot his wife three times, each shot taking effect. Thinking he had killed her, he shot himself in the head and died instantly.

SEALING STOPPED.

The Seal Poachers Proceed to Hang Up the Fiddle.

Victoria, B. C., July 27.—The sealing schooner E. B. Marvin returned to port last night, having been seized by the American cutter Rush in attempting to enter Behring sea after having been warned by the Rush at Sand Point not to do so. The Rush chased her into Ounalaska, seized her and handed her over to the British warship Nymphe, by which she was ordered home. The United States cruiser Marson sailed for Behring sea yesterday. Commander Hitchcock, of the Alert, was a passenger to rejoin his ship.

Sealing is certainly stopped in Behring sea and all the Victoria fleets are now on the way home. The entrance to Behring sea is effectually blocked and is now patroled by five American and two British war vessels. The latter are the Nymphe and the Pheasant and the United States vessels are the revenue cutters Bear, Rush and Corwin and the gunboats Thetis and Mohican.

Last night the Victoria sealing schooner E. B. Marvin arrived from the north, having been seized by the United States cutter Rush and turned over to the Nymphe, the latter giving the Marvin orders to sail direct for this port and remain here. The Marvin was notified at Sand Point by the Rush that sealing was prohibited in the sea and after being furnished with a copy of the proclamation of President Harrison, was ordered not to attempt to go into Behring sea under penalty of seizure. No attention was paid to the warning and Capt. McDougall sailed for the sea, determined to wait until notified by a British vessel. He was overhauled at Ounalaska afterward by the Rush and taken captive. The schooner was turned over by the Rush to the Nympha, which ordered Capt. McDougall to proceed here and wait further orders. The Marvin's officers say that nearly every schooner has received notice, and they will certainly be seized if they attempt to enter the sea after being warned.

The Marvin brought news that on July 7 the sealer La Nymphe was fired on by the Thetis between St. George and St. Paul islands. She tried to escape from the Thetis, but was brought up by a shot. Another schooner, name unknown, was also fired on, but succeeded in escaping.

A few hours after the Marvin arrived the schooner Walter I. Rich entered the harbor. The captain of the Rich says he was about to enter Behring sea on July 23 at Unimak Pass entrance to the sea, when he was met by the United States gun boat Thetis and handed a copy of the proclamation. The captain was then warned of the consequences should he ignore the warning. The Rush cruised off the pass for several days, then started for Victoria. She got twenty-one skins after being notified by the Thetis. The American schooner Albert Walker, whose owner is at Kodiak, was also warned at the same time as the Rich. Several schooners are said to be already in the sea. A number of them are intending to go in and hunt seal on the Russian shore and defy both the United States and British men-of-war.

At 1 o'clock this morning the schooner Ainoka entered the harbor here. The captain reports that seventeen British and American sealing schooners were caught June 20 off Alitak bay by the United States steamer Thetis and warned not to enter Behring sea on pain of instant seizure. The captain of the Ainoka decided to abide by the order and returned to Victoria, but some of the schooners intended to try and enter Behring sea and hunt seals on the Russian side. The Ainoka left Alitak bay June 21.

A dispatch from Vancouver says: "The Vancouver Belle was the first of the sealing fleet to return to this port. She arrived last evening with twenty-eight skins. She had just entered Behring Sea on July 8, when she was warned by the United States cutter Corwin to leave and she returned accordingly. At that time twenty-nine sealers had been warned. The schooner E. B. Marvin had taken fourteen skins when she was seized by the Rush. The Vancouver Belle brings news that the schooner Beatrice, of this port, lost a boat and three men."

THE CHILIAN WAR.

Balmaceda Quite Likely to Find Himself Dished Ere Long.

San Diego, July 27.—The steamer Mont Serrat put into port last night for coal and proceeded north to-day. Carlos Krug, captain of the port of Iquique, is aboard having come up on a visit on account of illness.

The vessel left Iquique July 2, at which time the insurgents had control of everything except the southern part of the country.

Krug said that if the insurgents had the arms which they are amply able to pay for, the rebellion would end in thirty days. He reports that the government is issuing paper money to such an extent that it is only worth three to one of gold. The insurgents derive a revenue of over $2,000,000 a month from the nitrate fields, which is used to carry on the war.

ABOUT "THE GOLDEN ROD."

Singular Preference of the Children in Voting for a State Flower.

As the golden rod is likely to be the New York State flower, nominated and elected by the school children, says the New York Herald, perhaps they would like to know more about it.

It is a large genus or family, containing upward of eighty species or members, confined almost entirely to North America.

One species is found in England and on the continent, also in temperate Asia, two in South America and one in the Azores.

What peculiar fitness this plant has to entitle it to the distinction of being the state flower the children alone know. It is nothing more than a pernicious weed. It impoverishes the soil where it grows, and it is a significant fact that it found the vast majority of its supporters among the city school children, whose knowledge of it was doubtless confined to the embroidered caricatures of it done by their mammas and grown sisters.

Their little ears no doubt were pleased with its euphonious title of "golden rod," and thus their hearts were won and their votes cast for this farmers' pest. The country children know it better and looked upon it with disdain, preferring to vote for the rose and other more aristocratic candidates.

A field of golden rod has charms of its own, and visitors from abroad, where it is almost unknown, become enraptured with it and carry away pleasant memories of our fields clothed in richest golden yellow, but daily association with it would quickly destroy this feeling.

Its harsh, coarse stems and leaves, the dry, artificial-looking, scentless spikes of gaudy flowers are without charm for anyone with the least pretence to knowledge of the beautiful in nature. It seems somewhat ridiculous to submit a question of this kind to the children for decision without first giving them instruction on the subject; for, surely, if they were fully conversant with the golden rod's peculiarities they would not vote for it with such unanimity. This view is borne out by the fact that the city school children are its main supporters.

Refused Louis Napoleon's Hand.

Two remarkable maiden ladies have just died, both of Slavonic race, one distinguished for her beauty and the other as distingushed for her ugliness. Princess Helena Sanguszko had the reputation of being the most beautiful woman in Poland; indeed, the fame of her loveliness was at one time European. It was her own fault that she did not become the empress of the French. Louis Napoleon made her an offer of marriage when she visited his imperial court, and it was not until after her rejection of the splendid position that he turned to the Countess Eugenie Montijo. The princess had many suitors among the high Austrian nobility, but she preferred to live and die in single blessedness. She was a woman of wide culture, and made her ancestral castle of Gumniska a veritable museum. She died in her fifty-sixth year.

A Lucky Misprint.

Even the "intelligent compositor" sometimes proves to be the instrument of great good. For an example, a week or so since an indignant husband wrote and gave to a Brooklyn newspaper an advertisement in which he gave notice that he would not be responsible for any debts contracted by his wife. He wished it to be inserted twice, and somewhere on the copy of the advertisement he wrote the words "for two days." These the "intelligent compositor" interpreted, so that when the notice appeared it read as follows: "For two days after date I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife." The separated couple both saw the absurdity of the thing and concluded to take the compositor's view of the case. They are now among the happiest persons in Brooklyn.

Frightened Negroes.

A reign of terror exists among the colored population of West Philadelphia, who believe that the medical college of the University of Pennsylvania has a paid gang of powerful men whose business it is to lurk about the streets at night, with hoods and chloroform and capture negroes for subjects to be dissected by the students. It is almost impossible to find a colored man or woman willing to pass within a block of the medical college after dark, and a coachman of one of the professors was so terrified at the idea that he became a raving maniac on the subject, and died in the state insane asylum. The mania has been aggravated by thoughtless students, who have played upon the fears of the colored people.

The China Trade.

In the early years of this century Boston had no more imposing phase of commerce than that of her merchants in the China trade. Hong Kong was usually the centre in the celestial empire, and branch houses were often established in the other Chinese cities, and stately steamers plied their way over the vast oceans. Teas and silks were the leading imports, but other products and manufactures of China were sometimes added. The failure of the house of Russell & Co., which was reported revives the memory of this picturesque phase of commerce which was so important a half-century or more ago.

Sensible.

"So your son has been graduated?"

"Yes."

"What do you intend to do with him?"

"I'm going to send him to Greece; he must know all about that country, for Greek is the only study in which he took first place."

A Perfect Baking Powder.

The constantly growing demand for Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, the standard cream tartar powder for forty years, is due to two causes.

FIRST:—The extreme care exercised by the manufacturers to make it perfectly pure, uniform in quality, and of highest raising power.

SECOND:—The recent investigations exposing the fact that certain other brands of baking powder contain ammonia and still others that were found to contain alum. These unscrupulous manufacturers are being found out, and the consumers are giving them a wide birth.

Nothing is left to chance in the manufacture of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. Chemists are employed to test every ingredient as to purity and strength. Hence; its marvelous purity and uniformity. Each can is like every other. It never dissapoints. BEST is ALWAYS the CHEAPEST.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is reported by all authorities as free from Ammonia, Alum, or any other adulterant. In fact, the purity of this ideal powder has never been questioned.

BREVITIES.

Wheat is 83 cents.

John Kupor is at Thief River Falls this week.

About twenty traveling men were in town yesterday.

Farmers are busy haying and business is rather quiet.

Oscar Olson, of Crookston, was here a couple of days this week.

M. Jeffers, the sage of Gervais township was in town yesterday on business

Max Ericsson, of Crookston, was in town on business last Monday.

C. G. Rapp made a business trip to Crookston the first of the week.

Andrew Steenerson, of Crookston, was in town the first of the week on business.

The North Star Lung and Throat Balsam is sure cure for coughs and colds.

T. O. Moe, the Thief Lake merchant, was in town the first of the week buying goods.

Chas. Myers, of Thief River Falls was in town yesterday attending the law suit as a witness.

Work on Hall Bros. addition to their store building is progressing finely and will soon be finished.

County Supt. of Schools E. J. Grefthen is in town this week looking over the schools in this vicinity.

Everyone should turn out next Friday evening and give our string band a good benefit. They are well deserving of it.

George Williams has quit driving the creamery wagon for S. M. Hoff and will go below to work during harvest and threshing.

Section Boss Tom Oidne has had a large crew of men working on the section the past week putting in ties and making repairs.

Dan Patterson was around last Monday with the cigars on the arrival of a little girl at his place. Mother and child are doing well.

Andrew Steenerson informs us that during the eighteen years that he has been in the Red River Valley he never saw wheat look as good as it does today.

J. M. Hanson has purchased J. C. Mathews' residence on Water street the consideration being $450. Mr. Hanson has already moved his family into his new dwelling.

Philip Fricker has determined not to return to the army. He had a furlough until August 1st. at which time he can go back or quit altogether. He will work in the mill this fall.

George B. Winship, Editor of the Grand Forks Herald, was in town today on his way home from a two weeks trip to Red Lake. Mr. Winship seems to think that there is a great future for the Red Lake country.

O. H. Lucken and Cashier Ellington, of the Scandia Bank, were up from Crookston last Monday doing missionary work in favor of the proposition to bond the county for the Duluth & Dakota R. R.

August Erickson brought in some samples of wheat from his farm yesterday. The heads he brought in will average from fifty to sixty grains of wheat to the head. It should go at least forty bushels to the acre.

It is rumored that the Alliance is figuring on building a flat house to buy grain here this fall. An institution of that kind would do a good business here this fall, and would undoubtedly benefit our village.

The Lutheran social next Friday evening should be attended by all. They have spent considerable money lately on their new church, which is a credit to the village, and they are deserving of a liberal patronage.

Our machine firms have about finished their sales for this year. At present there seems to be more demand for machines than can be filled. The season has been the best one in the history of the town.

Truth: "My daughter says you kissed her" roared old Harkins.

"I took a kiss, yes, sir" said Chappie, "but if the young lady desires I shall return it."

"She does so desire, sir," cried Harkins, puckering his mouth, "give it to me."

The public school enrollment of the U. S, as shown by the returns of the census bureau is 12,592,721. Ten years ago it was 9,951,608. The gain 27.54 per cent, while the gain in population is 24.86 per cent, showing an encouraging increase of public school pupils as compared with the growth in population.

The Kasson Republican advises people to "try sponging off your horses and cattle in soapsuds in which a little carbolic acid has been mixed. The flies will not thank you but the animals will. A decoction of water-pepper (smartingweed) will also be found very servicable in keeping the flies away. A merciful man is merciful to his beast."

The lawsuit of Olson vs Wisner came off before Justice Hanson yesterday. Carl Olson sued C. F. Wisner for $98 for a horse which it was claimed was killed by being driven too hard by Wisner. A jury was called and after hearing the evidence gave a verdict in favor of Olson for $44. J. C. Mathews was attorney for Olson. We learn that Mr. Wisner will appeal the case.

Dr. J. D. Taylor, of Grand Forks, was in town several days last week looking over the country with a view of locating here. The doctor has the appearance of being a well informed man and we think he would do well here. He informed us that he thought well of this location and would locate here. He left Monday for Grand Forks and will return in about ten days if he concludes to locate here.

Prof. S. A. Chailman, principal of the Hope Academy of Moorhead Minn., was here several days last week visiting his former classmate Rev. James Moody The Hope Academy is an excellent institution of learning started by the Lutheran Benevolent Society of the Red River Valley and Rev. James Moody, of this place, is president of the society. The Academy was attended by 140 students last year and Prof. Challman informed us that the attendance would be much larger the coming fall.

GRAND BALL.

The St. Hilaire String Band will give a grand ball in the Hoff Hall on Friday evening July 30th. The boys have been at considerable expense lately buying instruments and hiring a teacher and deserve the patronage of every person in town. They are practicing every evening and will furnish some excellent music. The floor of the hall will be waxed for the occasion. Tickets for the dance will be sold at only fifty cents each so as to enable all to attend. Supper extra. All are cordially invited to attend.

T. O. Moe informs us that there is some excellent farming land yet to be had for the taking in the Thief Lake country. He says that the land is exceptionally fine there and that there is considerable vacant. Those wishing government land would do well to look the country up. Mr. Moe will give all necessary information to those who apply to him. A post office will be established there in the near future at Moe's general store.

The importance of early cutting of grain before it was thoroughly ripe was well shown by an experiment made in Illinois. Of a field of fifty acres of wheat, a part cut ten or fifteen days before maturity gave plump grain that weighed 62½ pounds to the bushel, while that which stood until fully ripe weighed only 58 pounds to the bushel, a shrinkage in weight of 1½ per cent., to which might be added a further shrinkage from grain that rattled out by handling. This is applicable to other grain, including field corn or any crop grown for seed, as to wheat. Millers know that wheat cut before it is quite ripe makes better flour than when it stands longer, and other experiments have indicated that it is better for seed purposes, germinating more readily and coming forward more rapidly. As a general rule the best time for cutting grain is when the seed is fully formed and has glazed over but is yet so tender as to be crushed between the finger and thumb.—Grand Forks Herald.

LUTHERAN SOCIAL.

The ladies of the Norwegian Lutheran Church are preparing for a social to be given in the new Church next Thursday evening. A musical program consisting of singing by the Norwegian and M. E Choirs and selections by the Orchestra will be rendered. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake and coffee will be served. All are cordially invited to attend. No admittance fee will be charged and the usual price for refreshments.

NOTICE.

Knute Steenerson will be in St. Hilaire between the 10th and 15th of August and will buy up a carload of stock. Will also sell or trade his store building, at a bargain. It is a good chance for some one who is tired of the slow way of making money by farming and who wants to try a little business. If you have steers, cows, calves or oxen to sell bring them in or leave orders with K. Jorstad or C. A. Skeie.

Two weeks more of this weather and we will commence to harvest the largest and best crop of wheat this country has ever seen. Never in the history of the country has wheat looked as fine as it does today. If no accidents happen the yield will be enormous, running from twenty-five to forty bushels to the acre. The straw is very heavy, stands very thick and is fully five feet high. The heads are from four to six inches long. Very little has lodged so far Competent judges think it will be ready for the binder in about two weeks.

Boston Journal. Cable dispatches announce the arrival of the American "whaleback" steamer Charles W. Wetmore at Liverpool yesterday and describe the amazement of the Englishmen at this latest fruit of Yankee ingenuity. The Wetmore was built in the heart of the continent away out in Minnesota. That is a queer state for a transatlantic cargo steamship to hail from, and perhaps it is not strange that this and the vessel's strange appearance and method of construction should excite the lively curiosity of Liverpool seafaring men.

Pioneer Press: St. Paul, it seems has been honored by being made the headquarters of an important movement by the Farmer's Alliances of the United States. Their agents are sending out circulars from here advising farmers to hold their wheat back a month in order to force up the price. The Alliance people expect that 80 per cent of this year's crop will be placed in chancery at this suggestion. It is possible that this movement will effect the desired object.

At the last meeting of the county board a committee was appointed to confer with a committee from the city council in relation to a county hospital This joint committee met on Monday evening and recommended that the board appropriate $4,000 for the purpose of buying or building suitable buildings for a hospital and pest house. Such an institution would be of great value to the county and save much of the expense which is now incurred.—Polk County Journal.

The Farmers Alliance is in one respect a good deal like the Democratic and the Republican parties. Its members do not entirely trust those who have managed to have the most to say in the direction of their affairs. The Democrats are impatient of the dictatorship of Kelly and Doran; the Republicans pay unwilling allegiance to a machine whose power they have not been able to break and now the Alliance is in revolt against the dominion of Fish and Donnelly. They realize that they have much less to fear from without than from within.—Northfield Independent.

White Earth July 21.—Hon, Dar Hall chairman of the U. S. Chippewa Indian Commission, has arrived here and yesterday held the first council with the Indians. After a few preliminary remarks from Chiefs White Cloud and Joe Critt in which they touched on the most important points to be considered the council adjourned. The Commission will meet the Indians in general council on Wednesday of this week to discuss all matters especially pertaining to removal, allotments, etc., after which they propose making a tour of the different reservations to be treated.—Detroit, Minn., Free Press.

Martin O'Brien, acting attorney for the Great Northern Railway, received a telegram Saturday announcing that Judge Mills had decided the injunction cases which involved the $50,000 bonds voted to the D. C. & N Ry., against that company. The cases were argued at the last term of court held in this city but Judge Mills reserved his decision until he had thoroughly studied the case. The decision is based on the grounds that the D. C. & N. had not completed the road to Crookston at the time specified in the proposition asking for the bonus, and therefore was not entitled to the bonds. As a result of the decision the bonds will be declared forfeited and Crookston is just $50,000 ahead.—Crookston Times.

Ada Index; Tuesday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock a disastrous hail storm passed over Norman county, going from west to east. It started in Mary township and destroyed or damaged everything in its course almost to the eastern boundry of the county, passing along a strip about two miles wide through Mary, Winchester, Rockwell, Home Lake, Flom and Wild Rice. It is impossible to give a list of the losers as the loss was so widespread. It is estimated, however, that at least 5,000 acres of grain was destroyed. This is a sad loss to these farmers, as most of them had nothing else to depend upon except their crops and now this is gone.

C. A. Pillsbury was bubbling over with good news for the farmers last evening says the Pioneer Press. At just about this time of the year Mr. Pillsbury is accustomed to get reports from his agents in Russia regarding the general crop situation over there. Reports have been coming in for some days past of the wheat situation. These estimate the shortage there at about 25 per cent, which, on the basis of the figures of past years, will give the country but 50,000,000 for export. This is encouraging indeed to the American farmer, but now comes Mr. Pillsbury with a private cablegram regarding the rye crop. This states that the shortage will be fully 60 per cent.

This means a good deal more than appears on the surface. It means that Russia's rye crop will be less than 240,000,000 bushels, instead of the usual 600,000,000 bushels a tremendous falling off. Russia consumes 540,000,000 bushels of rye, which will leave a rye shortage of 300,000,000 bushels. This Mr. Pillsbury holds, will far more than counterbalance the extra 50,000,000 of wheat. It means that Russia will need every bushel of that wheat for her own consumption and more besides. She will not only export no rye this year, but no wheat as well. More than that anybody can see that 50,000,000 bushels of wheat isn't going to take the place of 300,000,000 bushels of rye, which means that both staples will have to be sent into Russia to supply the home consumption. Instead of a grain exporting country, Russia will be this year a grain importing country.

All this presages great things for the American farmer in the big millers' estimation. It means to him good prices even in the event of a good crop, and generally good times all around for the northwestern community. In previous years Russia has provided one-third of the wheat exported. This extra one third with the one-third which he has hitherto thrown into the world's jack pot, will be required of the American farmer. Mr. Pillsbury is naturally jubilant over the situation and thinks his agricultural friends should be likewise.

LUCK WAS AGAINST HIM.

The Spring Was There, but No Vessel to Tap It With.

During the dry spell of last spring Major Romeo, the boom artist, found himself in Troy wishing himself at Luverne, only twenty miles away. As the major did not care to go back fifty miles by rail to Montgomery and then another fifty to Luverne, he hired a horse and started to ride the distance. After traveling a while the major's flask became empty, and as he wanted a drink he determined to try water. So stopping his horse before a log cabin he politely asked of a rather good looking girl who was standing at the gate if he "could get a drink of water."

"Sartin you kin," was the reply. "Jim," to a boy in the door, "bring this stranger a drink."

"Can't," replied Jim.

"You kin, Jim: bring it right away."

"Sal, you knows the dipper yain't yere."

"Bring it in the cup then."

"Sal, you knows you lend Mol Smith ther cup for her party."

"Whar's the goard, Jim?"

"The goard's dun broke."

"Git ther pitcher then."

"Sal, you knows ther pitcher's dun cracked."

"Taint no sich thing."

"Tome Jones crack it when he were a-hugging yer down ter ther spring."

"You's a lie, Jim."

"Ain't now, fer I seed you."

"Shet up, I tell you."

"You shet yerselve."

"Jim, git the buckit for ther stranger."

"Sal, you know's the brindle dun kick ther buckit ter pieces an' mam are laid up whar she kick her."

"Stranger, luck are agin us. I knowed it, 'cause I dream las' night that sweetnin' taters dun come already. You just mosy erlong 'bout 'er quarter ter the spring an' slobber thar out yer hans."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Trials of the Cannibal.

I was talking with the Cannibal in a museum the other day, and he was complaining of the fate which made him a Cannibal at fifteen dollars per week, while he had always longed to be a double headed Nightingale at a salary of fifty dollars, when an oldish man approached and inquired of me:

"Is this the canny-bal?"

"Yes, sir."

"From the South sea?"

"Yes."

"Eats human beings, does he?"

"He used to, I believe."

"Used to eat sailors, I s'pose?"

"No doubt of it."

"Just chaw 'em right down like so much chicken?"

"Yes."

The visitor pulled out his handkerchief and wiped his eyes, and seemed greatly affected for a minute or two. Then he said:

"My son Bill was a sailor. The last I knowed of him he sailed for the South seas. He was no doubt cast away and eaten by the canny-bals, and I'll be hanged if I don't believe this slabsided nigger was the very chap who got most of the meat! I'm a-goin' to give him an all fired lickin' and make him own up!"

It took three men to get him out of the place, and when he had finally been disposed of the Cannibal heaved a deep sigh and said:

"You see how it is? That's only one of the many trials I have to endure every day in the week, with a sacred concert on Sunday. Is it any wonder I am discouraged? Can you blame any first class Cannibal for wanting to get out of the business, even to become an ossified man or a half horse freak? I must change my line, even if I have to become a Circassian female beauty."—M. Quad in New York Evening World.

Parental Misgivings.

It Was on the Drummer.

A Griswold street tailor was talking to a drummer when a nice looking young man came in, and after a few minutes' examination of the goods he ordered a suit of clothes and left.

"Nice young man," said the tailor.

"Looks like it," observed the drummer.

"I make all his clothes," continued the tailor.

"Good pay?" inquired the drummer.

"Never pays for anything," said the tailor.

"What in thunder do you want to let him beat you for?"

"I don't."

"How do you get your pay?"

"His father pays for him."

"What a chump the old man must be. Who is he?"

"I am."

The drummer thought it was time to go then, but the tailor insisted on the drinks and then ordered a very nice little bill at sixty days.—Detroit Free Press.

Something of an Expert.

"Warm day," observed the jaded tragedian in the long, variegated linen ulster and the tired looking shoes, as he handed a lean valise over the counter.

"Terms cash in advance," coldly replied the hotel clerk, handing the valise back. "I don't know that it's so very warm."

"You don't, hey?" rejoined the gifted tragedian, scowling darkly. "You don't keep a record of the weather perhaps. And perhaps," he continued, thrusting a dingy hand in the breast of his frescoed ulster, "your education in the science of meteorology has been neglected!"

"Not entirely," said the clerk, coming out from behind the counter. "Not entirely—and he fired the gifted Thespian down the stairway—"I know something about the science of shooting stars."—Chicago Tribune.

A Princely Gift.

The daughter of Mose Schaumberg was recently married in Austin to a Hebrew gentleman of culture and refinement. Mose is very stingy, and Gilhooly suspected that he had not done much for the young couple, so he asked him:

"What did the uncle of the bride give the bridal couple?"

"A dinner set for twenty-four persons," replied Mose.

"What did the father of the bridegroom give?"

"He gave dot pridal couple a tea set for twenty-four persons."

"What did you give, Mose?"

"I gave more den anybody else. I gave a tea strainer for more den twenty-four persons."—Texas Siftings.

Reaching a Limit.

Featherstone—I met your washwoman down the street, and she said you owed her a dollar, and she asked me if i would pay her and speak to you about it. I did so.

Ringway—I am much obliged, old man. You haven't the other four dollars about, have you?—Clothier and Furnisher.

Didn't Count.

Why He Was Appointed.

They tell a story of a young man who went to a little town down in North Carolina some time ago, and recently wrote home that he had been appointed postmaster. His sudden elevation surprised the folks at home until he explained that as he was the only one in the town who ever wrote or received a letter the postmistress had turned the office over to him.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER
COPYRIGHT

The room's in disorder,
The cat's on the table,
The flower-stand upset, and the mischief to pay;
And Johnny is screaming
As loud as he's able,
For nothing goes right when mamma's away.

What a scene of discomfort and confusion home would be if mamma did not return. If your wife is slowly breaking down, from a combination of domestic cares and female disorders, make it your first business to restore her health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is without a peer as a remedy for feeble and debilitated women, and is the only medicine for the class of maladies known as "female diseases" which is sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction, in every case, or the money will be refunded. It is a positive cure for the most complicated cases. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, and a soothing and strengthening nervine, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system. It's a legitimate medicine, too—carefully compounded by an experienced physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization.

GLAD HE KEPT STILL.

Amusing Story About General Sherman.

A correspondent of the Boston Courier says that in 1878 he was returning from Salt Lake City to Boston. In the sleeping-car two gentlemen were awaiting the making up of their berths, and he took a seat opposite and engaged one of them in conversation—a man, who, from his dress, seemed to be a returning California miner or a frontiersman. He wore a blue underflannel in place of a white shirt, and a tie with a sailor's knot.

His intelligence greatly surprised me, and I soon concluded that I had mistaken my man.

A little later, when I had become acquainted with his traveling companion, who proved to be General McCook, I asked him with whom I had had the pleasure of conversing.

"General Sherman, of the United States Army, sir," he replied.

In due time we reached Omaha, where we were to make a short stay. General Sherman went at once to the news-stand on one side of the station, and said to the boy in charge in rather a peremptory tone, "Give me a sheet of letter paper."

I followed, and asked for the latest newspaper, and then, turning to the boy, inquired if he knew the gentleman who had preceded me.

"No, I don't," said the boy; "but he owes me two cents for that sheet of paper, and I'm going to get it, before he goes out of this station."

Meanwhile the General had gone to the telegraph office, opposite the news-stand, presumably to send a message to Washington.

"Young man," said I, "that is General Sherman."

"General Sherman!" and the boy looked at the tall man with all his eyes. "General Sherman!" he repeat. "Well, now, aint I glad I didn't ask him for them two cents!"

Undoubtedly he received the money after the General had attended to his dispatch, but I did not wait to see.

WISTFUL.

Dear, it is hard to stand
So near thy life, yet so apart;
So near—I think so near—thine heart;
So near that I could touch thine hand,
And yet so far I dare not take
That hand in mine for love's dear sake!

So near that I can look my fill
At stated times upon thy face;
So far that I must yield a place
To others, sore against my will!
So near that I can see the smile,
So far my poor heart aches the while!

Dear, it is hard to know
Whate'er the stress, the storm, the strife,
The fret, the sadness of thy life,
I have no power, no right to show
Love in my heart, love on my lips,
To comfort thee in life's eclipse;

No right to claim before the rest
The privilege to weep with thee;
No right, across life's stormy sea
To bid the welcome to my breast;
No right to share thy hopes, thy fears,
Through all the weary, weary years.

Dear, it is hard to feel
That bliss may meet thee, full and fair,
Wherein poor I can have no share;
That thy wide future may reveal
The joys of harvest manifold,
While I stand lonely in the cold.

Dear, it is hard. But God doth know
How leal the heart that beats for thee;
It is enough, enough for me
To love thee. Let the future show
Love can live on for its own sake,
Though eyes may weep, though heart may ache!

—All the Year Round.

OF NO USE.

Make me of use my God!
Let me not be forgot;
Let not Thy child be cast aside,
One whom Thou needest not!

Little Jenny Briggs sang these words perched up in the kitchen window near her mother's ironing table. It was almost dusk, and Jenny was darning away very busily, hoping to have the last pair of socks in the basket finished before daylight was quite gone.

The basket had been heaped with stockings of all sizes from the father's big blue socks down to Watty's holy red ones, as Jenny called them. Jenny liked to begin on it when it was filled up so, for she had learned to darn so nicely, and was very proud of her accomplishment. Besides, it was so nice to show mother each pair as she finished it, and hear her say:

"Well done girlie!" or "You're a real Jenny—that you are!"

Jenny was singing on—

Thou usest all Thy works,
The weakest things that be;
Each has a service of his own,
For all things wait on Thee.

"There, now," interrupted the mother, you must come down from the window and set the table, little woman. The clock has struck six, and father and Ben will be here directly. Never mind about that last pair, now. See what it is to be so useful that you're wanted for two things at once."

Jenny laughed as she stuck her needle into her cushion, and sprang down from her seat. At the same moment, a boy who had been sitting near raised himself on his crutches and came to his mother's side.

"Can't I help, mother?"

Perhaps the mother was too busy to notice the plaintive tone of the question, for she answered rather hastily:

"Not now, Hugh! I've nothing for you to do. And stand aside, my dear. I'm in a great hurry to finish these things."

"We haven't any beef to shave to-night, Hugh," said Jenny merrily; "and, of course, I can fly around and get tea better than you could!" And the child bustled around like a busy bee.

Hugh turned and hopped away on his crutches to the farthest window, and a few bitter tears coursed down his cheeks.

"It's well enough for Jenny to sing that hymn," he said to himself, "but there's never anything I can do."

"Here we are! bless your dear hearts! How've you all got on today?"

At the sound of his father's step outside, Hugh had slipped in to a back room. The rest all turned eagerly to greet him as he entered, followed by Ben, a stout lad of fourteen.

Just as her husband came in, Mrs. Briggs hung up her last piece and set aside the irons to cool, saying "There, it's done."

"It's too much, for you, though, I am afraid, mother," said the father, with a half sigh. "You have had hard work enough to do for all of us, without taking in any."

"Never mind," was the cheery answer; "we must all help pull over this tight place. And besides, you don't know how much Mary and Jenny help me, now that they are out of school."

"Mother won't have to do it long, will she, father? Not if I get that place, at least," said Ben, "for then I can pay my own way. Hurrah."

"Ah, there comes my little Mary! Been doing mother's errands, my girl? But where is Hugh?" said the father looking about.

"Hughie en 'e sink-room wiping his eyes!" said little Watty.

"Wiping his eyes. What's the matter?"

"Not much, I guess," said the mother in a low voice, or nothing new I mean; he gets fretty and moping some days; and no wonder, I suppose, poor boy!"

Ben directly made an errand into the sink-room.

"Hello, Hugh, here you are!" said he cheerily; hold on a minute till I wash my hands and then let's have a look at those grape-vines and see if they are all going to live."

"Now, then, I'll be one crutch, you know," said he, and passing his strong arm around his brother, he helped him down into the yard.

"They're going to do first-rate." Ben went on examining the vines. But I say, Hughie, what's up? Is the pain bad to-day?"

Hugh shook his head.

"It isn't that," said he.

"What then! you'll tell me, I am sure, old fellow?"

"Oh, Ben, it's only that all the rest of you can work and help on; and I am just good for nothing. I am of no use; and I never can be.

"Now, Hughie Briggs, you mustn't say that. Who gets on faster than you do in school, I want to know; and didn't teacher tell you what lots of things you'd be able to do one of these days, if you get on well with your learning?

"And then you do help at home, I'm sure. Don't you amuse Watty and keep him out of mischief, and clean the knives and black the boots and what not?

"Come now, cheer up, like a brave chap! There's mother calling; come in to supper, and by-and-by I want to tell you something!"

The Briggs family were in a tight place, this spring, in truth. They had had a good deal of sickness through the winter, and then the father had only half work for some weeks. But the children learned from their parents' example to look on the right side, and work on cheerfully and hopefully: and they were a happy household still, in spite of their poverty. Even poor Hugh was generally patient and content.

After supper Ben beckoned his brother aside.

"I say, Hughie, do you think you could ride in the wheelbarrow out beyond the factory, to-morrow morning, and get back yourself? If you could, I'd take you when I go to work. We might start early, you know, and I've a famous plan for you. I was out wandering around at noon—it was so warm and pleasant to-day—and I discovered such a prime lot of trailing arbutus. I don't believe anybody knows of it. Now Hugh!"

"Oh, Ben, do you mean for me to pick and sell it, the way, the Ryan girls did? Oh, Ben, do you think I could?"

"Of course you can, old fellow! I'll fix you up! There's that big shallow basket, it wants a strap to go over your tray. And if I wheel you out there, maybe you won't get too tired. But we must ask mother, if you will like to try that is.

"Yes, yes, I want to," assented Hugh, though he trembled with excitement at the idea of undertaking the sale.

His mother demurred a good deal. She feared Hugh was too feeble to attempt it; but the father whispered, "Let him try, mother; if he succeeds, it'll do him good."

So bright and early the next morning, the boy set forth.

Hugh enjoyed his wheelbarrow ride, and went into ecstacies over the arbutus, which was very large and sweet. Ben helped him pick until the clanging bell called him to his work, and then left him, saying:

"Now see what a fine salesman you can make, and keep up a stout heart, dear old fellow!" Hugh picked all the arbutus within his reach which was opened, and tied it up in large bunches. Then, hanging his basket round his neck, he made his way slowly into town.

As his home was in the outskirts Hugh had but seldom gone through the busier streets where now he meant to offer his flowers; and his heart beat fast as he took his stand on a corner.

He held out a bunch timidly to one and another of the busy people who passed by. But, though some looked at him curiously, and others pityingly, no one one seemed disposed to buy.

Hugh was growing disheartened.

"Nobody want's 'em, they're like me," he said to himself; but remembering Ben's cheery counsel, he resolved to cross into the next street and try again.

As he was hopping along, a young girl came tripping by, but stopped at the sight of Hugh's basket.

"Oh, how lovely! Are you selling this?" she asked. "How much a bunch?"

"Ten cents, miss," said Hugh, very shyly.

"Ten cents! Those are very generous bunches for that price. I'll take one gladly."

Then, noticing Hugh more closely, she asked kindly:

"Have you ever sold any before? Where did you find this?"

Hugh told her how his brother had taken him out in a wheelbarrow to get it, and the girl seemed greatly interested.

"But you have made your bunches too large" she said. "You might make three or four out of each of these. See here, Mr. Dillon will let you sit down in his shop if I ask him. I'll show you how to make them up, and then I know where you can sell 'em. Come in here.

The shopkeeper smilingly gave the desired permission; and Miss Loulie tied up a few tasteful bunches of the usual size to show Hugh how.

"There," said she, "I must run or I shall be out too long. Do you know where the young ladies' school is—up on the hill? Well, when you have made up the bunches just bring them there, and ring the bell; will you?"
